NEW MARKET HEIRS SAY, WILL A FORGERY

Alleged Last Testament of Charles L. Fair Turns Up Mysteriously.

LEAVES MUCH TO "SON"

INSTRUMENT SIGNED BY TWO WITNESSES, NOW DEAD.

Declared Fictitious by All Concerned—Fair Never Had a Child —One of the Legatees Says Will is a Hoax.

"Mayor" William Smith, of New Market, a brother of the late Mrs. Charles L. Fair, declares that what purports to be the last will and testament of the late Charles L. Fair sent through the United States mail on Saturday in a mysterious manner to the chambers of Superior Judge F. J. Murasky in SanFrancisco, Cal., is a fraudulent document.

In this alleged will Mr. Fair mentions his son, "Charles J.," and he bequeaths to him $800,000. The sum of $750,000 is bequeathed to "the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum," $600,000 to "Joseph Harvey" and $40,000 to "the city of San Francisco, for the purpose of founding a hospital." The residue of the estate is left to his wife, who is also named as executrix. The alleged will is dated in San Francisco, April 16, 1901.

An heir, Charles Fair, was brought forward in New York about eleven months ago, although he never appeared in person, and the matter was dropped without investigation. Whether one will come forward and petition the ours to probate the alleged will of Charles L. Fair is a matter of conjecture.

The document was pronounced clumsy fictitious document by all those who saw it today, and its appearance has not disturbed the Fair heirs or their attorneys. That it is a forgery is declared by Theodore Kytka, a writing expert.

"There is one thing above all others," John Seymour, agent for the Fair estate, said today, "which proves that the alleged will is a fraud, and that it is the fact that the signature of former Chief of Police Lees is attached to it as that of a witness. Now, is there a living man who believes that anything on earth would have stopped Lees from announcing the fact that such a document had been signed by him if he had witnessed it? I know Lees well, and I tell you he would turn over in his grave if he was aware that such a document had been sprung at this time."

Joseph Harvey, who was left $500,000 by the document, places no faith in its genuineness. "It is a fraud on its face," Mr. Harvey declared, "and I do not believe any one will appear to probate it."

Mr. Harvey does not place any credence in the story that Mr. Fair left a son. He said he had frequently spoken in jest to Mr. Fair about the number of claimants who would spring up if he were to die suddenly.

"There will be none of mine," Mr. Fair responded. "None will appear to claim the name Fair."

Charles J. Heggerty, of San Francisco, one of the attorneys for the Fair estate, who is in New York attending to some of the litigation incidental to the probate of the wills of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Fair, both of which he drew, said yesterday:

"The document received by Judge Murasky is either a fake or a forgery, or both, if you like. No one here connected with the Fair estate knows anything about this alleged will.

"Charles Fair never had a child. After his death the attorneys of the estate were notified by a lawyer that he represented a child of the late Charles L. Fair, who was killed in France. Charles H. Neal, manager of the estate, wrote him about the sex, age and mother, but he would not disclose any details, and that's the last we heard of the case."

PLANS FOR MASONIC STATE ORPHANAGE

Home for Poor Children of Dead Masons to be Erected.

SITE NEAR BURLINGTON

TO BE AN ADDITION TO THE PRESENT MASONIC HOME.

Building to be Modern Throughout —To be Finished Early Next Year—Accommodations for Sixty-Eight Children.

The proposed new Orphanage building for the Grand Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons of New Jersey, is to be erected by the members of the ancient fraternity in this State on the beautiful grounds owned by the Grand Lodge near Burlington, and on which is the present Masonic home, the original building of which was at one time, the country residence of former Governor Bunn.

The building itself is thirty-eight feet six inches wide, by sixty-three feet six feet long. Along the front will be a terrace about eight feet wide and at either end are porches twelve feet, six inches wide and extending the whole width of the building.

The first floor of the building has a wide central hall, in which are the stairs and from which entrance is made into a large square hall or sitting room and opening from it is a school room where the young children and those not able to attend the public schools, will be taught. On the other side of the central hall is a large room used as a nursery and two small rooms for isolating sick children. There are also on this floor toilet room accommodations for both sexes.

In the basement, besides the space devoted to the heating apparatus, there will be a room set apart for manual training work and a kitchen and ample accommodation for play rooms. Underneath the large porches, at either end of the building, will also be sheltered spaces which can be used as playgrounds in wet weather.

The second floor is divided into two parts by a large central hall which is partitioned so as to divide the children, the girls to be on one side and the boys on the other. On this floor are four dormitories, two for each sex and with a teachers' room and bath and toilet rooms.

The third floor is similarly divided excepting that it is proposed to have the older children occupy this floor, and for that reason the dormitories have been divided by partitions, so as to arrange for two beds in each partitioned space.

The building will be heated by steam and lighted by gas from the plants supplying the home. It will be built of stone up to the first floor line, and then of brick, rough cast, excepting for quoins and belt courses, which will be of grey brick. The roof will be covered with slate, and the cut stone work will be of brown stone and Indian stone, similar to that used in the other buildings.

It is estimated that the building will cost about $30,000. It is hoped to have it finished in the early part of next year. There will be accommodations for over sixty children, besides the matron and assistants.

PAGANISM TO CHRISTIANITY

THIRTY YEARS PROGRESS OF JAPAN DETAILED BY PROF. KNOX.

Interesting Sermon at Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church Last Evening.

The transformation of Japan, was the subject of a most interesting address by Professor George V. Knox, of Union Theological Seminary at the Crescent Avenue Church last Sunday. Professor Knox visited Japan in '77 and spent ten years among the people.

Professor Knox spoke especially of the rapidity of the opening up of the empire through the willingness of the enterprising Japanese to learn of their western neighbors. He spoke of the condition of Japan before the coming of Commodore Perry in '59, of the feudal barons, the empire gentry, and the masses—the three main classes. This second class, the gentry, known as the Samarii, were about two million in number. They were the educated class, and to them is attributed the making of the new empire.

At the invasion by the powers, these patriotic Samarii uprose to restore the empire and drive out the foreigners. They were successful in restoring the empire but being unable to drive out the invaders, they sent a government embassy to the United States and to the other powers. This embassy was impressed with the uselessness of their attempt when they saw the progressiveness of the foreigners and wisely discerned that the only way to save their country was to submit until on an equal standard of learning with the invaders.

This desire for education swept over the country in '77 and has made it possible for the Japanese to boast of their stride from medieval to modern times in thirty years. Professor Knox spoke of the vast number of Samarii who gave up social rank and standing in Japan to travel in European countries and the United States, to learn all sorts of trades as laborers and to return to their homes.

Those unable to increase their education by travelling have been educated at the various Christian missions where they have learned the English language and in this way, have veritably stumbled upon Christianity. A substantial offering was taken up for the pursuit of mission work among the Japanese.

THOUGHTLESS ACT CAUSES BIG BLAZE

Barn Afire As Result of Lad Striking Match Close to Gasolene Can.

PIGEONS ARE ROASTED

YOUNG EDWARD BIMBLE RECEIVES BURNS ON FACE AND HEAD.

Louis Bimble's Barn on Harrison Avenue, Partially Destroyed—Loss $300—Fully Insured—Fire Department's Work.

The explosion of a tank of gasolene in a barn in the rear of the house occupied by Louis Bimble at the corner of Harrison avenue and Cedar street at 9 o'clock Monday night nearly cost the life of a boy and burned to death nearly seventy-five pigeons. A cow was saved from the flames by the presence of mine of Edward Bimble, who, although burned about the head and face, led the frightened animal from its stall.

Young Bimble was sent to the barn to fill a receptacle with gasolene stored in a tank there. He was cautioned to fill the can without striking a light. He thought the can must be about full and struck a match to see. Instantly there was a blinding flash and the interior of the structure was ablaze. The explosion was accompanied by a loud report. One half a block away the members of the West End Hose Company were holding a meeting in their headquarters.

The noise of the explosion and cry of fire brought them to the scene in short order and after a hard battle of a few moments they had the flames under control. Warren Engine Company responded to the alarm in remarkably short time but by the time they arrived at the scene the fire was under control. They lent their assistance and soon had the fire extinguished. It is estimated that the damage will amount to $300, partly covered by insurance.

In the left of the barn were some rabbits and these were horribly burned. One of the animals jumped from the hay loft window to the ground with its coat of fur ablaze. It died in a few minutes.

It was learned next morning that the injuries to young Bimble are not serious. His face and shoulders were burned to some extent but his hands were only scorched.

GAME WARDENS' STATEMENT

MAKE EXPLANATION OF LAW TO PREVENT VIOLATIONS.

Facts Concerning State Fish and Game Laws—Non-Residents Must Take Out License.

In order to prevent unintentional violations of the fish and game laws, and enlighten those who might fall into error and be subject to punishment through ignorance in pursuit of their favorite sport, the Fish and Game Commissioners at the recent meeting made the following statement:

The open season for reed birds, rail birds, mud-hens or marsh hens begins September 1, and ends December 31.

The number of mud hens or marsh hens to be taken in a day is limited to thirty. The number of rail birds to be taken in a day is not limited.

Non-residents of the State, before hunting in New Jersey, must take out a license which can be procured from any county clerk in the State, on payment of $10 for license and fifty cents for fee.

For non-residents of the State, who own a freehold estate in any lands in New Jersey, and who pay taxes on it and reside thereon a portion of each year and also for their sons who are members of their families, licenses will be issued by the county clerk in the county where their lands are located, upon payment of only a fifty-cent fee.

The non-resident license act does not apply to hunting on game preserves established prior to April 23, 1903, but applies to all game preserves established after that date. A game preserve is defined as a tract of land enclosed and stocked by individuals or an association.

Holders of licenses under the non-resident license act are not authorized to take from the State game prohibited by section 22 of the fish and game laws.

The provisions of the non-resident license act do not apply to gunning for geese, duck, brant, snipe or mud hens, but reed birds and rail birds do not come under this exemption.

EMPLOYER HUNTING FOR MISSING CLERK

Lad Entrusted With Cash and Checks Suddenly Disappears From the City.

"SPOT" WILSON THE BOY

JERRY FOSS, A LOCAL MERCHANT, WANTS HIS MONEY BACK.

With $35.84 of His Employers Money, It Is Reported That Lad Started for New York to See a Baseball Game.

There is every reason to believe that Edward Wilson, otherwise known as "Spot" Wilson, of West Third street, has been having a good time since Monday morning. But if Jerry Foss, the fish dealer, gets his eyes on the lad his joyous times will probably come to a sudden and unpleasant end.

Until Monday morning young Wilson was employed by Mr. Foss at his fish market to deliver orders. Just before the boy was ready to take the usual batch of orders, Mr. Foss handed him $35.84, at the same time telling him to take the money to the First National Bank and deposit it. The boy went to the bank, as was afterwards learned through Wm. Day, one of the employes at the institution, but the latter informed Mr. Foss later in the day that there was a shortage of $5 in the amount specified on the deposit slip and that he instructed the boy to go back and get the additional sum. This Mr. Day supposed he had done.

About 10:30 Mr. Foss began to wonder what kept the lad and he made a hurried investigation, learning that he had gone off with the money. Inquiry failed to locate the missing boy and later in the afternoon it was reported that he had told a friend that he was going to a baseball game in New York. Mr. Foss immediately had a warrant issued for the arrest of young Wilson and a vigilant watch will be continued. The $35.84 was made up partly of cash and partly of checks and the boy may experience some trouble with the checks in case he attempts to get them cashed.

S.S. SWACKHAMER'S ADDRESS

ASSEMBLYMAN SPEAKS TO FARMERS ON TRUE TYPE OF OFFICIALS.

Farmer Holds Balance of Power—Must Realize That Constitution is Supreme.

"It is the American farmer who has the power to reward the honest, upright official and to rebuke the man who is untrue to the best interests of the community," said Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, Monday, before a large farmer audience at Harlingen, where the Autumnal harvest home was held.

He was speaking of the farmer's influence with the ballot and continuing he said: "He has the balance of political power in his hand and I appeal to you to see to it that the man who seeks your suffrage shall be a man of sound principle and right purposes; a man who understands the principles of a free government; who comprehends the grandeur of popular sovereignty; who believes in virtue, truth and justice; who has the courage of his convictions at all times and under all circumstances; who embodies all elements and illustrates in his life and conduct the best results of liberty; who looks beyond the narrow confines of party to country and National prosperity—a man who, as Phillips said, 'believes that one is a majority when in the right.'

"The man of the hour is he who realizes that the Constitution is the supreme law and that the flag is the symbol of the sublime principle which lies at the base of true government. He should be a man who has regard for the eternal as well as the temporal; a man, in short, who is actuated by pure motives and who comprehends the destiny to which this country is devoted."

BURGLARS GOT LITTLE AT DARBY'S HOUSE

Home of Collector of Fanwood Township Entered at Early Hour This Morning.

NO CLUE TO BURGLARS

CLIMBED INTO HOUSE THROUGH A WINDOW AND FOUND SMALL SUM.

Burned Matches Scattered About —Suspicious Characters in the Neighborhood—Muddy Tracks on Porch in Front.

Burglars entered the home of J. L. Darby, collector of Fanwood township, near Aiton, whose occupation is that of milkman shortly after 1 o'clock, Tuesday a. m. and after making a search of the house carried off $11 which they found inside a memorandum book in a coat hung up in a dark closet. The intruders got away and although two suspicious looking characters were seen in the neighborhood during yesterday, there seems to be little chance of recovering the small amount stolen.

The young folks at the house entertained company until nearly 1 o'clock and it is believed that soon after the departure of the guests the burglary was committed. The thieves entered the house through a window on the front porch, evidences of this being found in the mud tracked over the porch and on the window sill. Mr. Darby heard strange noises about the house, but thought they were made by a dog on the porch. It was not until he awoke at 5 o'clock this morning to get ready to go on his milk route that he learned of the burglary. He found burned matches scattered about the rooms on the lower floor and further investigation revealed the loss of the $11. The memorandum book was left on a table. So far as can be learned nothing but the money was taken.

MRS. J. E. TOVELL SEEKS A DIVORCE

Asks Court to Release Her From Marital Bond of Chancery.

DESERTION IS ALLEGED

HUSBAND IS NOW BELIEVED TO BE IN ENGLAND.

Husband and Wife Prominent Here —Mrs. Tovell Represented by Newark Counsel—Non-Support Alleged.

Plainfield society folk will be surprised to learn that divorce proceedings have been instituted by Mrs. Annie Prentiss Tovell against her husband, John Edwin Tovell, who is now believed to be living in England. The petition was filed in the New Jersey Court of Chancery on May 25 last and citation was issued on May 28. The fact that such action was taken has been kept quiet.

The petition sets forth the marriage of Annie Prentiss Tovell, of this city, on December 17, 1892, at Evona, to John Edwin Tovell, her present husband; since which time, except for the space of fifteen months, during which she resided in London, Eng., she has resided in Plainfield.

In the second month of the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Tovell went to London, Eng., and lived there for fifteen months. The petitioner claims that her husband has supported her only from December, 1892, to the following September, 1893 and that after that her husband gave her no support whatever. The rest of the time she resided in England she was obliged to depend upon her husband's brother for a time. She returned to this country in the spring of 1894, and at her father's request, thereafter, made her home at his house in Plainfield.

Mrs. Tovell claims that when she left England it was with the full knowledge and consent of her husband, and he promised to follow her shortly and support her and her child, Joseph Wilbur Tovell, who was born September 7, 1893, while she resided in London. She further claims that she has since been supporting herself and that her husband has failed to do so he promised.

The petitioner is asking for a divorce does not ask support for herself and child. This she does in the belief that her husband would not be able to support her as he has never done so.

Mrs. Tovell's maiden name was Annie Prentiss Price. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Wilbur Price, both of whom have died within the last two years. She is a sister of Mrs. E. Arthur Janke, of this city, with whom she now lives. In the petition John J. Hubbell, of Newark, is named as the counsel. It is not known whether the respondent has a legal representative.

WHITE-FOOTED MICE

Little Creature Has Its Own Private Telegraph Code.

The Naturalist Discovers the Way They Talk to Each Other—A Visit to the Nest of a Mother and Her Young.

A few weeks ago, I was sitting on a moss-covered log in the woods, with my back to a standing trunk. I had really come to watch the gray squarrels, but for some reason I could not see any, and I was simply "waiting for something to turn up." I was listening to the only bird voice I had heard all day, that of a red-eyed vireo, and I wondered how even this indefatigable little preacher of "The Gospel of the Open" had energy enough, this hot weather, to continue his address to an empty "house." What was it empty? I suddenly heard a sound which caused me to come to attention. It was quite a slight sound, and might be suggested by drawing the corner of an envelop sharply across the face of a file. It was the vibratory sound made by a white-footed mouse when it signals by drumming with its forefoot on a dry leaf. I say "signals," but I am not sure that the sound is a signal; I am only led to suspect it from certain experiments I have tried. For instance, on one occasion I had a number of white-footed mice in a cage of three compartments, and one day I suddenly drove them all out of their nest, some of them into each compartment. Then I closed the little doors which connected the chambers, and waited to see the result. At first the mice were too much startled to do anything, but presently one of them raised his right forefoot, half closed his toes, and drummed on the floor as one might drum on the table with one's fingers, but so rapidly as to cause a brisk vibration, which lasted for a full second or more. Hardly had it ceased when it was repeated by one of the mice in another compartment, then by another, and then by the first mouse again. They kept this up, first one and then another, for many minutes, after which they resumed their usual occupations. On another occasion, when one of the mice was alone, I stole quietly up behind the cage, and, by scraping on the woodwork with my thumb nail, gave a reasonably close imitation of the sound above mentioned.

I scarcely had time to give the mouse my attention, when out from a clump of weeds sprang the little creature itself, proceeding by leaps across a little clearing in the woods. As she moved she caught sight of me, and paused at the end of a jump. She was but a few feet away, little as a panther in miniature, and I held my breath lest I should startle her and cause the little vision to vanish. Her smooth, soft-looking fur was yellowish brown on the back, becoming brighter along the sides, while her feet and underparts were a pure, almost shining white. Her tapering tail, which was curved gravefully upward, glistened slightly with the short, close-lying silky hairs which covered it; her ears were large, thin and well-formed, and her whiskers were long and numerous. But it was to her eyes more than to any other one feature, that her beauty was due. These were large and black and very prominent, but they were also soft and luminous, like the eyes of a flying squirrel. But my observations on her personal appearance were cut short, for she began to move forward again. But she did not advance by leaps as before. With one eye on me, she crept forward along, lifting one foot at a time, like a cat stalking a bird. But she soon abandoned this stealthy gait, and, breaking into a rapid one, leaped lightly along toward a small pine tree, which stood in the clearing. Up the trunk she went, proceeding by little jumps, until she reached the branches, and then for the first time I noticed an old bird's nest amongst the twigs. To this nest she went, and disappeared through a hole in the side.

Next to hustling, there is nothing in the work like waiting; everything in the woods will come to you if you will only wait long enough. So it was in this case, and in the course of an hour or two, out from the woodpile came the little mother mouse, dragging her babies along over the ground. They were blind and all but naked, but they knew enough to hold on tight to mother when she concluded to take a little run about. Back to the tree she went and up the trunk she started, but she had not gone more than two feet when an accident happened. One of the youngesters lost his grip and fell. His mother paid not the slightest attention, but continued on her way, slowly dragging the other babies up the tree toward the nest. At last it was reached, and the whole party was lost to view. Had the mother forgotten the unfortunate little one? No, she hadn't, either, for out she popped again, and, running down the trunk as spry as a cricket, she picked up the helpless infant in her teeth, and skipped up the tree to the nest with him as easily as she might have done with a hickory nut.

AMUSEMENTS.

Rossi's Naval Band continues to play on the Pabst Roof Garden.

At Tony Pastor's are McWatters and Tyson's company, four very clever people, who also introduce one of "Herrmann the Great's" illusions. Miss Jean Bedford has a new sketch, "A Fisherman's Luck," and Harding and Ah Sid, the clown and the Chinaman, also appears. Others are Mlle. Olive, Nelson and Milledge and Harry Thompson.

"Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," the most recent and most costly of all illusions at Luna Park, Coney Island, is proving to be the greatest attraction in the place. Persons who make the trip once in the submarine boat, take the trip again and again in an effort to "see how it is done." Notwithstanding the attendance at "Twenty Thousand Leagues," "A Trip to the Moon" is as popular as ever.

The Johnstown Flood still continues to be the greatest attraction at Coney Island.

The Bostonians in DeKoven & Smith's "Robin Hood" is the attraction offered at the Academy of Music. There's nothing better on the boards.

Miss Fay Templeton has made the hit of the season. She is at her best in "The Runaways" at the Casino. Plainfield's theatre goers should not miss this show.

This is the eighth month for the "Wizard of Oz" at the Majestic Theatre. Two hundred and fifty-four performances at a continuous run speaks well for Frank Stone, the fun maker.

Shakespeare's fairies—those dainty and delightful elves whom the myriad-minded Bard of Avon may justly be said to have invented and immortalized in his "Midsummer Night's Dream," reappear in the new opera, half romantic and half comic, "A Princess of Kensington," which John C. Fisher is to produce at the Broadway Theatre Monday night, with James T. Powers in the principal part.

V. M. C., the motto of the order of Royal Arcanum, will blaze forth at Pain's Amphitheatre, Manhattan Beach, Monday night. The display will be in honor of the organization and many of the Grand Officers and Regents of local councils have expressed their intention to be present.

What promises in advance to be the greatest illusion act ever shown in the United States will be offered at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre next week by the Great Thurston. He will entertain with peculiar, puzzling, weird wonders embracing a multiplication of elements that will include approximately, everything that is strange and extraordinary.

The great Fashion Show opens at Madison Square Garden, New York, Monday night. Vast preparations have been underway for months for this unique exposition, the first of its kind ever held in this country. Exhibitors from every part of the United States have secured space for showing their goods which include every kind and description of fabrics in the rough material and in made up goods.

Maybelle Eckert, who appears at Keith's next week, needs no introduction to lovers of vaudeville and in her act "Comedy and Pathos," she shows to the best advantage. Frank Bush is another name to conjure with and he is better than ever if that is possible. For one long laugh Tom Lewis and Sam. J. Ryan, in their skit "The Wireless Telephone," fills the bill. Pickaninnies are always in favor and Grace LaRue is said to have two of the cleverest seen on any stage.

Petit Jurors.

Sheriff McMurtry, of Somerville, has drawn the following names of persons from North Plainfield as member of the September petit jury: Levi C. Kline, Andrew Love, Jr., Richard D. Corlell and Albert Brokaw. Those from Warren township are: Aaron H. Spencer, Diedrich Ehlen, Joel Giddes, Adrain Martin, Peter Friday and Wm. H. Codington.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS AT THE PARK CLUB

Alterations and Enlargements Make Clubhouse Practically a New Building.

PLANS FOR OPENING

IMPROVEMENTS COSTING $12,000 ARE NOW BEING MADE.

Some of the Changes in Interior Arrangements—Hall for Entertainments—Sketch of the Club's History—Other Details.

The Park Club has long been a factor in the social life of Plainfield, and, with the plans of its management fulfilled as they soon will be by the completion of the extensive improvements already started, the club seems destined to fill a larger and more important place still in Plainfield's social activities.

The club house is being improved and enlarged to an extent that will make it practically a new building. It is now closed and in the hands of the contractors. The changes that are being made are all for the comfort and convenience of members, for increased facilities in the holding of entertainments of all sorts, for the providing of space for the playing of additional indoor games and for a thousand and one other means of perfecting the club life and extending its influence.

The new portion of the building will extend back fifty-three feet from the old portion. The addition makes a thirty-eight by forty-five main hall and a stage seventeen by twenty-four.

There will be galleries at the four corners and balconies on two sides. The accommodations for dramatic presentations will be in every way adequate.

The old committee hall, as it was called, is being enlarged to eighteen by twenty-four feet and will be used principally for a tea room. There will be a big improvement in the dressing rooms for the use of members and their guests, both men and women. In the old part of the hall is a balcony which is also being enlarged.

It is intended to use the hall for all manners of entertainments. The building can be shut off into two sections or when desired the old and new halls can be combined to accommodate 500 people facing the stage. The floor will be excellent for dancing.

The plan now is to "christen" the stage by the presentation of a popular society play on a large scale and given by prominent people. Besides this, the entertainment committee will provide a big programme of interesting events for the winter months, including formal and informal dances, card parties, musicales, and the like. The building will be opened, it is expected, about October 1 and the occasion will be made one of the most important society events of the coming year. The social side of the club life will be emphasized especially during all its future activities.

In the downstairs portion of the building the three old bowling alleys will be changed into a "social hall" from which it will be possible to witness the bowling matches in comfort. Room for billiards and pool, ping-pong, shuffle board, badminton and other games will come under the new 38 by 45 hall. There will be plenty of facilities for the serving of refreshments.

A balcony outside these rooms and under the stage will overlook the tennis courts. The heating of the building will be up-to-date in every particular. With new boilers and other latest improvements in heating apparatus, it is thought the method of producing warmth will be equal to the very best in use in any of the public buildings of the city.

The improvements and innovation will cost $12,000 and the necessary amount has already been subscribed in full by club members.

Although the clubhouse is closed, the tennis courts and golf grounds are at the disposal of members at all times.

The Park Club was founded in 1891 with a membership of thirty, which quickly increased to the limit allowed of 100. Greater prosperity and wider spheres of activity are constantly opening up before the club with the promise of even better things after the new house is put into use in October.

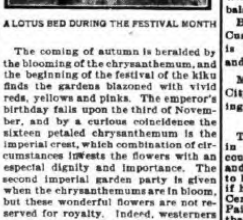
JAPAN'S FESTIVALS

Land Where Flowers Are Worshiped and Admired by All Classes.

August Is the Month When the Lotus Blooms and Fetes Are Held in Its Honor—Many Other Flower Festivals.

The dweller in the western hemisphere views the far away island kingdom of Japan as a sort of fairy land, where everything is in miniature, nature is always beautiful and life is one gay, sweet song. That it is a land of festivals is true. It is said that when the old Chinese calendar was in use the twelvemonth was actually divided into 365 fete days. The death of former sovereigns, the birthdays of saints and princes, and the days when the favorite flowers budded, were so many excuses for fairs and spectacles, festivals and amusements. But western ideas have pushed their way into Japan and the year has been subdivided officially according to the western way, but flower worship still sways the hearts of the people, and the seasons of bloom and blossom still divide its popularity into the time of camelia, the plum, the cherry, the wisteria, the lotus, the chrysanthemum and the maple. We speak of spring or autumn while the Japanese as naturally say the season of the cherry or the maple leaves, for they inherit from many generations of flower-loving ancestors a gayety an enthusiastic spirit which they only could throw into nature-festivals.

During the present month the great lotus show is in progress. All the pink buds sacred to Buddha over the whole of Japan open at sunrise. The people from the upper classes to the lower are sensitive to the beauties of the blossom and devote much time to visits to the places where the flowers may be seen in their most gorgeous luxuriance. The lotus festival is most beautiful, it is said, at Kamakura. There, in the grounds dedicated to Hachiman, god of war, acres of fields half under water form beds for the great flowers and their bluish-green plates of leaves. In cities like Nagoya, which boast old feudal castles, the triple moats become solid floors of leaves from which the pink and white blossoms rise. The enchanted beholders look down from the little overhanging tea houses into the very heart of them.



A LOTUS BED DURING THE FESTIVAL MONTH

The coming of autumn is heralded by the blooming of the chrysanthemum, and the beginning of the festival of the kiku finds the gardens blazoned with vivid reds, yellows and pinks. The emperor's birthday falls upon the third of November, and by a curious coincidence the sixteen petaled chrysanthemum is the imperial crest, which combination of circumstances lowests the flowers with an especial dignity and importance. The second imperial garden party is given when the chrysanthemums are in bloom, but these wonderful flowers are not reserved for royalty. Indeed, westerners never cease to marvel how the most gorgeous flowers, which an American florist would sell for several dollars apiece, are bought by the poorest Japanese for a few coppers.

The early springtime brings with it the starrying of the plum trees with the pink and white flowers, followed very soon after by the bursting of the cherry blossoms, calling the flower-loving Jap to renewed rejoicing and more devotion. June is the month for the iris fetes at Horikiri, where these beautiful, sedate lilies stretch away in long lines. Then follow a host of flower festivals too numerous to mention. We must speak of the wonderful July flower, the wisteria, which is the finest feature of every pretentious garden. Scarcely a householder but boasts his trellis of purple glory. A peculiarity of the love of the Japanese for the flowers is their recognition and devotion to the different varieties in their turn. They do not enjoy great, confused masses of different flowers, but delight to see each flower group by itself. This characteristic Sir Edwin Arnold says:

"The Japanese are, perhaps, the only people who do not allow the flowers to embarrass or overwhelm them. Sensitive in every nerve to the glory of line and splendor of color in nature, they economize their admiration and confine it to a profound enjoyment of a few, instead of the wholesale collection indulged in by western people. They would no more regard one of our vast bouquets or bowpots as a proper mode of arranging flowers than we would call the motley crowd of spectators in the pit of a theater an evening party. Their leading idea, entirely opposite to ours, is to get the full delight of shape and outline of natural balance and contrast from one or two floral specimens, and by no means to mass and thereby confuse them so that even the truest eye and most subtle nostrils become bewildered in the tumult of beauty, like the ass of Buridanus between his equal bundles of hay."

CHANGE IN HOSPITAL BUILDING PLANS

Women's Ward to be Made Smaller in Order to Have Room for Specialist.

WORK IS BEING RUSHED

INTENTION TO OCCUPY BUILDING BEFORE COLD WEATHER COMES.

Defective Heating Apparatus in Old Building Cause for Haste in Work—Two Rooms for Eye, Ear and Throat Department.

In the building of the women's ward at the new hospital, on which the work was commenced a few days ago, according to the changed plans it will be somewhat smaller than the men's ward, now completed. This change was made in order to provide two rooms for Dr. F. C. Ard for his work in the treatment of the eyes, ears and throat. It was discovered that in the original plans no ample provision was made for this department and in allowing the extra rooms it was found that it would of necessary to take the room from the men's ward, thereby making this ward a little smaller.

The change will not materially effect the men's ward, such as to decrease its efficiency. It is now planned to take possession of the new hospital before cold weather arrives. It is said that the heating apparatus at the hospital now used is very defective, so much so that it cannot be used this winter unless repaired at considerable expense. Besides, on account of the crowded condition and poor arrangement at the old hospital, it is the opinion that the quicker a change to the new institution is made the better it will be. The work on the women's ward is being rushed as rapidly as possible in the hope that it may be completed before the cold weather has a chance to impede its progress.

Father Cushing, Formerly Curate of St. Mary's Church, to End Life in Monastery.

Bishop Metz, of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Colorado, has announced that Father Cushing, at one time curate of St. Mary's Church in this city, who has earned much notoriety by his fight with the Bishop during the last twelve years, has been ordered by Archbishop Falconi, the Apostolic Delegate, to go to the Trappist Monastery at Gethsemane, where he will be practically a prisoner for the balance of his life.

Bishop Metz will pay all of Father Cushing's expenses. Father Cushing is between forty and fifty years old and is broken in health.

Miss Etta MacMurray, assistant to City Clerk J. T. MacMurray, is taking her annual vacation.

Doing the Right Thing.

The trouble begins with a tickling in the throat and a nagging little cough. Soreness in the chest follows and the patient wonders if he is going to have an all winter cold. Probably, if he does the wrong thing or nothing. Certainly not if he uses Perry Davis' Painkiller, the staunch old remedy that cures a cold in twenty-four hours. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'.

ONLY 4,000 SMITHS AT ANNUAL REUNION

Twenty-Eighth Session of the Descendants of John Schmidt, a Hollander.

MEETING AT PEAPACK

SCHMIDT SETTLED IN STANTON, HUNTERDON COUNTY.

Marriage of Dutchman and German Girl and Now There's Thousands of Smiths—Uncle Abe Now the Oldest Member of Family.

The twenty-eighth annual reunion of the Smith family and friends was held August 26, in the grove on the farm of the late Peter Z. Smith, one mile east of Peapack. The Raritan Cornet Band was in attendance. The officers of the reunion are Isaiah Smith, president; John D. Smith, treasurer; James C. Smith, secretary; Charles V. Smith and William A. Smith, recording secretaries. There were 4,000 Smiths in attendance.

The grounds, which have been exclusively devoted to the reunions of the Smith family, are on the banks of the North Branch of the Raritan River, and were once a part of a 600-acre farm owned by Zachariah Smith, whose log cabin, erected about the year 1800, was the first structure that identified the grounds with the Smith family. For many years a flagstaff has designated the precise spot where the hearthstone in the old log cabin stood.

Facing the grove, on the opposite side of the road, stands the old homestead of Peter Z. Smith, who, in 1676 organized the Smith family reunion.

Rev. C. H. von Glahn, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Bernardsville, was the orator of the day.

Abraham Smith, familiarly known as "Uncle Abe," is the oldest member of the family and enjoys robust health.

John Schmidt, the founder of the Smith family, arrived in America from Holland in 1748. Reaching New York he immediately came to New Jersey and settled in Stanton, Hunterdon County, where he remained until his death. He was a farmer. A short time after settling in New Jersey he married Christiana Hansel, a German girl, who lived near his home. Seventeen children—nine boys and eight girls—were the progeny of this marriage.

They were named respectively, Christopher, Martin, John, Andrew, Joseph, Isaac, Peter, Jacob, Zachariah, Charity, Taney, Catharine, Elizabeth, Mary, Rebecca, Sarah and Christina.

All these married, and had children ranging from three to thirteen. The descendants of Rebecca now number somewhat more than 500, while those of Zachariah are about 418. Christopher, who went to New York State, left nearly 300 descendants. Among these was General Isaiah Smith, who had commanded of the Western division of the New York militia, and figured prominently in the War of 1812. All the children of John Schmidt, excepting Christopher and Mary, stayed in New Jersey, and their descendants now number more than 3,000.

Shortly after his arrival in New Jersey John Schmidt adopted the American name of Smith.

MR. JOHNSTONE BURIED.

Body of Former Rector of Church of the Redeemer, North Plainfield, Borne to the Grave.

Joscelyn Johnstone, secretary to Borough President Swanstrom, of Brooklyn, and formerly rector of the Church of the Redeemer, North Plainfield, who died last Tuesday in a private hospital as the result of an operation for appendicitis, was buried Thursday after funeral services had been held at his late home in New York. The body was borne from the house to the Roman Catholic Church of St. Columbus, where a requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Curley. The interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

There was present at the funeral a large delegation from the Horatio Seymour Club, which had charge of the arrangements, and several prominent politicians also attended.

Catarrh and Hay Fever.

Liquid Cream Balm is becoming quite as popular in many localities as Ely's Cream Balm sold. It is prepared for use in atomizers, and is highly prized by those who have been accustomed to call upon physicians for such treatment. Many physicians are using and prescribing it. All the medicinal properties of the celebrated Cream Balm are contained in the Liquid form, which is 75c. including a spraying tube. All druggists, or by mail. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

GRUESOME FIND REPORTED

WORKMEN UNEARTH A HUMAN FOOT AT WESTFIELD.

A Gold Watch Also Said to Have Been Found at Scene of Railroad Disaster.

During the past few weeks the New Jersey Central has been making extended repairs to its roadbed between Dunellen and Elizabeth, and in this connection a remarkable gruesome is reported.

According to the rumor, which seems to be well founded, a gang of laborers while working on the tracks near the point where the Westfield disaster occurred last January, unearthed a foot. A gold watch was also picked up. The supposition is that both the foot and watch were buried in the earth the night of the wreck and in the clearing away of the debris they were buried still deeper by the laborers without being detected.

There was a very little flesh left on the foot, it is said, and the bones were greatly discolored. The watch, it is reported, appeared to be a valuable timepiece and looked as though it was quite old. So far as known the railroad officials have been unable to ascertain who owned the watch, nor have they been able to tell to which one of the victims the foot belonged.

VOTING MACHINES ORDERED

EIGHTY-ONE VOTING DEVICES TO BE USED IN THE STATE.

Machines to be Delivered by September 15—Approved by Governor and Attorney General.

The contracts for the eighty-one voting machines authorized by the Legislature to be used at the next election, Nov. 3, have been awarded, and the commissioners say they have received assurances that they will be on hand by Sept. 15, the time originally fixed for their delivery. The commissioners decided to purchase fifteen Columbia machines, which the New Jersey Voting Machine Company controls in this State; fifteen Bardwell votometers and sixty-six United States Standard Automatics.

The necessary agreements were prepared and forwarded to Attorney-General McCarter in order that he might determine whether they fully protected the State from the consequences of any suit for the infringement of patents in the use of the machines. They have received the approval of the Attorney-General. The Governor also approved them, as the law requires him to do, and they were formally executed.

The Board of Commissioners have requested Col. Samuel D. Dickenson, Secretary of State, to designate the different polling places throught the State in which the machines are to be used. When he has done so the list will be sent to the manufacturers, who have promised to ship the machines immediately to the places designated.

BANKERS' MEETING.

Plainfield Institutions to be Represented at New Jersey Bankers' Convention.

There will be local delegates at the New Jersey Bankers' Association convention to be held at Atlantic City on Friday, September 25. W. F. Arnold, cashier of the City National Bank, expects to represent that institution and The Plainfield Trust Company, as well. The First National Bank and the Dime Savings Institution will likely have representatives there.

An executive committee meeting of the association was held in Trenton, yesterday, when final arrangements were made for the convention. Secretary of the Treasury Shaw has been invited and will probably make an address.

Sales by Realty Company.

The Investors' Realty Company has sold to the Improved Building Lot Association, of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, lots 19 and 20, block G, tract of land at the corner of Fourth and Elk streets, in the West End of the city. The purchasers expect to continue Leslie avenue through Elk street and thereby open up in that immediate neighborhood an avenue to West Front street. M. C. Gano, of 170 Grove street, represents the purchaser, and Wm. Jeffery, the real estate dealer, effected the deal.

Unimportant Blaze.

While playing about in the home of their father, the two children of Charles Howard, who live next to Barns' Hotel on Somerset street, in some way set fire to the fringe of the lounge. An active blaze ensued and the burning lounge was, with difficulty, thrown out of doors. An alarm was turned in from box 141 but the services of the department were not needed. The damage was solely to the lounge and was very slight.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 6—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle, D.D.

Topic—The allied forces of righteousness—John xvii, 20-23; I Cor. i, 10-13.

The unity of the Christian church, for all practical purposes at least, such as the extension of Christ's kingdom and the overthrow of evil, is indeed "a consummation devoutly to be wished." Organic unity, as men are so differently constituted, is a dream impossible of realization, but unity in spirit, in sympathy and in service for Christ and against evil is a possibility, and should speedily become a reality.

In spite of all our differences the Christian church is essentially one church. The tendency in the past has been to emphasize the differences and to minimize the things upon which we agree, and the time has come to reverse the order. The church should emphasize to the world that it is essentially one church. (1) It believes in one God in manifold form—in Father, Son and Holy Ghost. (2) It has one faith—not one creed, though all denominations could accept the Apostles' Creed, but one faith—Christian faith, as distinctive from other religious faiths. (3) It has essentially the same ordinances—baptism and the Lord's supper. The forms of administration are not always the same, but the ordinances are. (4) It has one Bible. (5) It has the same forms of worship. These are praise, prayer, scripture reading and preaching. Whether rendered in elaborate settings or in the simplest the forms are essentially the same. Our hymnology beautifully illustrates our essential oneness. Wesley, a Methodist, wrote "Jesus, Lover of My Soul;" Toplady, an Episcopalian, "Rock of Ages, Cleft For Me;" Fawcett, a Baptist, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds;" Bowring, a Unitarian, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," and Cardinal Newman, who afterwards became a Catholic, "Lead, Kindly Light." Yet these hymns are sung in all our churches. (6) The church has one fellowship. The common tie that binds us to Christ binds us to one another, and we should not only sing, but practice

Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love.

The Scripture constantly emphasizes the fact that the church is and should be a united church. Christ in His intercessory prayer prayed for the unity of the church, "that they may all be one, as Thou, Father, art in Me and I in Thee; that they may also be one in us; that the world may believe that Thou hast sent Me." And what Christ prayed for Paul argued for. To the divided Christians at Corinth he wrote: "Now, I beseech you, brethren, by the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, that ye speak the same thing, that there be no divisions among you. . . . Every one of you saith, I am of Paul, and I of Apollos, and I of Cephas, and I of Christ. Is Christ divided, was Paul crucified for you, or even ye baptized in the name of Paul?" And what Christ prayed for and Paul argued for we should labor for. The Christian church as one army, though divided into regiments and companies, should present a united front to the world that the world may know that Christ was sent of God and that the forces of evil may be overthrown by the forces of righteousness may prevail.

Secretary Vogt's First Message.

General Secretary Vogt's first message was addressed to the Endeavorers of New York state through their state paper, Empire State Notes. It is as follows:

My Dear Fellow Workers:

I want to extend to you my hand of cooperation and at the same time assure you of my determination to work for greater achievement of increase for Christian Endeavor. It surely is an added earnest of larger things to come, now that the need of men physically and spiritually been the subject of private talk and public consideration and the object of effort so much as now, and never so profound and universal the conviction that the one help for that need in all its perplexing complications is Jesus Christ. Believing that the work is worthy which does most somehow aid in bringing the world of needy men to Him who alone can save, we shall, by earnest study and constantly work that our great organization may more and more be effective to that end. Yours sincerely,

Von Ogden Vogt

Discovered the Young People.

It cannot be forgotten that Christian Endeavor, as I wrote sixteen years ago, discovered the young people to the church, discovered the power of the young people for Christian service to themselves, and thus utilized for the church and the kingdom of God this vast spiritual force.—Rev. Howard B. Grose.

President Clark's Trip.

Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, the founder of the Christian Endeavor movement, in his recent four weeks' conversion tour through the south made forty-three addresses in seven different states, with 5,400 miles of travel.

Banks, and half a dozen others who are recognized as favorite contributors of the best fiction to publications of the highest standing.

The Spaniards were the first to bring horses to this continent, though the paleontologists tells us that the rocks abound with fossils which show that Equidce were numerous all over America in the Eocene period. It is a singular fact, however, that there were no horses in America when the first Europeans came hither.—From John Gilmer Speed's "The Horse in America" in the September Century.

Among the contents of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for September are: The Heart of a Man, Ellis Parker Butler; The King of the Northern Slope, Edwin Carlile Litsey; The War for the Range, William MacLeod Raine; All on a Summer's Day, J. J. Bell; The Stile, Clifford Chase; A Few Real Boys, Judge Henry A. Shute; Once on a Time, Truman Robert Andrews; The Marriage of Lit-Lit, Jack London; Off the Banks, Patrick McGrath.

MAYOR'S CIVIC PRIDE.

Uses Influence to Have Appearance of Local Property Improved.

Through the influence of Mayor O. L. Jenkins the Durlach heirs, owning the property in East Front street corner of Watchung avenue, will probably erect a handsome brick structure on the property now occupied by old buildings. The heirs were in Plainfield this week considering the improvement. The Mayor has succeeded in convincing them that such a building would not only better their property, but would be a vast improvement to that part of Front street and Watchung avenue.

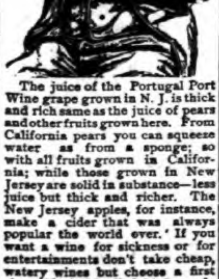
Port Grape Vine Planter In America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had



The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 6, "The Call to Heaven"—Text, Ex. iii, 1-12.

Most men who reach eighty years of age are ready to rest if not to die. Bodily powers have failed, eyes are dim, hearing dull, steps feeble, speech and thought faltering. Here is one who at eighty leads the flocks across wide stretches of pasture to the mountain valleys and slopes on the extreme borders of the tribal limits. He braves hardship and danger to find the best for his flock. Who Horeb already a holy place when the tribes of Midian came to worship? It may have been, and some impulse to meditation on holy things may have mingled in Moses' mind with his care for good pasturage for his sheep. Had Moses kept informed of the progress of events in Egypt during all the years of his exile? It would have been singular if he had not heard of the more important affairs taking place, as the caravans trading between Arabia and Egypt passed back and forth over the desert pathways and around the camp fires discussed the latest news in the lands of the pharaohs.

Did Moses know how galling was the condition of his fellow Israelites under the new laws and repressive policy of the warlike Pharoah, who had for reasons of state policy reduced the Hebrews to a condition of serfdom? All this he would be likely to know and feel most keenly. News in those days, as in these, traveled rapidly, and the desert knew quickly what had transpired in the city.

But he could not have dulled Moses' interest in his people. Age and reflection could but have deepened his conviction of the early years that a high destiny was appointed the descendants of Jacob. The tribal traditions and patriotic songs of victories and defeats, victories were particularly cherished in his family. The wilderness exile served to intensify and deepen his longings for the development of his people.

Was there any crisis in affairs in Egypt at this time, any political development, which might suggest the possibility of an escape of the Hebrews from the land? Had the soldier king died and been succeeded by a weaker man? All these questions of seeking guidance and soul strength at the sanctuary of Jehovah in Horeb that he goes there with the flocks? So many questions we can ask reasonably, but all the answer we can have is the assurance that, whatever the trend of events and working of Moses' mind, he did receive help and divine direction Jehovah's call came to him to go and deliver his brethren. It came to him rather than some one else because his fitness for the task was superior to that of others.

So God's call ever comes to us, to all. Bushes now burn and are unconsumed before the eyes of those who can see. The voice of God is still heard from the midst of the flame by those who have ears to hear. To all others things appear as usual. But when one has heard and seen and knows the God call all things are changed. Jehovah has found a man who can understand Him, and Israel goes free. Have you seen the brush burn? Does God call you?

Rise Above Temptations.

The true way to conquer temptations is not to fight them in detail, but to go up into a loftier region where there cease to be temptations. How is it that grown men do not like the sweetmeats that used to tempt them when they were children? They have outgrown them. They outgrow the temptations of the world! How is it that there are no mosquitoes or malaria on the mountain tops? They cannot rise above the level of the swamps by the river. Go up to the mountain top, and neither malaria nor mosquito will follow you, which, being interpreted, is live near Jesus Christ and keep your hearts and minds occupied with Him and you will dwell in a region high above the temptations, and far away from that which infest and slay, on the lower levels.—Rev. Alexander McLaren, D. D.

The Good Man.

The good man is a social man. He is not all ornament. He has his work to do, his place in society to fill, his influence to exert. He is fruitful. Others share in his goodness. Homes are blest, communities improved and the church benefited. He scatters blessings all along his pathway. He is no cumberer of the ground. There is neither a human nor a divine demand for his removal as useless. He is spared year after year on account of his productiveness. By his prayers, his instructions, his counsels, his example, his spirit and his deeds he improves and benefits all who come within his reach.—Presbyterian.

Daily Praise.

The entire Christian life must bear the character of a daily renewed thank offering to the glory of Him who in grace found perfect atonement in Christ Jesus, a thank offering of willing, undivided devotion of ourselves, with all that is ours, to Him. For what other purpose is man, as head of earthly creation, placed before it as a temple save that he, as priest, should offer such a sacrifice, daily consecrating to Him the spiritual offerings of self denial, love and obedience?—F. F. Van Oosterzee.

No Compromise Possible.

No compromise can be made with God. He is unbending in His righteousness. Consequences do not deter Him. He will not annul the force of any law that He has enacted because of the awful personal results of transgression. It is this that gives unshaken stability to His government and forms th basis of absolute confidence in God and His purposes.—Philadelphia Methodist.

FARMER ORATOR IN NEW LIGHT

FOR ONCE JAMES E. MARTINE OPPOSES SPEECHMAKING.

His Attitude Drives a Rahway Man Into Making "Poetry"—And Now He's "Sunny Jim."

"Prominent among the out-of-town visitors," at the Democratic outing, says the Elizabeth Journal, "was James E. Martine, of Cedar Brook, who has made innumerable attempts to lift the political cup for the Jersey Democracy — attempts Liptonian as well as Jeffersonian. No outing is said to be complete without the farmer orator, whose geniality is equaled only by his everlasting optimism, and his optimism by his willingness to get out and hustle for the cause. Notwithstanding the presence of the apostle of municipal ownership, there was not a single address during the day. At dinner, when coffee was reached on the menu James C. Connolly, president of the city committee, arose and rapped for order, evidently with the intention of having a little orating, but the clinking of saucers and plates by busy waiters drowned out the noise of the gavel. Mr. Connolly did not attempt to enforce the ruling of the chair, especially when Martine lifted his hand to signify that speeches would be an unnecessary luxury. The occasion therefore passed without a display of that embroidered rhetoric which flows from Mr. Martine 'like water from a mountain rock,' to use one of his own similes. So the philosopher from Rahway was moved to poetry:

" 'Democratic picnic—Jim Martine is there;
Mark well! No speech with vigor, vim;
Had Force on him been brought to bear
What silvery speech from Sunny
Jim!' "

WEDDING A SURPRISE, THE EVENT BEING A QUIET AFFAIR.

Groom a Professor in Florida Institution—Wedding Takes Place in Scotch Plains Parsonage—To Reside in the South.

Miss Jennie Mae Shott, daughter of Rev. Gideon M. Shott, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist Church, was quietly married to Henry M. Wharton, of Emporia, Florida, at the parsonage in the former place Wednesday, Aug. 26. The ceremony was performed at 10 o'clock, the officiating minister being Rev. Dr. Parks, pastor-emeritus of the Baptist Church, who was assisted by the father of the bride. Only the immediate family and a few intimate friends were present at the ceremony. Miss Shott was attended by Miss Ethel Priest, of Hoguenot, S. I.

Mr. Wharton is a professor in one of Florida's large schools. The bride and groom will reside at Emporia after their honeymoon which they will spend visiting friends at Luray.

The announcement of the marriage was a surprise to Miss Shott's friends, many of whom did not even know of the engagement. The wedding is the culmination of a romance which began when Miss Shott was a pupil at Abe school of Dr. Wharton in Luray, Virginia. There she met her future husband, who is a nephew of Dr. Wharton. The friendship soon ripened. No formal announcement was made at the time.

When Mr. Wharton came north from Emporia on Tuesday the marriage was arranged for Wednesday morning and the young couple were well on the South before the news had spread beyond the family.

Miss Shott has been an active worker in the church of which her father is pastor ever since she left school and her presence will be missed, especially in the several associations connected with the church. There is much rejoicing in the little village today over the match and the best wishes of the villagers follow the couple on their southern honeymoon.

Andrew Lane, seventy-three years old, who passed away at his home at Neshanic Station, last Wednesday, was buried Saturday, services being held at the Neshanic church at 12:30 in the afternoon. He was one of the most prominent politicians and business men of Somerset County and was well known in this city and the borough. Mr. Lane was a son of the late John C. Lane, and was born at Readington. For many years he had conducted a grocery store at Neshanic Station, and he was the sole proprietor of the flouring mills at that place. Mr. Lane was a staunch Democrat, and he was honored many times by his party, which often sent him as a delegate to conventions. In 1894 he was nominated for Assembly and made an excellent run in a county that was then Republican by a large margin. He was defeated by Frank W. Somers, who is the present County Clerk of Somerset County. He was, at the time of his death, a director in the First National Bank of Bound Brook. A widow, two daughters and one son survive him.

PLAINFIELD'S CHOICE FOR THE ASSEMBLY

Continuation of Bitter Fight Between Fowler and Kean Factions.

POSSIBLE CANDIDATES

SOMINEE ELECTED WILL CAST A BALLOT FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR.

Seems for Buckle, McCardell and Runyon, Who Are Fowler's Friends, and for Kirk, a Supporter of Kean—The Situation.

Here are the primaries of both political parties little more than a week away and but very little interest shown in the possibilities. As far as Plainfield and the rest of Union County is concerned, the public does not seem awake to the fact that delegates to the county and city conventions are to be chosen and the regular ward nominations made at these primaries which, under the new law, will be held Tuesday, September 8.

There is one important feature of the coming campaign which has already begun to assume prominence. The term of U. S. Senator John Kean, of Elizabeth, expires this winter and the men elected to the Legislature this fall will have an opportunity of voting for his successor. Under these circumstances it is but natural that Senator Kean should be particularly anxious that the three assemblymen from Union County should be steadfast in their support for him. Without a factional disturbance to upset calculations, Senator Kean would be very likely to have the support of his own county but the fight between the Kean and Fowler factions is far too bitter to any possibility of a reconciliation. The result is inevitable. This same old quarrel will be taken into the primaries and the county convention.

Will it not for this factor the coming election of an United States Senator from Jersey, the county convention would be unimportant. The only candidates to nomination are the three Assemblymen and a coroner or two. According to precedent Plainfield is entitled to one of the Republican nominations for the Assembly to succeed William Newcorn. It is generally understood that there is little likelihood of Mr. Newcorn being renominated but exactly who will take his place on the ticket nobody is quite willing to say. There will be two names presented, one an avowed adherent of Senator Kean and the other choice of the opposing faction. The name of Former Sheriff W. T. Kirk has been mentioned of late as a Kean probability. The Fowler choice is somewhat more indefinite although it is known that Councilman J. F. Buckle has long been favorably considered as a good man to go to the Lower House and his nomination would please many Plainfielders. It has also been said that Andrew Mc Cardell would enter the field if it was thought that by his candidacy the Kean combination could be overthrown.

Discussing the situation, a local Republican leader, whose support to Congressman Fowler is well known, expressed his mind very freely on the subject.

"Is Senator Kean coming up here to dictate to the people of Plainefild who they shall send to the Lower House?" he demanded. "Don't get that mistaken idea for one moment. If he and his friends capture the coming primaries by some of the methods they have used in past years, there are certain of us who will never go into the convention and when the fight comes at the polls They'll fight out what our strength is. No, you needn't quote me. They'll discover who it is before election day."

Another Fowler Republican was more moderate in his utterances.

"Just because we prefer to select our own candidates to the Assembly," he remarked, "does not signify that these men, if elected, are going to oppose Mr. Kean's re-election. If he is nominated it would only be natural for the Union County representatives to support him. If, however, they saw as the contest progressed, that he had no show of election and the county would be the gainer by the transfer of their votes to another candidate, how foolish would it be to throw away their support even for a man from their county. Now I don't say this is going to happen. It's only a possibility but it goes to show the advantage of sending a man to the Legislature who is not pledged to support any candidate."

While the active politicians are much interested in the fight now so close at hand, the general public has, so far, thought little about it. It is likely, however, that the next week will see many waking up to a realization of the campaign so closed at hand.

A short time ago James T. MacMurray, the local Republican leader, said that he intended to support Judge William N. Runyon for the nomination. Judge Runyon is now out of town and consequently his position can not be stated at this time.

DEATH OF MRS. IDA SIMMONDS

LONG A RESIDENT OF THIS CITY AND PROMINENT IN CHURCH AFFAIRS.

Left a Husband and Seven Children—Funeral Services Tuesday Morning.

Mrs. Ida Gibson Simmonds, wife of Herman Simmonds, of Park Lane, Netherwood, died at Muhlenberg Hospital Saturday afternoon about 1 o'clock, following an operation earlier in the week for intestinal troubles. During the first few days after the operation the patient seemed to be progressing toward health, but on Friday night peritonitis developed and from that time on there was no hope for recovery.

Mrs. Simmonds had been a resident of this city about fifteen years. She was born in Baltimore and was the daughter of Rev. John Baker, a well-known Presbyterian minister of that place. For some time she and her family resided in Watchung avenue, corner of Ninth street. Her husband, who is a prominent coffee broker in New Orleans, made his home in the South on account of his business. Mrs. Simmonds was an attendant and active member of the Crescent Avenue Church during recent years.

Besides a husband there are seven children surviving, four sons and three daughters. Of the sons, W. L. Simmonds and Herman Simmonds, Jr., live in New York; Albert Price Simmonds lives in Indianapolis, and Graft Watson Simmonds, as well as one daughter, Miss Lucille Kendall Simmonds, lives in this city. Baker, president of the Baltimore Car Wheel Works, of Baltimore, and a cousin, Bernard Baker, late president of the Atlantic Transport Ship Company, and now president of the Ship Trust. Immediately afterward, Albert Price Simmonds, a son, was called to Philadelphia, where his wife has been ill with typhoid fever.

He has been sent in retreat for a month or less by Archbishop Falconio and immediately thereafter will return to the Denver diocese.

SAD DEATH OF YOUNG WOMAN

MISS ARLINE BELL MARRIED JUST BEFORE SHE DIED.

Became the Wife of J. Linn Edsall —She Was Operated on for Appendicitis.

Marriage and death following close one upon the other were the lot of Miss Arline Bell, who went to New York from Plainfield last week, was taken seriously ill, married to Linn Edsall, of Sandford avenue, and died Saturday night at Bellevue Hospital. This is the story as given Mr. Edsall's father.

Miss Bell, who has received attentions from Linn Edsall, went to New York last week to take a position in a glove house. She was taken sick upon the train, carried to Bellevue Hospital later and operated upon for appendicitis, dying Saturday night at 7 in the evening. Says Mr. Edsall, Sr., in describing what occurred in the mean time:

"Miss Bell had recently been receiving attentions from Mr. Edsall and had expected to marry him at a proper time in the future. Not having any acquaintances in New York she went to Mr. Edsall's address where he found her on his return from business. He at once called in a physician who diagnosed her case as ptomaine poisoning. In order that Miss Edsall might give Miss Bell his personal attention they were married."

SOLID FOR BUCKLE.

Andrew McCardell Withdraws From Assembly Fight and Rallies to the Support of Buckle.

Andrew McCardell today announced his withdrawal as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Assembly from this and of Union County. This action is prompted by a desire on his part to support the candidacy of President of Common Council James F. Buckle, who has the support of the other local leaders of the regulars. James T. MacMurray announced several days ago that he would forgo whatever ambitions he had for a nomination to the Legislature in order to strengthen Mr. Buckle's following.

The remainder of the morning session will be devoted to the various reports of the State officials of the society, including the report of the Rev. Titus E. Davis, of this city. In the afternoon session there will be more reports and addresses; the Rev. Cornelius Brett, D. D., of Jersey City, will preside. The evening service will be a service of song and on this occasion, the convention sermon, "The Personal Work in Soul-winning," will be preached by the Rev. John F. Carson, of Brooklyn.

On the second day the Rev. William D. Stults, of Manasquan, will preside and there will be various informal discussions upon methods and leading questions of the work. The afternoon services will be devoted to the rally of the junior department of the society and the reports of its work. The closing session will be held on Friday and will be adjourned by the complete roll call by ex-President Rev. Arthur W. Spooner, of Camden.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the music of the convention and there will be a large vocal choir in charge of H. C. Lincoln, director of the Philadelphia convention. Orange Endeavorers are making big preparations for the entertainment of visiting delegates.

BIG EVENT AT WESTFIELD

LABOR DAY RACES FOR BIG PURSES AT FAIR ACRES CLUB TRACK.

Three Events Trot or Pace and a Special Running Race—Prominent Officials.

Westfield, Aug. 31—The fall race meet of the Fair Acres Driving Club will be held Labor Day at the pretty half-mile track here, when three interesting races will be witnessed by a large gathering of people from all sections of the county and State. The class races will be 2:20 trot or pace, for $200 purse; 2:35 trot or pace, for $200 purse, and 2:28 trot, for $150 purse. These races will be for best three in five heats, and there will be four divisions of money, 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent. of purse. Records made in any of these events will not bar horses for future sport. The National Association rules will govern the races.

Secretary H. P. Condit has received a large number of entries for each event, and good sport is assured. An additional attraction will be a running race, the jockeys to ride in colors. Five horses have already been entered in this race. All arrangements for a big afternoon's sport are completed. The Raritan Band of sixteen pieces, attired in their handsome new uniforms, will furnish music at the track and give a short parade about town before the races.

Ed. Allen, of Somerville, will be the starter, and in in the judges' stand will be found such well known race men as E. E. Bergen, Wm. Tompkins and Wesley Johnson. Refreshments will be served on the grounds under the direction of Arthur S. Flagg. The track is in good condition this season and indications point to some interesting and fast races. A large attendance is anticipated, owing to the fact that this will be the only public event at the track this fall, excepting a horse show to be held in October.

Well, Did You Ever?

If arrangements can be made by the Plainfield Grocers' Association when they take their annual excursion to Coney Island, Labor Day, the Bellanca and Shamrock III will accompany them down the bay.

Monk Won Gold Cup Race.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 2.—The Cleveland challenge gold cup at the interstate city matinee was won by The Monk, owned and driven by C. K. G. Billings of the Cleveland club. Although there were only three starters, four heats were necessary to decide the event, as when three heats had been trotted each contestor had won one. Aside from this race interest centered in the exhibition of Lou Dillon, the champion trotter, in an attempt to lower the trotting record of 2:04¾, held by herself. She succeeded in chipping a quarter of a second off her previous record.

Wire Tappers at Delmar Track.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2.—Superintendent Meyer of the Delmar track has discovered wire tappers in operation at the track. In a fight between the tappers and Matthews' men one of the former was shot in the face and badly wounded. The wire extended from the betting ring north to Olive street. It was used by for work when the discovery was made. The other end of the wire was in Delmar garden. There were six men in the gang. They carried away their wounded comrade on a street car, and all trace of them was lost.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2.—Flintlock, third choice in the betting, won the feature event at Delmar. The race was between Flintlock and Taby Tosa from the three turn to Olive street. They sway first, with Flintlock third. At the half Flintlock went to the front, with Taby Tosa only a neck behind. Into the stretch Taby Tosa went a little wide, and Flintlock's gain thereby could not be overcome. He won by a short neck.

MOLINEUX DIVORCE CASE.

Father Announces For First Time the Grounds of His Wife's Suit.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—For the first time since Mrs. Roland B. Molineux brought suit for divorce at Sioux Falls, S. D., the allegations that she has brought against her husband have been made public. General Molineux has announced that it is based purely and simply on desertion and that in all probability his son will make no defense.

Concurrently with this announcement news has been received in this city that Mrs. Molineux's application for divorce has either been thrown out or held up by the courts because she announced on her arrival at Sioux Falls that her reason for coming there was to secure a divorce.

In speaking of the affair General Molineux said that while he supposed that he should not talk about the divorce case, as it was a matter between husband and wife, he knew the grounds on which it was brought.

"I only know that the grounds are nothing more than desertion," he said, "and that Roland has accepted the service of the papers in the case. He contemplates no defense—that is to say, I presume he will not make any defense, for the matter is between husband and wife and is one that I do not feel at liberty to talk about."

THE CHICAGO MURDERS.

Confession In Chicago Railway Barn Crime.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—With a confession implicating himself and naming Gustave Maistesta, a former convict, as leader in the raid, John Sleuder, a prisoner at the Englewood police station, is said by Captain Shippy to have told a complete story of the $3,000 robbery and double murder at the Chicago City railway's receiving office early Sunday morning.

Sleuder, who is a former employee of the railway company, denied knowledge of the names of the other two men who took part in the crime, but the police believe he may be brought to reveal their identity.

Three detectives were sent to Iowa to search for the men who committed the murders and robbery. Information was received to the effect that three men answering the description of the robbers were put off a passenger train near the Iowa and Illinois boundary line. They were riding on the blind baggage and when ordered to leave the train threatened to shoot the conductor, saying that they had already killed one man during the night.

The description of these men corresponds with that of the men described by Sleuder.

NO WIND, NO RACE.

Calms Compel Another Postponement of Cup Contest.

HIGHLANDS OF NAVESINK, N. J. Sept. 2.—The race scheduled between Reliance and Shamrock III. was declared off for lack of wind.

Despite the weather conditions that made it almost certain that no race could be sailed the yachts made for the starting line. The wind was not over three miles. They lay about the light ship for more than two hours in the hope of the breeze freshening, but the committee boat finally signaled the race was off. The yachts dropped their sails, picked up their tows and made for their anchorages at Sandy Hook.

The committee boat started up the bay, flying signals for a race today.

DEMOCRATIC OUTING A DECIDED SUCCESS

Disciples of Jefferson in Union County Hold Annual Excursion.

MARTINE FOR JOHNSON

GAMES AND SPEECHES FOLLOW A BIG DINNER AT GROVE.

Plainfield Represented—Day Spent at Witzel's Grove, Long Island —Cleveland as a Presidential Possibility.

Six hundred and eight loyal Jersey Democrats went to Witzel's Point View Grove, Long Island, Thursday on their sixth annual outing. The Plainfield delegation was small but made up in enthusiasm what they lacked in numbers. James E. Martine, J. V. F. Dilkes, Hezekiah Hand, Charles L. Marcum and A. J. Nolan composed the local delegation. The steamer "Joh Sylvester" was chartered for the occasion.

The day's festivities consisted first and foremost of a big dinner served directly after the arrival at 1 o'clock, with nothing lacking in the line of refreshments. Then there were athletic contests run off with members of the Peter Hauck Association of Harrison. Hugh Boyle, chairman of the athletic committee provided handsome prizes for the winners of the three legged and relay races, baseball game, tug-of-war, obstacle race and 100-yard race for 200 pounders.

There were no formal speeches at the dinner but there was a general discussion of the political situation during the day. There was much gossip over the new primary law and the proposed Constitutional amendments. Cleveland received a thorough consideration as a possible candidate for the presidency next year, the general sentiment being that his selection would be unwise. Many Union County members set themselves particularly against the opinion of "Staff" Little in regard to Cleveland's standing among Jersey Democrats.

"Tom" Johnson, of Ohio, nominated for Governor, this week had many admirers among the leaders. James E. Martine, of this city, was especially strong in his opinion that if Johnson should be elected Governor he would be the logical candidate for the presidential nomination.

The excursion was in charge of Major Charles Calhman, chairman of the reception committee, Chairman Connolly, of the Elizabeth city committee and Peter Egenolf, member of the State committee. Among other prominent State Democratic leaders present were County Chairman John Moody, John L. Crowell, of Rahway, former chairman of the Democratic county committee, Former Mayor Seymour, of Newark; Alfred J. Lane, editor of the Summit Record; Mayor Baldwin, of Summit; Frank Bell, Fred Zior, of Elizabeth, and Leon Abbott. The city officials of Elizabeth were present in a body, the largest delegation going from that city.

BOOM FOR HACKETTSTOWN

ENTERPRISING BOARD OF TRADE OF THAT PLACE ISSUES BOOKLET.

In Pictures and Words the Story of the Advantages and Beauties of One of Jersey's Towns is Told.

The progressive and enterprising Board of Trade of Hackettstown, has just published an attractive illustrated booklet depicting in pictures and words the advantages of their town. The book has an attractive cover and contains many interesting facts for those who want to select some desirable town in New Jersey in which to make their home.

There are also figures to show the purity of the water supply, the healthfulness of the climate, the fine public school system, municipal buildings, handsome homes, up-to-date business houses and the new and handsome Centenary Collegiate Institute. No one can fail to be interested in the book. The work was done by The Rittenhouse Press, of Hackettstown, and as a specimen of the printer's art is deserving of much praise.

Overwhelming Victory at Local Primaries for James F. Buckle, Republican Candidate for Assembly Nomination.

DEMOCRATS AWAY FROM POLLS

MAJORITY PARTY HAS HOT CONTESTS IN EVERY DISTRICT OF THE FOUR WARDS—FORMER SHERIFF KIRK, KEAN CANDIDATE FOR ASSEMBLY, MEETS DEFEAT IN HIS OWN WARD FOR RE-ELECTION TO COUNTY COMMITTEE —JAMES T. MAC MURRAY CONTROLS THE SITUATION.

Opposed by four delegates, the name of President of Common Council James F. Buckle will be presented by James T. MacMurray to the Republican County convention this afternoon as Plainfield's choice for Assembly, such being the decision of the party at the primaries held here Tuesday. Mr. Buckle is the candidate of the local Republican administration. His opponent, former Sheriff William T. Kirk, is recognized as a staunch friend of United States Senator Kean. On this issue the line was drawn and the primary was but a repetition of the one last fall.

Robert Rushmore, of the Third ward, which is represented as the Kean bailiwick, was the only successful candidate for the County committee nominated by the friends of the Senator, Mr. Kirk, himself, who resides in the same ward, being defeated by J. Stephen Higham, the Fowler nominee. Amos Andrews' popularity stood him in good stead and captured a seat among the delegates to the county convention.

So far as the Democrats are concerned the primaries were unimportant, there being no contests whatever and the vote being extremely light. The leaders of the minority party appeared to take little interest in the primaries. In every district the Republicans polled a heavy vote, in some instances almost their entire strength being represented. This of course was due to the fight made by Mr. Kirk and his friends. So far as the Councilmanic situation is concerned, the local administration reports no losses, though a fight was made against it in all wards, except the Third, where there was but one nominee, Mr. Daniel, who is considered non-partisan. For seats in the Common Council A. F. Anderson, in the First ward was defeated by the present incumbent, Mr. Glenk, while in the Second Francis Montogmery was beaten by Theodore Wilson. Councilman Robert Lee again won his spurs in the turbulent Fourth, vanquishing W. W. Coriell.

In the First ward, James T. MacMurray, S. P. T. Wilbur, Wm. L. Glenk and Walter Hatfield, Jr., were actively at work all day, as was J. Fred MacDonald, a friend of Kean. In the Second ward, Judge Runyon and George P. Mellick were boosting Mr. Buckle. Over in the Third ward Mr. Kirk was in control at the First district, while Charles W. Runyon, of the MacMurray forces, worked in opposition. Mr. Kirk carried the district. Robert Rushmore was in charge of the Kean end of the battle in the Second district, though George Tobin assisted by Charles Dixon were leading a successful fight there. Andrew McCardell, Frank Smith, William Newcorn and William Westphal were working for Buckle and his ticket in the Fourth, W. S. Angleman battling in opposition.

The local Republicans are entitled to nineteen delegates to the County convention, as follows: First ward, 4; Second ward, 5; Third ward, 4; Fourth ward, 6. This must be noted in the returns given. Each ward is entitled to three members on the city committee. All, except the Fourth which gets three, are entitled to two members on the County committee.

BOROUGH REPUBLICANS STAND BY SMALLEY

Mayor N. B. Smalley Controls Entire Delegation to Republican County Convention.

DEMOCRATS LIGHT VOTE

D. J. CARNEY'S FRIENDS HAVE SPLIT DELEGATION.

Democrats Have No Contest in Second District—Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., Receives Great Tribute.

A sweeping victory for Mayor Smalley and his friends was the result of the primary election in both districts in North Plainfield Tuesday. In the First district only was there a contest in the Democratic ranks. The Carney faction was arrayed against the Limberger followers, each securing a delegate to the County convention.

In the First district of the Republican ticket the anti-annexation element went down in a crushing defeat, if the primary ballot may be taken as an indication. W. G. Debele, Dr. A. H. Dundon and Charles A. Lee represented the administration, and Dr. J. H. Buchanan, L. A. Hummer, and former Mayor Charles Place were supported by anti-annexationists in the Republican ranks. Debele received 87 votes, Dundon, 80 and Lee, 83, while Dr. Buchanan received 33 votes, Hammer, 19 and Place 23.

The same sweep for Smalley was shown by the ballots cast in the Republican box in the Second district. Robert Clark, Jr., William C. Smith and Julius J. Stahl were the Smalley men. Their votes were: Clark, Jr., 101; Smith, 90 and Stahl, 84. All the antis on the ticket in that district received light votes. Harrison Coddington got 24, Dr. J. H. Cooley, 27 and Albert Runyon, 23.

As for the Democrats in the First district, George W. Bird, representing the Carney faction and John T. Case, of the Limberger clan, were elected delegates to the County convention. George W. Bird, of the former faction, was chosen by 21 votes; Charles Keller received 25 votes, while John T. Case, of the Limberger faction, was chosen delegate by 23 votes against W. J. Kiely's 20.

In the First district there were only 66 votes polled, three of which were rejected because they had been deposited in the wrong ballot box. The total Democratic vote in the Second district amounted to 20, with no rejections.

SUIT AGAINST DR. CARPENTER

ACTION BEGUN BY NEWARK MAN TO RECOVER RENT DUE.

Defense That House is Untenantable—Case to be Held in Essex County.

Suit to recover $1,000 has been instituted in the Supreme Court by Fred F. Guild, receiver of the Commercial Building and Loan Association, of Newark, against Dr. Aaron F. Carpenter, of this city. The action was brought under an assignment made by George F. Worthington, also of this city, for rent due on a house at 1004 Putnam avenue.

The claim of the defendant, Dr. Carpenter, is that the house was unfit to live in and that as a result of its condition as to a lack of repairs and sanitary arrangements, he was involved in considerable expense for doctors' bills. On this ground he has brought action of recoupment through Attorney V. W. Nash, Jr. Guild & Martin, of Newark, represent the plaintiffs in the original suit. The case will be heard in the October term of the Essex Circuit Court.

JURY AWARDS $7,000 FOR A BROKEN LEG

Howard A. George, Injured in Westfield Railroad Disaster, Gets Big Verdict.

LONG TIME IN HOSPITAL

RAILROAD CO. OFFERED AMICABLY AMOUNT OBTAINED.

Plaintiff a Son of Edgar D. George —Being a Minor it Was Necessary to Have Decision n Court.

Howard A. George, of Craig place, who was one of the victims of the railroad disaster near Westfield on the New Jersey Central Railroad January 27, was awarded a verdict of $7,000 in the County Court at Elizabeth yesterday. His injuries consisted of a broken leg.

H. A. George is a son of Edgar D. George. On the night of the accident he was seated in the rear coach of the train which was wrecked, and sustained a compound fracture of the left leg, the injury being of such a character that, it is claimed, it is extremely doubtful if he can ever walk again without the aid of crutches.

For two months after the accident Mr. George was a patient in Muhlenberg Hospital. Soon after his discharge from that institution he was unfortunate enough to fall while beginning to walk with a cane. This resulted in a second fracture of the leg in the same place as before.

The railroad company recognizing that Mr. George was one of the most seriously injured of those in the terrible accident, agreed to settle in the sum of $7,000, which proved acceptable to the young man and his parents. Mr. George, however, being a minor, it was necessary to take the case into court.

STARTLING THEORY.

Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace Announces That Earth Is at Center of the Universe.

Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace, of London, had already celebrated his eighteenth birthday anniversary last January when he put forth a new idea that surprised the scientific world almost as greatly as the tremendous theory of natural selection—the Darwinian theory—which Dr. Wallace and Charles Darwin discovered independently of each other almost half a century ago.

The famous old scientist's new theory is that the earth is at exactly the center of the universe, and that the whole scheme of creation was evidently planned for the purpose of producing man. Some of the old theologians have always maintained this, but Dr. Wallace arrived at the idea quite independent of theology. When his first announcement of his discovery was made a few months ago scientists in all quarters of the globe arose forthwith and smote him hip and thigh. They said it was all nonsense, just as they had said it was madness to suppose man had descended from monkeys—which was the popular way of describing the doctrine put forth by Dr. Wallace and Darwin, and now almost universally accepted.

Dr. Wallace was living in one of the remote Moluccas islands in 1858 and suffering from a violent attack of fever when the idea of the law of natural selection burst upon him. Fever or no fever, he could not rest until he had worked it out and put it upon paper. He sent it off to his friend Darwin to ask him what he thought of it, little dreaming that his letter would be a thunderbolt to Darwin.

Dr. Wallace, who, at the age of 80, is setting forth on one of the greatest scientific battles of his life, has always been a tremendous worker. He began to earn a living at the age of 25 as a land surveyor, but soon turned his attention to natural history, setting forth to the Amazon on a scientific expedition, and going later to the Malay archipelago, where he was when he hit upon Darwin's great idea. He lectured in America 17 years ago and has written many books that take high rank in scientific research.

THE SERVIAN THRONE.

Should King Peter Pass Away Suddenly There Would Be Two Claimants for It.

Should King Peter, who is well advanced in years, die suddenly or be assassinated, there will be at least two throne claimants. The first, is, of course, Crown Prince George, the son of ex-King Milan, Countess Cris pressed forward by the friends of the Obrenovitch dynasty. Though King Alexander had no offspring, their lives in Constantinople the wastrelic wife of ex-King Milan, the Countess Cristitsch, whose son, Prince Milan, nine years old, is a pretender. It was feared recently that the foes of the Obrenovitch dynasty, in their determination to extinguish the house, intended to kill the boy. For this reason the sultan of Turkey ordered the widow and her son to remain in the house during the revolt, and furnished them with an extra guard.

Cook Lady Held the Fort.

Mrs. Charles Johnson, of New Haven, Conn., engaged a comely cook in New York, and she proved a jewel in her line. On the fourth day in her new home she paralyzed her mistress by falling in an epileptic fit. On recovering, the cook stated that she was subject to them. Mrs. Johnson said the girl must leave the house. The latter declared that as she had been engaged for a month, she was determined to stay. All persuasion having been useless to dislodge her, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson sought a temporary home at a hotel, leaving the cook in possession for a month.

PRESIDENT LOUBET

French Ruler Has Attracted Attention by International Visits.

A Little Gossipy Talk About the Present Head of the French Republic and His Predecessors in Office.

The recent prominence given to M. Emile Loubet, the seventh president of the third French republic, because of his recent international visits, lends a new interest to him and to those who have occupied his position before him.

Of all the seven presidents there was not one whose advent looked less promising that that of M. Emile Loubet. Yet it is a remarkable fact that not one of his six predecessors managed to secure as much goodwill as he from all parties in the state. The kindly feeling toward him is not due to transcendent abilities or boldness of initiative on his part, for he lays no claim to either of these qualities. If qualities they be nowadays in any but an autocratic ruler. But there is a bonhomie about the man which every one of his predecessors lacked; that which passed muster as such with Jules Grevy being a more or less palpable imitation, according to the degree of propinquity from which one had the opportunity of judging. Gambetta, who approached very closely, called the third president of the republic "Machiavel-Prudhomme"—in other words, a "spurious good sort"—and he was not far wrong.

Grevy suffered, moreover, from the besetting sin of nearly all Frenchmen springing from the middle classes, though perhaps not to the same extent as Thiers—namely, rapaciousness, a fault from which Loubet is particularly and remarkably free. Accident—for it would be idle to call it anything else—has also befriended him by mating him with an open-handed wife, cordial, unpretending, and naturally—as distinct from artificially—amiable to all, but especially to her husband's cronies, for whom she personally prepared the choicest dishes and whom she entertained jovially in their flat in the Rue de Tournon while the official residence of the president of the senate—the Luxembourg—was deserted.

Thiers when he became president of the republic had a very ambiguous political past to atone for; Emile Loubet has never served any other regime. Thiers was the reverse of generous to his relatives, who, it is true, were not very creditable. Loubet is most solicitous about the welfare of his kinsmen, and particularly affectionate to his mother. Family affection counts for much in France, albeit that generally it is based upon greed, which is not the case with Loubet, for old Madame Loubet lived in humble circumstances before her son's political star reached the ascendant, and to a great extent continues in a similar manner.

The tragic death of M. Sadi Carnot contributed much to the creation of an exaggerated, not to say a false, halo around him after his demise. His name was of incalculable benefit to him during his presidency. He was a civil engineer of respectable attainments, but nothing more. An act of simple and elementary integrity brought him to the fore when Grevy was forced to resign the presidency of the republic. It became known that Carnot had refused to pass a shady transaction involving the misappropriation of a couple of millions of francs while he was in office. It seemed as if the Diogenes of the third republic, with all their lanterns alight, were baffled to find another honest man, and Carnot was elected. There was another honest man—there were more than that one—but they had made themselves disagreeable, not only to their colleagues of the chamber and senate, but to the Parisians in general, who would hear neither of Jules Ferry nor of Henri Brisson, mainly on account of their nonsociable qualities. It is a significant fact that, notwithstanding the hints against Emile Loubet in connection with the Panama affair, he was elected to the presidency by a considerable majority. Of course M. Loubet had to stand the onslaught of a great portion of the Parisian press, including not only the organs of M. Drumont and M. Rochefort, but those inspired by such men as M. Jules Lemaitre and M. Paul de Cassagnac. And when all these had exhausted their vocabulary of vilification of the moral, intellectual and political man, they took to criticising his personal appearance and his clothes. Loubet was described as "too much of a dandy; they had bantered M. Casimir-Perier about his turn-down collar; they called Loubet a frottoir endimanche—a "floor polisher in his Sunday clothes." They ransacked people's Addis Paris the screens, who at one time had voted Henri Marger "too badly dressed," and the next "too well dressed." And the next "too well dressed."

WIFE WAS FAITHFUL

Clips Beard Off Man Who Wanted Her to Elope.

Victim Will Sue Modern Delilah for Ten Thousand Dollars, Alleged Value of His Lost Hirsute Adornment.

And then, the lover,
Sighing like furnace, with a woful ballad
Made to his mistress' eyebrows: Then a soldier;
Full of strange oaths, and bearded like the pard,
Jealous in honor, sudden and quick in quarrel.

And this—but the rest almost is too sad to tell. No longer is Anton Opello bearded like the pard; no longer does he sing sad ballads to his mistress' eyebrow. His song, if he sings, is a dirge dedicated to his own whiskers. They are gone, and so is his happiness. When love flew out of the window, the whiskers went out of the back door.

As Samson had his Delilah, so did Opello have his Anna Pindros. She has a boarding house in South Chicago. Opello lives two blocks away. And two blocks isn't far when two people were playmates and sweethearts in Poland. At any rate, Opello, whose home is at 8207 Houston avenue, usually found his way to the Pindros home, 8327 Baltimore avenue, several times each week.

There was only one cloud on the horizon of Opello's happiness. That was a husband. His name is Michael Pindros, and he is broad shouldered, strong of arm, fiery of disposition, and couldn't be more healthy if he fulfilled the promises of breakfast food advertisements. For exercise he works in one of the South Chicago steel plants.

Well, for a time all went well. Opello was content to speak of the days when he wore the czar's uniform and Anna admired him, and the nights when he waited beside her from the village to her father's cottage. Although there is no authority for this it is presumed that Anton looked into Anna's eyes and remarked:

"Ah, those were happy days!"

But speaking soft somethings did not content Anton. He longed to claim his sweetheart of his home country for his own. Always, just as he was basking in the sunlight of her smiles, the husband would appear in the doorway to cast a shadow upon him. At last Anton decided he couldn't wait for this cloud to roll by.

So he proposed to Mrs. Pindros that they fly together. He pictured purple poppy fields of forgetfulness, where love would—

But just then something, or, rather, somebody, hit Anton. He doesn't remember just what did happen, except that when he opened his eyes Mrs. Pindros was sitting on his chest.

"Dog!" that is the first word he remembers hearing. He didn't listen hard, though, for he was watching a pair of scissors which had been on the sewing table.

"Bang" went his head back on the floor, as he tried to raise it. And with one hand on his forehead and her whole weight on the place where he would wear a protector if he were a baseball catcher, the other hand came near his face.

"Snip-snip" went the scissors, and before poor Anton knew it one side of his mustache, his pride and joy, was severed.

"Snip-snip" went the shears again, and he felt the sephyrs penetrate his chin, long protected by his luxuriant beard.

Then, like Samson, he made a mighty effort and threw her from him. But as he struggled to get to her he saw her seize the tufts of hair and toss them from the back door into the alley.

According to the Chicago Inter Ocean Mrs. Pindros will have to explain a charge of disorderly conduct to Justice Foster, for Anton secured a warrant for her arrest as soon as he left her house.

But this is not all. Anton, who considers himself quite a beau, declares that the loss of his whiskers has caused other women who looked upon him not unfavorably to shun him, and says he will sue Mrs. Pindros for damages. He thinks $10,000 barely would recompense him.

"Ah, those were whiskers," he says, sorrowfully, as he reaches his hand to the place from which they used to grow.

Big Tree in Kentucky.

The largest poplar log ever taken out of Letcher county, Kentucky, has just been taken from the farm of Isaac Potter, a Boone's Fork farmer, and floated down the Kentucky river. The tree in question contained three 16-foot cuts, and the top cut contained 3,500 feet of lumber and was nearly seven feet in diameter. It required four yoke of oxen to pull the logs from the mountain side. The tree netted the owner nearly $200.

LINKING TWO OCEANS

Particulars of Remarkable Transandine Railway Now Building.

Will Unite the Trunk Lines of Argentina and the State Lines of Chili—Perilous Passage Around Cape Horn Avoided.

The Transandine railway will form, when completed, the connecting link between the trunk lines of the Argentine Republic and the state railways of Chili, giving a through railroad communication to the east and west coast ports of Buenos Ayres and Valparaiso. At present the line on the Argentine side of the Andes (the Buenos Ayres and Valparaiso Transandine Railway company, limited) is finished up to Las Cuevas, close on to the frontier, where a tunnel of over 2½ miles will pierce the Summit ridge, to connect up with the Chilian section of the railway. In Chili progress is arrested pending an arrangement between the Chilian government and the owners of the line on the side (the Transandine Construction company, limited), which will require some 22 miles to complete. The following description, therefore, will be confined to the finished portion on the Argentine side. The location of this line presents some interesting features. Mendoza, the terminus of the broad gauge (five feet six inches) lines from Buenos Ayres, is over 652 miles from that port, and stands 2,278.68 feet above sea level, and the lowest point of the pass over the summit of the Andes is at 12,762.75 feet. The railway, which is of metre gauge, is on fairly easy ground, with only one important bridge up to entering the mountains, at about 18½ miles. At this point the line begins to follow the valley of the River Mendoza, a mountain torrent which, with its tributaries, drains the melting snows of the principal summits and like many rivers of its kind, is subject to sudden rises and also to many treacherous variations, owing to the amount of heavy gravels and bowlders it brings down. The floor of the valley is formed by a series of terraces (the beds of old lakes or sea beaches (in which the torrent has cut its channel, in places to a considerable depth.

A word about the bridges. Of the 246-foot girder spans there are four, and one 196.85 feet, all bridging the river. These through bridges are of steel composite, American truss pattern, built to English factors of safety, and with pin connections to avoid riveting during erection. There are six deck bridges of 147.64 and 131.23-foot spans, and these are steel girders, all of English make. For the 49.21 and 65.62-foot spans the same type is used, the 65.62-foot span being square-ended girders. Smaller spans are plate girders, generally deck bridges. The 246-foot spans weigh 153 tons each, and the 147.64-foot 85 tons. As may be imagined from the nature of its route, the railway is not free from interruption by falls of snow in winter, and sudden rushes of water from heavy rainstorms, and sudden rises of river, cause interruptions in summer. An occasional source of trouble, too, is what is termed a mudrun, when the accumulated debris of a rocky valley is collected by the flood following a rainstorm and sweeps over the track to a depth of several feet. A carefully superintended system of line watchmen, however, by which each section is walked over immediately before the passage of a train, reduces to a minimum the risk of accident from these causes. The traffic of the railway, in spite of its incomplete state, is steadily increasing, some 5,000 to 6,000 passengers passing over each summer, besides a constant traffic of some 3,000 passengers to the two sanatoriums of Cacheuta and Puente del Inca, where there are hot mineral springs. The route may be said to be the highroad from the west coast republics to Europe, and with the railway completed, an all-year service can be run by which the dreaded sea passage round Cape Horn will be avoided.

Lovelorn Swains Make and Carry Out Odd Vows.

Rejected Lovers Find Unique Ways to Show Their Disappointment—One Took to Bed for Thirty-Four Years.

It is regarded as customary nowadays for the rejected lover to swallow his disappointment, smile at the world, and take courage with the thought he has other chances coming. It is supposed he will be all right in a month or so at the most. This is not always the case, as a few instances will show. There are cases of lovelorn vows being made which resemble election bets. And they have been carried out to better purpose.

Only a few weeks ago there died at Turin a Sig. Meeca, who just half a century ago, was on the eve of being married to one of the sunniest maids in all that land of sunshine and sprightly beauty. But the maid was as fickle as she was fair, and at the last moment jilted her lover in favor of a former rival.

When news of her treachery reached Meeca he had already put on his wedding garments, and he there and then took a vow that, however long he might live, he would never wear any other. This vow he religiously kept to the end of his days, and he might often be seen in the street of Turin, a grotesque, shabby, and pathetic survival of the sartorial arts of the nineteenth century.

It was a similar evil fate that overtook Nathaniel Bentley; only in his case it was the hand of death and not treachery that robbed him of his bride on the morning of the day that was to have made him happy. The wedding feast was already spread, and Nathaniel, who was a noted dandy, was arrayed in all his bridal finery when the tragic news was brought to him.

He immediately locked the door of the dining room in which the banquet was awaiting his guests and vowed that the room should never be entered during his life. He lost all pleasure and pride in his personal adornment and from being the sprucest man about town degenerated into a dirty, shabby, forlorn sample of humanity, the butt of street boys, and an object of pity or derision to his acquaintances.

In the north of England the story of Henry Jackson's eccentric manner of taking a love disappointment is told to-day, although 40 years have passed since the pathetic, if foolish, chapter of his life was closed. Henry Jackson was a Yorkshire farmer, one of the tallest and handsomest men in all the country side, and great preparations had been made for his wedding to pretty Mary Howarth, daughter of his nearest neighbor. He was leaving his home on his mother, and dressed him for a messenger rushed up with the news that his bride to be had disappeared and was not to be found anywhere.

"I think I'll go to bed again and wait till she returns," the young bridegroom said, philosophically, and he forthwith retired to his room.

Later in the day news came to him that the fickle Mary had been seen driving through a distant village in company with a lover. "If that's so," Henry placidly answered, "I may as well stay where I am," and true to his word, he kept his bed for 34 years, until his death, never seeing anyone but his faithful housekeeper, and never once mentioning the name of the girl who had proved so false.

An amusing story is told of another Yorkshire farmer, who accepted his fate in quite a different spirit. The banns had already been called once in the parish church when his fiancée, in a jealous moment, cried point-blank to marry him. "Thah can do as tha likes," he answered, gayly. "I mun just look out for some other lass"; and, to the amusement of the district, he carried out his purpose so promptly that on the following Sunday the banns were called again—but the name of the woman was changed, and they were "for the first time of asking."

But perhaps the oddest celebration of a marriage on record was that of which a certain hotel in a midland town was the scene only a few months ago. In one room of the hotel the guests were making merry over a sumptuous wedding breakfast, while from the bridal room came peals of laughter from the guests of a rejected but by no means broken-hearted fiance of the bride, who was entertaining his sympathizers at a precisely similar banquet.

DEN OF YOUNG SKUNKS

The Naturalist Visits This Odoriferous Animal in Its Home.

Finds the Little Creature a Most Interesting Subject of Study and Not Nearly So Bad as His Smell Would Indicate.

In the early part of last May, I called at a skunk burrow where I was pretty well known, and, as I flatter myself, pretty well liked, since I was in the habit of carry around dainties in the way of raw beef, or a chicken now and then, when I wished to coax the inmates within range of a camera hidden in the bushes nearby. On the occasion I fairly held my breath with delight, when I beheld, just inside the burrow, several baby skunks, two or three days old, tugging away at their mother, who lay on her side that they might have every opportunity. Whether she was doing, or whether she was regarding her infants with maternal admiration, I do not know, for her head was hidden in the darkness, but her tail was in full view, and as I came nearer I saw it waved slowly over her back with a sort of "clear the decks for action" movement, which was very impressive, since I was well within range of the guns. For be it known to any who know it not already, that a skunk's tail, so far from being used as means of flinging the defensive fluid, is always held carefully up, out of the way, when the animal goes into action. The fluid itself, which is secreted by two glands about the size of hickory-nuts, one on each side of the tail, is expelled in two fine streams through two nipples, with which the glands are provided. I saw that any sudden movement on my part might be misunderstood by the anxious mother, and as I was particularly anxious to avoid any misunderstanding in this case, I sat quietly down and waited. Gradually the expressive tail was lowered, and I began to speak in my most soothing tones. I knew that the animal would recognize the sound of my voice, and I hoped that this would rid her of any fear she might have at my approach. My hopes were justified, for in a few minutes I was kneeling at the mouth of the burrow, and the mother skunk who had raised her head as though to make sure that she was no mistake, sniffed at me over her shoulder with seeming indifference. Then she laid her head down again, and I made so bold as to touch her fur with my hand. In an instant the tail flew upward, and I felt that the supreme moment had come.

"Hello, old lady," I said, in the tone she had always heard me use, and at the same time I stroked her fur very gently. The effect was reassuring. Very slowly the tail was lowered to the ground, and as I continued to stroke the fur, the animal stretched herself with an unmistakable air of contentment. Now for the next step. Gently I worked my hand forward, until I could grasp one of the babies, and gently I loosened his hold on his mother, and drew him from the burrow. Carefully I arose to my feet, and once clear of the mouth of the burrow, I set off home, at a rather immoderate pace, to photograph the infant skunk, and to make notes on him at my leisure.

Within an hour I returned to the burrow, and by this time the little skunk was hungry and giving vent to strange, rather shrill, vibratory squeaks. I had no desire to tempt Providence again so soon, so I set the little fellow on the ground near the den and retiring to a respectful distance, awaited developments. The cries of the baby increased when he found himself on the cold ground, and in a moment the weasel-like head of the mother appeared at the entrance of the burrow. She sniffed right and left, and then came out to look for the crying infant. She soon saw him, and, advancing, with her peculiar waddling gait, picked him up by the loose skin on his mother, and drew him into the burrow with him.

The next time I visited the den, I found the little family much further from the opening, and it was with some difficulty that I succeeded in getting hold of one of the babies. When I did get one, I placed him at same distance from the entrance, and, instead of going away, I remained near the hole until the mother came forth to find him. Then was my opportunity, and, putting in my hand, I brought out the rest of the babies, five in all, and while the mother was busy with them I quickly blocked the far end of the hole with stones. Had I not done this, the old skunk might have spoiled all future chance for observation by carrying the little ones far back out of reach. As it was, I visited the family daily for weeks, photographing the little ones at all stages of their development, and making notes which I hope to publish in a future article of this series. The mother skunk soon became used to my approach, and before the end of a fortnight she would allow me to pat her and scratch her head.

ERNEST HAROLD BAYNES.

EMPEROR IS REVERED.

Ruler of Japan Usually Has His Own Way in Things Ceremonial and Political.

Although Japan has in the last 30 years become a modern civilized nation, it still retains many of its ancient superstitions. The pomp of monarchy has not become obsolete with the changes in the practical government. But the emperor of Japan is not a mere puppet; he has real power. "Japan, our New Ally," by Mr. Alfred Stead, gives an account of the emperor's position.

Everyone reverences the emperor, who is good in a most noble-minded person, and, what is not so good, he is still surrounded with superstitions and ceremonies not quite in keeping with the western character of the new Japan. Last year Marquis Ito, the greatest of living Japanese, pronnced a funeral oration in the temple over his murdered political colleague, Mr. Hoshi.

THE EMPEROR OF JAPAN.
(He Is Looked Upon with Awe and Respect by His Subjects.)

The next day several of the newspapers, in a party spirit, denounced him for having gone immediately into the presence of the emperor in the garments which he had worn at the funeral.

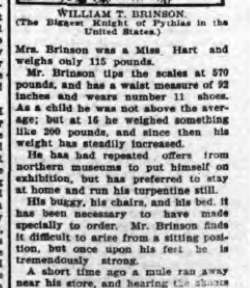
In November of each year the emperor gives a garden party. Many of the members of the old regime gather up the soil where his chair has rested and take it away, believing it to be a cure for all ailments. Other guests take away portions of the food provided by the emperor, as things too sacred to eat, and preserve them in the holiest place in the house.

The emperor rarely goes out. When he does she is attended in his carriage by one of two old gentlemen, who alone enjoy this privilege. The attendant sits opposite, and does not venture to lift his eyes to look at the emperor. He has a large palace and is known as "the man who drives with the emperor."

GENUINE GEORGIA GIANT.

He Lives at Waycross, Tips the Scales at 570 Pounds and Has Great Strength.

The biggest K. P. in the world lives at Waycross, Ga. The name of this extraordinary members of the Knights of Pythias is W. T. Brinson, and he is not only active but he is energetic. Nor has he dreamed his life away as a bachelor, for he has a handsome young wife and eight hale and hearty children, ranging in ages from 18 to 3.



WILLIAM T. BRINSON.
(The Biggest Knight of Pythias in the United States.)

Mrs. Brinson was a Miss Hart and weighs only 115 pounds.

Mr. Brinson tips the scales at 570 pounds, and has a waist measure of 92 inches and wears number 11 shoes. As a child he was not above the average; but at 16 he weighed something like 200 pounds, and since then his weight has steadily increased.

He has had repeated offers from northern museums to put himself on exhibition, but has preferred to stay at home and run his turpentine still.

His buggy, his chairs, and his bed, it has been necessary to have made specially to order. Mr. Brinson finds it difficult to arise from a sitting position, but once upon his feet he is tremendously strong.

A short time ago a mule ran away near his store, and hearing the shouts of his neighbors he walked to the middle of the street just as the frightened animal dashed up. With a couple of strides he was in the middle of the road and had the mule by the bride. To the consternation of all the mule came to a violent stop, falling to its knees.

Mr. Brinson is a member of Wakefield lodge No. 27 of Knights of Pythias.

FRILLS OF FASHION.

Gold and Silver Unite—Taffeta Gown in Pale Shades.

Gold and silver waistbands will be a feature for the next few weeks, though the shaped belt of black panne is by far a more charming fashion.

Bodices are nearly all made in blouse fashion, yet the waist line is daintily defined by a pointed sash or band.

All the best frocks worn by women of fashion are exquisitely graceful, and these soft, clinging fabrics can stand any amount of ruching and tucking.

Taffeta in pale shades as well as in black forms some of the most dressy gowns, and a good many are made for restaurant dining and for various entertainments at watering places.

In spite of ruches and flounces skirts are kept very plain at the top, and everything points to a return of the severely serpentlike skirt—serpentlike at least as far as the knees, whence it grows at least twelve yards wide around the feet. Truly the skirt of the hour must be cut by a dressmaker who is a genius as well as a good workwoman.

The cut shows a tailor made of blue cloth, with a plaited jacket and skirt.

DAINTY EFFECTS.

Russian Coats Are Popular—The Loose Cut Is Correct.

The fashionable gown has the appearance of being too large for its wearer, and a generally loose effect is produced by the shape and the trimmings. All cotton gowns follow this rule, and the waists are full all around, much pouched in front and have some species of vest or chemisette which is usually left transparent.

When the skirt is accompanied by a coatee or bolero this is wide and large and follows the sack shape. The front is filled in with hanging frills of lace or a full pouched vest, which adds to the loose effect.

The Russian coat is a favorite model for lawn and linen, and the fronts are open to show a fussily arranged vest. The front, fastened on with a high neckband and lightly pinned at the waist, is admirable with the Russian blouse and much cooler than a sleeveless waist.

Red has many followers and is shown in crape, cotton and muslin. The crape fabrics have a decidedly refining influence on the bright colors, and both china blue and rose red are charming in this fabric.

The picture shows a poulard gown trimmed with blue and white embroidery.

SILLY MAGAZINES

Do Women Like Them?

TODAY I picked up a magazine alleged to be for women. On the cover it announced itself ambitiously to exist "for maid and wife." What the editor had against widows that they should be left out is not clear.

Let us look into this publication "for maid and wife." It is called, let us say, Woman's Whole Existence. Its real name is enough like that to be thus expressed. The contents are ambitiously indicated upon the cover. In big black letters across the top is first the announcement, "Pretty Japanese blouse pattern given away free."

After the bargain counter announcement of the paper pattern given away free is the headline of the principal article in the magazine, an article vaunted with large, sprawling black letters reaching across the page. They say, "Should Girls Marry For Love or Money?" Under present social conditions a far more pertinent query would be, Shall a girl marry at all? Better yet, Can she? But for the sake of both love and money let us see what this document is that undertakes to settle a girl's future.

"Common sense is more valuable than sentiment in every way. Of course creature comforts cannot be produced by love alone. To support love you must have money. Let a couple marry with love as an asset and almost no cash and love will die. That is certain. Money is more essential than love. Cash can produce love, but love never will produce money."

After all, perhaps that is not so bad preaching for the sex that has never yet learned to control its childish emotions. The features of chief importance in this magazine which heralds itself as the expresser of woman's existence are two: First, clothes, clothes, clothes; second, the silliest, flabbiest, falsest, tinsellest love stories couched in the stoppiest English you ever read in your life. If a public school girl of ten could read these love tales without being disgusted then she would not be as intelligent as the average. The heroine's "heart was on fire at one moment and then seemed like a stone in her breast the next." "That savage resolution to strike and strike hard took possession of her once more." At length she offered "that woman" a chance to "discuss this miserable business before I denounce you publicly."

There are several of these wretched tales, a hodge podge of "detectives, love and tragedy" and bad English, and "a year later the wedding bells were ringing," of course.

"A YEAR LATER THE WEDDING BELLS RANG."

There is a page of advice to green girls. One green girl tells the editor that her Jack, her fiance, does not dance, while she does and is very fond of it. But since her Jack does not dance he objects to her doing so, and the girl wants to know whether she shall give up the dancing which she so enjoys just to please Jack or is not Jack a little unreasonable to ask her to stop it just because he is not also fond of this amusement? What shall she do? Does the man editor—a man's name dies to the fore in this delectable publication—tell her if her Jack truly loved her he would at once learn to dance so as to share with her her favorite entertainment? That would be the just, reasonable and chivalrous thing for the editor to say and for Jack to do. Does the editor say it? Not much! He just writes, "If you truly loved your Jack you would have no hesitation in giving up any amusement he does not care for." Just so! Ever petty tyranny on the part of man is met with slavish submission on the part of woman!

Finally, there are some cooking recipes in this precious magazine of woman's interests, some directions helping women how to bore their eyes out over lace and needle work, then the everlasting instructions on how to make over old dresses. Ever since I can remember we have been instructed on how to make over old dresses. And this is man's idea of the proper literature for women! If they don't like it so much the worse for the women. They ought to like it.

FEEDING MANKIND.

A New Old Occupation for Woman and a Profitable One.

"Whatever else man does not do, one thing he may be depended on to do regularly, and that is eat," remarked the woman sarcastically.

"Ya-as," growled the old man—not old in years, but in "views"—"and the only business woman can conduct successfully is to run a boarding house."

The old man's assertion set the woman to thinking seriously. Since all mankind are in the habit of eating, and since even the oldest fogy admits that a woman can feed people successfully, and since the trades and professions in which women engage are nearly all overcrowded, why might not women of brains and education take hold in a scientific, businesslike way of this very trade of feeding the human animal and make of it something vastly superior to its present realities? In brief, why not elevate the kitchen to the plane of hygienic esthetics?

Woman as a scientific food purveyor to the human race, leading it through its stomach up the spiral of progress toward a healthier, finer body, a more refined, harmonious mind!

There are a few women who have already realized this pleasing ideal. One of them is Miss S. E. Wentworth of Boston. She was a graduate, with honors, from Vassar college. It must have been inspiration that put it into her mind to become a scientific food expert and ease the stomach tortured race of a little of its woes. She entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and put herself under the instruction of the acknowledged food expert of America—we are proud she is a woman—Mrs. Ellen H. Richards. There Miss Wentworth learned to feed people hygienically so satisfactorily that Mrs. Richards asked her to go into the Boston New England Kitchen and run it, with Mrs. Richards herself as advisory board. The kitchen was established in one of the districts of Boston inhabited by the poor that the women might buy good food cheaply and at the same time learn something about preparing it themselves.

But once she had learned her profession as food expert Miss Wentworth was in demand in many places at once. An insane asylum in Illinois wanted her to plan meals for its 2,000 patients and 300 attendants. She went there and did this six months for them. Then she was wanted at the Massachusetts General hospital. She took charge of its kitchen and, while improving the food of patients and attendants, saved the establishment thousands of dollars. She was wanted to take charge of the kitchen of Memorial hall at Harvard, but declined with thanks. For a permanency this college woman food expert remains with the New England Kitchen.

Two other college girls are showing how profitably educated women can run a boarding house—Miss M. S. Wagner and Miss A. S. Lapham. Miss Lapham is a New York girl and a graduate of Vassar college; Miss Wagner is a Minnesotan and took a course in the state university. They decided to open a boarding house for Vassar students. They called it, however, by the esthetic name of Vassar inn, which has a more pleasing sound than just plain beal, suggesting "boarding house." The inn stands near the entrance to the college grounds. The ladies bought their building in the beginning of the enterprise. The inn is partly clubhouse and restaurant, partly hotel. From the beginning it had attractive reading and reception rooms, besides its alluring dining hall.

At first there were lodging accommodations for only a comparatively few. The ladies found they could fill their house three times over if they had sleeping rooms, so they prepared to build an annex. When it is in readiness Vassar inn will have rooms for 100 permanent boarders. But even these will not be sufficient. Before the close of the college year last June every room in the inn was engaged two years ahead.

Cooking and housework can be made dainty and esthetic by those who have the esthetic element in their souls, and Vassar inn is beautifully clean and inviting. The college girls hold their banquets in its large dining room, and the faculty bring their families and friends to its restaurant for pleasant dinner parties. Everybody likes Vassar inn; everybody respects and esteems socially and in every other way Misses Wagner and Lapham.

THE NEW WOMAN

She Holds the Fort

A CLIPPING from an English magazine announces that recently an interviewer called on four American literary women of national reputation. Each of the four had by her own genius and perseverance achieved enviable financial results. All were comfortably well off, all were distinguished, all ought to have been happy. To each the interviewer put the question, so the magazine says, Which would you rather be, clever or beautiful? And the answer in every case was, so it is said, Beautiful. Well, I don't believe it. The story has the earmarks of British invention in the word "clever." "Clever" does not commonly mean gifted in the United States. Again, I am sure an American woman "clever" enough to make a national reputation for herself would be no such fool as is here implied. The "clever" American woman knows that any one of her sex not actually deformed or unnatural in face and figure can make herself attractive looking. The means are all around her. They are air, water, exercise, sunshine, right food and good temper—cheap and plentiful, you see. Perennial youth and good looks lie in these. There is beauty of soul within and transcending all. That is in reach of every woman who will recognize that all life is one; that when she appreciates the good qualities in another individual and generously grants them she manifests these same qualities in herself. The generous nature that sees the best in others and ignores or refuses to criticise what seems unlovely, that shuts out anger and envy as vipers, will in time make the ugliest girl grow to be a beautiful woman. It has been proved so many a time.

Two men, A and B, were friends and members of the same club. Both had yachts, and A had a boathouse. B sailed into the harbor and anchored his yacht fifty feet away from A's boathouse. A considered evidently that he owned the ocean, and he roared at B, "Take that boat away!" The boat could do no possible harm, except to A's sense of ownership of the ocean, and B roared back, "Guess not!" A ran and got his gun. "Take it away or I'll cut your cable," making as if he would shoot the cable in two. "You couldn't hit a barn door," replied B. This insult was unpardonable. A whanged away and shot six times, but his marksmanship was worse than a woman's when she tries to throw a stone. B laughed derisively. A sprang on shore and B sprang on shore, and they clinched and fought and fought till spectators separated them. Then B and A arrested and haled before a magistrate. But it's only women that become excited and quarrel over trifles! Oh, yes!

A very gifted young sculptress, only twenty-three years old, has come prominently before the art world in Vienna. She is Ilse Conrat. A monument to Brahms, the composer, which she made calls forth general admiration because of its graceful proportions and the wonderful expression she has been able to impress upon the marble. A great career is before Ilse Conrat, German art critics predict.

A young man and woman, Fritz Sage Darrow and May Godall, belonging to the theosophical cult, were lately married, themselves performing the wedding ceremony, somewhat after the manner of the gentle Quakers, or Friends. A civil contract, signed in the presence of witnesses and a notary, completed the legal ceremony. For the rest, each took the other by the hand and pronounced poetic vows, ending with an invocation to the universal power the theosophists believe in, as follows: "O my divinity! Blend them with me, that from the corruptible I may become incorruptible; that from imperfection I may become perfection; that from darkness I may go forth into light!"

Cultivate habitual silence, especially if you are a quick, nervous person. Don't even think talk. You will find silence infinitely restful and soothing.

Those women who everlastingly nag and meddle with their children don't deserve any children. There are women who continually scold and jerk their poor little ones for nothing at all, especially away from home. It seems as though some evil spirit possesses them and they want to show off their puny authority. Anyway half the time when children are reproved or punished it is the mother who needs the reproof and punishment, not the poor child.

Once more let me say it—don't make your ailments a topic of conversation. That style of talk has quite gone out of fashion.

FASHION FORECAST.

What Is Now Worn and What Will Be Worn Later.

Almost the only thing of which fashion is certain as yet is that pedestrian suits are to be made with long coats and short skirts cut in many breadths and clearing the ground by half a hand's breadth. Tweeds, just such as have heretofore been devoted to men's use nearly exclusively, are made up into the most stylish of costumes. Some of these are perfectly plain, with nothing but the twill to designate them, but others have several quite fancy touches. Tweed is practically indestructible, and when well chosen as to color nothing can make a more satisfactory suit. The very nature of the stuff requires careful tailor work with a plain finish like that in the men's garments. No trimming can be tolerated on the tweed suits except careful stitching and the buttons. The larger and fewer of these the better for style. Some of the Bannockburn tweeds have slight effects of other colors than the general one in tiny knots and fine threads showing at unexpected places and times, not enough to be noticeable, but still enough to give a little variety. For instance, there is a light brown tweed with a green thread and sometimes a fine red one showing as though quite by accident.

After the tweed suits the cheviots are probably the best. They are produced in excellent quality and are made so well and are cut on such fine lines that fewer dresses are required than when they are made of poorer qualities and in an inferior manner. The long coats also lend their dressiness to making a finer and more elegant suit.

For what we call tailor suits tweed in one of its forms is the best and most durable of materials, with cheviots, etamines, meltons, zibelines, homespuns and mixtures following in the order mentioned, and there are also quite a number of light coverts and brilliantine and sicilienne suits for runabouts. These last are made up in distinct tailor manner, though some of them to suit every taste have sun or accordion plaiting.

Some of the blue cheviot suits have the skirts cut in seven gores, sung at the hips with a long straight fronted coat. These coats often have fly fronts and sometimes double breasted effects. In whatever way they are made they look well. The straight fronts will doubtless be the favorites. They are satin lined, and all are more or less ornamented with strapping. Most of the sleeves are in coat shape.

Black, blue, light brown, mixtures and the nickel and gun metal shades of gray are very fashionable for these most useful suits. The nickel and gun metal are to be found all through the list of woman's special requirements. On the fine silk warp henriettas, on ribbons, silks, satins and velvets and velutinas, feathers, gloves, buttons and all sorts of ornaments one finds the nickel and gun metal shades with their subdued luster, and in satin and taffeta the two shades are beautiful.

Even in deep mourning the clever workers have somehow been able to give the black garments something of the luster of metal in the application of highly finished black satin ribbon over crape. A rich mourning suit for full shows a thirty-six inch coat bordered with crape over the sudora, with two rows of the satin ribbon at each edge. The same plan is carried out on sleeves, berths and skirt. It lightens up the somber costume beautifully, while in nowise detracting from its purpose.

Evening gowns as the present outlook shows them have very old fashioned berthas on the low necked waists, with the shoulders very much in evidence and a point in front. All around is a full bertha of lace or in some cases of beautiful fringe. One dress had a four inch silver fringe. Lace over silk, and the lace lavishly beaded and spangled, will be very much employed the coming season. The berthas are pointed in some cases, and many pointed shawls of fine embroidered china crape will be worn, as well as many lace shawls of the same shape.

There is something deliciously quaint and old timey about many of the newest things for the coming season. Cloaks for evening wear are almost as long as the skirts, and the trimming reminds one of the fashions of the early forties.

TWO MOSQUITO YARNS.

They Were So Extraordinary That the Third Liar Did Not Dare to Tell His Little Story.

They were telling mosquito stories. They had prevaricated right along, to the amusement of the listeners, and each was about to run out of yarns. Each felt that it was time to get in his best yarn.

"Why, over in Jersey," said the Harlem man, "I was spending the night with a friend near a big swamp. After I crawled in bed I heard a crashing noise near my head, and turned around to find that a mosquito had been perambulating through the hallway, had gotten mad, and had driven his bill through the ceiling into my room. I jumped up, seized a monkey wrench, and bradded the bill on the inside. Then I walked through the side door, seized a shotgun, loaded it with buckshot, fired the whole load into that mosquito, and went to bed again.

HE BRADDED THE BILL.

Later on I heard another noise. Going out to investigate, I ascertained that the mosquito had broken his bill off and had gone out of the house minus a part of his probing apparatus. Three days later I saw that same mosquito eating a chicken it had caught."

"I believe you are a very strict churchman," said the other man, "and, of course, you had to tell the whole truth about that story, but I'll tell you what is a fact. Down in the Florida Everglades there is a mosquito that beats yours. I was fishing on a creek one day when I heard an awful buzzing noise overhead. Looking up, I saw a mosquito flying along with a half-grown colored child under one wing, and a grindstone under the other. Occasionally he would whet his bill on the grindstone and take a bite of the child. To show you that this story is true, I will cross my heart."

The third liar, says the New York Times, had prepared to say something, but he saw the threatening looks on the faces of the crowd and desisted.

WITNESS WAS TOUGH.

Lawyer Tried Hard, But Could Not Extract Much Information from Andrew Anderson.

The lawyer for the defendant was trying to cross-examine a Swede who had been subpoenaed by the other side as a witness in an accident case.

"Now, Anderson, what do you do?" asked the lawyer, according to the New York Times.

"Sank you, but Aw am not vera well."

"I didn't ask you how is your health, but what do you do?"

"Oh, yas. Ow vewrk."

"Oh, yas, I un'erstan'—yo want to know vat I make in fact'ry eh?"

"Exactly. Now, tell us what you make."

UP TO DATE STYLES.

Sloping Shoulders and Huge Sleeves, Gray a Smart Color.

Sloping shoulders begin to be exaggerated, and sleeves are terribly voluminous. It seems a pity to turn these graceful fashions into caricatures.

Red batiste, red delaine and even scarlet serge are being made up in large numbers. As a rule, these gowns are relieved with black or ecru.

Some beautiful linen gowns have been seen lately. One had its skirt just clearing the ground, with a border of guipure at the hem, while the corsage was trimmed with the same guipure in bolero effect, finished with a high draped waistband of green taffeta. With this was worn a pretty green and mauve toreador hat trimmed with a large black bird.

Gray is a color which is always popular, and some lovely gray sole de chine gowns are enfleoidered in silver and gold. Another favorite mixture is composed of gray and green, and some well known society women are wearing gray gowns relieved only with cream lace and rather vivid green hat and parasol.

The gown in the cut shows the new full skirt and the double stole effect.

FOR YOUNG GIRLS.

Accordion Plaited Dresses—White Relieved by Crimson.

The young girl has many pretty styles for her especial benefit this year, chief among these being the accordion plaited skirt and the loose accordion plaited blouse belted in with a swathed band of silk or satin. When trimmed with fancy buttons these little accordion plaited suits are charming for the country and later on in heavier materials for school wear.

White with just a touch of crimson is smart for a girl to wear at the seashore or in the country, and quite a pretty frock can be made in fine white serge with a short walking skirt neatly and flatly box plaited as far as the knees and then left to flow out with ample fullness around the hem. A blouse of fine batiste with embroideries in crimson thread worked by hand might be worn with this serge skirt. The blouse should be drawn down to a point in front under a soft belt of crimson patent leather, while at the throat there should be a tie of crimson glace silk.

The cloth gown in the cut has a cape effect of guipure lace and shirred chiffon.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Ed... ...Proprietor

The city collector's bill must follow the constitution. The position of the flag in this case is yet undecided.

An exchange contains a lengthy explanation on "why women don't fish." Space wasted. Our guess—because they can't talk at the same time.

The only unfortunate incident attending the burial of Lord Salisbury was the announcement that Alfred Austin had composed a memorial poem.

A Jerseyman "went dead broke" the other day. A report has it that his entire assets consisted of one pawn ticket. Unable to classify such a certificate of deposit, but have written Congressman Fowler.

Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew remarks, "there is nothing in Europe to equal Coney Island." An exchange says: "Whether this is a compliment to the Europeans or the Coney Islanders depends on how you take it." The gross ignorance displayed by the exchange is an insult to the denizens of Coney.

Genuine regret was expressed here when the death of Frank Somers became known. The sad news was entirely unexpected and was a shock to many friends in both city and borough. Although a strong partisan, Mr. Somers enjoyed the respect and esteem of the general public throughout Somerset County. He possessed a genial nature which made him welcome companion.

It is not beyond the range of possibility that this strapping Republic, which Sir Thomas Lipton admits to be "the greatest nation on earth," may yet be called upon to solve that great puzzle which has so long disturbed the crowned heads. What to do with the "sick man of Europe" has been a troublesome question to the Eastern powers, but if he allows his subjects to molest our representatives in the Ottoman Empire the solution will quickly follow, and it will take less time than it did to capture Aguinaldo.

It is to be regretted that the selection of a tax collector in this municipality will not be vested in the Common Council as planned by the city fathers sometime ago. Corporation Counsel Marsh's opinion that the law passed at the last Legislature for that purpose is unconstitutional has been wisely accepted by the Common Council. It takes the Board thirty days, much as the statute only applies to cities of the second class having a population of less than 25,000 it is special legislation. Consequently it has been decided to conduct an election under the old law this fall and to seek the much desired relief at the next Legislature. There is reason to accept the argument made by the friends of the proposed change that better results would be obtained from the office, were the power of choosing the collector removed from the general mass of citizens, the enmity of whom, in many instances, would be incurred in pursuing the duties of his office. Delinquent taxes must be collected and the more diligent the collector is the more apt he is to make enemies. Tax collectors, like other people, are human and when they have political aspirations there is danger of their being reluctant to incur the dislike of their fellow citizens.

Among local politicians there has been some discussion relative to the office of Councilman, the trend being that one occupying that position in the municipal government should receive a salary for his services. In fact it is reported that an ordinance for that purpose will be introduced at the next future. If such is the purpose it is indeed unfortunate. Such a measure should be killed. Why should a member of that body receive any emoluments for his service? There has been little difficulty in the past in securing able and active men, and Plainfielders have reason to feel proud of the complexion of that body from time to time. We do not believe that there is a city in the State, or in fact in the country, which can boast of common councils of a standard superior to those which have been the rule in recent years here. Just reflect for a moment on the line of substantial men who have gladly given their services in this capacity of the city's welfare. There is no dearth of material at the present time and furthermore there is no reason to believe that there will be any in the near future. To attach a salary to such an office would lead to abuse, no matter how trifling such pecuniary reward might be made when first instituted. There is no occasion for such a change and it is hoped that any steps with that end in view be stopped at once.

The best race is for a memory.

"A little knowledge is a dangerous thing" out in Kansas. There the unschooled young man earns $2.50 a day at harvesting, while the college bred man is receiving only $1.06.

Maurice Proctor, of Mineral Point, Wis., according to a dispatch, receives annually a check for one cent from the United States government as his salary for carrying the mail between that place and a village called Dodgeville. Probably she'd never miss the announcement that he has made a deposit in the "conscience fund."

Here is a really brilliant suggestion to solve that Plainfield-North Plainfield muddle: Instead of taking North Plainfield from Somerset County, take Plainfield from Union. Union wouldn't care. Probably she'd never miss the loss. And Plainfield would be satisfied and Somerset would be happy because the annexation had been effected without the loss of either Sam Swackhamer or Charlie Reed.—New Brunswick Home News.

Brilliant, of course! But when did the Home News wake up. Must have been reading over the back files of its exchanges.

Union wouldn't care? Don't you believe it. Part with Plainfield? Never! She's its only up-to-date city. She's a necessity on election day and an issue on every day. But why be so cruel, brother, as to insinuate that Plainfield would be satisfied to be a part of Somerset County. We are anxious for the day to come when North Plainfield will no longer be a part and parcel of the progressive Somerset County.

JOHN WILSON PLED GUILTY TO THE CHARGE OF STEALING.

Jerry Foss Refused to Prosecute Case—Boy Told a Sad Story.

John Wilson, the lad who ran away to New York with $35 in checks from Jerry Foss last week, was arrested on a warrant issued here and was brought up for hearing before Justice Huff at the city court Monday morning. Foss did not appear to prosecute him and has received the checks which Wilson had made no attempt to have cashed. The lad pleaded guilty of the charge but said he had taken the money because the family was poor.

TRINITY REOPENS.

Special Music Marks the Occasion, at Which the Pastor, Rev. Dr. Schenck, Preaches Ably.

Special music characterized the reopening of the Trinity Reformed Church Sunday, after the summer season. The pastor, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, preached at the morning and evening services. He was greeted by large congregations at both services. His subject in the morning was "But We See Jesus;" and in the evening he preached a practical sermon on "Christ's Eulogy of Faith." In the morning, "The City Glorious," a soprano solo by Miss Florence Bennett, late of Halifax, Eng., was beautifully rendered. The newly organized chorus of eighteen voices led the music morning and evening.

The services were the first at the church since its renovation. During the past month workmen in charge of I. N. Wyckoff have redecorated the ceiling. Other changes, such as the cleaning and relaying of the carpets, have added much to the appearance of the church interior.

THE RIOT IN BEIRUT

Leishman's Report Says Seven Christians Were Killed.

HOUSES PLUNDERED BY SOLDIERS.

Fight Was Started by Shot Fired by a Mussulman at a Christian—Disturbance Attributed to Arrival of Cotton's Squadron.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Minister Leishman, at Constantinople, has cabled that a riot occurred at Beirut in which seven Christians were killed and several were wounded. Two houses occupied by Christians were pillaged by the soldiery. The panic was general. It was due to a shot fired by a Mussulman upon a Christian employed at the American college. The Christian was wounded.

The fight broke out while the vali was on board the United States cruiser Prairie, paying Rear Admiral Cotton's visit. Diplomatic circles here the affair is regarded as being serious, and a renewal of the disturbances feared.

An official version of the Beirut affair says that Christians were the assailants, they having fired upon four Mussulmans. A fight ensued, during which Mussulmans and Christians went to the assistance of their respective coreligionists.

This, says the report, compelled the troops to intervene, and they succeeded in restoring order. Three soldiers were wounded and one was killed, while one Christian was killed and one wounded.

The British consul at Beirut immediately after the riot called upon the vali and threatened to ask Rear Admiral Cotton to land marines from the American squadron in the event of a renewal of the disturbances.

In official circles here the disturbances are attributed to the arrival of the American squadron, and the belief is expressed that the Christians at Beirut are endeavoring to bring about the landing of marines from the war ships.

A detailed report regarding the recent attack on United States Vice Consul Magelssen says Mr. Magelssen was riding home in a hired carriage in the evening when on passing a street near the city of Beirut, a bradford about three miles from Beirut, on which stand the buildings of the American mission, he heard sounds of pistol firing. He turned round to see from whence the shots came, and a bullet whizzed past his face. The vice consul at once had the carriage stopped, and jumped out to discover his assailant, but could see no one.

The following day he went to the government office, where he met the Italian consul and the Austrian consul, who came to complain about burglaries in their houses. The governor ordered an investigation of the attack on Mr. Magelssen, but the only result was the arrest of a young Christian who had attended a marriage on the previous night and in whose possession was found a toy pistol. The American vice consul indignantly refused to accept the arrest of this man and decided to visit his brother-in-law, the American consul general, who was staying in the mountains for the month of August.

Three months before Mr. Magelssen was attacked by men in Turkish uniforms, but whom by his strength he got to flight. It is said that there is little public safety in Beirut and that it is very dangerous for Europeans to appear on the streets at night. Murder and pillage are daily occurrences, and many families have therefore moved to Egypt.

Defense of Cables in War Time.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 9.—Major Bland of the royal engineers arrived here to investigate in behalf of the British government the question of the proper defense of the Atlantic cables in time of war. Major Bland is visiting all the terminals of the cables in Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. He will study the problem of also protecting the cables across the Grand banks and defending the cable stations from attack.

Train Holdup Foiled.

STEVENSVILLE, Mont., Sept. 9.—A bold attempt to hold up the Butte Boot express just east of here was frustrated by the vigilance of the crew. A pile of ties had been placed on the track. The engineer slowed up and backed away as soon as he could. Three men concealed in the bushes jumped out and ran after the train, but soon fell behind.

Two Women Killed in Wreck.

JOPLIN, Mo., Sept. 9.—In a wreck on the Frisco one mile south of Baxter Springs, Kan., twelve people were injured, two fatally. A passenger train ran into a freight train standing on the main track. The fatally injured are an unknown colored woman and an invalid white woman who was traveling with two small children.

IN PERIL ON LAKE.

Steamer Louise Battered by Struggle With Waves.

SANDUSKY, O., Sept. 9.—The fishing tug Louise, which it was feared had gone down with over a hundred passengers in the big storm on Lake Erie, arrived here safely from Leamington, Ont. The Louise started from here for Leamington, carrying a baseball club and 100 excursionists.

Rough weather was encountered just outside the harbor, but Captain De Clute decided not to turn back. The boat plowed through seas that had her decks awash half the time, and everybody on board was sick. Leamington was finally reached at noon. At 6 o'clock the party started on the return trip in even a rougher sea than was encountered on the way over.

After a struggle with the waves the Louise got into the lee of Pelee Island, where she lay for several hours. The trip across the lake for Sandusky in a more modern vessel was made in a heavy sea. Everybody here with everybody safe but the tug.

Scores of the anxious people who were of those time from the pier never remained on the docks all night in the greatest anxiety.

Mrs. Pierce's Leg Broken at Newport

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 9.—The horse show had a thrilling, and what was at first thought to be a fatal incident in the throwing of Mrs. Thomas W. Pierce of Pittsfield, Mass., from her well known jumper, Tornado. Mrs. Pierce was about to take one of the jumps in the ring, when she rode over the fences on the side of the barrier and fell over on his side, and Mrs. Pierce rolled over on the ground, and at first it was thought that the horse had rolled on top of her. She was carried out of the ring at once. She had sustained only a slight fracture of her right leg and within an hour came back to the Casino in an automobile and was accorded a great ovation for her pluck. The winning of the blue by the road team of Alfred G. and Reginald C. Vanderbilt against seven competitors proved one of the most popular victories of the day.

Fifteen Year Sentence For Arson.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 9.—Judge Landis has sentenced Henry C. Koffroth, aged thirty-three years, a farmer, residing in Salisbury township, this county, to fifteen years' solitary confinement in the Eastern penitentiary. Koffroth was convicted on indictments charging him with kindling arson and larceny. It was shown that Koffroth stole a horse from John H. Skiles of Salisbury township, took it to the barn of Edward P. De Haven, a few miles away, and, exchanging Skiles' horse for a better one belonging to De Haven, fired the latter's stable to cover his crime. Six horses and twenty cattle were burned to death. Later, when discovery seemed imminent, Koffroth led De Haven's horse into the Wash mountains, shot and disemboweled it.

Irish League Favors Land Bill.

DUBLIN, Sept. 9.—The national directory of the United Irish league held a meeting in Dublin under the presidency of William O'Brien, M. P. A resolution was adopted welcoming the Irish land bill as the most substantial victory gained by the Irish people for centuries and ascribing this result to the splendid work of the Irish Secretary Wyndham, the high public spirit of the Liberal party and the good will of the landlords. Other resolutions urged the tenants to negotiate the purchase of their holdings in a spirit of friendliness.

The Decadence.

Mr. Herlihy looked at his latest photograph, taken in his Sunday clothes, and his gaze bespoke keen disappointment.

"Of'd never 'a' had this tuk if it hadn't been for thim children telling me about the improvements in photographing!" he muttered, holding the card upon which his likeness was mounted farther and farther away. "Improvements is it? Of'd loike to show this pictur soide be soide wid the wan Of had twinty years ago, and lave it to anybody which o'-thim two made the better-looking man. There's an old, anxious, toired-out look to this new wan that was niver in the other.

A Cow's Queer Act.

The force of habit was very forcibly illustrated in an incident recently at the pumping station of the waterworks at Enid, Okla. A tank stand just outside the building is kept full of water for the accommodation of passersby and the neighborhood stock. A cow accustomed to drink at this tank came for her morning drink. The valley was covered with water and stood within two or three inches of the top of the tank, but the cow went over the waste of waters to the tank. The stock in the tank had not appeared to be in danger of drowning, but by perseverance she finally reached the objective point. After drinking long and copiously she turned about and slowly made her way to land, apparently under the impression that she had the only available thing to find water.—Cleveland Leader.

Do Animals Reason?

"The crows and other birds that carry shell-fish high in the air and then let them drop upon the rocks to break the shell show something very like reason or a knowledge of the relation of cause and effect. Proude tells of some species of bird that he saw in South Africa flying amid the swarms of migrating locusts and clipping off the wings of the insects so that they would drop to the earth, where the birds could devour them at their leisure. Our squirrels will cut off the chestnut burrs before they have opened, allowing them to fall to the ground, where, as they seem to know, the burrs soon dry open. Feed a caged coon soiled food—a piece of bread or meat rolled on the ground—and before eating it he will put it in his dish of water and wash it off."—John Burroughs, Eminent Writer and Naturalist.

Death Is Gradual.

It is becoming understood that death is often—if not always—a gradual process, cells or tissues remaining alive for hours or even days after the organism as a whole is dead. Professor Hering points out that the heart is remarkable in some of the lower animals. The action of ciliated cells from the gills of a clam or the trachea of a dead frog may be observed for a long time under the microscope, and when supplied with nutrient solution cells from a frog's brain have been kept alive for more than a week. Hearts of animals often move long after removal from the body. The heart of a frog will beat for hours, and that of a turtle or snake sometimes for a week.—Knowledge.

Restrictions in Immigration.

The number of Americans who may enter the Transvaal or Orange River Colony is limited to 50 a month, and each must have a permit, the blank application for which can be had of any British consul. And, too, an affidavit must me made that the applicant has sufficient means to support himself and family after arriving. Consideration of such applications is often delayed for months, and those who are impatient and arrive in advance of their permit are generally given the option of leaving the next day or imprisonment for six months, with a fine of $2,435.

Cause of Rancidity.

Rancidity of butter has received a variety of explanations. A chemical study leads Jensen, a German bacteriologist, to conclude that micro-organisms are the cause, three species being especially active, and that the air plays no part except in stimulating growth of the bacteria. Salt retards their growth. They require oxygen, and in protecting butter it is desirable to keep it in large masses, exposing the smallest possible surface to the air.

The Price and the Room.

Locusts in Cyprus.

In Cyprus peasants are paid £40 for every ton of locust eggs they destroy. In some years as many as 60,000 tons are destroyed, which means that some £60,000,000 of locusts have been destroyed in spite of existence. But still they come, and recently the locust swarms were as active as ever.

GOLF EVENTS AT HILLSIDE AND PARK

The Choice Score Contest in Thirty-Six Holes the Principal Attraction at Park.

HILLSIDE'S PROGRAMME

PLAY FOR HOLIDAY CUP AND GREEN'S COMMITTEE TANKARD.

C. C. Burke, Jr., Won Kicker's Handicap Also the Bogey Handicap—Tankard Event to F. C. Talmadge.

With an ideal day for the ancient game of golf the Park Golf Club course was well occupied Monday with enthusiasts who were contesting in the various events for prizes. The rain of Saturday put the course in the finest condition and altogether the events proved strong attractions. The chief event was what was called a choice score contest. Thirty-six holes were played, but each contestant was allowed to select his best eighteen holes. Senator Charles A. Reed, W. A. Townsend and Charles L. Nichols each made a net score of 71 and were tie for first place. The tie will be played off during the coming week.

Charles A. Reed, 98, 22—71; C. L. Nichols, 97, 26—71; W. A. Townsend, 85, 14—71; R. B. Carroll, 87, 13—75; Arthur Peck, 88, 13—75; W. R. Faber, 99, 21—78; George T. Rogers, 108, 30—79; Frank Rogers, 97, 18—79; C. O. Faber, 92, 13—80; S. St. John McCutchen, 92, 11—81; Samuel Townsend, 93, 11—82; Leslie Hallock, 101, 17—84; J. H. Howell, 98, 13—86; Herbert S. In the driving contest G. W. Faber was the winner with an average of 216 yards. The other scores were Morgan T. Townsend, 200; W. A. Townsend, 181; Charles Dupee, 176; C. O. Faber, 173; Dr. A. W. Anderson, 167.

Mrs. C. L. Goodrich and Frank Rogers won the putting and approaching contest with a score of 11. The other contestants were tie for second place: Mr. and Mrs. S. St. John Mc Cutchen, 13; Miss Baldee Mae Howell and W. R. Faber, 13; Miss Daisy Elsberg and Henry C. Wells, 13.

An attractive programme of golf events brought out one of the largest crowds of the season at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club yesterday. It is marked the opening of the fall season and the return to the course of many of the members who have been sojourning at seashore and mountains during the summer. Besides the events on the course, there was the dinner-dance in the evening at the clubhouse. This proved to be a social event of more than ordinary interest and was largely attended.

Among the events on the course, the regular play for the Holiday cup among those with handicaps of eighteen or more, brought out a goodly number of contestants. D. W. Taylor won a leg on the cup with a score of 77. The scores:

D. W. Taylor, 99, 22—77; Percy H. Stewart, 98, 18—80; J. E. Erickson, 98, 18—80; Harold Serrell, 111, 27—84; C. F. Abbott, 114, 27—87; F. H. Andrews, 108, 18—90; E. E. Rinehart, 108, 18—90; E. B. Shoemaker, 110, 20—90; Howard C. Tracy, 114, 20—94.

Play for the Greens' Committee tankard also attracted a number of contestants. This event was for those having handicaps of seventeen or less, and Frank C. Talmadge scored a win for this trophy with a net score of 74. The scores:

Frank C. Talmadge, 76, 2—74; E. E. Iremonger, 91, 16—75; Walter Peterson, 83, 5—78; H. D. Hibbard, 87, 7—80; C. C. Burke, 97, 16—81; Townsend Rushmore, 99, 15—84; C. B. Morgan, 97, 13—85; C. C. Burke, Jr., 99, 14—85; Dudley H. Barrows, 91, 6—85; E. T. Barrows, 106, 12—94.

The next event and one which brought out the largest field, was the Kickers' handicap. The winning score was selected by the committee from between the score of 72 and 85. The one selected was 81 and this was made by C. C. Burke, Jr. Each contestant selected such handicap which he believed would bring his net score the nearest to the one selected. The scores:

W. T. Kaufman, 96, 23—73; G. E. Cathcart, 101, 26—76; C. B. Morgan, 97, 20—77; D. W. Taylor, 99, 22—77; Dr. F. C. Ard, 87, 10—77; H. R. OLD SOLDIER ENDS HIS OWN EXISTENCE

Thomas Oliver, of Soldiers' Home, Commits Suicide in South Plainfield Hotel.

A FRIEND FINDS BODY

STRANGULATION AS A MEANS OF KILLING HIMSELF.

Former Resident of South Plainfield—Coroner Hubbard Views Remains—In Soldiers' Home for Ten Years.

Tired of life at eighty, Thomas Oliver, an old soldier, who was on a ninety days' furlough from the Soldiers' Home at Newark, committed suicide Sunday morning in Norman's Hotel in South Plainfield. The deed was done with an ordinary belt strap which was placed about his neck in a noose and then attached to the top of the bed post.

Oliver came to the hotel last Wednesday and hired a room. He spent much time in his apartment and, it is alleged, committed the deed while intoxicated. William Coulter, an old acquaintance, called at the house and asked to see his friend. He was shown to the room. After knocking several times and receiving no reply he broke open the door. Hanging to the bed post was the body of his friend, lifeless. His face was blackened and from the appearance of the room it is apparent the man died in agony.

He had been an inmate of the home for about ten years. Previously he lived in Oak Tree and some years earlier was a resident of South Plainfield. He was brought up by a Mr. Clarkson, of Short Hills, who was at one time his guardian.

Oliver was a soldier in the Mexican war and in the Civil War. He was a pensioner and when found had $10 in his pockets. The strap with which the deed was done was made to order in Metuchen Monday. He took pride in showing it to friends and commented upon the fact that it was exceptionally strong. It would go about his waist twice and buckle in front. With this strap of leather he ended his existence.

The remains were examined by Coroner John V. Hubbard, of New Brunswick, who had it removed to Newark.

LITERARY.

In view of the remarkable success of General King's book, published early this year, entitled "A Daughter of the Sioux," the mere announcement of another story from this famous author seems all-sufficient. A critical reading of the advance sheets of this new tale indicates that it is even better than last, which is conclusive in itself. The same artists, who are unequalled, have undertaken the illustration. In all details of mechanical make-up the same high standard has been preserved. The many thousand readers of "A Daughter of the Sioux" are thus assured from a literary, artistic and attractive standpoint of a repetition of their pleasure in reading of "An Apache Princess," to be published by the Hobart Company, of Fifth avenue, New York.

The refusal of the Iowa Democrats to "reaffirm" the Democratic National Platform of 1900 is justly encouraging to those Democrats who, whether they accepted Mr. Bryan with enthusiasm or with resignation, or not at all, in 1896, and 1900, believed that his usefulness as a leader has gone, and that the only hope of Democratic success lies in a return to principles more conservative than his. Mr. Bryan is fighting gallantly for a doomed cause. Attractive as his personality is and many as his friends are, he is wearing out his welcome. Politics are for opportunists, not for martyrs.—Everybody's Magazine.

F. W. SOMERS' FUNERAL LARGELY ATTENDED

Services Over the Remains of Somerset's County Clerk Held in Somerville.

MASONIC SERVICE USED

MANY FRATERNAL ORGANIZATIONS REPRESENTED AT OBSEQUIES.

The Church Crowded—Interment at Bedad Brook—Those Who Were Pallbearers—Some Plainfielders Present.

Somerset County mourned beside the bier of a faithful servant Monday when the funeral service of the Dutch Reformed Church was held over the remains of County Clerk Frank W. Somers, who died in North Plainfield Friday afternoon. It was one of the largest funerals ever held at Somerville and was attended by politicians prominent in various parts of the State.

At the home of the dead man on South street, ample prayers were held at 1 o'clock. There Rev. Dr. E. G. Read, pastor of the Second Reformed Church, assisted by Rev. Charles T. Anderson, of Bound Brook. From the house the funeral corsage wended its way to the Second Reformed Church.

Floral tributes were conspicuous from the Solomon Lodge and Eastern Star Lodge, F. and A. M., Royal Arcanum, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, and Engine Company, No. 1, of Somerville, of which the dead man was a member. At the church the services were in charge of the Masonic lodges. Special music was rendered and eulogies were preached over the remains.

The journey from the church to the cemetery at Bound Brook was begun at 3 o'clock. The pall bearers were Councilman G. T. Somerstein, Recorder Robert Banton and Superintendent of Schools J. H. Hoffman, of the Eastern Star Lodge, F. and A. M., from Bound Brook and George Schenck, former Sheriff Wyckoff and J. Ross Lake, of the Solomon Lodge of Masons at Somerville. The interment was in the Bound Brook cemetery.

The lodges represented at the funeral services were the New Brunswick lodge, R. P. O. E., Royal Arcanum, Jr. O. U. A. M. and F. and A. M. Many from this city attended the obsequies.

HAVOC PLAYED BY SATURDAY'S STORM

Horse Killed and Park Ave. Baptist Church Cupola Struck by Lightning.

THE STABLE COLLAPSED

BUILDING FELL IN; KILLED HORSE IN HIS STALL.

Lightning Finishes About Grandstand—Caulfield Shocked and Sullivan Burned—Some of the Storm's Work.

The storm played havoc at the Alis-St. Mary's game on Crescent Oval. The large number of bicycles under the grandstand attracted the lightning and caused the current to pass through the whole structure.

A horse owned by Dormick C. Caulfield, of West Third street, was instantly killed by lightning. It was tied to a trolley pole on Arlington avenue and its owner, together with "Chick" Sullivan and Thomas Kane, were seated in the carriage. Caulfield was shocked and thrown under the carriage, Sullivan was burned about the face and hands and Kane was thrown into the road and bruised.

The cupola of the Park Avenue Baptist Church was struck and a part of it torn away. This is the fourth time that a lightning bolt has struck the church. A horse in the stable in the rear of S. Scheuer & Company's store, on West Front street, was instantly killed. The barn was struck and several tons of bales of hay fell on the horse. Peter Johnson, a South Plainfield farmer, was the owner of the animal. Johnson is in the habit of stabling his horse in this place every Saturday when he comes to Plainfield. He is a poor man.

STORM STOPPED PLAY

SIX CONTESTANTS MADE ROUND OF EIGHTEEN HOLES NEVERTHELESS.

Frank O. Reinhart Increased His Score—Henry C. Wells Won Independance Day Cup at Park Club Course—The Scores.

There was a good field started in the weekly competitions for the President's cup at the Park Golf Club on Saturday, but the severe shower which visited this vicinity during the afternoon prevented the contestants from finishing.

The only other event of the afternoon was the play off of the tie between Henry C. Wells and C. L. Nichols for the Independence Day Holiday cup. In this Mr. Wells won out.

In winning first honors for the Golf Committee cup at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club on Saturday, Frank O. Reinhart increased his score three points, now having a total of 8. Frank Talmadge won second honors which gives him a total of 4 1-2 points, while Walter Peterson is second to the remaining point now has 15 points in all and is tie with Olaf Saugstad for first position.

While the course was well filled with players on Saturday, the severe thunder storm brought a sudden termination to play. There were, however, six contestants who made the round of eighteen holes and these scores were posted:

Frank O. Reinhart, 78, 0—78; Frank C. Talmadge, 81, 2—79; Walter Peterson, 83, 3—80; C. B. Morgan, 94, 12—82; Robert Abbott, 84, 1—83; Duncan Bulkley, 104, 13—82.

here and the result of the primaries yesterday demonstrates that Congressman Fowler is unable to secure a foothold. No real fight occurred except in the Eleventh ward, in which the congressman resides, where Fowler gained his own district but lost the ward. Kean and Fowler split even in this ward.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahway, (Sept. 9—There were no contests at the primaries here, excepting in the Second ward where the Republicans were at odds over representation to the County convention. Freeholder Farrell and S. E. Tombs, favorable to the nomination of Peter Tillman for assemblyman, won out. Tillman is a Fowler man. The Republicans cast 181 votes and the Democrats 90.

An exceedingly light vote was polled in Fanwood borough yesterday. On the Republican ticket Charles Sheelen was elected as delegate to the county convention and F. W. Westcott for county committee. There were eighteen votes cast. The Democrats elected Wm. R. Stanbery as delegate to the county convention and for the county committee. Five votes were cast.

GOVERNOR AND STAFF, PRESIDENT'S ESCORT

Roosevelt, Murphy, Kean and Dryden to Witness Unveiling of Battle Monument.

VETERANS TO ATTEND

ONLY TRANSPORTATION TO BE PROVIDED CIVIL WAR SOLDIERS.

Great Day at Antietam Battlefield —September 17, the Date Fixed, It is the Anniversary of the Fight.

The New Jersey commission appointed by Governor Murphy to erect a monument on the Antietam battlefield has made final arrangements for the dedicatory services, which will be September 17. It is now definitely arranged that President Roosevelt will attend the ceremonies of dedication to take place on the battlefield September 17, the anniversary of this great battle fought forty-one years ago. President Roosevelt will accept the monument, to be cared for by the national authorities for all time.

The ceremonies of the dedication will consist of a report to Governor Murphy by the chairman of the battlefield commission, James O. Smith, of Newark, who will then turn over to the Governor, as representing the State of New Jersey, the finished work of the commission. Governor Murphy, in turn, will, on behalf of New Jersey, present the national government, through President Roosevelt, the New Jersey monument, and the several markers that designate the points on the field where New Jersey's sons were engaged.

The President, escorted by Governor Murphy and staff, also United States Senators Kean and Dryden, will leave Jersey City on the evening of September 15 on a special train of Pullman cars, with dining car attached. They will arrive at Antietam about 9 o'clock the next morning, and shortly after the ceremonies are concluded will re-embark on their train and reach Jersey City the following morning. This arrangement has been made to meet other engagements of the President, both before and after the Antietam trip.

While Governor Murphy had hoped to journey to the old battlefield where he, as a boy of seventeen, a member of Company A, Thirteenth New Jersey, participated in this great battle, with his old comrades, he feels it his duty to escort the President to and from the field, as it was at the earnest solicitation of himself that Mr. Roosevelt reconsidered a declination of an invitation to be present.

The commission expects to furnish transportation to Antietam and return to about 400 New Jersey veterans who participated in this battle. The veterans will be furnished with tickets through their several regimental or brigade organizations, while others who have not identified themselves with these veteran organizations are being attended to by the secretary of the commission.

The commission finds it will be able to provide the veterans with little beyond their transportation. While a route-ration each old soldier will be provided with a lunch, which will be prepared by the Pennsylvania Railroad and distributed on the train in individual boxes. On reaching the station nearest to the point on Antietam field where the New Jersey monument is located carriages and stages will be provided to carry the veterans to the scene, which is nearly two miles from the railroad.

The veterans will be provided with tickets, good from any station on Pennsylvania system in New Jersey, to Antietam and return. Tickets will be placed on sale at all of the stations in New Jersey where stops are made, as shown on the schedule, also in Philadelphia, Broad Street Station, at the rate paid by the State of $7.70 round trip. Tickets will also be provided by any station agent on the Pennsylvania system in New Jersey, but only when requests for tickets are filed with such agent a sufficient time in advance to make it practicable. In view of the enlarged scope given this matter by the attendance of the President, it is anticipated there will be a larger number of the general public who will wish to attend, especially as the trip affords an opportunity of visiting not only Antietam but Gettysburg battlefield.

The monument, which is to be dedicated on the field of Antietam, is now practically completed.

Distress After Eating Cured.

Judge W. T. Holland, of Greensburg, Ia., who is well and favorably known, says: "Two years ago I suffered greatly from indigestion. After eating, great distress would invariably result, lasting for an hour or so and my nights were restless. I concluded to try Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and it cured me entirely. Now my sleep is refreshing and digestion perfect." Sold by L. W. Randolph.

HOW A VACATION WAS SPENT

VISITS MADE TO OLD HOMES AND BURIAL PLACES NEAR HERE.

Photographs Taken by John Neagle Richard E. Cortell Acted As Guide.

A four day's trip through this part of the State in carriages to the former homes and burial places of former residents of this vicinity was the manner in which a party of people recently spent their vacations. The places visited were the old homesteads of the Boice, Covert, Marsellus, Cortell, Smalley, Randolph and other families. R. E. Cortell, of this city, was the guide and included in the party was Mrs. Asahel Welsh, of Germantown, Philadelphia, John Neagle, of this city, accompanied the party as photographer. He has some fine views taken en route.

Some of the places visited were Westfield, Plainfield, New Market, Newtown, Piscataway, Harris' Lane, Bound Brook and Green Brook. One of the historic places visited was the Cortell homestead in Newtown now owned by R.S. Schenck. The home of David Cortell and his wife, Elsie, was plundered in 1777 by a foraging party of British soldiers from New Brunswick. An inventory of their property taken or destroyed signed and sworn to by their son, Abraham, as executor, is now on file in the State House at Trenton. Two of David Cortell's sons, Abraham and David, were Minute Men in Washington's army.

The two sons lived to a great age and died in the early part of the last century and were buried with their wives in the family burying ground on the farm. On September 26, 1876, Abner Cortell, of New Market, visited the old graveyard and copied all the inscriptions. That part of the farm was then owned by a German named Wessels who afterwards removed the tombstones and destroyed all traces of the cemetery. Some of the tombstones were broken up to be used for a part of a foundation for a house. He threw the other stones into a ditch by the roadside where they were found a few years ago buried in mud and overgrown with bushes and weeds. Those which marked the graves of Abraham and David, the soldiers, and David's wife, Elizabeth, (Whitehead) were removed by the party and removed to Evergreen Cemetery in this city where they will be properly cared for. A photograph of the old house taken by Arthur Krom, is now on exhibition at the library, in this city.

GREAT INTER-STATE FAIR

THE OPENING DAY SET FOR MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 28.

New Buildings—Vaudeville Attractions—Great Races—Reduced Rates on Railroads.

With the exception of putting up tents and the arrival of exhibits, Secretary Mahlon R. Margeram has everything in readiness for the opening of the Inter-State Fair, which will be held at Trenton, N. J., on Monday, September 28. This exhibition, which is the greatest institution of its kind in the East, and the equal of any in this country, will continue until October 3, inclusive.

Great attention has been paid this year to the exhibits in every department. More prizes are offered, and the entries received to date are in excess of the total of last year, which was the largest in this respect in the history of the association. Several new buildings have been erected and all of the old ones have been so renovated that they are as though workmen had just completed them. Everything is bright and cheerful.

There will be numerous special vaudeville attractions of a high class, and the speed programmes for each day of the fair will present the greatest race heroes in the country. The snake races are filled, and smashing of track records promises to be a feature of the week.

There will be special train accommodations, and reduced rates, to the fair grounds on all railroads during the entire week of the exhibition.

It is Easy to Say

"Be careful," but we must all go from heated houses into chill outer air. Only the strongest escape coughing and wheezing. Avoiding winter colds is difficult; caring them is not hard if you take Allen's Lung Balsam. Better begin when the cold is young and not wait until it settles deep into the lungs, for then, even with Allen's Lung Balsam, complete relief will be slower.

CUPID'S SLY TRICKS.

They Bring Joy and Happiness to Many Loving Hearts.

Love Romances in Various Walks of Real Life Are Marked by Facts That Seem Stranger Than Ordinary Fiction.

Cupid certainly works in a most mysterious way his wonders to perform and in the affairs of a young mechanic, named Dwyer, who works in the municipal lighting plant in Detroit, his messenger was a pair of greasy overalls. Dwyer wished to demonstrate to a friend the powerful draft of the big chimney. So he put a pair of old greasy overalls in the door at the bottom of the tall stack. The trousers, so strong is the draft, gracefully sailed up the chimney and out at the top.

Ordinarily the story should have ended here, but in this case it doesn't. It's an old saying "that what goes up must come down," and it was the coming down of the well lubricated overalls that makes this o'er true tale. For in descending the overalls had the extreme bad taste to come down plump on a neatly dressed young woman who was taking an afternoon stroll a block or two away, blissfully unconscious of any draft testing experiments. It is not nice to be struck squarely by a pair of dilapidated overalls and it does not at all improve the appearance of a tailor made walking suit.

The young woman was righteously indignant and she made inquiries as to where the sudden gift bestowed came from. Some boys playing in the street had seen the flight of the overalls and told the young woman their origin. She lodged complaint at the power house and the young mechanic who had made the draft test was summoned to make the amende honorable.

How well he succeeded was demonstrated the other day when he was married to the young woman whom he met under such novel circumstances.

Cupid seems to have no racial prejudices. The latest proof he has given of this was the bringing together as man and wife a Chinaman and a German girl. The groom was Charley Tang and the bride was Miss Dora Wenholz, both of Newark, N. J. Tang conducts a laundry and tea store in Newark, where the superintendent of the Chinese department of the Centenary Methodist Sunday school. Miss Wenholz was a pretty girl, 22 years old, who, up to the time of her wedding, was studying for a trained nurse in a Brooklyn hospital. Miss Wenholz met Tang at the home of a schoolgirl chum, who is also wedded to a Chinaman. It was a case of love at first sight, but the wedding was postponed several times on account of the objections of the bride's parents. Finally Miss Wenholz decided that it was she who was to marry a Chinaman and not her parents, and that the question really concerned her and not them, so the other night there was a quiet little wedding in a pretty little home in Newark, and now Mr. and Mrs. Tang are receiving the congratulations of their friends.

The much discussed question anent long and short engagements was settled by two young people in Louisville in favor of the latter. Miss Elizabeth Pohlmann met Ferdinand de la Gasse one evening and the next day they were married. M. de la Gasse is a Parisian, the descendant of a noble race. He is an educated, much traveled man who went to Alaska several years ago in search of a fortune and found one. He came down to the United States to live and settled in Minneapolis. A few months ago he inserted in a matrimonial paper and saw an advertisement signed by Miss Pohlmann. M. de la Gasse wrote to the Louisville girl, and after awhile they exchanged photographs. The Frenchman was so pleased by Miss Pohlmann's counterfeit presentment that he at once started to Louisville and went immediately to the young woman's house. Miss Pohlmann herself answered his knock and the two met for the first time. It was love at first sight, and the next day the marriage was celebrated, and the two, after a wedding trip, will begin married life in one of the most beautiful homes in Minneapolis.

AMUSEMENTS.

Three Little Maids, by Charles Frohman's and George Edwards' Company, is making a hit at Daly's. The critics declare it will have a good run.

James T. Powers, whose reputation as a comedian is as wide as the continent, is attracting big houses in A Princess of Kensington at the Broadway Theatre. The World pronounces the piece "a musical gem."

"For Her Children's Sake," from the pen of Theodore Kremer and under the management of Sullivan, Harris & Woods, will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House next week. This strong play, which is a companion piece to the celebrated Sullivan, Harris & Woods' success, "The Fatal Wedding," met with instant favor last season, and the announcement that it is to return will be a welcome one to the patrons of the big play house.

The attraction at the Grand Opera House beginning Monday evening is bound to leave an impression that will last many months yet to come. "For Her Children's Sake," is by Theodore Kremer, author of "The Fatal Wedding." This alone begets interest. Sullivan, Harris & Woods are directing its fortunes.

With the exception of putting up tents and the arrival of exhibits, Secretary Mahlon R. Margeram has everything in readiness for the opening of the Inter-State Fair, Trenton, N. J., on September 28. LITERARY.

A delicious little comedy in the September McClure's is "The Pompadour Angel," by Mary Moss. A snowbound Pullman car in the Jersey Bad Lands, with its quota of Pullman types—two Wall street brokers, a bald headed old gentleman with spats, a highly conventional New York society man and "rising" young lawyer, a highly conventional chaperon, and a would be unconventional society girl, heart-broken for her impecunious cavalry lieutenant, and the person of a buxom, breezy, straight-fronted, capable, mannish, candy-devouring type-writer girl, with her typewriter for a deus ex machina. The plot is too good to disclose.

MR. WEEKS BORNE TO GRAVE

FUNERAL SERVICES HERE FOLLOWED BY BURIAL IN BROOKLYN.

Rev. Dr. Yerkes Officiated at Services Here and Rev. J. F. Carson Officiated at Cemetery.

Friends and relatives of the late Albertus A. Weeks gathered at his West Seventh street home Wednesday, Sept. 2, at 4 o'clock to attend the funeral services. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor emeritus of the First Baptist Church, conducted the services, which were touchingly simple in form, and spoke feelingly of the life of Mr. Weeks while a resident of this city and of his successful business career in New York. Floral tributes were numerous and of great beauty and among them were several handsome pieces, one of which, a large floral cross of white and pink rose buds, came as a tribute from the employes in Mr. Weeks' New York store.

The interment was made in the Cypress Hills Cemetery, Brooklyn, at 1 o'clock on Thursday. Rev. J. F. Carson, of the Central Presbyterian Church, of Brooklyn, who was Mr. Weeks' pastor during his residence in Brooklyn, conducted the services at the grave.

BEDFORD WILL.

Document Filed in New York Leaves All to Wife Whose Child Was Spurious.

The will of Gunning S. Bedford, who died in Paris last February, and whose wife was arrested on May 16 last in London for attempting to pass off another woman's baby as the child of Bedford and herself, was filed last Thursday in New York. Mr. Bedford left real property which was estimated at $10,000, but the value of the personal estate is not given.

Mrs. Bedford, who is a cousin of Mrs. Zerega, of Park avenue, was accused of attempting, through the bogus child, to obtain $600,000 left by Mr. Bedford's father, Frederick Bedford, with the stipulation that the interest on the money was to go to the son for life, and after ward to his son's heirs. If he died childless, however, it was to go to other heirs, who at the time of Mrs. Bedford's arrest were contesting the will and trying to prove the child that Mrs. Bedford had with her to be a spurious one, adopted for the purpose of defrauding them.

When the case came to trial in Bow Street, London, on May 28, she confessed she had obtained it from a young workingwoman in Isleworth, who had answered an advertisement that had been inserted in the papers at her direction, and setting forth that a certain Mrs. B. wished to adopt a female child.

MRS. OLIVER ISELIN.

Charming New York Woman Who Will Mascot the Reliance During the Races.

"Is Mrs. Iselin to be the Reliance mascot this year?" asked Sir Thomas, as the first Americans to greet their distinguished guest boarded the Irishman's yacht.

His face fell as he recived a reply in the affirmative, and his friends' cheery ridicule of the seaman's superstition did not altogether comfort him.

Mrs. C. O. Iselin has had a share in more than one American yachting victory.

MRS. C. OLIVER ISELIN.
(New York Lady Who Will Mascot the American Cup Defender.)

She sailed on Defender when Lord Dunraven's Valkyrie III. went down to such ignominious defeat. She was on Columbia when Shamrock I. crossed the line behind it after a plucky fight.

No woman has ever sailed on any American boat in any of the international matches except Mrs. Iselin. Only one English woman has had the same honor paid to her—Mrs. Henn, wife of the generous and gallant British sportsman, Lieut. Henn, who brought over his Galatea in 1886 to try for the cup.

The same seat is always allotted Mrs. Iselin. This is a place in the companionway, where she can see everything and yet be out of the way of the nimble sailor lads who crowd the deck. She knows them all by name; every bit of good work they do is at once noticed by Mrs. Iselin.

She wears a trim yachting costume of blue with a white collar, and on her head is snugly pinned a white yachting cap emblazoned with the burgee of the New York Yacht club.

This is because Mrs. Iselin is one of the few women permitted to fly from her own yacht the colors of the New York Yacht club.

What she knows about yachting would stagger many a yachtsman. At the tiller of a crack sloop she is perfectly at home. Few of the men folk are her betters.

She christened the historic Defender, and now she is wrapped up in the Reliance, which was christened by her stepdaughter.

"With her we can't be beaten," declare the crew of the keenest of cup defenders. So there you are.

PRETTY PRINCESS XENIA.

Daughter of Prince of Montenegro Said to Be Engaged to Grand Duke of Hesse.

The grand duke of Hesse is about to remarry. It is said that he has contracted an engagement with Princess Xenia, of Montenegro. Although every effort has been made to keep the betrothal a secret there is abundant reason to believe that the report is true. Princess Xenia is now in her twenty-third year and is recognized as one of the most beautiful young women on the continent. She is at present stopping with the royal family of Montenegro at Heidelberg.

XENIA OF MONTENEGRO.
(Beautiful Woman Who Will Marry the Grand Duke of Hesse.)

It has now been nearly two years since the grand duke of Hesse obtained a divorce from his first wife, who was Princess Victoria Melita, the daughter of Queen Victoria's "Sweet Princess Alice." This divorce was given on the technical grounds of desertion and incompatability of temper, but it is an open secret that the grand duchess was driven from her home by the cruel and brutal treatment accorded her by the grand duke. One of his favorite amusements was to set loose a cageful of mice in the room with his wife. On one occasion he turned out the lights at one of the balls given by the royal couple and then squirted dirty water down his wife's neck. The grand duchess bore all these indignities in silence for awhile, but after leaving her consort on four occasions and returning on his promises to behave himself she became disgusted and left him for all time.

SOMERSET'S FARMERS AT TRI-COUNTY FAIR

Flood of Oratory Let Loose at Black River Falls' Successful Grange.

7,000 IN ATTENDANCE

ASSEMBLYMAN SWACKHAMER SPEAKS ON OUR VICIOUS LAWS.

North Plainfielder Tells How He Opposed Bad Measures—Rev. J. B. Cleaver and John B. Smith Interest the Crowd.

Morris, Hunterdon and Somerset were represented at the tri-county farmer's picnic held at Black River Falls, Sept. 2. Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield; John B. Smith, of New Brunswick; Rev. J. B. Cleaver, of Bound Brook, and Erastus Potter, of Port Oram, N. J., were the principal speakers. It is stated that there were no less than 7,000 farmers at the grange.

Mr. Swackhamer's address treated of "Our Vicious Laws" and in part he said:

"In my discussion of the measure introduced in the last Legislature, I do not mean to reflect upon the great body of the Republican party, to the rank and file of which I cheerfully accord a high degree of virtue and respectability. I am proud to say that I have numerous friends in that party whom I hold in the highest estimation, and who, I am certain have the best interests of the State at heart. Indeed it was through the co-operation of such high minded and disinterested Republicans with the Democratic minority of the Legislature last winter, that many vicious bills were defeated, and it was against their protest that some were passed. It is not my purpose therefor, to decry the Republican party as such, and I believe it is the duty of all friends of truth, justice and patriotism, to acknowledge merit everywhere and to seek by honest means to enlist it in the cause of right. And feeling conscious of the imperative need of political regeneration and reform. I hold out the hand of good fellowship to every citizen, to the altar of whose hearts burns the fire of true patriotism, regardless of his party affiliations. * * *

"I believe that Jefferson and Lincoln were right when they said that the American people might be trusted to govern themselves. I believe that they possess the requisite inteligence and virture to maintain the great political principles which underlie Constitutional government. I believe that the Constitution will endure when the last crown has crumbled and the last throne has mouldered into dust; but it has been said that 'The price of liberty is eternal vigilance,' and this truth has been illustrated by the character of the recent legislation of this State.

"New Jersey is celebrated as the seat of numerous and powerful corporations, and these corporations when properly controlled by law are a source of wealth and power and prestage to the State; but when an attempt is made to enact laws which give them unreasonable powers so that they can infringe upon the rights of private citizens and shape legislation to subserve their own selfish ends, it is time to note: 'Do what flesh has this our Caesar fed that he has grown so great.' God give us men. A time like this demands strong minds, great hearts, true faith and willing hands. Men whom the lust of office does not kill; men whom the spoils of office cannot buy; men who have honor, men who will not lie.

"The times demand men in public office who understand and will defend the interests of the people. Men who cannot be bribed or intimidated. Men who realize that an official oath covers the poor man's hut as well as the rich man's palace. Men who will not bow down and worship the golden calf. Men who realize that partisanship is narrower than patriotism. Men who know that free institutions are of greater wealth than the emolument of office. Men who in public office will uphold at all times the eternal right."

OPEN AIR CONCERT POPULAR IN BOROUGH

Great Crowd Listens to Music by Ben LaVere's Band and Soloists.

ANOTHER FEAST LATER

SECOND OF THE SERIES TO BE GIVEN SATURDAY EVENING, SEPT. 12.

James W. Casey's Selections Score a Decided Hit—Said That Band Stand Will be Erected—Plans for the Future.

The presence of four thousand people at the first free public band concert in North Plainfield Thursday attested the popularity of open air music in the borough. At the close of the programme steps were at once taken to secure another concert Saturday evening, September 12, at the same place, Watchung and Fairview avenues. Representative boroughites subscribed $60 for the next concert. It has been decided to arrange for a series of open air musical carnivals next summer.

This was the programme:

Part I—March, "The Club Fellow," Johns; overture, "Raymond," Thomas; concert waltz, "Soul of the Rose," Frantzen; cornet solo selected; medley, "The Climax." O'Hare; vocal solo, (a) "Longing for You Sweetheart," (b) "Sing Me a Song of the South," Casey, by Ernest H. Ball.

Part II—Selection from Faust, Gounod; descriptive, "Forge in the Forest," Michaelis; selections from "The Wizard of Oz," Kieljius; ragtime, "Poor Lil Mose," Amsted.

Ernest H. Ball, baritone, sang three selections composed by James W. Casey, who was present. The selections rendered were: "I'm Longing for You Sweetheart, Day by Day," "Sing Me a Song of the Sunny South" and "Little Sallie Brown." He was applauded lustily. Albert Sweet, cornetist, received several encores. Luther LaVere, who played the baritone horn, did remarkably well in carrying the solo parts in many of the difficult pieces played.

Many of the people in the neighborhood decorated their houses with Oriental lanterns and American flags, giving to the neighborhood the appearance of a typical mid-summer's night festival of music. Among those whose houses were decorated were former Councilman Murray Bartis and Andrew Kenney.

As a token of appreciation for his work in making the concert a success, the crowd contributed $12 to Bandmaster LaVere. This surprise was arranged by Mr. LaVere's assistant, Bert Harold.

A large, handsome band stand, designed especially for open air concerts, will be erected from the proceeds of the fair which is to be held in Saengerbund Hall during the week preceding Thanksgiving Day.

TAX COLLECTOR LAW UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Corporation Counsel Says Plainfield's Act is Special Legislation.

NOT TO HEED NEW LAW

ELECTION TO BE HELD UNDER THE OLD STATUTE THIS FALL.

Reasons for Corporation Counsel's Decision—Story of the Act Passed for the Benefit of This City Alone —Mr. Smith a Candidate.

Having been advised by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh that it is unconstitutional, no attention will be paid to the act passed by the last Legislature which permits the Common Council to appoint a tax collector. An election will be held under the old law this fall and the people will select a successor to the present incumbent, Frank H. Smith. This line of action has been agreed upon by the members of the Common Council and meets with the hearty approval of Mr. Smith, who will be the Republican candidate to succeed himself.

The Common Council fears that if the new statute is obeyed it will involve the city in a law suit, entailing much expense and possible long drawn out proceedings. They do not think it wise to pursue such a course. Corporation Counsel Marsh, in his opinion, takes the stand that inasmuch as the provisions of the bill restrict its application to cities of the second class having a population of less than 25,000 it is in fact special legislation and therefore unconstitutional. It is his opinion that the better plan for the city to pursue is to continue to hold its elections under the old bill which gives to the voters the right to select a collector.

It has long been argued that the best interest of the people would be served by vesting the power of naming a collector in the Mayor or Common Council because to fulfill his duties the collector is compelled to enforce payment of taxes from delinquents. This would make enemies for him and his future prospects politically would be jeopardized. In the present instance, however, no request was made by Mr. Smith for any change, although he has vigorously pursued delinquents.

The original bill was drawn by Mr. Marsh and introduced in the Assembly by William Newcorn. Assemblyman Swackhamer, of North Plainfield, led a strong opposition against its passage and the measure was killed. Then Mr. Marsh drew another bill giving the power of appointment to the Common Council. The fight against the proposed act was continued, some assemblymen contending that it met with the opposition of other cities of the second class, including Trenton, Passaic and Paterson, which were satisfied with the old method. This caused an amendment to be tacked on which limited the scope of the measure to cities of the class having a population of less than 25,000. In this shape it was passed by the Legislature and signed by Governor Murphy.

In accordance with the provisions of the new statute, the Common Council passed an ordinance on first and second reading changing the method of election. Before final passage, advice was sought from Mr. Marsh, who announced his opinion against the constitutionality of the statute.

WALTER BRITTON WRECKS VENGENCE ON WIFE AND HEADQUARTERS CELL.

Arrested for Fighting With Wife and Fined—Then Brutally Treats Wife and Escapes.

Walter Britton, colored, was arrested by Patrolman McCarthy for engaging in a pitched battle with his wife.

When in a cell at the police station his longing was so desperate that he almost kicked the sides out of his cell door. When he became quiet enough to appear in court he was fined $10 by City Judge Runyon. Britton wanted his wife to pay his fine but he met with no encouragement.

Just as the police were boarding a train with Britton to take him to Elizabeth, Henry Wierzega produced the amount necessary to give him his freedom. When Britton met his wife near the Brookside Sanitarium where she is employed, the couple resumed their battle and Britton never desisted until he had pounded Mrs. Britton's face almost to a jelly. Britton left town for parts unknown immediately thereafter, and although a warrant for his arrest was issued by Chief Campbell, of the borough, the efforts of the police to recapture him have been unavailing.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 13—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic—Feasting that maketh lean souls. —Ex. xvi, 3-6; Ps. cvi, 13-15. (Temperance.)

Feasting is not generally supposed to produce leanness, and yet it is known to all that there is a feasting—a feasting of the body—that does produce a leanness—a leanness of soul. Indeed, spiritual leanness is usually an accompaniment of physical feasting. Feasting and drinking are not productive of spiritual growth. Excess in either produces the opposite result. As an illustration of this truth, the topical reference gives us the instance of the Israelites in the wilderness. Between Elim and Sinai the children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron and said, "Would to God we had died by the hand of the Lord in Egypt, when we sat by the flesh pots and when we did eat to the full, for ye have brought us forth into this wilderness to kill this whole assembly with hunger." God gave them food. The psalmist says, "He gave them their request, but sent leanness into their souls." Their bodies were fed, but their souls were starved. In their prosperity they forgot God and neglected to live in vital and living communion with Him, and were constantly wandering from Him and falling into temptation.

The application of this subject to temperance is easily made and readily understood. Intemperance in drink is disastrous in many ways, but it is especially disastrous to the spiritual life. The soul is lean indeed when the body is full of wine instead of the spirit of God. Drunkenness dwarfs and destroys soul life. It makes it impossible for a man to live in vital and living communion with his God. It makes him an easy victim to the temptations of life about him, and the Scriptures clearly state that the drunkard shall not inherit the kingdom of heaven.

Along all lines intemperance is a deadly foe to spirituality. And this is one of the strongest reasons why it should be avoided and opposed by all who do avoid it. We should not only obey the injunction, "Be not drunken with wine, wherein is excess, but be filled with the Spirit," but we should also strive to lead others to obey this command and as far as possible to make it impossible for men to become drunkards. Total abstinence should be practiced and preached; the saloon should be courageously opposed and prayer offered to God for its speedy overthrow. In doing these things we shall be opposing one of the greatest destroyers of spiritual life and make it possible for thousands who are spiritually debased now to be filled with the spirit of God.

BIBLE READINGS.

Prov. xx, 1; xxiii, 1-3, 20, 21, 29-32; Isa. v, 11, 22, 23; Matt. xxiv, 48-51; Luke xxi, 34; Gal. v, 19-26; Eph. v, 18-20.

Platform of Principles.

In the early days of the movement Rev. Dr. Clark drew up the following, a good thing to repeat today for the benefit of the younger generation:

First.—The Society of Christian Endeavor is not and is not to be an organization independent of the church. It is the church at work for and with the young and the young people at work for and with the church. In all that we do and say let us bear this in mind and seek for the fullest co-operation of pastors and church officers and members in carrying on our work. The Society of Christian Endeavor can always afford to wait rather than force itself upon an unwilling church.

Second.—Since the societies exist in every evangelical denomination, the basis of the union of the societies is one of common loyalty to Christ, common methods of service for Him and mutual Christian affection rather than of doctrinal and ecclesiastical basis. In this union all evangelical Christians can unite without repudiating or being disloyal to any denominational custom or tenet.

Third.—The purely religious features of the organization shall always be paramount. The Society of Christian Endeavor centers about the prayer meeting. The strict "prayer meeting pledge," honestly interpreted as experience has proved, is essential to the continued success of a Society of Christian Endeavor.

Fourth.—The Society of Christian Endeavor sympathizes with temperance and all true moral reforms, with wise philanthropic measures and especially with missions at home and abroad. Yet it is not to be used as a convenience by an organization to further ends other than its own.

A Hint For Committees.

So whenever you hear a good thing just put it down, because if it is good for you it will be good for somebody else, and we should pass the coin of heaven just as we do the coin of the realm.—D. L. Moody. "Pleasure and Profit In Bible Study."

In South Africa.

Two new societies have been organized in the Zoutpansberg district, South Africa, by returned prisoner of war Endeavorers from St. Helena.

MAY REPEAL SCHOOL LAW

BADLY MIXED ACT FAILS TO PROVIDE FOR SUFFICIENT FUNDS.

Opinion of Attorney General E. H. McCarter—Matter Before State Board.

It is provided by an act of the last Legislature, passed as a supplement to the general school law, that no school district shall be bonded for school purposes for an amount exceeding three per cent. of the ratables of such district. It now develops that several districts in the State are already bonded for the entire amount allowed under the law, while several other districts have so nearly reached the limit as to leave but a narrow margin.

This condition exists particularly in districts where there has been a large increase in the population, without a proportionate appreciation in the valuation of the ratables. When the matter was brought to the attention of State Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles J. Baxter, he promptly set about trying to devise some way out of the difficulty.

Mr. Baxter appealed to Attorney-General E. H. McCarter for an opinion as to whether or not the ratables or railroad companies, which are taxed by the State, should be included in estimating the valuations in the several districts. This has not been done, but the addition of the railroad property to the other ratables would mean a considerable addition to the amount available for school purposes.

The opinion of the attorney-general rendered, is that the railroad property could not be included under the act, and Mr. Baxter brought the matter to the attention of the State Board of Education. An interesting question as to the validity of last winter's act is raised by the constitutional provision making it the duty of the Legislature to provide for a system of education that will give opportunity to all children between certain ages to acquire an education without cost. The probable outcome of the matter will be a demand next year for the repeal of the present law and the passage of some measure affording the desired relief.

The Genuine vs. Counterfeits.

The genuine is always better than a counterfeit, but the truth of this statement is never more forcibly realized or more thoroughly appreciated than when you compare the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve with the many counterfeits and worthless substitutes that are on the market. W. S. Ledbetter, of Shreveport, La., says: "After using numerous other remedies without benefit, one box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me." For piles, bleeding, itching and protruding piles no remedy is equal to DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Sold by L. W. Randolph.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are not equal to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up its strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood, nourishing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the system body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I suffered. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me. Mrs. J. W. Cooperson, Mile Center, N. Y.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 13, "The Call of Isaiah"—Text, Isa. vi, 1-8.

There was no lack of religion and worship in the land. Every high hill had its grove of trees with an altar in the midst, surrounded by obelisks of stone or columns of wood. On every street in the city was a shrine for offering. Sacrifices were frequent, and all the life of the people was interwoven with acts of devotion. They could undertake no task without invoking the favor and help of the divine powers and asking some sign or omen to guide them. Nor was this merely outward show. In the very soul itself the people stood in awe of the unseen powers. All was mystery impenetrable, and while they sought life, health and prosperity they feared the powers which ruled over all things and by offerings tried to buy their help.

The times were troublous. The nation must maintain its existence by constant war. The lust for power and luxury infected all. Right was not a matter of reason, but of strength.

Into such times Isaiah found himself born and growing to manhood. Yet in the midst of the corruption, violence and dissoluteness of society there was a small band of rare spirits who saw God in history and lived in the strong faith in a divine force which was shaping events according to a wise and beneficent purpose. The vice of the people must be checked or disaster would overwhelm all in ruin. To these men religion was not a question of sacrifice and feasting and burning of incense, not an orgy of debauchery and blood. God to them was a Lord of righteousness who demanded honest dealing and purity of soul. He was to be propitiated not by offerings of beasts, but by genuine piety and penitence of heart. They reverenced Him as protector and avenger of the innocent and as punisher of wrongdoers. Above all, rulers were Jehovah, Jehovah, ruling nations and their kings righteously. They were His messengers—not priests to offer sacrifices, but heralds to proclaim His laws and decrees and call men to obedience. The grimes and religious corruption of the people terrified them not for their own safety, but because of the punishment which must follow the evil.

Such a one was Isaiah. Day and night meditating the will of Jehovah for the times, he came to see in the Jehovah surrounded by heavenly hosts in awful majesty. He feels his own uncleanness of soul and the thrill of the divine incoming. The commission to go to the people as the messenger of Jehovah is received and accepted with bounding heart.

This is the clew to the wonderful after life of Isaiah. He is counselor to kings. He is preacher of righteousness, recorder of history, expounder of God's will, the prophet of true religion in the midst of every kind of falsity.

He sees with clear vision what no man had ever before seen. He speaks to the men of his own time and of all after time the thoughts of what Jehovah is ruler of all men and commands to righteousness and brother love. He calls to men because God has called him.

What Heaven Is.

A mother in bitter grief, being over her dying child, was trying to soothe it by talking about heaven. She spoke of the glory there, of the bright things glowing all around, of the shining countenances of the holy angels; but presently a little voice stopped her, saying, "I should not like to be there, mother, for the light hurts my eyes." Then she changed the subject of her description and spoke of the songs above, of the harpers harping on their golden harps, of the voices as the sound of many waters, of the new song which they sang before the throne; but the child said, "Mother, I cannot hear any notes." Grieved and disappointed at her failure to speak words of comfort, she took the little one from its restless bed and infolded it in her arms with the tenderness of a mother's love. Then, as the little sufferer lay there, near to all it loved best in the world, this whisper came: "Mother, if heaven is like this, may Jesus take me there!"—Archdeacon Sinclair.

Cheerful Religion.

Do you think that religion is some mournful thing leading to dullness and gloom and always interfering with our pleasures and spoiling the cup of life? There's the mistake that has kept back many a man! Ah, a gloomy religion is not God's religion! Jesus came to give life and light and joy and peace. He takes this from us very first, and He bore witness to it to the very last. He placed the fact that He sympathized with all innocent and pure enjoyments in the very forefront of His teaching and drew to Himself the minds by the first miracle that He wrought in Cana of Galilee.—Churchman.

In Transactions With Others.

Christians are never to lose sight of the principle of justice in their transactions with other individuals. No matter how weak the individual in and how great the opportunity there is to wrong him in any trifling thing or with advantage to himself, if a man by governed by the principles of Christ he will render to the other that which is due. The rule of the world is to take every advantage and the law will permit. The rule of Christ is to take no advantage of any one.—Christian Instructor.

The Devil's Booth.

At the devil's booth all things are sold; Each ounce of dross costs its ounce of gold;

For a cap and bells our lives we pay; Bubbles we buy with a whole soul's ransom, Devils do business on the line of the square.

'Tis heaven alone that is given away; 'Tis only God may be had for the asking. —James Russell Lowell.

FRANK SOMERS' END CAME UNEXPECTEDLY

Genial County Clerk of Somerset Died in Brookside Sanitarium.

PROMINENT POLITICIAN

FROM NEWSBOY TO ASSEMBLYMAN—HIS RISE A RAPID ONE.

His Father, Freeholder Daniel Somers, a Democrat, But Son a Republican—Death Caused by Congestion of Brain.

Frank W. Somers, clerk of Somerset County, passed away at 1:45 Friday afternoon at the Brookside Sanitarium, in North Plainfield, after an illness of three days. Death was due to cerebral congestion superinduced by the shock of a fall sustained Sunday near his home in Somerville. The news of the death of the popular County clerk spread rapidly throughout the city and it was not long before anxious inquiries were being received here from all parts of the county. Many people were unaware of his being at the sanitarium and were loath to believe the report.

As a politician, Mr. Somers was well known in this part of the State. Born in South Bound Brook, January 25, 1869, he took his way to prominence in politics as a result of his studious habits when a boy. His father was Freeholder Daniel Somers, a leading Democratic politician. Soon after leaving school young Somers secured a position with the Central Railroad of New Jersey as newsboy on the trains. He later secured a position in several stores in Bound Brook and devoted his space time to study. At an early age he showed a marked interest in politics. He was employed by Charles H. Dunham, of Bound Brook, in the latter's hardware store and remain with that concern until he was elected assemblyman from his County.

Although his father was a staunch Democrat, Mr. Somers adhered to the Republican cause and as nominee of that party was elected to all the political offices he held. He did not identify himself with either the Reed or Thompson factions of his party in the County but acted as a pacificator between the two forces. His mission seemed to be that of harmonizing the warring divisions.

After his marriage in 1895 to Mrs. James Cauley, widow of the late James Cauley, of Somerville, Mr. Somers moved to that county seat where he resided at the time of his death. In his private life he was almost as well known as in politics. He was a member of the lodge of F. and A. M., of Bound Brook and of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, at New Brunswick. In the Junior Order of American Mechanics he was prominent and upon several occasions held offices. His grandfather was a shipbuilder on Long Island and his father was a justice of the peace and carpenter in Bound Brook.

Mr. Somers had not been enjoying the best of health for almost a year. Sunday evening, while returning to his home in Somerville he fell and fractured his kneepan. He was brought to this city Tuesday and taken to the Brookside Sanitarium. His wife, who had been confined to the institution for almost five months, was discharged the same day her husband was admitted to the institution.

Instead of improving, he had gradually grown weaker. The shock of the fall hastened congestion of the brain and it was seen Friday morning that there was little hope of his recovery. His wife was summoned from Somerville and arrived shortly before the end came.

TROLLEY TRANSFERS FROM CONDUCTOR ONLY

Order for Return to Old System Goes Into Effect in This City.

PUBLIC CONVENIENCE

FRAUD ON COMPANY TO BE PREVENTED BY ABOLITION OF PRESENT PLAN.

Tracks in City Overhauled—Seventeen New Cars With Air Brakes to be Placed on Line—Other Interesting Details.

No transfers will be issued to passengers riding on the cars of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Railway Company on the sidewalk of the Watchung avenue continuous hereafter. Beginning last Monday all passengers riding on the local lines will be obliged to ask conductors for transfer slips at the time their fare is paid. The position of transfer agent will be abolished. This is in accordance with an order made several weeks ago by the directors of the Public Service Corporation. Although the order has been executed in other cities in which the corporation operates cars, the inability of securing transfers will be a decided inconvenience to the public for a little while at least. It is necessary to maintain the position of the transfer agent in this city up to the present time.

This announcement was made last week by James Brown, the assistant superintendent at Westfield. He said that inasmuch as the travelling public will find it difficult to become accustomed to the new system the conductors will be a little lenient at first but at the end of one week, if the passenger does not ask for a transfer at the time his or her fare is paid, none will be issued.

The new system has been found necessary for two reasons. First, because, under the old system, many people who have not been entitled to them have been in the habit of securing transfers from the trasfer agent when he is rushed with passengers clamoring for tickets. The company has been the loser as a result. Another reason is because in rainy weather people are obliged to stand in the downpour to secure a transfer. Under the new plan the passenger can alight from one car into another without having to wait for a ticket.

In speaking of trolley matters and what the company intends doing for the service in this city, Mr. Brown said to a reporter for The Daily Press that the tracks in many places throughout the city have been overhauled and the overhead wiring has been looked over and repaired and the whole put at present, is in fairly good condition.

He desired to correct an erroneous impression held by many people in this city. He said that the company had not employed "spotters" upon the lines to spy upon the employes. He explained that the men were sent out at various stations along the lines in order to check up a new system then put in operation. The conductors were instructed not to ring up cash fares for transfers and those men were placed along the various lines to note the way the plan worked.

When asked about what the company was going to do about new cars Mr. Brown said that seventeen four-motor double-truck cars have been ordered to be used on the main line between this city and Elizabeth. All these cars will be equipped, he said, with the latest improvements looking toward the safety of the passengers. They will be equipped with air brakes. The cars will be ready for delivery before winter.

BOROUGH COUNCIL DOES WORK QUICKLY

Routine Business Only Transacted at Session Lasting Twenty-Two Minutes.

BILLS ORDERED PAID

NO OPINION RECEIVED FROM BOROUGH COUNSEL CHARLES A. REED.

James Block Appointed a Special Marshal—Reports From North Plainfield's Officers Received —Unpaid Taxes.

Having returned from the mountain and seaside resorts, the members of the North PlainfieldCommon Council rushed through the business of the regular monthly meeting of that body in the space of twenty-two minutes Friday. In that short time $8,000 was paid out for bills due; James Block, of Stone street, was appointed a marshal for special duty; reports were heard from borough officers; a resolution was adopted authorizing the Mayor and Clerk to borrow $2,000, payable on demand, and another was passed authorizing the macadamizing of Pearl street, which had taken the Council almost three months to decide upon.

Councilman VanArsdale was the only member of the Council absent. The report of the borough treasurer, George F. Brown, was this: Taxes and interest, $146.01; Board of Health, $1.81; Recorder, fines, $26; Clerk, macadamizing, $60; sidewalks, $963; street railway repairs, Somerset street, $173.99; interest from bank, $61.09; balance on hand August 1, $6,910.93; total receipts, $7,654.45; disbursements, $5,925.49; cash on hand, $1,728.96; engine house fund, $6,363.58; borough fund overdrawn and due engine house, $4,636.62.

Chairman James K. Arnold, of the street committee, in his report showed that during the past month $222.45 had been expended. Councilman Clark, of the fire, water and lamps committee, reported expenditures of $138.30 and on John Snyder's account, $1,000. Councilman Charles Lee, of the police committee, reported that 13 arrests had been made, $14 had been received in fines and one prisoner had been committed to Somerville.

Mayor Smalley directed Treasurer George F. Brown to prepare a list of all unpaid poll and personal taxes which will be presented at the next meeting. It is planned to force the payment of all taxes in arrears.

A resolution was offered and adopted authorizing the macadamizing of Pearl street, from Watchung avenue to Somerset street as soon as the property owners pay in the amounts which they have set opposite their names on the petition submitted to the Council at the last meeting. This matter had been under advisement for nearly three months.

Owing to the absence of Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed there was no written legal opinion regarding the legality of A. J. Brunsen's act in taking from North Plainfield taxable bank securities and transferring them to Atlantic County. This opinion will probably be received at the next Council meeting.

OYSTERS IN SEASON NOW

BIVALVES HIGHER IN PRICE THAN SAME TIME A YEAR AGO.

Good Birds in Season, But Are Scarce—Cold Summer the Cause.

The first oysters from Maurice River Cove, and Schimcock bay made their appearance here and elsewhere this week and the general trend of opinion among the dealers is that there is a good prospect for fine ones this season.

The price, like the price of everything else in the provision line will be slightly in advance of last year, viz., stewing 50 cents per hundred and frying $1.50 per hundred. However, the chances are that as the stock will be much better this season it will fully compensate for the advance in prices.

Dealers throughout the State say that the oyster crop, judging from samples, will be better this season than ever before. The blue points are very fine, it is said, and not a whit behind them, according to one's taste, are the Maurice cove or Rockaways. Monday the oyster markets will be in full swing, though not for two weeks will the trade be at its best. September 15th marks the real beginning of the season.

The season for reed birds also opens Monday. Reports from South Jersey and surrounding districts bring little joy to the gunner, as they are all to the effect that the birds are scarce. Hundreds of men tramped the meadows Tuesday, but even the best shots returned home with few birds, and even these, it was said, were in poor condition. Veteran sportsmen say the cold summer has driven the birds south sooner than usual this year.

DE VOE'S WEATHER PROPHECY

MILD CONDITION FOR TWO WEEKS AND A HOT WAVE TO FOLLOW.

Month Will Close Tame—Killing Frosts Are Improbable—The Equinoxial Storm.

A. J. DeVoe, the Hackensack weather prophet, makes these predictions for this month:

September is here and we are going to get more summer days than we received in August. There are two questions regarding the weather during the month of September which every one is more or less interested in. First, are we to have the equinoctial storm? Second, are we to have killing frost? For years scientists have been trying to make people believe that there is no such thing as equinoctial storm. I claim that there is, but it does not always come in September.

This year I say we are close to the path which the great storm will follow. And it is,due off our Middle Atlantic coast from Sept. 23 to 25. We will probably hear from it by Sept. 16, near the West Indies Islands. It will move northwestward very slowly. Florida will feel it by Sept. 20. But it is likely to trend northward, keeping on the east side of the gulf stream.

We are not likely to have killing frosts this month. I expect two weeks of mild summer weather. Great storms over England and Western Europe on Sept. 7 and 15.

A hot wave will be over us from the Sept. 15 to 20. The hot wave will be followed by violent thunder storms on Sept. 21, and a sudden fall in temperature. The wind will shift to the northeast, then look out for the equinoctial. The storm will clear off warm by the 26th and the month will close mild.

UMPIRE'S FINDINGS.

Hon. Carroll D. Wright Has Filed His Decision.

MINERS' AND OPERATORS' DISPUTES

Board of Conciliation Members' Differences Referred to Wright's Judgment Now Rendered on All Points at Variance.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 9.—Hon. Carroll D. Wright, the umpire to whom was referred the five disputes between the operators' and miners' representatives on the board of conciliation appointed under the provisions of the anthracite mine strike commission, filed his findings with T. D. Nicholls, secretary of the board. In dealing with the question of employers' right to discharge men for any cause other than of connection with a labor union Umpire Wright agrees wholly with the contention of the operators' representatives and declares that the right of an employer to discharge without giving the cause of the discharge is sustained by the award of the commission. As to the rockmen's dispute the umpire says they do not come under the award.

The complaint of Thomas Tanner is not sustained in regard to the allegations of discrimination on the part of the Lehigh and Hudson River Railway company and Coxe Bros. & Co. He says that these companies should take back old men instead of putting on new men in all cases where the old men are competent and have not been convicted or are not awaiting trial for crime committed during the strike.

Leading up to the final award, the umpire says:

"Taking the rulings of the court, the assertion of the anthracite coal strike commission, the clauses in the agreement made by and with the United Mine Workers of America and the admissions of the different members of the board of conciliation, whether on the one side or the other, there can be no doubt that a man has a right to quit the service and the employer whenever he sees fit, with or without giving any cause, provided he gives proper notice, and that the employer has a perfect right to employ and discharge men in accordance with the conditions of his industry; that no one is obliged to give any cause for discharge, but that he should, as in the reverse case, give proper notice.

"This right to discharge must therefore be sustained. Any other view of the case would result in compelling men to work for an employer when they did not wish to and thus enslave them, when, on the other hand, it would compel employers to employ men whether they had work for them or not and to retain men who were incompetent or not and would thus stagnate business and work to the injury of all other employees.

"All discharges, as all quittals, should be made on a reasonable basis. The employer and employee should treat each other with justice and with a desire to preserve peace."

Strike Stopped St. Louis Fair Work.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 9.—For an hour a general strike among union artisans at the world's fair grounds was threatened as a result of differences between carpenters and the Neyers Construction company, which is building the intramural railway. Two thousand carpenters quit work, but through new employment by the contractors of several men at a lower rate than the union scale. A truce was reached when the contractors suspended the men who were objected to. George Newman, representing the carpenters, says a general strike will be called if the contractors do not finally grant the demands.

The Picket Won Handily.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The Picket, this year's American Derby winner, added another stake to his list by winning the September stakes for three-year-olds at Sheepshead Bay. The Hampton stable's good colt Africander was second. Beverly, the only other starter, was beaten off. The Picket jumped away in front and, making all the pace, won handily. Africander's heels at Saratoga have taken the edge off his speed. Woodford Clay's Memories captured the Belles stakes for two-year-olds from Marmee, with Golden Drop third. The Brooklyn Jockey club announced that they had added $2,500 to the first special to be run next Monday. Waterboy and McChesney are both eligible for this race.

Racing at Hartford.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 9.—The second day's racing at the fall meet at Charter Oak park was devoid of any unusual features. Weather and track conditions were almost perfect, although the air was a trifle too sharp to insure the best work of the horses. All the races were small, many of the horses scheduled for the meet here going to Syracuse instead. The first race of the day was the unfinished 2:10 trot, in which only Dr. Strong and McKinley participated, Dr. Strong taking two heats and McKinley one. In the first heat of the second contest McKinley won with ease, but Dr. Strong turned the scales next time, winning the heat and race by a nose.

Racing at Kenilworth.

BUFFALO, Sept. 9.—Favorites won the opening and closing events at Kenilworth, and the sport throughout was of a high order. In the second race J. E. Madden's Ely Wings and M. H. Lee's Lacoon ran neck down to the finish close together, Lacoon winning by a nose. Frank Regan trains both horses and had rather expected the Madden entry to win.

SEVEN INDICTMENTS.

Grand Jury Returns True Bills Involving Six Persons.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—After deliberating for several weeks over a mass of documents submitted by the post office inspectors the federal grand jury has returned seven indictments in postal cases involving six different persons. All the indictments were kept off the public record, and both the officials of the District attorney's office and of the post office department refused to divulge names or details of the indictments until the parties indicted are arrested. The identity of the indicted individuals thus was left a matter of conjecture.

It is expected that arrests will be made today and that the post office department will then have some announcement to make. The grand jury's action probably marks the beginning of the end of the investigation that has been in progress since the middle of last March.

Postmaster General Payne and Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow received word of the grand jury's action, but both officials refused to divulge details pending official notification of arrests.

Leopold Stern, the Baltimore contractor, who disappeared from Baltimore before he could be arrested, has been located at Toronto. George W. Beavers, the former head of the salary and allowance division, has surrendered himself to the New York authorities.

The superintendent of the mine, with a posse of men, started to rescue those inside, but when the rescue party was some distance inside the mine a terrible explosion took place, throwing some of the men thirty feet. All came out scratched, and some were badly hurt.

Terms of Canal Treaty.

BOGOTA, Sept. 9.—The bill which congress is now discussing, authorizing President Marroquin to negotiate a new Panama canal treaty with the United States, contains the following stipulations: The perpetual use of the canal is granted provided that at the expiration of each hundred years the United States shall pay during the succeeding hundred years 25 per cent more premium and rental than for the preceding term, the premium beginning at $400,000 and the rental at $400; $20,000,000 is fixed as the price of the concession, besides the rental sum of $10,000,000, payable by the canal company in consideration of Colombia's approval of the transfer of shares; the railroad shall in sixty-four years revert to Colombia, but the United States may buy it under a valuation.

Field of New York, a member of the editorial staff of the New York American, took place near Center Rutland village. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George W. Phillips, the bride having refused to be married by her own pastor, Rev. Joseph Reynolds, Episcopalian, because of the presence of the word "obey" in the service.

Used Torch For Revenge.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 9.—With a torch as his weapon some person, supposed to be the agent of a secret society, sought revenge upon Joseph Bova, a saloon keeper, and endangered the lives of thirty persons. Their escape was due to Carlo Dairaghi, three years old, who aroused his mother. The inmates of the blazing building escaped just in time, as it was destroyed with its contents.

France Secures Transports in East.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—A dispatch from Marseilles asserts that the government has requisitioned all the steamers on the far eastern service of the Messageries Maritimes and Chargeurs Reunis companies for the conveyance of a large number of troops of all arms and a quantity of supplies. BULGARIA MENACED

Thousands of Turkish Troops In Macedonia.

APPALLING SCENES AT MONASTIR.

Sofia Dispatches Say Fears Are Rife There That the Porte Meditates an Attack on Bulgaria.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 9.—The Macedonian interior organization estimates that 150,000 women, children and old men are hiding in the mountains and forests of Macedonia. The Turks are burning the forests in the districts of Leren and Kostur and killing fugitives who attempt to escape to the plains. The Vlach village of Gopesh, three hours' distant from Monastir, has been burned by the Turks, who are reported to have thrown several of the inhabitants into the fire. The Bashibanouks have destroyed the village of Stolivo, near Malkoternovo.

Thirteen thousand Turkish soldiers are assembled on the frontier at Palanka, Kratovo and Gotschani and are plundering the surrounding villages. The population has not complained, fearing that it may be murdered. In the district of Debritsl, vilayet of Monastir, the soldiers are reported to be naked and hungry and to be robbing all around.

The general staff of the insurgents has issued a circular ordering the bands not to molest the peaceful Turkish and Albanian villages.

Famine prevails in the district of Krushevo, and the population is going into the adjacent districts.

All reports from the vilayet of Monastir agree in describing the situation as appaling. Between 30,000 and 50,000 Bulgarian inhabitants are believed to have been massacred by the Turks, and every Bulgarian village in the vilayet has been destroyed. The refugees in the mountains and forests are dying of starvation by thousands.

The revolutionary headquarters estimate that 30,000 Bulgarian men, women and children have been killed, while at least the same number of refugees are slowly perishing of hunger. The Turks are apparently determined to exterminate the entire Bulgarian population of the vilayet. The foreign representatives at Monastir are independent on information furnished to them from Turkish official sources.

In government circles here the situation is viewed with increasing alarm. It is reliably reported that the Turkish troops in Macedonia number 300,000. It is considered impossible that such a force has been assembled merely to crush the rebellion. It is feared that the sultan is meditating an attack on Bulgaria.

According to a telegram from Constantinople, the porte has issued an unconditional order that all European correspondents must leave Macedonia because they are circulating false news. The ambassadors have been notified of this decision. The wife of the Macedonian leader, is reported to have been wounded in the leg near Dairene.

The revolutionary committee is about to spring a new series of surprises on the Turks. It will issue to the representatives of the powers a circular note forewarning them of coming events. The note is intended to justify the future actions of the insurgents and will point to the probable total extermination of the Christians as necessitating the employment of the same atrocious measures by the revolutionaries against the Turks and will contend that the responsibility for such desperate acts will rest with the powers.

The Turkish government is preparing a circular to the powers calling attention to the attitude of Bulgaria and declaring it is the intention of the government to pursue armed Bulgarian bands in Macedonia and even into Bulgarian territory.

GIVEN UP FOR LOST SON RETURNS HOME

Walter Frazee Again Under Parental Roof After Long Absence From Home.

WANTED TO SEE WORLD

FATHER AND MOTHER OVERJOYED BY HIS REAPPEARANCE.

Disappeared One Night in 1890—Searched in Vain—Thought to Have Been Victim of Foul Play.

"Was dot der leedle vaslage of Failing Vater?" were the words of Rip VanWinkle when he beheld his native town after his long sleep in the Catskills. "Is that the little village of Scotch Plains?" were the words of Walter Frazee, yesterday, as he again beheld the town of his birth after he had been mourned for dead by his parents and friends for thirteen years. The little children have heard their elders tell of the mysterious disappearance of young Walter Frazee in the winter of 1890, and of how the woods were searched each night for a week for his body and the fire bell called the people of the hamlet together to organize searching parties, in vain; but as the tall handsome young stranger went from place to place seeking his aged parents, the school children returning from the school which was not there when he lived in that town, little dreamed that their hero was before them. The prodigal had returned and was seeking his father's home.

The story of the remarkable disappearance from home thirteen years ago is still fresh in the memory of the residents of that town.

Young Frazee, who was considered a steady worker and a lad of good character, was employed in his father's business, which was that of a carpenter and mason. After retiring one night, the discovery was made that he had disappeared. It was found that he had made his escape out of a window. Stories of foul play were at once started and then it was suggested that the young lad had been decoyed into a kidnapping plot.

A meeting was called, the people being called together by the ringing of the fire bell. Searching parties were organized and for a week the large woods in that locality were searched night and day. Stories of the appearance of a strange wild man were concocted and this led many to believe that the boy had been kidnapped. No trace of the missing lad was ever found and the parents, believing that the lad was the victim of temporary insanity, had strolled away and was probably dead, mourned him as such.

The first heard of him in the thirteen years of his absence was yesterday when the young man, tall and handsome, appeared at his father's home in Westfield and said that he was the long lost son. His aged mother bowed down by sorrow over the supposed death of her boy, was overcome with joy and swooned. Mr. Frazee, who could hardly believe the good fortune that was in store for a little skeptical, wanted further proof and sweeping his hand over his son's brow uncovered a long scar which the boy had inflicted while chopping wood. This was sufficient and the father fell on his son's neck and wept for joy.

In explaining his action in going away so mysteriously Walter says that he was inspired to do so through stories of adventure which he had read. He wanted to see the world. He quietly left home without telling anyone and during the thirteen years in which he has been away he has been in many parts of the world.

"Progress," Reported.

Progress is being made on the new barn to be used, when completed, for the police patrol wagon and horse. Chairman Randolph, of the Police Board, recently made a trip to Trenton to see the patrol wagon and is well satisfied with the progress of the work. STRUCK AT RECORDER IN POLICE COURT Prisoner Sent to Jail Because He Used Insulting Language and Attempted to Hit Doud.

CHARGE AGAINST FAHN

RECORDER SAID THAT BOTH MARSHAL AND PRISONER WERE INTOXICATED.

Recorder Doud Compelled to Act as Policeman—Mayor Smalley Indicated as to County Politics.

Charged with striking a magistrate while the latter was seated at a court of Justice, Nicholas Clickner, of Somerset street, was arraigned before Mayor Smalley, sitting in the North Plainfield borough court last evening and was fined $10 and given seven days in the County jail at Somerville. In default of the payment of the fine he was sentenced to seventeen days in jail.

The charge was made by Recorder Thomas Doud, upon whom the attempt at assault was made. Under oath the Recorder charged the prisoner with using insulting language and with making two attempts to strike him. He also charged Marshal Fahn, who appeared against the man, with arraigning a prisoner while both were under the influence of liquor. He said that while he was hearing the case the prisoner reached over the desk and struck at his face. He then ordered Fahn to take the man to the cells below but the officer was so much under the influence of liquor that he was hardly able to carry out the orders and that he, Recorder Doud, was obliged to assist. While Recorder Doud was in the act of taking the man to his cell Clickner made another vicious strike at him.

Chief Campbell had a charge against the man for beating his wife and causing a disturbance in his house but this was dismissed and the first one pressed.

RESULT OF PICKING PIMPLE

MISS LOTTIE BENNER AFFLICTED WITH A CANCER.

Operation to be Performed at Roosevelt Hospital—Miss Benner But Sixteen.

A peculiar case of illness was recently brought to the attention of physicians. Two months ago Miss Lottie Benner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Benner, of Dunr street, was greatly annoyed by the appearance of a small pimple on the gum just inside her mouth. She frequently picked at it.

Finally the pimple and the right side of the face became very sore and it was decided to have the young woman see a dentist. Dr. Leonard, of Park avenue, was consulted. After an examination he suggested that the woman see a physician, refusing himself to pull what seemed to be a troublesome tooth.

Miss Benner, who is but sixteen years of age, then consulted Dr. Marcus L. Clawson, who recommended that she see a specialist. Following this advice the young woman went to New York yesterday and an examination was made by a specialist. He at once decided that the little pimple was nothing less than a cancer. An examination disclosed the fact that the cancer had found its way along side the entire right jaw. Miss Benner was afterwards taken to Roosevelt Hospital, where an operation will be performed on Friday for the removal of the growth.

ONE HALF CENTURY OF MARRIED LIFE

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. VanEmburgh Observe Their Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary.

RECEPTION TO COUPLE

TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH CONSISTORY PRESENTS A TOKEN.

Gifts From Sunday-School Class, Fellow-Employes at Store and Others—Robert Clark, Jr., Makes Happy Address.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lyman VanEmburgh, at their home at 331 East Second street, Tuesday celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Fifty years of married life marked the occasion for an informal reception at which many people from this city, Newark and New York State gathered.

The house had been decorated with flowers symbolic of the event. Golden rod, dahlias and other flowers had been used with profusion to carry out the golden color scheme. From four until ten o'clock last evening Mr. and Mrs. VanEmburgh received the congratulations of their friends. Mrs. VanEmburgh, attired in a black gown de soie gown with white trimmings, and her husband, with Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. VanEmburgh and Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. VanEmburgh, received in the front room.

Mr. and Mrs. VanEmburgh were married in Newark September 15, 1853, at the Methodist parsonage in Union street, by Rev. Richard VanHorne. News was received yesterday of the death of the minister, whose funeral was held the day of their anniversary.

Mrs. VanEmburgh was Miss Saphronia Ryerson Colfax, of Greenwood Lake, N. J. Soon after their marriage they came to this city to live. The birthplace of Mr. VanEmburgh is Newark where he was born in 1833. He graduated from the Howell High School in his native town. Mr. VanEmburgh represented the Edsall & Price, a dry goods concern. He bought the stock of James E. White and later went into partnership with Edward White and the firm was known for many years as VanEmburgh & White. The firm occupied the store where Hill & Shupp's store is now located. Mr. VanEmburgh is now identified with Woodhull & Martin.

Two children of the union are living: Frederick Manderville VanEmburgh and Harry Clifford VanEmburgh, of this city. The first born was named after Dr. Frederick Manderville, a practitioner in Newark. Harry Clifford, the younger son living, is the civil engineer for North Plainfield, Roselle and Westfield.

Mr. and Mrs. VanEmburgh are prominent members of Trinity Reformed Church. Mr. VanEmburgh was one of the founders of Trinity Reformed Church in Newark which was a branch of the old Second Reformed Church, of which he was an elder.

Mr. and Mrs. VanEmburgh stood beneath a canopy made of golden colored ribbons. The balustrades and upstairs rooms were decorated similar to those below, with golden rod, *dahlias and yellow daisies. In the re*ception room, up stairs, the remembrances of family and friends were in brilliant array displayed. Among the gifts was a golden colored bag made to represent a gold brick in which were 1,000 gold pennies, presented by "the boys at the store;" a little golden carriage filled with gold coin "with which to take a wedding trip," a letter from Class Number 12, of Trinity Reformed Church, of this city, wishing him many returns of the day and inclosed $10 gold piece, and $50 in gold, presented by Robert Clark, Jr., of Trinity Reformed Church, on behalf of the consistory, in recognition of his faithful services as that church and of the fact that he is the senior Elder of the congregation. Mr. Clark said:

We are met on an occasion like this to be remembered and to call up from the past scenes and incidents that has assisted in making the history of the event that we have met tonight to celebrate. It is the event of historic value, and to me has been assigned the delicate task of revealing to your friends who have assembled to do your honor that part of your life that is connected in the event that we celebrate tonight.

The task would have been a hard one if I had not had access to the family archives, wherein is revealed the courtship of the ardent George and the coy Sophronia. It reveals the fact that your ardor as a lover could not be surpassed by Romeo and that your heart traveled a long distance to obtain a wife. The family record indicates that it was forty miles and a log at the end.

You early in life became a diligent student of the Bible and you had a great desire to impart this knowledge to others and it is said that Sophronia was also inclined. It is said that in a quiet location near the shores of Greenwood Lake there was inaugurated a Sunday school class and that both "teacher and pupil" were very impressive. Wherever this class would meet, George would place his arm around the stylish like waist of Sophronia and exclaim "let us make the waist place glad" and Sophronia would reply vigorously "Oh, may your arm never be shortened." It is said you were much given to the practice of "Osculation" and as your courtship neared when talkee-talkee were used and you had been led to believe that a performance of this kind would set waves of air in motion that would cause the candle light to flicker and so absorbed were you both in the enjoyment that under its soothing influence you both would fall asleep and Sophronia waking in confusion would sneak off to bed leaving poor George to sleep on, unconscious that you had awakened him, when his taste father-in-law to be, would rudely shake him by the shoulder and tell him it was time to go home.

But the brightest page is where you appear in the role of father, what tender care exhibited. What solicitude manifested during the period when the baby relished paregoric. If Sophronia called for the soothing syrup during the silent watches of the night, George quickly got up and got it.

There is a picture of you very carefully protected and watchful of the family as you went tottering up and down the room at night in your undress uniform, talking undisturbed baby talk, and trying to sing, with a little velvet head resting on your breast and when you proposed to stop the little velvet head would intimate that nothing suited him like excessive and noisy and how you toiled on with "Rock-a-bye Baby" until the velvet head had conquered little velvet head and as you laid him in his crib you were heard to exclaim "Sufficient unto the day is one baby."

"Rock-a-bye Baby"

The first years of your labor would have been but a labor of love if the object and aim of your life has been accomplished. It is the desire of every father that the family rest with him when the end comes and how grateful it watched with so much anxiety shall ever continue to grow—constantly putting forth new branches and where fruitage shall be seen as the years pass by. But alas brother you seem to be doomed to disappointment, despair seems to be written upon every feature of your face. Instead of your being anxiously have you watched for the family tree to put forth new branches—and it seems a sad commentary that when you visit at the home of your children you should not be greeted with the familiar word of "father" and "mother" but instead you are "Grandpa and Grandma. It seems to indicate that when the future writer comes to write the annals of the Illustrious family of VanEmburgh there will appear at the end of the narrative the sad words "Extinct."

You cannot stop the trend of thought or the feelings that ebb and flow, or the sympathy that exists between brother and brother and sister, standing as it were on an eminence and looking back over fifty years of wedded life, you have traveled over a long road, you have met with many trials and many sorrows, but you have also met with many joys and pleasures, and as you look

NEW YORK BUDGET

Gossipy Talk of People and Events in Eastern Metropolis.

WEST SENDS HER MERCHANTS

Sherif Levies Upon Reginald Vanderbilt's Race Horses—Candelet's Gambling Palace Closed—Former Belle Gets Into Print.

New York.—Some cynic a century ago complimented Pennsylvania upon "her two greatest men—Benjamin Franklin, of Boston, and Albert Gallatin, of Switzerland."

A Leading Citizen of New York.

Were the wag alive he might compliment New York upon her merchant princes John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia; —the Straus Brothers, of Germany; Biegs and the Coopers, of Chicago; Greenhut, of Peoria; the Saks Brothers, of Washington, and a few lesser lights.

Another merchant prince of the west is a figure and factor in the metropolis, though in a way less known to local fame than by a monstrous dry-goods shop. The only man who owns an entire block front on Fifth avenue between Madison Square and the new library is Marshall Field, of Chicago. He has just taken title to the last plot necessary to complete an area of 200 feet on the avenue and 164 feet upon the side from Thirtieth to Thirty-first street.

Seven years and more it has taken to get together this parcel of land in the heart of what was once known as Murray hill and as the choice abode of fashion, and what is now the center of the hotel district. What it may cost I cannot guess; what it is worth is more easily estimated. At current prices for similar property the lot should be worth not less than $1,500,000, and probably a good deal more; for Fifth avenue is one of the few places where land is worth more in big pieces than in little ones. Elsewhere real estate men divide parcels to sell; here they combine them. Mr. Field's plot has come to him in ten separate transactions.

Levying on a Vanderbilt.

It may seem surprising that a sheriff in New Jersey should have had a levy upon three of Reginald Vanderbilt's racehorses in a suit for damages.

Send the bill to Mr. Vanderbilt.

The younger Vanderbilt is of such a swift lot that a little matter like a suit for damages by a poor fellow who has been laid up in a hospital by one of their automobiles is apt to slip their memory. It is the Vanderbilt custom, when the White Ghost or the Red Demon or any other ghastly 60-horse power engine of sudden death does any mischief, to shout out without pausing: "Send the bill to Mr. Vanderbilt."

The complainant in the case, now celebrated by the seizure of the Vanderbilt horses, was brought by one Duffy, who says he was kept in hospital three months by his horse taking fright at a Vanderbilt auto. Service of a writ was impossible, so the complainant did the next best thing.

This question of serving papers upon very wealthy men is becoming complicated. This same young Vanderbilt kept away from New York for months when he feared that the district attorney wanted him to testify against Candelet's gambling house. Suppose the case is one of sufficient importance, how easy it is to skip away merrily to Europe and leave the complainant sighing impotently! A man can leave for England at a few hours' notice and take most of his household goods with him. A van backs up at his door, the stuff is loaded into it and the next the owner sees of his furniture is when he walks into a London apartment that is like home so far as it can be made so by the furniture, pictures, bric-a-brac, books and the like to which he is accustomed.

Candelet at Saratoga.

In spite of Reginald Vanderbilt's staying out of town and of the strange reluctance of the police to prosecute him, Candelet has had to close the most magnificent gambling house that ever "ran" in New York. More than that Saratoga, where he has succeeded to Morrissey, Daly and others as the gaming house keeper par excellence of the spa, is now supposed to be shut tight against gambling.

A Lady's Game.

Quite as much as the direct campaign against the tiger, what hurt high-toned gambling in New York was the revelations of its crookedness. I was never in Candelet's myself; let the district attorney's experts be my authority for the statement that even there the game was not "square." There was not the slightest doubt that quantity men went there and cheerfully lost their money under the impression that it was square. They are playing "bridge" now in private houses. There is just as much excitement, and at times nearly as much money lost and won. Dr. Hutchinson, of Grace church, tells about a young fellow—poor at that—who lost a year's salary in one night in a fashionable house, playing a "lady's game."

But Saratoga! Imagine Saratoga with Daly's "hell" turned into a harmless restaurant!

I was in Saratoga during the brief season, a dozen years ago, when it attempted to be virtuous. It was a sad affair. The place was deserted. If people were to be good, they apparently reasoned, why go to Saratoga? They might as well be good at home and get the credit. The experiment was not repeated next year, nor the next, nor the next.

Yet there is only one thing that will help. There is a race track. Under the New York law, betting at race tracks is legal; betting anywhere else is a misdemeanor. Under this law race track gaming has become almost universal. I know whole families of ordinarily moral people who go down to the track once a week or so and back a horse in every race. It is a costly amusement, a demoralizing one. Saratoga is not forced to be good enough to hurt while that law stays unrepealed.

The Borrowing Aldermen.

A reminder of the days when New York city was much less "good" than she is at present has just been discovered at the city hall.

Problem: Find the Aldermen.

Workmen are going over the beautiful old structure that was put up a hundred years ago with a marble front and a brown stone back because "the city would never grow above it." In the rear of the aldermanic chamber they found, upon taking down a great painting of Andy Jackson, that it concealed a secret flight of stairs leading down to the secret chamber of retreat that has for 30 years been known only as a tradition.

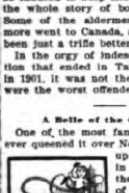
What lay so long concealed and is now revealed was a moral indignation cyclone cellar. The last time it was used was when the "boodle board" gave away the franchise for street cars on Broadway to Jake Sharp. Such was the wrath of the citizens that the aldermen disappeared. In their cellar they lay secure, cooked their own food on a primitive range and played poker until midnight, when they stole cut and away.

One of these aldermen kept a "fence" where stolen goods were pawned. The story is too long to tell, but it was by the plucky action of a New York woman who traced some household belongings to his shop, and would not be induced to keep silent about it that the whole story of boodle came out. Some of the aldermen went to jail, more went to Canada, and things have been just a trifle better ever since.

In the orgy of indescribable corruption that ended in Tammany's defeat in 1901, it was not the aldermen who were the worst offenders.

A Belle of the Old Days.

One of the most famous belles that ever queened it over New York "comes up in the news" in the report that the divorced wife of Duncan Elliott will marry Woodbury Kane.



Tangled Skeins.

Elliott and Kane are both soldiers, both members of the fashionable New York set. Elliott is now in the Eighth cavalry, regulars; Kane was one of Col. Roosevelt's favorite officers in the rough riders, a big, powerful, masterly fellow whom nothing could check or dismay.

Now, "Mrs. Elliott" sounds well, but does not thrill. Say to the elderly beau: "Sally Hargous, you know," and he will remember without further prodding. Miss Hargous was the belle of several seasons, a feat never since her day repeated. She was called beautiful; she was fine-looking, spirited, magnetic, full of life and energy, regal. Her photographs have never done her justice. Her marriage was unhappy, and was soon dissolved. She has since lived very sedately, and the news that a marriage was likely soon to be celebrated between her and Mr. Kane was a surprise to many.

Should this marriage take place, an odd situation will confront a certain section of society.

Mrs. Maud Jaffray Hunnewell, divorced wife of Hollis Hunnewell, has already changed her name by marrying John Tonker.

Mr. Hunnewell is expected in the autumn to console himself by wedding Mrs. Belle Neilson Kemp, who was known five years ago as "Baby Belle Neilson," and who is the divorced wife of Arthur Kemp.

These three women—I include Mrs. Elliott—are close friends. Mr. Kemp, Mr. Elliott, Mr. Kane move in the same circles of New York society. Mr. Hunnewell is in Boston, but Boston is nowadays a [illegible]

Sporting Costumes—Walking Skirts of Mixed Frize.

Sporting costumes, above all others, must be made by smart tailors, and for every particular sport one must have a particular gown. Let a first class bootmaker fit the well dressed woman with the proper kind of foot wear for each costume and let the head gear be equally suitable. Even a pretty woman has no chance against a well dressed one, so much is there in appropriate dressing.

In these days of the abbreviated skirt women are feeling far more comfortable and more disposed to take long walks. The walking skirt can be most chic in tweeds and fine kilted plaids, especially in company with the short Norfolk coat. Some of these Norfolk coats have only two plaits back and front and no waistbands, but they are beautifully cut and are quite short on the hips. The old style, however, is more universally becoming, with its leather band and general appearance of workmanlike neatness.

Smart people are wearing a good deal of brown serge as well as heather mixtures. Blue serge, of course, still holds its own.

Coats of Irish frieze lined with bright plaid silk are useful and smart for late fall mountain wear.

Autumn Coiffures For Maid and Matron—Checked Materials.

There is no hard and fast rule so far as coiffure is concerned. Large, loose waves are still the fashion, and a good many exclusive women are wearing their hair simply parted and drawn back, without any wave at all.

Young girls are wearing the hair low, with a big black silk or velvet bow behind. For smart occasions in the evening the hair is generally dressed very high, and innumerable tortoise shell pins are worn. The wreath of leaves and flowers is still to be seen, and beautiful jewels are never out of fashion.

For morning wear the short skirt is the proper thing, even in light dresses.

There is no more acceptable wedding gift than lace, especially if it be real. Even the plainest blouse can very well support little lapels of real lace on the collar and down the front.

Some of the new hats have very high crowns trimmed with sash ribbons caught with quaint buckles, while lace is used to drape the brims. A smart model from Paris recently displayed was of old rose velvet draped with a bit of alencon lace, with a twist of shaded satin ribbon around the crown caught with a quaint buckle.

THE MANLY BOY.

Both He and His Opposite Are the Result of Home Training.

There are some boys whose tendency is to be brutal; there are others whose tendency, whether natural or inherited is to be dreamy and unpractical. Both bents can be corrected, and the fault lies with the mother if one boy grows up a brute and the other a "sissy." It is useless to try to deprive the boisterous boy of his strength and to try to make him act like the gentler lad, because he won't. But he can be taught that his strength is for an object—to protect those weaker than himself. He can be taught honor and courage and so called "military" qualities. His overabundant vitality can be directed toward athletics and contact with other strong lads will rob him of his bravado. Above all, the love of home must be fostered in him, and this can best be done by making home a pleasant place, where he is not perpetually squelched or expected to have the qualities of a girl, but where he is appreciated as one of the protectors of the household and where he has comfortable quarters of his own in which he can receive his chums.

The overgentle boy, on the other hand, needs different treatment. He should be encouraged to drop books and choose his friends among the really "alive" boys of the neighborhood and not among dreamers like himself. If possible he should be sent to a military school or made to join some athletic organization. His sensitiveness should not be humored and his spirit should be aroused—if necessary by sharp treatment. Above all, he should never be coddled by his mother, and she should never be a slave to him. More than other boys, he should be taught to swim, to sail a boat, to shoot, and to depend on his own resources. If necessary he should even be entirely separated from his books and sent out in the woods to rough it. Manliness is far more important than book knowledge to a man. It helps him through half the difficult situations in life and wins for him the respect and esteem of his fellow men.

A GIRL'S EDUCATION

What It Is and What It Should Be

"THERE is something awfully wrong about the modern education of girls," put in Mrs. Uptodate mournfully. "Now, here is Bertha, just graduated from the Forsberg select school, and she doesn't know one practical or useful thing."

"Conchology and higher mathematics, I expect," put in the sympathizing friend.

"Yes, and when it came to dividing a cooking recipe so it would fit our small family or hemming the new linen sheets she wasn't there at all."

"That is just like my daughter. She came back from school with a smattering of chemistry, of botany, of (heaven help us!) logic, not to speak of Latin and Greek. In one and a half years she had forgotten the whole thing, and I had spent several hundred more in teaching her the useful things she had failed to learn during her school course. What I can't stand is a girl learning a smattering of all sorts of things, a little of this, a little of that a little of the other and nothing in particular about any particular thing. The lack of thoroughness is the most apparent characteristic in most girls' education."

"What do you think a girl ought to know?" put in a matron who had been silent up to this time.

"In the first place, how to spell. Oh, I see you start in surprise, but it is the highly educated girl who can spout classical quotations who is the most remiss in this respect. To proceed with the other studies, she should have a solid knowledge of arithmetic—not the kind of knowledge that forces one to use a pencil and paper all the time—a practical acquaintance with geography that would enable her to find her way through Europe as well as this country, and enough of a hold on grammar to prevent her from using the solecisms so frequently heard even among well bred people. Add to this a fair knowledge of the contemporaneous history of different countries and a conversational knowledge of French and German, and you will have a very good foundation for any reading she may care to pursue in after life. She should learn all about the etiquette of cards and visits and how to write every conceivable sort of letter. If she has a voice it should be cultivated so she could sing simple ballads for the pleasure of the family and her friends. She should be taught to read music at sight in singing and in instrumental music to play without her notes. She should learn to keep the family's and her own personal accounts correctly, to make a dress, to trim a hat. She should waltz and twostep gracefully and be at her ease before people. She ought to learn how to spend her allowance to the best advantage in dressing herself and to do the family marketing with fine discrimination. More important than all, she should know how to cook a dinner, to make bread, to sweep a room. She need not do these things, but she should know how. It would be a good thing also if she could write rapidly and neatly on some standard typewriter, if she knew how to swim, to play all innocent games of cards and to ride horseback. These things sound humdrum, but they are not as if you spread them over the term of years devoted to unpractical knowledge and high priced schools."

"But I believe in specializing," put in another woman. "If a girl is going to be a teacher let her learn all the 'ologies;' if a girl has artistic talent let her go to an art school; if ability for the stage let her go to a dramatic school."

"Yes, but you can't always tell, and, as a rule, she winds up in the matrimonial stakes. It isn't a bad thing for her to know the arts of a home woman, and in any case no woman ought to be above dressing herself becomingly, keeping her home clean and"—

SPORTS AND ATHLETICS

Living at Riverside, Cal., is a family with a wonderful athletic record. Of 13 children ten are sons, and of these ten seven six have already distinguished themselves in the field of athletics, and the other four promise to do as well as soon as years and opportunity offer. Geo. H. Dole, a brother of the territorial governor of Hawaii, is the father of this remarkable family who have figured so prominently in college athletics in this country. The following is a synopsis of the records made by the six eldest sons:

Wirred H. Dole.

Walter Sanford Dole, Cornell, '97—Varsity crew four years, covering stroke oar; varsity football team four years; end a half.

William Herbert Dole, Cornell, '94—Captain of freshman crew; three years on varsity crew; best cross-country runner ever at Cornell; mile runner.

Charles Sumner Dole, Stanford, '99—Captain freshman football team three years; varsity track team four years; captain varsity track team of '97. Records: Pole vault, 11 feet; high jump, 5 feet 9½ inches; broad jump, 22 feet 3½ inches; 100-yard dash, 0:10 1-5; 220-yard dash, 0:23 1-5; 120-yard hurdles, 0:16 1-5; 220-yard hurdles, 0:26 3-5; 16-pound hammer throw, 103 feet; 16-pound shot put, 36 feet. Won fourth place for Stanford in western intercollegiate individual meet at Chicago, 1897.

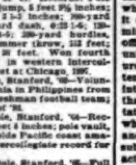
Alfred Rowell Dole, Stanford, '98—Volunteer of First California in Philippines from 1898 to 1899. Guard freshman football team; tackle varsity team of '97.

Norman Wirred Stanford, '98—Records: High jump, 5 feet 8 inches; pole vault, 11 feet 7½ inches. Holds Pacific coast amateur and western intercollegiate record for pole vault.

Wilfred Heinrich Dole, Stanford, '98—Full back on freshman football team; half back on varsity team of '97; track team three years; quarter-mile runner.

Three of the younger sons are now in the high school at Riverside, and the youngest is in the grammar school at the same place. All four have already shown remarkable qualities in athletics.

Sarcastic comments are the order of the day about the training quarters of both Corbett and Jeffries, and Tommy Ryan seems to be the cause of it all. Not only has he joined the staff of Corbett's trainers there came from both camps the most dignified statements of the opposition, but since he arrived hard feelings on both sides are the rule. When the big fight comes off Ryan will get no less $500 on Corbett, and would undoubtedly place a larger bet if he could afford it, for he wants to see Jeffries whipped badly. To the public Jeffries says he will be decidedly cautious in the ring, but to his training cronies he intimates that he will use hurricane tactics when he meets Corbett. As for Corbett he is saying nothing, but saws wood in a way that keeps every one guessing. However, he is undoubtedly relying to a great extent on his old punch. Of this Yank Kenny said recently: "It's no use talking, I've been with Fitzsimmons for years and I've sampled some of his hard ones, but I don't know of anything I'd sooner avoid than Corbett's body punch. I guess it would be pretty hard to make the average person believe it. I will frankly say that I wouldn't have believed it myself that it was possible for a man like Corbett to get into his present shape and become such a punisher."



Corbett Training.

Articles of agreement have been signed for a six-round bout between Young Corbett and Tim Callahan, of Philadelphia. They are to meet before the club offering the best inducements; weight, 128 pounds at 6 o'clock.

Johnny Gans, the fashionable featherweight, who has been out of the game since he fought Jimmy Gardner, of Lowell, to a standstill in Boston, is anxious to fight some of the top notchers in his class. He gives Jimmy Briggs, Hughey Murphy, Tim Callahan and Young Corbett the preference, and says he has money to bet he can outpoint any of them.

Joe Gans will not go abroad to fight, as he has been offered two coast matches for the fall months.

Mike Meagle now wants to meet anybody at 126 pounds, Tommy Mowatt and Hugh McFadden preferred.

Benny Monroe, of Memphis, Tenn., was the record-breaker in the golden wheel race at Charles River park, Boston, riding in the fourth hour of the week's contest, forty-seven miles 218 yards, which is 624 yards better than the world's record made last night on the same track by De Guichard. The latter covered forty-seven miles 1,056 yards and Lawson 39 miles 176 yards.

Mike Egan is now the undisputed handball champion of the world. In his international match with Timothy Twohill, of Dublin, he did not lose one of the fifteen games played, and in practically every game the Irish champion was overwhelmingly defeated.

A deal has been consummated between the Cleveland and St. Louis American league clubs whereby Cleveland acquires Pitcher Frank Donahoe from St. Louis in exchange for Gene Wright and a cash consideration. The amount of the latter is not stated.

At the sporting events at Ibrox park, Glasgow, Arthur Duffy won the 100-yard dash in 9 4-5 seconds. This equals the English and beats the Scotch record for the distance. Wenger was third. In the high jump Westney and Murray tied at 6 feet 10 inches.

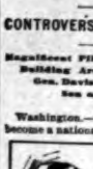
TOLD IN WASHINGTON

Semi-Newsy Gossip from the Seat of the National Government.

CONTROVERSY OVER MILLER.

Magnificent Pillars of the Treasury Building Are Crumbling—How Gen. Davis Won Fame—The Son of Ben Wade.

Washington.—William A. Miller has become a national character all of a sudden. A few days ago he was simply a former assistant foreman of the bindery of the government printing office — discharged at that. Nothing heroic or attractive about a figure like that and no particular reason apparently why he should be forced into the public eye.



W. A. Miller.

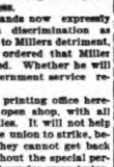
But Miller was fortunate enough—or unfortunate enough—as others may prefer to regard it—to have incurred the enmity of the Bookbinder's union, of which he was a member, and to have had it entered on the records that his dismissal from the government printing office was due to his expulsion from the union. Then he became a national figure. President Roosevelt, to whose attention the matter was called, looked into the case and came to the conclusion that no organization had a right to dictate to the United States government what sort of men should be employed, and that the only expression on that subject must come through a duly enacted law of congress.

The law as it stands now expressly prohibits any such discrimination as that which worked to Millers detriment, and the president ordered that Miller should be reinstated. Whether he will remain in the government service remains to be seen.

The government printing office hereafter is to be an open shop, with all that the term implies. It will not help the members of the unions to strike, because if they do they cannot get back under the law, without the special permission of the civil service commission, which they in striking would defy. Moreover, if they were to strike, the government would undoubtedly meet them by introducing machines in the printing office, which labor influence has hitherto succeeded in keeping congress from permitting.

Treasury Building Crumbling.

The pillars of the United States treasury are crumbling. That is not so startling a statement as it seems on first reading; because the pillars have nothing whatever to do with the financial stability of the concern. They are the sandstone columns on the east front which for a generation have been presented to the view of visitors to Washington the finest Doric architecture in this country.



Hundreds of Cracks and Fissures.

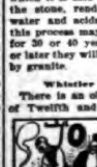
There are 30 of them, each of them about 40 feet high, and taken together they create an imposing facade, which has won the admiration of architects the world over.

But, imposing as they are in appearance, they have a note of instincerity about them. They are built in pieces, each pillar containing seven separate sections, and they are built of sandstone. The columns on the north front of the treasury, on the contrary, are solid monoliths of Quincy granite, and while they are not so many in number, they are more impressive for that very reason.

Last summer Secretary Shaw bethought himself to clean the sandstone pillars on the east front, and he put to work on them a sand blast machine that in a few weeks had peeled from the surface the accumulated dust and grime of 30 years. The cleansing process has had two results. It has revealed to the naked eye the fine lines of division between the sections of the columns, and it has disclosed hundreds of cracks and fissures which hitherto had not been suspected. Some of the columns are cracked in seven places. The sun-baked mud, waiting only for water to settle and freeze there in order to wreck the entire column. In other places fragments of stone can be pulled out which crumble between the fingers like dry bread. It is proposed now to coat the columns with zincolite, a preparation which it is said will seal up the pores in the stone, rendering it impervious to water and acids. It is reckoned that this process may preserve the columns for 20 or 25 years longer, but sooner or later they will all have to be replaced by granite.

Whistler in Washington.

There is an old house at the corner of Twelfth and E streets, the lower floor of which is now occupied by a restaurant, which 50 years ago had the distinction of harboring that eccentric genius, James Wehell Whistler.



A Reluctant Dinner with Whistler.

Whistler had lived so long in England when he died recently that people ever thought of him as an American and yet he was born in Lowell, Mass., was a cadet for a time at West Point and was an humble employe of the coast and geodetic survey in Washington before he went abroad to live.

While Whistler was doing draughtsman's work in the coast and geodetic survey he had a little room in the house at Twelfth and E, two flights up and scantily furnished. He lived there on food he could get for $1.25 a day. Finally he got into trouble with the landlord because he insisted on stopping on the way down stairs in the morning to scribble pictures on the unpapered walls. When the landlord remonstrated Whistler replied: "Now, now, never mind! I'll not charge you anything for the decoration." But in the end the artist had to seek other lodgings.

When Whistler was in Washington he had a friend in the Russian Charge d'Affaires de Stoeckl, who had been a friend also of the young man's father. Whistler invited De Stoeckl to dinner one night. He called for the diplomat in a cab, and they stopped at the grocer's, the confectioner's and the delicatessen's on the way in order to pick up the ingredients of the dinner. Then they climbed the rickety stairway to Whistler's den, and the Russian waited in amused surprise while Whistler flitted about the room preparing the repast. De Stoeckl used to say it was the most delightful dinner he ever attended in Washington.

Whistler was here only a little more than a year. Then he quit the government service without regret on either side and a little later sailed for the other side, where he remained until he died.

Feat of Gen. Davis.

Maj. Gen. George W. Davis, who has just been retired for age, has a splendid record as a soldier in two wars and as commander of the department of the Philippines, but probably he will be remembered longest in the service on account of his feat in connection with the completion of the Washington monument.

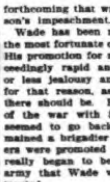
Major General Davis.

In 1884, when congress made an appropriation of $100,000 toward the completion of the monument, the chief of engineers examined that part of the shaft which had been standing for half a century and discovered that it was out of plumb. But just how much out of plumb nobody could say. Davis looked at it and looked like a factory chimney, and it didn't stand straight. That was sufficient to cast doubt on the possibility of raising it over 300 feet higher in the air, but nobody in the engineer's department could get up a plan.

Davis happened to be stationed in Washington and he said he could fix it. He was not an engineer, but an infantry officer, but they gave him a chance to try. The difficulty was in causing the plumb bobs or weights at the end of a string 197 feet long to remain perfectly steady while the observations were being made. Davis very simply got a barrel of New Orleans molasses and poured it into a glass vessel of the same size. The consistency of the molasses kept the weight at the end of the string from swaying in the air; while the glass and the fluid were transparent enough to enable the variations to be accurately observed. It was found that the shaft was five feet out of plumb. Then came the question of straightening it and again the engineers were at fault. Again the infantry officer came to the rescue, and the president asked him to undertake the job. He straightened the shaft.

To Succeed Davis.

Davis' successor in the Philippines will be James F. Wade, now a major general who is interesting if for no other reason because he is the son of old Ben Wade, the militant senator from Ohio who was president pro tem of the senate when Andrew Johnson was president and who would have succeeded to the presidency had the single vote been forthcoming that was needed for Johnson's impeachment.



Senator Ben Wade Was Aggressive.

Wade has been regarded as one of the most fortunate officers in the army. His promotion for many years was exceedingly rapid and there was more or less jealousy among other officers for that reason, as it was inevitable there should be. In almost the time of the war with Spain Wade's luck seemed to go back on him. He remained a brigadier general while others were promoted above him, until it really began to be talked of in the army that Wade was being shabbily treated.

He has the reputation of being a good, thorough officer, and he had a fine record in Cuba, but he is quite the antithesis of his distinguished father. Where Wade was a stalwart, aggressive fellow who always seemed to be ready to get into a fight. The son is a quiet and modest gentleman, a good soldier, but not a born scrapper.

CHICAGO'S JUBILEE

Striking Programme for Celebration of City's Hundredth Birthday.

A WHOLE WEEK OF FESTIVITIES

Development of the City During the Hundred Years to Be Set Forth—Parades, Notable Speeches, Athletics, Historical Displays.

Chicago—Chicago has just passed her one hundreth birthday. The "Two Million Club" has changed its name to the "Three Million Club," and the world is invited to come and rejoice. Although August 17 was the real anniversary day, and was observed as such by the Chicago Historical society and in some other quarters in a quiet way, the grand centennial week of rejoicing is set for September 26 to October 1, and the celebration promises to be the biggest and most splendid ever held in this country. A half million visitors are expected by their presence to commend the efforts of the various committees which the mayor has appointed to stir the city into a state of hilarity.

Old Fort Dearborn

All things having to do with Chicago as a community have date subsequent to the August evening 100 years ago when Lieut. Swearington, after a long march with a detachment of United States troops under Maj. Whistler, sat down by his campfire and wrote:

"Proceeded on our march at six o'clock a. m. 34 miles and camped on the Chicago river at two o'clock p. m. The river is about 30 yards wide where the garrison is intended to be built, and from 18 feet and upward deep, dead water, owing to its being stopped up at the mouth by the washing of sand from the lake. The water is not fit to use. The bank where the fort is to be built is about eight feet high and half a mile above the mouth."

Pictures of the first fort, established by Maj. Whistler on a little rise of ground in a swampy region that is now Chicago, will be conspicuous during the coming centennial. The fort will be the symbolic nucleus of the city's celebration. It will be reconstructed in Lincoln park and around it will camp some of the decendents of the Ojibways, Menominees and Pottawattomies, which came to barter with the soldiers 100 years ago.

The Old Settler and Indian Days.

Among Chicago's varied residents there is numbered a goodly company of "old settlers" who can remember when the community was a very small village, the few houses of which, as one Chicago pioneer described it, were about Fort Dearborn as a brood of chickens around the mother hen, apparently afraid to wander far. These veterans who have watched the city's meteoric progress through all of its many stages, who have seen the city's greatest disasters turned into benefits to all of its progress, will naturally find their way during the centennial to the scene of the old fort's resuscitation. There they will take part in a reunion and in an exchange of interesting anecdotes of the early days and will join younger citizens in watching the games and contests in which the various Indian tribes will participate.

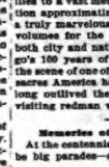
The Indian Days

For a city to have grown within the memory of not a few of its inhabitants from a little community of pioneer families to a vast metropolis with a population approximating 2,000,000 persons is a truly marvelous record, and it speaks volumes for the rapid development of both city and nation that within Chicago's 100 years of existence it has been the scene of one of the worst Indian massacres America has known, and has so long outlived the Indian period that a visiting redman were a great curiosity.

Memories of the Great Fire.

At the centennial there will, of course, be big parades—a Chicago celebration would be a failure without a parade or two, a circus without a clown—and then there will be the president—maybe. With the president it is hoped will come the members of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps and governors of several states, besides congressmen and mayors of leading cities. Regiments of United States troops and of several state national guards will ground arms in Chicago streets while waiting to welcome the nation's executive and the great military parade will follow immediately upon his arrival.



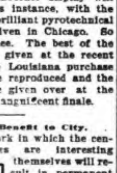
The Great Fire

The dreadful days of 1871, when relentless flames sucked their way into every commercial nook, scorching and burning everything regardless of the groans of the people and of the silent protests of unbalanced accounts, will be recalled by a realistic spectacle of fire that shall embrace all the district covered by the first conflagration. Immense quantities of roman candles will be burned for an hour or two at night from the roofs of the taller buildings within this territory and a special bomb display will take place at the O'Leary home on De Koven street. We are not informed whether the cow will be permitted to kick over the lantern, but certainly this were a most opportune time at least to exhibit one of the descendants of that historic bossy. Doubtless the great stock yards firms, which are down on the programme for one of the best displays ever contributed by them, have this matter already thought out.

The marvelous growth and development of Chicago industries will be celebrated by a monster industrial parade, given at night, and carrying elaborate illuminated floats. These floats will reveal facts and figures that will contrast most wonderfully with accounts of early industrial ventures. "Charles Walker," writes Mr. H. E. O. Gale, for example, "was our pioneer grain shipper. He sent 78 bushels of wheat to Buffalo in 1836." This writer recalls how George W. Dole inaugurated the packing industry by slaughtering and packing 150 head of cattle, all of which were killed on the lake front. "As it was not always going to be desirable," says he, "to bucher cattle on Michigan avenue north of Madison street and pack them on Wells street, with no place to keep the cattle until ready for the slaughter, the idea of a stock yards was conceived." What pictures are these for comparison with industrial Chicago to-day?

Athletics, Parades and Fireworks.

The Chicago Athletic association and the Amateur Athletic union have volunteered to provide a series of athletic sports of a high order of international importance. Swimmers from England, Sweden and Germany are expected to display their skill and endurance in the water, while picked crews from the big universities will enter contests of rowing and sculling. The water sports will be balanced by important athletic events on land. Altogether the sporting calendar will contain features of unique interest for the people of the middle west.



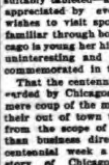
World's Fair—1893

Doubtless the most picturesque pageant will be the automobile parade at night. It is expected that 2,000 machines, some of them from Cleveland, Detroit, St. Louis, Cincinnati and other surrounding cities will take part. Some of the machines will be shipped never before seen in the west. Many will be elaborately decorated and all will pass in magnificent review through streets festooned with electric lights. The speediest machines will participate in a series of contests, and one of the race tracks on afternoons. By a fortunate arrangement the National Fireman's association will meet in Chicago during the centennial week. Firemen from every state in the union will be in attendance and they will participate in street exhibitions.

Civic pride's elaborate display will culminate, in this instance, with the largest and most brilliant pyrotechnical exhibition ever given in Chicago. So says the committee. The best of the fireworks features given at the recent dedication of the Louisiana purchase exposition will be reproduced and the lake front will be given over at the week's end to a magnificent finale.

Permanent Benefit to City.

At least one work in which the centennial committees are interesting themselves will result in permanent benefit to Chicago. That is the placing of appropriate memoral tablets in the various historic spots about the city. This important work has been neglected in Chicago, only a few permanent records of this kind having been established and these with little apparent system. Places of historic interest in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and other eastern cities are all suitably tableted—a fact that is greatly appreciated by every stranger who wishes to visit places with which he is familiar through books. Although Chicago is young her history is by no means uninteresting and should be suitably commemorated in this form.



The City of To-day

That the centennial celebration is regarded by Chicagoans as more than a mere coup of the merchants to increase their out of town trade seems evident from the scope of the plans in other than business directions. During the centennial week a specially prepared story of Illinois child life with appropriations views, will be read in all the public and parochial schools in Chicago. Moreover, for adults patriotic union mass meetings will be held in the various churches and speakers of prominence will pay tribute not alone to the commercial greatness and past achievements of Chicago, but also to her progress in nobler lines and to the work of those of her citizens who are laboring for purer politics and a more healthful and a more sanitary city. Apparently the educational side will be one of the most important phases.

The distinguished guests of the city will be given a reception by the Daughters of the American Revolution and will be entertained by the city's club women, who have undertaken the management of the feminine side of the fetes.

MILTON MARKS.

NURSED BY SHE-WOLF.

Big Beast Carried Away a Baby and Then Cared for It with Her Cub Family.

From Ewing, 30 miles from St. Paul, comes a story so strange and startling that it has attracted much attention, and steps have been taken to either prove or disprove it, for if it is true a new fact in natural history has been established and the much-maligned wolf will take a higher place in the estimation of the human race.

Several weeks ago, according to reports, an infant daughter of William Dunphy, a prospector, who lived in the hills overlooking Ewing, with his wife, was carried off one afternoon by a wild animal.

Search was made for the little one, but no trace of it could be found, and the babe was finally given up for dead. Ever since then the father has spent his time in the hills seeking the bears and the wolves which are numerous in the mountains, and slaughtering them wherever found, while the mother has sat and wept and pined away over the fate of her child.

While Dunphy was hunting in the mountains the other day he came on a wolf den, which showed signs of being occupied. He waited for a long time, and then, as no wolf came forth, he decided to enter the den and see for himself what was in it.

As he entered the place he heard the cry of a child. Advancing, he saw a sight that almost turned his hair white. Lying on a bed of grass at the end of the den, was a big mother wolf, with several pups playing beside her, while close to her side was the lost baby, tugging to get a dinner from the mother wolf, which seemed to enjoy the tugging.

The wolf simply growled, but made no attempt to escape or to make an attack when the man approached. She was attached to the child, apparently, and had been nursing it. At least that is the supposition, as the little one was well nourished and was without a scratch.

ENTERED A PROTEST.

Man Who Had Grave Dug Seven Times, Still Lives and Objects to Being Buried.

Clayton Westfall, of Parkersburg, W. Va., is a victim of the dying habit. He dies, apparently, fools all the people who see him, and then fools the undertaker who comes to prepare him for burial by waking up from a semi-conscious state and protesting against being made to witness his own funeral from the inside of a coffin.

Westfall died last week for the seventh time, but revived again in time to prevent the funeral, although the grave had been dug and the arrangements ordered. He is a worker in the oil fields near Jake's Run, and, according to his own story, has frequent attacks of unconsciousness. He had one of his attacks, the family made all the arrangements and he was pronounced dead. The grave was prepared and the undertaker sent for. He arrived at night and was almost frightened to death when the supposed corpse arose in bed and asked the undertaker what he was doing there and what he was going to do. Westfall found out in a short time that it was proposed to bury him, and he entered a vigorous protest.

Westfall says he has several times been in this condition, and has narrowly escaped being buried alive on more than one occasion. He has sometimes lain in the trance for two or three days at a time. During this period he has the most remarkable dreams. Nearly always he dreams he is in Heaven, but he can give no accurate description of what the place is like. At other times he dreams he has gone in the opposite direction, and when this happens he is always glad to be awakened, even by the undertaker, for he is excellent company, and his experience never hurts him.

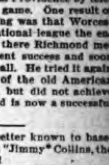
SPORTS AND ATHLETICS

The recent victory of Walter E. Egan at Cleveland, where he won the title of western amateur champion, was gratifying to a large number of golfers because Walter has been near champion ship form for some time but failed in the final rounds. He has been the runner up twice in the western, and last year he reached the semi-finals in the national tourney at Glen View. He was the runner up in the western event in 1899, being defeated by D. R. Forgan in the final round, 6 up and 5 to play. In 1900 he was again runner up, and was defeated in the final round by his cousin Chandler by 1 up in an extra hole match. This year Chandler again defeated him in the final round for the Exmoor cup, and at the Onwentsia open tournament he was put out in the final match by Roswell Mundy, of Riverside, for the Ravinoaks cup. He again worked his way into the final round for the western championship, but as he had been defeated by Chandler so many times he thought he would win, but he managed to reverse the history of last year and win in an extra hole contest.

Walter E. Egan

Dr. J. Lee Richmond, of Toledo, O., made a good showing in the tournament. Dr. Richmond became famous in a day some 25 years ago by pitching the old Chicago white stockings out without a run, hit, or "reach first base" in an exhibition game with the Worcester (Mass.) team. Richmond was a thoroughly university student at the time and had been called up from Providence by telegram to pitch the game. One result of Richmond's showing was that Worcester entered the National league the ensuing season, but there Richmond met with only indifferent success and soon retired from baseball. He tried it again in 1887 with one of the old American association teams, but did not achieve success. Richmond is now a successful physician.

James Collins, better known to baseball enthusiasts as "Jimmy" Collins, the captain and third baseman of the Boston Americans, and one of the best players in the profession to-day, believes that a rule should be enforced that would compel pitchers to cut out useless motions in the delivery of the ball to the batsman. Collins says that these motions constitute a balk in most instances, but that umpires do not enforce the rule.



James Collins

"Measure such as the bending of the knee, the throwing forward of the body, the swinging of the arms and all kinds of business," declares the Plymouth Rock player, "are done with the evident purpose of deceiving base runners. They certainly don't help the pitcher to get any more speed on the ball or better curves. There is no doubt on earth that base running is hurt by the practices. The runner who gets on first doesn't dare take a lead if he knows the pitcher has a good balk motion—for balk is what the motion is. There has been a lot of comment regarding the apparent failing off in base stealing this season. The reason is apparent. Runners don't dare take as long enough lead for fear of being caught on a false motion by the pitcher. I believe that pitchers should be made to deliver the ball to the batsman after he takes his position without all these motions."

The tour of the Philadelphia cricketers in England and Scotland which finished recently reflects much credit on the players and on the game in Philadelphia. From a comparatively small number of players a team has been found capable of giving most of the first class counties of England a hard battle and of defeating several of them. Even the Englishmen are loud in their praises of the prowess of the visitors, and some of the players are counted good enough to make a place on any team in England. The tourists won more than half their matches and several were drawn. Cricket, in spite of the fun poked at it in this side of the water, is essentially a game of skill and science and takes a number of years to master. With their limited opportunities the Philadelphia players have certainly made a grand showing and it is by this the bounds of reason that within a few years England may have reason to produce its best eleven to take the measure of the United States team.

Water Boy, the great son of Watercress, upheld the honor of the east against all comers by winning the rich and coveted Saratoga handicap, the feature of the opening day of racing at the spring and summer resort. The victory was won in the presence of 10,000 racing enthusiasts.

B. L. Woodward, who had a national reputation as a trap shooter, died recently at his home in Brooklyn, aged 64. He was considered one of the best marksmen in the country and was a member of the All-American team which took part in the international shooting contests two years ago in England.

Matty Matthews, formerly welterweight champion, has deserted the prize ring for good and all. He has applied to Pat Powers for a position as a ballplayer in the Eastern league and Mr. Powers promised to find a place for him at once.

It is reported that the President's cabinet is split. Possibly some new timber would improve that cabinet a trifle.

It is almost certain that Charles L. Moffett will be trotted out again by the Democrats for the Assembly race. What will be his handicap?

New Yorkers removing to this city in order to enable their children to obtain the advantages of the local schools hardly needs any comment. It speaks well for the Common Council, the Board of Education and the Superintendent of Schools.

The standard dictionary has incorporated within its pages the slang word "chesty." It is defined as bumptiousness. This is Bill Devery's definition: "Contraction of the stomach and expansion of the head." Devery ought to be an authority on the usage of the word.

The western man who advocates the endowment of a college for aiding in the purification of politics has $12,000,000 to put into the institution. Those twelve millions would look sick in comparison with the amount of money interested in the maintenance of present corrupt conditions.

As a pair of insurgent political chieftains, Smalley and MacMurray are hard to beat. Home rule is their watury and they are fortified in their own camps against the attacks of the other Republican leaders in the two counties, Somerset and Union. Oh, for a Sewell to pass around the pipe of peace.

Statisticians report that August has lost the title of "suicide month" of the year, there being fewer self-murders last month than for many Augusts preceding. That is one of the effects of the lack of intensely hot weather. People apparently find themselves better able "to suffer the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" when the days are cool.

Some advertisers, says Printers' Ink, is upon the assumption that advertising is read reluctantly, or not at all. They resort to fantastic schemes and lures to induce readers to read against their will, and as a consequence produce the kind of advertising that stands the least chance of being read. If there is one thing certain in advertising it is that forceful, vital, informing publicity always finds an audience.

The persistent report sent out from Plainfield that Senator Kean has suffered a defeat in Union County has been heard from the same source in previous years. It will be just as well to wait until after the convention this afternoon and the election in November before accepting the statement at its face value. Plainfield may, as the News says, be a long distance from the heart of Union County, but it's not so far from the brains.

LARGEST CROWD AT BAND CONCERT

Free Musical Feast in North Plainfield Proves to be a Decided Success.

A TEMPORARY STAND

JOHN J. NESTOR, BARITONE, SCORES A GREAT HIT.

Japanese Lanterns and American Flags As Decorations—Albert C. Sweet's Cornet Solos a Feature of the Concert.

Most successful of all of Ben La Vere's band concerts of the present season either in city or borough was that Saturday night on the Fairview and Watchung avenue corner in North Plainfield. The houses within a radius of a block around the bandstand were illuminated with Japanese lanterns and draped with flags. The occupants kept open house, numbers of them providing seats on their verandas to which all were made welcome. Many were accomodated with seats in a grandstand erected on the grounds by William C. Smith.

This was the programme:

March, "Yale College Life," Reed; overture, "Lustspiel," Kela Bela; concert waltz, "Sweet Remberenar," St. Claire; cornet solo, "Grand Fantasia," Rollineon, Albert C. Sweet; medley, "I Wish the Band Would Play," Geary; song, (a), "You're Dad Gave His Life for His Country," Barry and Geary, (b), "Every Morning I Brings Her Chicken," Barry and Geary, John J. Nestor; patrol, "Americus," Meachan; selection, "Sultan of Sulu," Ade; descriptive, "A Hunt in the Black Forest," Voelcher; galop, "The Lion Chase," Kolling.

The solos of Albert C. Sweet, cornetist, and John J. Nestor, baritone, received the heartiest applause. "Every Morning I Brings Her Chicken," as rendered by Mr. Nestor, "the little man with the great, big voice," had to be repeated three times. It was estimated that the biggest crowd that ever attended a band concert in the city or borough was present.

GREATEST VOTE GETTER IN PLAINFIELD'S DEMOCRATIC RANKS.

After a council with local leaders of his own party this morning, Charles L. Moffett, of this city, announced that he will be a candidate before the Democratic County convention for an Assembly nomination. Much effort has been brought to bear upon his by prominent Republicans here who aim to defeat William T. Kirk, the local nominee of the Republican County convention. Mr. Moffett astonished the county politicians by his record breaking run in this city when last nominated for the same office. He is a square man in his dealings with his fellow men and is not the type that will be subservient to any machine or clique. The Daily Press, as an independent newspaper, predicts that Mr. Moffett will not only poll a surprisingly large vote in this city but will be the means of greatly increasing the vote here of the other nominees of his party.

Charles Leonard Moffett is a well known lawyer in this city, where he was born September 24, 1865. He is of Scotch descent and some of his ancestors fought in the War for Independance.

Mr. Moffett attended the Plainfield public schools and afterwards entered Rutgers' Preparatory School. He commenced the study of law under Hon. John Ulrich and subsequently Nelson Runyon was his preceptor. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church and is active in the affairs of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M, of this city. While not an active politician, he has always been a staunch Democrat. He has been defeated as an Assembly candidate, though he received a flattering vote in this city.

ENDLESS CHAIN GONE.

And Thereat the Borough Small Boy Goes About With a Lump in His Throat.

The North Plainfield small boy goes about with a big lump in his throat because the "Dooley" endless chain, left town last week. During the summer he has saved his pennies and nickles to enjoy the trips around the machine on the banks of Tier's lake and at times, he has been successful in coaxing his elder brother and sister to take a ride. All the fun is at an end now, however.

The managers of the machine took it to Easton, Pa., and from there to St. Louis where it will be one of the attractions next year at the fair. Winslow Carson is the general manager and J. H. Pope chief machinist. The total cost of the machine is $6,000. Martin Palmer, although but fourteen years of age, has three patents of his own on the machine. He is a Plainfied boy.

STRAW RIDE PLANNED.

I. C. T. Club Arranges for a Trip to Millburn by Night.

A straw ride will be the attraction for the I. C. T. Club Friday night, and Joseph Rockacon and Louca Taxier have been detailed to make the arrangements. Twenty members with their young women friends will make the journey to Millburn in two hay wagons. Other business especially with reference to the first club dance to be held October 1 was discussed, at a meeting last night. Three new members were admitted.

Sebring Aimed to Move Dwelling From This City to North Plainfield—Council Without Power to Grant a Permit.

Charles P. Sebring was denied a permit to move a building from Plainfield into North Plainfield at the special Borough Council meeting held last Monday when the residents of the park were given an opportunity of voicing their opinion regarding the erection of a proposed building at the corner of Grove street and Prospect avenue. The plans showing the scheme of the petitioner in remodeling the building when it has been moved to the site selected, was presented for the benefit of the members of the Council, but, in spite of the fact that the building would, in a measure, harmonize with the residential buildings in that locality, every Councilman voted against it. Charles Matthews, representing many of the property owners of the park, made a strong plea against the granting of the permit.

All the members of the Council were present. Mayor Smalley stated in the opening of the meeting that he and Councilman Arnold had been requested to grant a permit for the removal of the structure at 327 West Front street to the corner of Grove street and Prospect avenue. The opinion of Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed was first heard. He said that a street was the passage of people whether as pedestrians or in carriages and that, as far as he knew no Council has the power to grant a permit for the removal of any house along a public thoroughfare. He said that Councils have granted permits but he believed that there was no law which gave them that power. It could be prohibited on the grounds that a house in the street was an obstruction and a menace to health. The law says that a street cannot be obstructed. Councilman Northrup cited a case in Morristown where a person, moving a house on the public streets, was indicted and made to pay a fine of $250 for such an offense.

Mayor Smalley said that in his opinion there were two sides to the story. The request made by Mr. Sebring would ordinarily be granted. Mr. Sebring is a taxpayer in North Plainfield and is favorably known as a property owner and a builder of houses. In this case it is a question as to whether or not it will be an improvement to the property in that locality. The plans submitted, he said, are satisfactory if carried out. He admitted that the lot was the proper size on which to erect a single house to good advantage but in this case a man has purchased a piece of property with a financial end in view and he must look to his own pocket. The Mayor pointed out that the lot is surrounded by desirable houses, which, if the proposed structure was erected, might be lessened in value and he questioned if the construction of the building would increase the value of the property in that neighborhood. He said he was anxious to oblige Mr. Sebring but he did not care to do so at the expense of others.

Mr. Northrup said he did not think the matter was one for the Common Council of North Plainfield but one between the grand juries of Union and Somerset Counties. Mr. Nichols said he noticed that the cellar dug for the house which was to be moved to the place extended out beyond the house line of other houses in that block and said that he would be inclined to vote against the granting of the permit on the ground that it was unfair to the other property owners on that block.

Mr. Sebring was given an opportunity of stating his side of the case and said: "I have little to say to this Council regarding how much I intend to spend. It is not for me to ask this Council for anything except a permit to move my building; neither is it necessary for me to state what I wish to do with my property. It has been said that the cellar line is dug beyond the house line of other buildings on the block. It is in a line, as near as it could be placed, with the row of brick buildings. I expect to erect a larger house on the corner.

"If this Council can not grant this permit, it must remember that there is no law forbidding me tearing down the structure and carting it over the tracks. The streets are for the purpose of carting lumber and other loads on. If the law is against me I will have to take this course. I have bought the property and I must look to the financial end."

A discussion followed and Charles Matthews, representing the residents of the park, or at least a greater part of them, said:

"If you would induce people to settle in North Plainfield you must make its approaches attractive. By allowing a building of that character to be brought to this borough it would certainly not increase the appearance of the approaches. Mr. Sebring practically says that if his petition is not granted he will put up others of like character."

When the meeting was adjourned Mr. Sebring was asked if he had any statement to make. He said he had nothing to give out at present but said that "actions speak louder than words." Asked if he would put up a spite house he shook his head significantly but would not say anything.

It is said that the plans for the house, as prepared, would be laid aside and the building torn down in this side of the brook and carted over to North Plainfield and erected in practically the same condition as in which it exists today. It is said that the Church of the Holy Cross conveyed the property to Mr. Sebring without restrictions.

BOROUGH TAX RATE FIXED AT $2.59

Though Freeholders Demand $10,000, North Plainfield Will be But Slightly Affected.

A RAISE OF ONE POINT

ASSESSMENTS INCREASED ON LARGE NUMBER OF PROPERTIES.

County Tax Above $.63, Highest in the State of New Jersey—Mayor Newton B. Smalley's Work.

In spite of the conflicting reports given out regarding the increase in the North Plainfield tax rate, Assessor Elston M. French, states that the tax rate will be fixed this year at $2.59, which is only one point higher than that of last year.

Mr. French says: "While more money is to be raised this year owing to the fact that the Board of Freeholders demanded $1,300 more than last year's appropriation for County purposes, there is more property in North Plainfield this year than last to bear a share of the extra tax. The Council made many advances in the valuations on certain properties, which will increase the taxes of a number of property owners and doubtless some of them will appear before the Commissioners of Appeals when they meet in November."

This a considered a big feather in the cap of the present administration. In spite of the fact that the County tax rate has made a jump of nearly five points, which places it a little above $.63, the highest county rate in the State, the borough assessor has been enabled to keep the rate at practically the same place it was last year. Mayor Smalley is thus able to fulfill his promise taken when he took office at the last election, that the borough tax rate will be kept down.

While it is true that there is an increase of one point, it is mainly through Mayor Smalley's efforts that it was kept down as low as that. The demand made by the Freeholders was necessitated, it was said, by the policy of the Board to pay for all improvement inaugurated by them in cash. This brings the total burden upon the present property owners instead of leaving the debt to be paid in part, at least by posterity.

AMUSEMENTS.

Miss Henrietta Crosman at the Manhattan Theatre, with a magnificent revival of "As You Like It," is supported by one of the most distinguished companies that was ever assembled about a star. Miss Crosman's interpretation of Rosalind has been pronounced the greatest ever seen on the American stage.

William Gould, whose comedy song "The Maiden and The Jay," is one of the many hits in "The Runaways," at the Casino has taken up song writing as a serious side issue to his theatrical work. His latest song, "He's The Whole Show," is being met with success in vaudeville by Miss Marie Dressler.

The cast of "Ben Hur" at the New York Theatre is undoubtedly the best that has yet been seen in the piece in its entire history. It was selected especially to make this revival of the great play a most artistic presentation. The chariot race, with its four chariots and sixteen horses, creats a great sensation. Seats may be ordered by mail by addressing Klaw & Erlanger, managers, New York Theatre.

SCOTCH PLAINS WON BY SCORE OF 1 TO 0

Defeated St. Mary's Crack Team in a Fine Exhibition of True Baseball.

STORY OF THE WINNER

ORGANIZED THREE YEARS AGO, IT OCCUPIES SOLID POSITION.

Manager Johnson's Successful Efforts to Give Scotch Plains a Good Article of Ball, and How the Community Has Responded.

Fully 1,300 lusty baseball enthusiasts gathered about the Scotch Plains diamond on Saturday and saw the crack St. Mary's team, of Plainfield, go down to defeat before the home team by the score of 1 0. The contest, which was the third of the season between these two teams, was one of the prettiest exhibitions of baseball that one could wish to witness. Hughes and Butler, formerly doing battery work in the National League, were with the visitors, while the locals had "Lefty" Davis and Brogan as battery. Hughes was touched up by the home team for only six hits, but this was accounted for by the support given him, only two errors being made by the visitors, the outfield pulling down what were apparently two base hits, with ease. The support back of him was gilt edge, not an error being made.

One of the fastest ball teams in this sect n of the State is that known as the Scotch Plains. The nine represents a village of only 1,600 people but every resident of the hamlet is in sympathy with the work of the organization and lends his support to the games by his presence and financial backing.

Three years ago several of the amateur players of the town organized the first team the village ever had, and, by harmonious work of the men and careful training by those who had the guiding reins in their hands the team has been placed among the leading nines of the State. When the greater demands of the game became apparent and it was seen that in order to maintain the prestage already secured, it would be necessary to pay salaries and hire a professional pitcher, the team feared that they would have to disband. A meeting of the residents of the town was held and a good sized sum was deposited in the treasury. With part of this sum benches were built on the grounds and the diamond was put in first-class condition.

Encouraged by the strong support of the year before Manager Johnston decided to put a faster game of ball in the field and to practically launch a semi-professional team on the diamond That season's work was a record breaker. Twenty-six games were played with the fastest teams in this part of the State. Out of that number the team won twenty-three and lost three. This record gave them a standing in the baseball world that but few of the most ardent supporters of the team had hoped for.

At the end of the season '02 it was found that the team had paid for itself and a team for this year was an assured fact, as several hundred dollars were left in the treasury.

The season now dying out was opened with new seats on the Scotch Plains grandstand and new uniforms for the players. The backers instructed Manager Johnston to spare no expense in giving to Scotch Plains the fastest possible ball games.

Following these instructions Manager Johnston secured new men, the pick of the semi-professional diamond, who were added to the star players of the team of '02. Only games with the fastest teams were scheduled. The wisdom of this course is apparent. The season closing has been marked by thirteen victories and six defeats, out of nineteen games played.

The members of the team are "Pete" C. Brogan, catcher; of the Margorites, of Brooklyn; "Lefty" Davis, pitcher, Brooklyn Field Club; George Allen, at first base, has been on nearly all the swift teams of this part of the State; George Bosserli, second base, is from the Y. M. C. A. team, this city; Captain "Chick" Cruzan, whose position at short stop brought him credit, is from Brooklyn; Bellie Williams, third base, is from the Brighton's baseball team. The outfielders are: Flannery, center field; Kavanagh, right field; Conley, left field. The former is a Scotch Plains resident, and Conley comes from the Ridgewood team; Kavanagh formerly played with the Newton Grays Skeggs, who is a substitute, has played good ball during the season. He hails from the Brighton team. Although the latter has but one arm, he is one of the best players on the team and has surprised many with his clever manner of catching one handed, some difficult flies. Lindermann, as understudy to Davis in the box, is from Hoboken and enjoys a National reputation.

Manager Johnston is an old player and needs no introduction to fans in this section of the State The manner in which he has conducted the affairs of the Scotch Plains team speaks well for him. He has been manager of some of the fastest teams in New Jersey. Secretary and Treasurer Hazzard, although not a ball player, has filled his double office with great satisfaction to the members of the team Town Clerk Edward L. Hand has been playing ball with Scotch Plains for years and even now jumps into a game when it is necessary William R. Buckley, the bustling press agent of the team, is a graduate of the Twilights for several years, at present being a member of The Daily Press staff.

GLITTERS' LAD MAKES SOME GOOD TIME

All Honors Taken by Local Horses at Race Meet at Driving Park Saturday.

BELLE WINS 2:30 CLASS

SIR ARTHUR WILKES CAPTURES FIRST MONEY IN THE 2:20 CLASS.

A. I. Smalley's Belle Makes a Mile in 2:25—Event at Driving Park a Success—The Officials.

Plainfield took all the honors at the races at the Plainfield Driving Park Saturday afternoon in one of the fastest meetings ever held under the auspices of the Plainfield Driving Association. The winning horses in each case were driven by George Gatlin, of this city, who, in spite of odds displayed wonderful skill as a driver and received an ovation from the great crowd of people assembled. With the track in better condition than it has been in years some good time was made, the best being a mile in 2:20¾, which was accomplianed by J H. Green's Glitter's Lad, a bay gelding in the 2:25 class, driven by Gatlin.

The races were for $150 purses each and included the 2:20, 2:25 and 2:30 classes. In the last A. I. Smalley's Belle, a brown mare, in the third heat in the last race made the circuit in 2:25. This horse was also driven by Gatlin.

The races were called at 2 o'clock and seven horses started in the first heat of the 2:20 class. Bessie D, owned by J. H. Green, of this city, won the three heats handily. The money places were Sir Arthur Wilkes, owned by J. F. Brown, of East View, N. Y.; second, Edgar C., owned by J. B. Osborn, of Oak Tree, N. J.; took third, and Bus, owned by Moses Hand, of Lyons Farms, N. J., took fourth. Time, 2 21¾, 2 21½, and 2 25¼.

George Gatlin, driving Glitter's Lad, owned by J. H. Green, Jr., of this city, won three straight heats in the 2:30 class and took first money. Master Boy, owned by John H. Payne, of Trenton, took second money, Bob Douglass, owned by J. P. Matthews, of Princeton, N. J., took third and Dan. P., owned by I. D. Norton, New Brunswick, took fourth. Time: 2 22¾, 2 20¾ and 2 22.

It took four heats to run off the 2:20 class race. Belle, owned by A. I. Smalley, won the race and took first money; Little Lottie, owned by R. Sweet, Perth Amboy, took second money; Daniel, owned by W. H. Cleb, Morristown, N. J., won third money and Minnie G., owned by William Dunn, of Trenton, N. J., took fourth money. Time: 2 27, 2 27, 2 25, 2 27.

There were surprises in store for those who waited until the last race and it was at that time that the best exhibition of horsemanship was made. A. I. Smalley's Belle, whose best time previous to Saturday was only 2:29 made a mile in 2 25. Her driver was dropped back to third place owing to his horse breaking on the last quarter in the last race but by clever horsemanship came in at the wire by almost a length.

The officials of the meet were: Starter, Joshua Rogers, of Brooklyn; judges, Mayor Newton B. Smalley, F. F. Anness and C. P. Rose, of South Amboy and the timers were C. R. Rose, of South Amboy and A. C. Pearson, of South Amboy.

Quits the Circus.

Chris Sorenson, of Webster place, has severed connections with the Barnum & Bailey's circus. Mr. Sorenson joined the circus at Madison Square Garden at the beginning of the season, and has traveled through nearly every State on the continent. The young Plainfielder played a melaphone in the leading band while on street parade, and while the performance was in progress he played a slide trombone in the ring band. Mr. Sorenson will remain in Plainfield for a few days with his father, Christian Sorenson, of Webster place, when he will take up a position with an orchestra in a New York theatre.

Mr. Ware's Funeral.

The burial of R. Willard Ware, who died Tuesday, took place at Hillside Cemetery Saturday afternoon. The funeral services were at the late residence of Mr. Ware, in Second place. Rev. C. L. Goodrich, of the Congregational Church, officiated. Two selections were sung by Miss Etta Rayburt.

Common Council Disposes of a Batch of Routine Business at Adjourned Meeting.

FOREMEN IN FIRE DEPARTMENT TO BE KNOWN AS CAPTAINS.

Acceptance of Invitation to American Municipal League Convention—Policeman's Resignation Accepted—Other Business.

Business of only a routine nature was considered by the Common Council at its adjourned meeting held last Monday, nothing of any great importance being presented. All the members excepting Councilmen Pray and Murphy were present, but they were anxious to get through with the business on hand as the high temperature had a depressing effect.

A petition was received from the Gamewell Police Patrol Company, stating that the system installed in this city by the company has now been in perfect working order for thirty days, inspected by Charles W. Runyon, chosen for that work, and accepted by the police board, and a request was made for the $6,025, the amount set fourth in the contract for the installation of the system.

Chairman Randolph, of the Police Board, reiteritated the statement in the petition and he moved that the bill of $6,025 be paid. The motion was adopted.

The American Municipal League, as in former years, invited the members of the Council to attend the annual convention to be held in Baltimore soon. The invitation was accepted and filed. Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that during the past month sixteen permits were granted. Dr. Chas. R. Lafburrow, city, presented his report for May, June, July and August and the same was filed.

Mr. Daniel reported on the petitions of Benjamin LaVere and Louis McIntosh, in which the latter asked the Council to make an appropriation of money for a series of band concerts. He recommended that the petitions be refused as they could not be considered when the annual budget was made up. This recommendation was concurred in.

Mr. Tolles stated that Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh advised that bids for macadamizing certain streets in the city be advertised for, inasmuch as there was not a quorum present at the last regular meeting and only one bid was received at that time. In accordance with this advice, Mr. Tolles offered a resolution providing for the advertising of bids and fixing Monday evening, October 5, at 8 o'clock as the time when such bids shall be received. The resolution was adopted.

Regarding the proposed extension of Dansilen avenue from the city into North Plainfield, Mr. Tolles explained that he understood that Mayor Smalley, of the borough, favored the plan and that one of the largest property-owners in the borough affected by the improvement, also favored it. He offered a resolution providing that the corporation counsel prepare a route for the extension and cause a map of the same to be made. This resolution was adopted.

George W. Lunger offered his resignation as a patrolman, explaining his reason for doing that it was on the advice of his physician. The resignation was accepted.

On June 1, last, Mayor Jenkins appointed Sylvanus Hoffman a call man in the fire department to take the place of Alexander Muir, resigned, and last evening the Council confirmed the appointment.

Mr. Lee introduced an amendment to an ordinance to regulate the fire department, providing that hereafter the word "captain" be used instead of the word "foreman" when it appears in a certain section of the ordinance. The change was adopted on its first and second readings and ordered advertised.

Mr. Daniel offered a resolution which provides that the sum of $6,000 be borrowed, and secured by notes, for the further improvement of Plainfield's sewer system. The resolution was adopted, as was also another resolution by the same member providing that the city treasurer be authorized to borrow $16,000 on account of the fire fund and $4,500 on account of the poor fund, in anticipation of the collection of taxes.

The members of the Consistory thought we could better express our appreciation and esteem than in a gift that would be in keeping with the event we celebrate tonight, and now dear brother, in behalf of the Consistory, it affords me much pleasure to present to you fifty dollars in gold—each dollar of which is symbolic of a golden milestone that has been passed during the fifty years of wedded life.

Accept it not for its intrinsic value but for what it represents, and the esteem and appreciation of your fellow co-workers.

Other articles, were shown, including hand painted china, etc., all carrying out the color scheme in harmony with the golden event.

A golden anniversary wedding supper was served in the dining room. The apartment was decorated in a manner fitting to the joyful occasion. PLAINFIELD'S CHOICE FOR ASSEMBLY TURNED DOWN, LOCAL DELEGATES BOLT REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

Dramatic Scene on Floor When James T. MacMurray, Chairman of Plainfield Delegation, Declares That Action Is An Insult to the Intelligence of the People of This City.

KEAN'S FRIENDS HERE ACHIEVE GREAT VICTORY

FORMER SHERIFF WILLIAM T. KIRK WINS LAURELS IN GREAT BATTLE FOR ASSEMBLY NOMINATION—MACMURRAY'S LIEUTENANTS PLACE THEMSELVES ON RECORD AGAINST THE RESOLUTIONS, WHICH PLEDGE DELEGATES TO SUPPORT THE TICKET—"THE DEUCE WITH PEACE, LET'S HAVE WAR" THE BATTLE CRY OF THE DISSATISFIED DELEGATES—AMOS ANDREWS' CLEVER MOVE—OTHER DETAILS OF THE CONVENTION.

Declaring that their presence in the convention hall would be an insult to the Republican constituency of this city, James T. MacMurray, the local leader of the majority party and chairman of the delegation, led the Plainfield delegation in bolting the County convention, at Elizabeth Thursday afternoon. Fifteen of the nineteen delegates from this city rose as one man and left the hall amid cheers and hisses. The dramatic scene was flashed before the convention, the instant it was realized that James F. Buckle's defeat for an assembly nomination had been accomplished by the friends of United States Senator John Kean. All hope abandoned for what they deemed fair play and home rule, the delegates loyal to the local Republican administration, which supports Congressman Charles N. Fowler, marched out in single file following Mr. MacMurray, on whose heels was City Judge William N. Runyon, who was turned down in a similar way when his name was presented last fall as Plainfield's choice for State senator.

It was like a bolt from a clear sky and for the moment few realized its significance. But it took only a short time for the convention to see of what grave importance such a sudden stroke in political diplomacy forecasted, and then no minutes were lost in endeavoring to reconsolate the shrieking delegation. It was too late, however, for those attempting to make peace, found that the anger of the Plainfielders could not be pacified. "The deuce with peace, let's have war," to use the terse words of a Westfield delegate, had already become the cry of the reconsolators, who were occupying themselves in discussing plans for the defeat of their own party's ticket.

Probably no such scene had ever before been enacted in a Republican convention in Union County. Plainfield, which rolls up the majority and insures the continuance of Republican rule, was in revolt. Internal warfare had been decreed, and the old time politicians pictured a gloomy future.

The story of the convention, aside from this sensational feature, can be put in a nutshell. The friends of Senator Kean scored a signal triumph, which is not uncommon. Former Sheriff William T. Kirk, of this city, Assemblyman Edward Coyne, of Elizabeth, and Freeholder Peter Tillman, of Rahway, were nominated as the party's candidates for seats in the lower house of the Legislature, and Dr. Jesse A. Anderson, colored, of this city, was unanimously nominated for coroner.

County Chairman Hamilton Kean, a brother of Senator Kean, called the convention to order at 2:35, just fifteen minutes after the time designated, when the hall was but one-fourth filled. He announced the appointment of E. W. Hale, of Cranford, as temporary chairman.

Mr. Hale made a brief speech, incidently remarking that he hoped the candidates chosen would solidify the party. He then selected three delegates to act as temporary secretaries, two of whom are editors. Following this he announced the customary committees. The Plainfielders selected were: Organization, Amos Andrews; rules, F. C. Peck; vacancies, G. B. Leonard. Charles Codding, of Westfield, whom Kean ousted two years ago, as a member of the County Committee, made a strenuous objection, claiming that the convention should first authorize the chair to appoint committees, but his opinion met with the disapproval of the majority. The approval of the convention for the chair's action was quickly obtained.

After a five minutes' recess, the reports were made. These were in order to be filed and then a temporary organization was made permanent with the convention's consent.

Editor Charles McBride read these resolutions:

"The representatives of the Republican party, of Union County, assembled in Convention, September 10, 1903.

"Resolve: That the gold standard finally established by the Republican party, aided by sound money Democrats, as a result of the memorable campaign of 1896, has been amply vindicated by the manifestly solid condition of the prosperity of our country, undisturbed by the fluctuations of Wall street speculation. Money for legitimate business enterprises can be obtained at moderate rates of interest, due to the fact that there is no doubt about the value of the coin or currency in which debts or wages must be paid. We call attention to the fact that the revolutionary and destructive policies proclaimed in the Chicago platform of 1896, and repeated in the Kansas City platform of 1900, twice condemned by the people by most emphatic majorities, are still the creed of the so-called Bryan Democracy, as shown by the platforms adopted by recent so-called Democratic conventions held in the States of New York and Ohio, and hence it is necessary, that voters who think alike on these important questions should continue to work and vote together.

"The satisfactory and creditable work of the government of our State under the administrations of Ex-Governor John W. Griggs, our fellow citizen, Foster M. Voorhees and Franklin Murphy, the present Executive, supported by Republican legislatures, forms a striking contrast to the disgraceful regime of preceding years, and should not be forgotten by citizens who take pride in the good name of our State, and are interested in the character and efficiency of its government.

"The administration of the government of our county by the Board of Chosen Freeholders is in harmony with the best sentiment of our people; it is honest, intelligently progressive and at the same time wisely conservative.

"We approve the erection of the new court house as a public necessity and creditable expression of the enlightened sentiment of our people.

"We think the time has come when the office of Register should be established in this county as it has been in other populous counties of this State in order that the records of land titles may be kept separate from records of litigation and of other merely clerical work of the county government. As the offices of Clerk and Register are self-sustaining the proposed change would add nothing to the burdens of the taxpayer, but would separate work that can best be done in separate offices.

"We commend the course of our representatives in the Senate and House of Assembly in the last Legislature. Every interest of our county involved in legislation has been wisely and carefully guarded by them.

"We pledge to the nominees of this Convention our earnest support and shall expect from them a measure of public service that shall be worthy of comparison with their predecessors in their respective offices."

There was little applause during the reading of the resolutions. When the committee was about to take the customary method of adopting them, Amos Andrews, of this city, arose from his seat in the Plainfield group and moved that the resolutions as read be adopted by a rising vote. Mr. MacMurray jumped to his feet and opposed the motion, which compelled Mr. Andrews to define his position. The latter informed the convention that the Plainfield delegates had passed the word among themselves not to vote on the resolutions. When the rising vote was taken, Mr. MacMurray's friends forcibly signified their disapproval of the report. One little clause, artfully worded, was the stumbling block. It was "we pledge to the nominees of this convention our earnest support." This was the beginning of the end.

Another scene fire quickly followed. Nominations were in order and a secretary had called Plainfield first. Mr. MacMurray evidently was in no hurry to show his hand and demanded that Elizabeth first be afforded the privilege of the floor. Mr. McBride, of Elizabeth, placed the name of Edward S. Coyne before the convention, in a pleasant little speech.

It was then Plainfield's turn. Mr. MacMurray had been selected to place in nomination President of Common Council James F. Buckle. This is what he said:

"On behalf of fifteen delegates of this convention out of nineteen elected by the City of Plainfield on Tuesday, representing 1918 out of 2354 Republican votes cast at the last general election, I come before you to ask for the Assembly nomination for one of Plainfield's most esteemed citizens; a man who in the years gone by has consistently, add at all times, served the Republican party; a man whom Plainfield has delighted to honor, and one who stands high in the esteem of every one of his fellow citizens; and from reliable information obtained I feel safe in saying that the other Republican strongholds of Union County will unite with Plainfield this afternoon in asking this convention to nominate our candidate.

"We realize full well that any action of this convention must have the endorsement of the delegates from the City of Elizabeth; she is the entire mistress of the situation, and upon her action we stand or fall. Gentlemen of Elizabeth: We of Plainfield believe that each and every one of you is an honorable man, and will recognize, under the present circumstances, that to fair and what is just. You have lost to look over the history of the Republican party in Union County to realize what Plainfield has done every year, no matter from what part of the County the candidates came; Plainfield could always be depended upon for a thousand majority. This has been the case whether Plainfield has had any interest in the election or not by reason of one of her citizens being on the ticket, and it is on account of her past record that she feels this afternoon fully justified in asking the delegation from the City of Elizabeth, as well as from the other parts of the County, to back her preference, and to give her a chance to work for one who is able to command the enthusiastic loyalty of every voter in our city.

"Gentlemen, I now take pleasure, on behalf of the Plainfield delegates, in presenting as Plainfield's representative on the Assembly ticket, a man who is the President of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, and has served the city in the capacity of Councilman for the past six years; has served the Republican party on the County and City Committee for a number of years, a man who does not seek this nomination for his own personal advancement, but who has been urged to stand therefor by those who recognize his ability and worth. His name on the Republican ticket this fall will, without doubt, bring out a large vote, and which we feel will greatly help the rest of the ticket, and will do as much as any single thing can to make every element of the Republican party in Union County harmonious.

"I have the honor to nominate as Plainfield's choice for Assembly from Plainfield, Mr. James F. Buckle."

When the Third ward of this city was called, G. B. Leonard, who has recently removed here, arose and placed in nomination Mr. Kirk. He said that it was not unnatural for more than one good name to be presented on such an occasion. He had known Mr. Kirk since the latter's boyhood days and had great admiration for his favorite. He described him as a "strenuous and hustling winner" and had many other complimentary remarks for the former sheriff. Uzal M. Osborn, of Rahway, placed Peter Tillman, of that city, his remarks being framed in a happy vein. Mr. Thomas, of Westfield, made an appeal for "home rule" in seconding the nomination of Mr. Buckle.

Elizabeth was solid for Kirk, except the Eleventh ward, Congressman Fowler's home, where Buckle got two and a half votes. Mr. MacMurray cast fifteen out of nineteen of Plainfield's votes for Mr. Buckle. Four were cast for Kirk. Rahway was solid for Kirk, and the latter's nomination was thus insured. Then came the climax.

Mr. MacMurray, chairman of the Plainfield delegation, jumped to his feet, and fairly shouted: "Mr. Chairman, believing that our further continuance in this convention would be an insult to the intelligence of those whom we represent, fifteen of the nineteen Plainfield delegates hereby withdraw from this convention. Suiting the action to the word, the discontented delegates filed out. They were S. F. T. Wilbur, B. D. Newell and Mr. MacMurray, of the First ward; Judge W. N. Runyon, former Judge Nelson Runyon, Dr. T. S. Davis, Charles B. Morse and Charles H. Hand, of the Second ward; J. Stephen Higbee, of the Third ward, and William G. Peck, John Bowman, George T. Leighs, Alexander Ayres, Charles H. Dunham and James Morrison, of the Fourth ward. Amos Andrews, of the First ward; O. B. Leonard, James M. Leonard and F. A. Pope remained.

When quiet had been restored, the chairman announced that the business would proceed. After the votes had been canvassed, it was announced that Coyne and Tillman had each received ninety-six votes; Kirk, seventy-nine and a half and Buckle, thirty-two and a half.

O. B. Leonard, of the Third ward, then placed Dr. Jesse S. Anderson in nomination for coroner, and he was unanimously selected. The convention's candidates were then escorted to the stage, and several brief speeches were made.

In one of the boxes sat former President of the Senate Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, surrounded by a group of friends. Some one remarked that he was the first North Plainfielder to annex himself to Union County. Seated near him were former Judge W. H. Codington, a friend of Senator Kean. In another box were George V. W. Moy and J. Fred MacDonald.

How to Carry a Cat.

"Yes, I think it is the best way to carry a cat, and I've tried them all," replied the woman in the railroad station, who had a cat in a gingham bag, the feline's head being out of the opening, which was carefully drawn up around its neck lest it escape. "A pet cat feels very lonely in a hamper. In this bag, you see, the cat feels me all the time as I carry him in my arms, and he knows he is not deserted. If he had not traveled with me up and down to the seashore for years I shouldn't have as much confidence in him, and certainly wouldn't allow his head out now for a breath of fresh air. I wouldn't even trust him if he could get one paw out, for he naturally has the scary-cat nature and might fly before he realized there was no danger. As a matter of fact, he's a bit intoxicated. Two hours before starting I put a bunch of fragrant catnip in the bag and didn't let him inside until he was crazy over it. When I did he scurried in with a rush and that saved him the fright he'd have felt at being put in against his will. Then we get in our cottage I simply put a bit of catnip on his cushion and he knows he is at home."—Philadelphia Record.

A Mere Beauty.

The belle of Benares was a slave girl of 18, so graceful and lithe that her every attitude suggested a bird just alighted from a flight through space. Her dark eyes were fringed by the longest of black lashes, and even her stained teeth could not detract from the curves of her pretty mouth. She had a self-satisfied consciousness of her own attractions, and was as imperious and overbearing as any American beauty, stamping her tiny foot in rage at the photographer's lack of haste in taking her picture, and once walking away from the camera with a disdainful toss of her head. When, after much persuasion, she was induced to return, it was only to scowl sullenly at everybody with the most bewitching fit temper, poised so lightly that the very wind seemed to sway her slender figure back and forth like a flower on its stalk.—From Tales of Tawi Tawi in Everybody's Magazine.

Sea's Bottom Falling.

Scientists tell us that, counting from the sea level, the lowest body of water on the globe is the Caspian sea. For centuries its surface has been gradually settling down until now it is 85 feet lower than that of its near neighbor, the Black sea, which itself is far below the level of the oceans. The common conclusion all along has been that the Caspian was simply losing its waters by evaporation, but recent investigation shows that this is not the case. Soundings have been compared with records of soundings made over 100 years ago reveal the astounding fact that there is even a greater depth of water now than then. This leaves but one hypothesis that would seem at all tenable—that the bottom of the sea is actually sinking.

Wind and Vegetation.

The influence of the wind on vegetation has been the subject of a report by Prof. J. Frah to Swiss geographers. The effect is a powerful one, especially on trees, and even the presence or absence of forests may be determined by the character of the prevailing wind, or the conditions that modify its action. The wind acts especially as a drying agent, in this way giving a special aspect to many plants. When the wind is almost always from the same quarter, the plants usually show greater development upon one side, trees are smaller on the windward edges of forests, and trunks and branches are permanently bent to leeward. The deformations are most marked near the sea or in flat regions. The cherry, the plum, the walnut, the black poplar, the ash and certain pines are very sensitive to the wind, but mountain pines and certain firs offer great powers of resistance, and these are recommended for reforesting windswept lands.—Science.

Fluorine Isolated at Last.

Fluorine, the most active element known, has been isolated by M. Moissan in a state of absolute purity, and when free from moisture it is found to lose entirely its extraordinary power of attacking glass. Pure fluorine, therefore, may be sealed in a glass tube. In collaboration with Prof. Dewar, the tube of gas was immersed in liquid hydrogen, when the liquefaction and solidification of the fluorine were observed, the melting point was found to be at 233 degrees C. below zero. As most substances are known to become inert at such cold, the question has arisen whether all chemical action ceases near absolute zero. To test this, the tube of fluorine was broken in the liquid hydrogen, and the result was a violent explosion, with much flame and a shattering of the apparatus employed. It has been thus proven that some chemical action is possible at about minus 252 degrees C., or only 20 degrees above the absolute zero.

"I have often thought that I would like to see an English lord," she went on, "and—now—"

"And now you are satisfied at last," he put in, laughingly.

"No, no," replied the truthful little girl, "I'm not satisfied. I'm a good deal disappointed."—Stray Stories.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR GOOD FOOTBALL

Plainfielders May See the Real Article on the Gridiron This Fall.

NEEDS NOW SUPPLIED

ALIS CLUB TO TROT OUT STRONG ELEVEN IT IS SAID.

Alis A. A. Members Now to Don Alis Club Uniform—Roy Phillips' Position in Game—Valuable Aid Given by L. Warting, Jr.

With September here, the local football enthusiasts are beginning to think once more of their favorite sport. While there has never been any lack of good talent from which to select a representative eleven, the chief difficulty in the path of a successful football team has been the lack of a strong organization to support the team. The hard work of management has usually fallen on the players themselves and it has handicapped them. This year, the Alis Club stands ready to back a team and there appears not the slightest doubt that the club will have the best team Plainfield has seen for many years.

There has always been the troublesome question of grounds and a suitable place for practice. With Crescent Oval and its grandstand available, the eleven will be in a better position to appeal to the public for support than ever before. Then the Alis Clubhouse with its adjoining lawn on Arlington avenue will be a suitable place for practice with dressing rooms close at hand.

As far as material goes, there is hardly one of the team, known last season as the Alis A. A., who is not anxious to don his football clothes and get out for practice. Plainfield had a strong team last season, despite the disadvantages under which the boys played, and with sound and substantial backing, the team ought to be one of the strongest in the metropolitan district. There is a nucleus of players, headed by Roy T. Phillips, who have played together for the last six years and have developed a style of team play that has proved wonderfully effective in the past. Then there are some new comers who have figured prominently in local football circles during the last two years. A few of the older players who were active in the days of the famous old Plainfield A. A. are still available. Then there is reported to be considerable new material including several young men recently from college. Lewis E. Waring, who has been identified with local football for ten years, played with the Elizabeth A. C., captained the Plainfield A. A. and coached the Alis A. A. last year, is president of the Alis Club and may be looked upon to actively support and advise the eleven. Roy T. Phillips, who has captained the Alis aggregation since its start as a school boy team eight years ago, is a member of the Alis Club and can be counted on to take the lead in the organization of this fall's team. He will have the support and active assistance of such well-known players as Homer Smith, Harry Coming, Harold Davis and Herbert Cathcart. Then there are other names, not so well known perhaps but which promise to figure importantly in the local football season of 1903.

A meeting of the members of the Alis Club, who are interested in football will be held in the near future when plans for the coming season will be sharpened and the management of the team settled upon.

Attorney General Declines to Take Action Against P. S. C.

Attorney General Robert N. McCarter has refused the application of Mayor Fagan, of Jersey City, requesting a suit against the Public Service Corporation, of which his brother is president, for merging trolley lines the charters for which, it is alleged, have expired.

In explaining his refusal to take action the Attorney General says: "It would be very unwise and injudicious at this late day to hazard the risk of loss of confidence and public alarm that might arise from the exploitation of the suggestion, based, as it is, on a mere technicality, whose legal force does not impress me, and for this reason I feel constrained to refuse the application."

POLITICAL SITUATION IN SOMERSET COUNTY

Sudden Death of the County Clerk Adds One More Office to be Filled.

POSSIBLE CANDIDATES

GOVERNOR MURPHY TO MAKE A TEMPORARY APPOINTMENT.

No Opposition to Renomination of Assemblyman Swackhamer by His Party—Position of the Republican Party.

Somerset County politicians are nonplussed with an unexpected situation brought about by the death of County Clerk Frank W. Somers. The office occupied by him will have to be filled at the coming fall election, although it has been erroneously supposed that under the new primary law the voters would be deprived of a right to exercise their prerogative in this respect. The Trenton Times and other papers have said that Governor Murphy will appoint Mr. Somers' successor, but as a matter of fact the only power with which the chief executive is vested is to make a temporary appointment.

Were it not for the sudden vacancy in the County Clerk's office, the voters would only be called upon this fall to select an assemblyman. As yet neither party has selected a date for its County convention and there has been little discussion concerning candidates. However, some names have been mentioned in connection with the offices. So far as the Republicans are concerned, Somerville can get and will have what she wants. But such is not the case in the Democratic camp.

That the Democrats will tender an unanimous renomination to Assemblyman Swackhamer there is little doubt. Aside from the fact that precedent demands his renomination, he is in favor with the rank and file. Not only did Swackhamer adhere to the platform upon which he was nominated, but he made a record for himself and for his county while on the floor of the Assembly. His rise has been so rapid that some have seriously considered him as gubernatorial timber, but there is little likelihood that aspirations to that high office will be satisfied in the near future. No Republican has yet announced that he desires to become Swackhamer's opponent in the campaign for the Assemblymanship.

It is not improbable that Governor Murphy will temporarily fill the county clerkship vacancy in a few days and that task he is likely to select for that purpose is said to be A. G. Anderson, a merchant, of Somerville, who has taken little interest in the Reed-Thompson factional fight. Mr. Anderson is also a possibility as a Republican nominee. Others mentioned in connection with the party's nomination include Fred Voorhees, of Bound Brook; Edward Cooper, of Warren township and George A. Ditts, of Raritan.

As for the Democratic nomination, John L. Anderson, the present deputy sheriff, is said to be seriously considered at present. Charles Voorhees, former assessor, of Bridgewater, may loom up among the candidates for the place as may also Jacob Shurts, of Somerville, the present chairman of Somerset Democrats.

From present indications little interest will be taken in the campaign so far as North Plainfield is concerned. As far as the Republicans in that borough are concerned, it appears that no office is being sought and none will be taken. Mayor Smalley's friends control the situation and will be supported by the borough's delegation at the county convention. The strenuous mayor and those closely allied to him politically are as strong annexationists as ever and it is well understood that they intend to keep up the fight until the Thompson ring see the futility of hoping for the borough Republicans to return to the old way of electing the county ticket and getting the crumbs from the political feasts that go with a victory at the polls. At the last general election the friends of the borough administration defeated their own party ticket purposely and then turned around and gave their chief a flattery vote re-electing him to the mayoralty for the third consecutive time. It would not be surprising to see them deliver a knock-out blow to the Republican county ticket this fall.

COURT SUSTAINS SURROGATE'S ACT

Fund Derived Under Will of Warren Ackerman Subject to Assessment.

WITHOUT PRECEDENT

ALVAH CLARK'S UNSUCCESSFUL FIGHT FOR EZRA B. HOYT.

State Entitled to $5,000 As Collateral Inheritance Tax on Principal of Estate Held in Trust for Sister of Mr. Ackerman.

An opinion has been filed by the Prerogative Court of New Jersey, at Trenton, affirming the assessment on a fund, derived from the Warren Ackerman estate, under the collateral inheritance tax law which was appealed in the case of Ezra P. Hoyt, of this county against William S. Hancock, comptroller.

The case is the first of its kind to come to the attention of New Jersey courts and was argued on briefs submitted by Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, for the appellant and the attorney general for the State. Under the decision of the prerogative court the State will receive about $5,000 from the estate involved.

By the will of Warren Ackerman, of Scotch Plains, who died August 30, 1893, his estate was committed to trustees to divide it into as many shares as he might have brothers, sisters, nephews and nieces, who should survive him, and to set apart for each of them one such share and pay the income thereof to each during his life, and on the death of one to pay that one's principal of the share as that one might direct by will.

Mary S. Hoyt, a sister of Mr. Ackerman and the wife of Ezra B. Hoyt, survived the testator and died March 26, 1895, leaving a will by which she appointed her husband as the person to receive the principal of her share under the provisions of Warren Ackerman's will.

In December, 1895, the surrogate of this county had on appraisal and assessment made upon the estate of Mr. Hoyt, which he required under the appointment of his wife's will.

Mr. Hoyt protested against the assessment and prosecuted the appeal to vacate it and set it aside.

The opinion says: "It is conceded by counsel, and is undoubted law, that the interest which Ezra B. Hoyt took by such appointment is related back and referable to the instrument which conferred the power of appointment, which instrument was the will of Warren Ackerman, which took effect August 30, 1893.

The syllabus of the opinion says: "By a will which took effect while the provisions of the collateral inheritance tax act of 1892 was in force, testator created a fund, the income of which was payable to a sister for life, with a power of appointment of the principal by her will. By her will, which took effect in 1895, the life beneficiary appointed the principal to be paid to her husband, who survived her. Held—

"1. That the interest of the husband must be considered as having been acquired as of the time the instrument creating the power of appointment took effect.

"2. That such interest was taxable under the provisions of the act of 1892, and could be appraised by an appraiser appointed by a surrogate, when it became vested by the will of the donee of the power.

"The act of 1892 was repealed by the collateral inheritance tax act of 1894, except so far as its provisions were reenacted in the latter act, and the repealer was declared not to surrender any remedies, powers, rights or privileges acquired by the State under any previous act.

"3. That the State's right to tax the interest acquired by the husband remained unrepealed and could be enforced."

Condemns Act.

Former Vice Chancellor John T. Bird, of Somerville, has addressed to James J. Bergen and the members of the committee of the New Jersey Bar Association an open letter condemning the committee's action requesting the 2,000 members of the New Jersey bar to support the proposed constitutional amendments.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 20, "The Call of Jeremiah." Text, Jer. i, 4-10.

The thrill of a new thought is one of the most delightful experiences possible to us. The first glimpse of a beautiful landscape awakens keen enjoyment, but a view of some truth never before realized and now bursting unexpectedly on the soul stirs us more deeply than a sunrise flooding wide miles of valley, hills and lakes with light as we look upon it from some towering height.

Higher still than the discovery of a new idea is the glow of a new impulse, the birth of a new ideal. When a soul catches sight of higher possibilities of attainment which it may hope to achieve, of nobler tasks it may strive to accomplish, of better being to which it may aspire, there is not only outlook given, but there are uplift of passionate desire and determinate setting of purpose to reach up toward the ideal revealed.

This opening of a new world is a real discovery which each soul must make for itself. No other eyes can see it for us, none others ever see it just as we do. It is our discovery. Others must explore for themselves and see their worlds for themselves. We see but our own eyes.

But there is more than this in it. Every such sight and uplift is also insight. It is a view into ourselves, our nature and possibilities. This is far the more significant fact in the case. The real vision is in us and not in the things we see. They are unconscious, inanimate. We discern the beauty, are conscious of it, are moved by it, animated and active. It thrills through us, throbs and glows into recognition. It lives for and in spirit and not merely in material form. This is real worth. Here is its measure of value. It becomes vital and personal. The soul *carries to itself and recognizes its ca*pacity, its power and its task. It comes to its own. It is born in Alleged Widow Baits a Her Line and Local Trolley Company Did the Biting.

THE SCHEMER WON $3,000

SO IT IS SAID—AND NOW A SUIT AGAINST COMPANY IS PENDING.

Man Killed by Trolley Car Last November—Woman Claiming to be Widow "Settles" for $3,000—Other Interesting Details.

Papers in one of the most complicated suits ever brought against the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Ry. (now Company) will probably be filed in a few days by Louis Amiet, of Kentucky, who seeks damages for the death for his brother in a trolley accident in this city last November. For almost a year the trolley company has been exhausting every means to locate the alleged fake widow of Amil Amiet, the victim, with whom the company made a settlement shortly after the accident. The woman took the money, signed the papers as Mrs. Amiet, and then disappeared. It later developed that she was not the wife of the dead man and that her acceptance of $3,000 offered by the company was but the carrying out of clever scheme to dupe the big corporation it is alleged.

The accident in which Amil Amiet was killed occurred on Front street between Elmwood place and Plainfield avenue on the evening of November 13, 1903. Amiet was a driver for John H. King, of Bound Brook, and was returning home from this city when a car crashed into the rear of the wagon. Amiet, who was asleep in his seat, fell out and sustained a fracture of the skull which caused almost instant death. The motorman and conductor of the car were arrested and held on a charge of gross negligence.

Amiet lived at Bound Brook where he employed a housekeeper. When the accident occurred someone telephoned to Amiet's home in Bound Brook and soon after a woman made her appearance in this city, claiming that she was the widow of the dead man. At the time it was not known that Amiet had any other relatives.

The next morning Mrs. Amiet appeared in the city court and pressed a complaint of manslaughter against the motorman. He was held in $250 bail to await the action of the next Grand Jury. Dr. J. H. Fritts, the trolley company's physician furnished the necessary bonds.

While the man was still out on bail the supposed Mrs. Amiet was approached with a proposition to settle the case for $3,000. At first she held out for a larger sum, it is said, but the company remaining firm finally accepted the offer, and signed the papers freeing the company from any further possibility of a suit from her.

Louis Amiet, a brother of the dead man, heard of the death of Amil, and communicated with friends in this city. Codington & Swackhamer were retained as lawyers by him and an investigation was started. The officers of the company were apprised of the fact that they had been duped by a woman who was not a relative of the dead man. They were interested, but they stoutly refused, it is said, to settle, claiming that the signature of the woman absolved them from further legal action.

It has since been learned that the woman's name was Minnie Marshall. No one in Bound Brook seems to know much about her, although it is thought she lived there. The last heard of her was in Montreal, Canada, but every effort to locate her there has failed.

Louis Amiet is a wealthy rancher, of Kentucky and he expects to contest the case until a settlement of some kind is reached. It is understood that a warrant is out for the arrest of the alleged fake widow on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

This is the story as given by one of the counsel interested in the case.

National Irrigation Congress In Session at Ogden.

"THE TIME HAS COME TO DO THINGS."

Policy of Workers In the West Is to Conserve the Flood Waters of the Great Rivers to Water the Country.

OGDEN, Utah, Sept. 16.—Twenty-six states and territories of the Union are represented at the eleventh national irrigation congress, which has begun a four days' session in the Ogden Tabernacle, this being the largest number ever represented since the beginning of the movement for the reclamation of the arid west.

Delegates were present even from New York, Pennsylvania and Vermont, while from the states of the western plains and mountains representatives of state and municipal governments and commercial organizations of all kinds came by hundreds.

An international aspect was lent to the proceedings by the presence of two representatives of foreign governments, Mexico and France, while the government at Washington was represented by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson.

At both the morning and afternoon sessions the building was packed with delegates, and the keynote of the present congress as expressed both by Governor Wells of Utah in his speech of welcome and President W. A. Clark in his response that "the time has come to do things" was heartily cheered.

The first resolution, introduced by Senator Burton of Kansas, favoring the conservation of the flood waters of the great rivers as a part of the scheme of irrigation of the west, was received with so much favor that there seems to be no doubt that such action will be overwhelmingly favored.

Other resolutions outlining a distinct plan of forest preservation are expected to be adopted before the session of the congress closes.

A brisk fight for the honor of entertaining the delegates to next year's convention is being made by El Paso, Tex.; Boise, Ida.; Reno, Nev., and Portland, Ore. Sentiment seems unanimous for the re-election of President W. A. Clark and the other officers.

The Storm In Florida.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 16.—Wire connection was made with Arcadia, in De Soto county, about forty miles farther south than Tampa. A special from that place says: "Reports are slowly coming in of damage done by the hurricane. No trains are running south of Solfo. The damage to the orange groves is very great. The loss to the county by damage to the bridges and roads will amount to $10,000. The roads are impassable, and the farmers are having difficulty in getting food supplies. Many houses were blown down, but the only loss of life is that of Hugh Morton, who was drowned at Wilder's sawmill."

He was captured after his horse had been shot from under him and his leg broken by bullets fired by the posse. He was brought here and placed in jail.

BULGARIA'S REPLY.

Government Casts Onus of Coming War on Turkey.

PRINCE FERDINAND AT THE CAPITAL

It Is Said That the First Three Divisions of the Army Have Been Called Out For Defense of Frontier.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 16.—A general insurrection in the vilayet of Salonika, east of the Vardar river, is announced to have begun. The region is divided into eight districts, each commanded by a Bulgarian officer. General Zontcheff, president of the Macedonian committee, is the commander in chief.

Replying to notes of the Turkish representatives here, in which it was alleged that the insurrection in Macedonia was the work of Bulgarian bands who had crossed the frontier, the Bulgarian government has replied, refuting the accusations, reviewing the history of the insurrection and claiming that the outbreak was the direct result of the existing form of government in Macedonia, which had forced the youth of the country to gradually organize the insurrection. Bulgaria also declined all responsibility for the events at Adrianople, which, it is claimed, are due to the persecution of the Bulgarian population. Finally Bulgaria stated that the Turkish government was proclaiming a situation filled with perils to their principality, and pointing out that there was danger of a catastrophe disastrous to both countries.

It is expected that a week will suffice to enable the ministry to judge of the extent to which its final appeal to the powers is likely to prove successful. Doubts are expressed in diplomatic circles whether the Bulgarian note will bring any decisive results, but there is every disposition to recognize the sincerity of the ministry's attitude and its complete justification for issuing such a document in view of the immense forces that Turkey is gathering in threatening close proximity to the Bulgarian frontier.

It is stated that the porte has protested to Austria against Austrian and Hungarian firms being allowed to furnish the Bulgarian government with cartridges at the present time.

More fighting is reported from the vilayet of Monastir. A large body of troops sent to the Pelister mountains to disperse the bands concealed there were attacked by the insurgents and suffered heavy losses from bombs. The Turks also lost many men in a fight near the monastery of Kamikia at Syorida.

It is announced that a detachment of Turkish troops which went to the Greek monastery of Bareshani, near Monastir, to seek a number of revolutionaries supposed to be hiding in the building, finding none there, set fire to the monastery and killed the servants and the women. At Konskigiavi, near Rosengrad, a body of Turkish infantry and cavalry, accompanied by a mountain battery, fought a three hours' engagement with a party of insurgents. The Turks had thirty killed and many wounded.

Prince Ferdinand has returned to the capital. Important steps are likely to be taken at this present critical juncture, now that Prince Ferdinand has returned, and a reply from the powers or some intimation from them is hourly expected in response to Bulgaria's note.

It is said that the first three divisions of the army, having their centers at Sofia, Philippopolis and Silvno, have been called out. In official quarters it is declared that it has been decided to summon to the colors the men of the first three divisions who retired from the army during the last three years. This will give a force of some 10,000 men, who will be chiefly employed in strengthening the troops along the frontier.

The revolutionary headquarters has received news of a terrible situation at Losengrad. The whole district is filled with Turkish and Albanian troops and Bashibazouks. Twelve villages have been burned, and over a hundred families have been massacred. Many of the women and girls captured have been sent to various harems. About 400 widows and orphans have arrived at the frontier village of Tekendje from Losengrad.

All the Bulgarian prisoners in the jail at Losengrad have been killed by Musulman prisoners, aided by the prison guards.

WARREN'S PASTOR GIVEN A RECEPTION

Congregation Welcome Home Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey From Trip Abroad.

F. H. ANDREWS' ADDRESS

MUSICAL PROGRAMME A FEATURE OF PLEASANT AFFAIR.

Pastor Talked of Incidents While Abroad — Edifice Decorated—Committee Having Charge of Arrangements.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey was welcomed home Thursday by the congregation of his church after his nine weeks' trip abroad. A reception was tendered him at Warren Chapel which, with music, addresses and good fellowship, made the homecoming a joyous event.

The rooms were decorated tastefully with blue and yellow bunting, symbolic colors of the Presbyterian Church. The platform was almost covered with flowers and in the center of the room, hung from the ceiling the words "Welcome Home." About 150 were present.

A musical programme was rendered. Mrs. Eugene Pierson sang and a recitation was given by Miss Helen Wooley. Edson C. Martis favored with vocal selections while Miss Ethel Gulberg entertained on the piano with selections. A vocal solo was rendered by Miss Bessie Matthews, of Newark and a duet was rendered by Mrs. Victor Christofferson and Mrs. Eugene Pierson.

On behalf of the congregation of the church, Superintendent of the Sunday-school F. H. Andrews, made a short address of welcome. He said that it was an occasion of that kind nine weeks ago when the pastor took leave of his people and now they re*joice in welcoming him back. Mr.* McKelvey gave a short talk to his people on his trip which proved to be unusually interesting. He told stories of his visits to Ireland, Scotland, England, Holland, Belgium and France in an interesting manner.

The committee in charge of the affair were Miss May Christofferson, Miss Dora Bennett, William Kenny and Samuel Taynor. The decoration committee was A. L. Drake, chairman; Miss Minnie McKain, Miss Jenny Everetts, Miss Mamie Kohler, Charles Bryan.

AMUSEMENTS.

In B. E. Forrester's noteworthy production of Theodore Kremer's new melodrama, "No Wedding Bells For Her," which comes to the Grand on Monday, there is a most touching and tender love story, or rather a double love story, each being equal with the other in sustained interest.

Over in Newark an exceptionally clever vaudeville show has been sched*uled for next week at Proctor's. Ghi*leti's pantomime and musical dogs will head the list. Others on the bill will be Delmore and Leo, America's greatest acrobats; Fields and Ward, conversationalists; Francesca Redding and Company, in "The Cattle Queen;" Nora Bayes, comedienne; Gus Williams, German monologuist, and fifteen others.

Ned Harrigan always had good "coon" characters in his earlier plays and the "coon" element is said to be particularly strong in "Under Cover," his new piece which Liebler & Co. will produce at the Murray Hill Theatre, New York, next Monday night, September 14. Joseph Sparks who has been playing Irish parts for the last eight or nine years, appears in this piece as a negro wench of the kind Tony Hart used to impersonate so successfully and Dan Collyer is one of those comical colored mokes Johnny Wild made familiar.

WOMAN LEAPS FOR HER LIFE

Two Severely Injured in a Blaze Caused by Dropping Match in Kerosene Oil.

ENVELOPED IN FLAMES

Little Girl's Heroic Rescue—Mrs. Marky Jumps From Second Story Window—Match Dropped in Oil Caused Trouble.

Two people were injured and an infant was saved from a horrible death by a seven-year-old girl last Friday at a fire at the home of Peter Marky, on Vine street. The building was damaged to considerable extent in the interior. Kerosene spilled from a can caught fire from a lighted match carelessly dropped. Rev. Dr. Edwin L. Earp, pastor of the Grace M. E. Church, was standing in front of his house and saw the flames leap out of the windows and he turned in an alarm as did John Dond.

Mrs. Hannah Hansen, seventy-five years old, dropped a lighted match in the oil which was pouring over the floor from the stove and in an instant she was enveloped in flames. Her screams brought Mrs. Peter Newmiller, a neighbor and she was rescued. Mrs. Peter Marky, who was on the second floor of the house, seeing her escape shut off by the flames on the stairway, jumped from the second story window and received a severe sprain of her left ankle. She was attended by Dr. Buchanan. The little seven-year-old daughter of Mrs. Marky, who was attending a four weeks old baby sister, picked it up in her arms and rushed from the house to the home of Mrs. Sophia H. Brose, near by. The baby was not injured.

The damage to the house will amount to about $1,000. The house is badly damaged in the kitchen and hallway. It is partly covered by insurance. Mr. Marky lost $40 in cash and some of his clothing. His furniture was insured. Mrs. Marky was badly burned.

SPECIAL SERVICE OF SWEDES

YOUNG PEOPLE TO ASSIST IN PROVIDING HOME FOR INDIGENT SAILORS.

Plans of the Swedish Pilgrim's Church—Pastor to Attend Conference In Massachusetts.

Under the auspices of the Young People's Society of the Swedish Pilgrim Church on West Sixth street, a successful special service and entertainment was held at the church last Thursday. The object of the service was to raise money for the aid of immigrant Scandinavian sailors and to found for them a home in Boston, Mass., and a collection amounting to more than $10 was taken for this purpose.

The evening's programme opened by congregational singing of special hymns and reading of Scripture passages by the pastor, Rev. L. T. Lindholm. Following this was a duet by the Misses Gerda Carlson and Judith Johnson, accompanied by guitar and organ. Mrs. Lindholm, wife of the pastor, sang a soprano solo, "The Holy City," and an appropriate reading was given by Miss Ida Johnson.

Following this part of the programme came the evening's address by Rev. L. T. Lindholm. He spoke at some length of the situation at the Sailor's Home in Boston, of the worthiness of the work of assistance; and stated that it was the desire of the Young People's Society to furnish several rooms at the Home. Mrs. Lindholm sang "My Father at the Helm" and the evening's programme was concluded by a reading by Miss Jennie Lind and singing by the congregation.

Rev. and Mrs. L. T. Lindholm left Monday to spend two weeks at Boston. During his absence Rev. E. Ulstergreen, of South Manchester, Conn., will have charge of the services at the Swedish Church. Rev. Mr. Lindholm will attend the Swedish conference of the Eastern States at Brockton, Mass., where he will read a paper on suggestions on a Thanksgiving sermon.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXVI PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1903. NO. 39.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well as Its Limitations as to Its Authorities."—Madison.

AMENDMENTS CARRIED HERE IN LIGHT VOTE

Only 289 Ballots Cast in the City and 118 in the Borough.

BUT SLIGHT INTEREST

LESS THAN TEN PER CENT. OF CITY'S VOTE CAST.

Greater Proportion in North Plainfield—Second District of Second Ward Result a Tie—In Other Districts Amendments Carried.

The vote on the proposed amendments to the Constitution was the smallest ever recorded in the city and in the borough as well, practically little interest being taken in the election. Some persons refused to go to the polls and vote, while many never gave the subject a moment's thought. It was hinted more than once that the election was arranged for the benefit of the lawyers and if they wanted the amendments adopted they could vote for them. As it was, some of the lawyers voted in the negative.

It is seldom that the election officers have had so little to do at an election. In not one of the districts of the city did the total vote exceed fifty and in the majority of cases it was far less than that. The First district of the Second ward polled the largest number of votes, 44, and in a few cases there were rejected ballots. In most of the wards the vote was for or against, but in some districts the voters selected certain amendments which they wanted or did not want adopted.

The vote by wards was this:

DR. VAN DE WATER'S POSITION

CLERGYMAN BACK TO FIGHT CHARGES AGAINST HIM.

Denies Charges Against Him in the Watt Divorce Proceedings.

Among the passengers returning from Europe on the Italian Royal Mail line steamer Sardegna yesterday was the Rev. Dr George R. Van De Water, rector of St. Andrew's Church, at 127th street and Fifth avenue, New York City, who is named as co-respondent by Commodore Archibald Watt in his divorce proceedings against his wife, Adele F. Watt. Mrs. Watt lives on Rockview avenue, North Plainfield, and has repeatedly refused to be interviewed on the subject.

Dr. Van De Water reiterated yesterday his emphatic denials of the charges against him and signified his intention of fighting the case to the bitter end. He stated that he did not intend to take advantage of a new amendment to the law giving a co-respondent in a divorce suit the right to appear. He intends to take advantage of nothing, merely to fight the case to the end.

When it became known last June that Dr. Van De Water had been named by Commodore Watt in his divorce suit the greatest surprise was manifested, particularly by members of St. Andrew's Church. From the first the members of his congregation have refused to believe these charges.

Dr. Van De Water is a chaplain of Columbia University and was formerly chaplain of the Seventy-first Regiment, with which he served in the Cuban campaign.

CHINESE FESTIVAL.

For Two Weeks Celestials Will Celebrate in Royal Fashion.

According to the Chinese calendar, Monday was the beginning of a festival known as the "Hot Yeut Sup Ung," or Middle August Moon Worship. Literally translated: "Yeut" is moon, and "Sup Ung" is ten-five, or fifteen.

At various laundries incense was burned and the local celestials bowed their heads and gave thanks.

For two weeks Chinamen will feast and rejoice because the moon still shines with favor upon them. Peculiar cakes appropriately named Yeut Beung, "moon cakes," will be eaten along with many specially prepared Chinese dishes. Chinamen will bow their heads in prayer before the moon.

RESULT OF SPECIAL ELECTION IN DOUBT

Returns Coming in Slowly From Many Rural Counties in the State.

LABORS' OPPOSITION TO IT

ESSEX AND MERCER COUNTIES PILE UP VOTE AGAINST.

Camden Favors Change as Does Cumberland and Lesser Counties—Official Count on Monday.

Nineteen votes on the constitutional amendments were recorded in New Market Tuesday, one of which was rejected because not properly made out. Of the remaining eighteen, were in favor of the amendments and the other vote was recorded in favor of all the amendments except Section IV of Article VI.

In Elizabeth 944 votes were cast of which 884 were in favor of and 308 against the changes.

Returns from the constitutional amendment election are incomplete at the hour of going to press, the various reports of the result being exceedingly conflicting. Mercer County, where the Trenton True American and the labor unions waged a war against the amendments, piled up a majority against their being tacked on the constitution. The labor unions throughout the State appear to have taken more or less of a hand in the fight. In Essex County it is reported that a majority of approximately 900 was polled against, although it is said that Newark favored the amendments by a slight majority.

Only about 10 per cent. of the total registered vote went to the polls. The count will be held at Trenton on Monday. In Mercer County, owing to organized labor taking a dislike to the amendments, almost one-third of the registered vote. The majority against the amendments there was about 2,000. It being their New Year's Day, the Jews throughout the State refrained from voting. Gloucester County gave a majority of 400 for the amendments, and Camden gave about 2,500 in favor. Warren will give about 400 against.

In Camden the vote was not more than 25 per cent. of the total, but four-fifths of it, it is estimated, is in favor of them. In Cumberland County there is an apparent majority of 300 in favor of them, and in Gloucester about 400 the same way.

The vote in the cities of Essex County was: Newark, 2,946 majority in favor; Orange, 138 majority against, and East Orange, 74 majority in favor.

NO MASONIC FAIR.

Anchor Lodge Opposes Idea and Jerusalem Likely to Take Same Stand.

Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., at its regular communication last night stamped its disapproval on a proposition advocated by members of the order here to hold a big fair in the near future. Jerusalem Lodge, No. 96, it is expected, will take action on the scheme at its next communication which will be held Tuesday evening. As a rule the Masons here are opposed to holding a public affair of this nature, and it is more than probable that the scheme will be dropped. No action has been taken by Jerusalem Chapter, No. 34, R. A. M., or by Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T.

Both wore white silk muslin trimmed with rare lace and carried pink carnations. The best man was Leonce Texier and the usher was Edward Klinsman, a brother of the bride. Mrs. Klinsman, the bride's mother, wore black point d'sprit over black taffeta.

The gift of the bride to her attendants were friendship hearts and stick pins and the groom's gift to the best man and usher were stickpins. The bride's parents presented her with large checks and their grandparents.

The wedding march was played by Miss Luzila Eiselle, of Newark. After the ceremony a reception was held during which the music was provided by Eugene O'Reilly. An elaborate wedding supper was served.

The house decorations were especially fine and were arranged by Mrs. George H. Smith, of Newark. WARREN'S ENDEAVOR MEETING.

Miss Sara Cuary Fails to Appear and Rev. Mr. McKelvey Speaks.

Through a misunderstanding Miss Sara Curry, matron of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, failed to be present as the Christian Endeavor Society meeting in Warren Chapel, last night. She and several children from the New York Day Nursery were to have taken part in the service. Miss Squires was in charge of the meeting and the opening exercises. Rev. J. O. McKelvey gave a practical talk touching mission work.

Caught a 'Possum.

Much excitement was caused in the borough a few days ago when a colored servant in the employ of E. L. Suffern, of Sycamore avenue, was seen climbing a tall tree in the back yard. When she returned to earth she exultantly held in her hand a large fat 'possum. Many had never before seen a 'possum and exhibited much curiosity over it. The colored miss entertained her friends, it is said, with a table d'hote dinner, the course of which consisted of 'possum.

CONTESTS FOR GOLF CUPS

WALTER PETERSON LIKELY WINNER OF HILLSIDE COMMITTEE CUP.

Winner of President's Cup at Park Still in Doubt—Morgan Townsend a Sure Victor.

Walter Peterson, who is one of the most active and interested members of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, and who is now tie with fifteen points for the Golf Committee cup, stands an excellent chance of winning this trophy. Olaf Sangstad, with whom he is tied, has given up golf playing for this season on account of a pressure of business duties, and counting him out Mr. Peterson now leads. H. Reeve Stockton comes next with fourteen points and as he is playing considerable this year it may be that he will give Mr. Peterson a lively run for first position.

At the Park Golf Club there are two competitions attracting much attention—one being the weekly competition for the President's cup and the other the Park Golf Club cup. T. U. Mrs. Westcott Back.

Mrs. Ella Westcott, remembered by many of our public and private amusements at the Hotel Brunswick at Asbury Park the past summer, was in the city today, arranging for her dancing classes at the Casino the coming season. The opening date will probably be Tuesday, Oct. 13. Mrs. Westcott is vice president of the National Association of Dancing Masters of America and designer of many innovations in the terpsichorean art.

Deserves Success.

We are glad to notice that Charles L. Moffett, of Plainfield, is again mentioned as a probable candidate for Assemblyman. He made an excellent run last year, leading his associates on the ticket by about 700 votes, and also made a fine showing in the year previous. If he receives the nomination this will be the lucky third trial, and he should achieve the success he deserves.—Rahway Democrat.

Officers Elected.

These young men have been selected to the various offices in the boy's department of the Y. M. C. A. for the coming season: President, Howard Freeman; vice president, Walter Caldwell; recording secretary, Marshall Ward. A meeting will be held tomorrow for the purpose of electing committees to serve for the season.

Attachment Issued.

Attachment was served on the property of Mrs. Irene J. Sumner, of Netherwood avenue, this morning, as the family was about to leave for Brooklyn. The petition for the attachment was made by Mrs. Caroline E. Spangenberg, represented by Hetfield & Hetfield. The case will be tried in Justice Nash's court.

WEALTHY MR MARX DEAD

FORMER PLAINFIELDER DIES IN NEW YORK HOME.

Amassed a Fortune in Restaurant Business—Funeral Today.

Felix Marx, a well-known restaurant keeper of New York City, who died Monday, was an old time resident of Plainfield. He lived here until within nine or ten years ago at the corner of East Front street and Netherwood avenue, going back and forth to New York every day. He was a resident of Plainfield for more than ten years.

In 1896, Mr. Marx lost his wife by death and this led him three years later to sell his estate and resume his residence in New York City. Shortly after he sold his property in this city, the house was burned to the ground.

Mr. Marx was a life-long friend of David Metzgar, of New York, who died within an hour after he had received the news of the death of Mr. Marx. The two came to America together fifty years ago and plodded side by side to amass a fortune. Marx opened a little lunch room in Church street in the early fifties and 25 years ago moved to Mercer street. The fame of the place known as the Felix Dining-room soon spread through the city. It was the first kosher restaurant in New York. Both Marx and Metzgar retired from business six years ago and both were millionaires.

Mr. Marx was seventy-eight years old. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ernestine Hyams; a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ernest Marx and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Loeb, all of New York City. His sons Jacob and Ernest are both dead, Ernest having passed away only two months ago. Ernest, as well as his father, was well-known in Plainfield and both were exceedingly popular with all who knew them.

Mr. Marx will be buried tomorrow in Cypress Hills Cemetery, by the side of his wife and his life-long friend, David Metzgar.

WOMEN'S FIGHT.

Mrs. Maiden and Mrs. Higging Have Bout to Finish and Former Appears in Court.

Because Mrs. Lucy Maiden's son struck Mrs. Catherine Higgins' grandson yesterday and, according to Mrs. Higgins, knocked him down, the women took up the fight on their own responsibility and had a bout to a finish to the disturbance of an entire neighborhood on West Third street and the damage of their own fair countenances. The disturbance became so general that Mrs. Maiden was arrested as the instigator of the fray and a formal complaint was lodged by Mrs. Higgins. Mrs. Maiden appeared before City Judge Runyon this morning but the case was adjourned until next Monday at 9 o'clock at the request of counsel. William G. DeMeza represents Mrs. Higgins and W. A. Coddington will conduct the defendant's cause.

AN AMERICAN DATTO.

Moros Bestowed Unique Honor on Capt. J. J. Pershing.

The Only White Man Ever So Distinguished by the Proud and Warlike Natives of Mindanao Island.

Capt. John J. Pershing, of the Fifteenth cavalry, has arrived in San Francisco from Manila and will go to Washington to report for duty as a member of the general staff of the army.

An captain of a the Fifteenth cavalry this stalwart young western soldier has been in command of a department in the island of Mindanao for several months and has done much by his tactful, diplomatic methods to bring about a better understanding between the refractory Moros and the United States government and army. Capt. Pershing has led his men in several sharp engagements with the bolo men, but he has accomplished far more toward establishing peace and good feeling in the island by diplomacy and statesmanship than he has by force of arms. By his tactful methods he subdued a powerful and apparently implacably hostile religious leader and that without firing a shot. By a bold dash he captured a fort which the Moros regarded as practically impregnable. In that charge he lost only three men. He constructed roads through all but impenetrable jungles and brought the remotest interior of the island into close communication with the coast.

So diplomatic has been the policy pursued by Capt. Pershing that the natives of the island of Mindanao have come to look upon him with great respect and reverence. Not long ago he was made a datto with the full Mohammedan ceremony. Referring to this interesting event the Manila Times of a few months ago said:

"Capt. Pershing, commander of the American forces at Lake Lanao, has been consecrated a datto by the law and rites of the Koran. This remarkable ceremony took place at Bayan after the diplomacy of Capt. Pershing had won the submission of that place. Pershing's consecration as a datto gives him a distinction never before enjoyed by an American and should add to his already great power among the Moro people.

CAPT. J. J. PERSHING.
(American Officer Who Is a Full-Fledged Datto.)

"Many dattos from other tribes were in attendance at the consecration and assisted in the ceremony. The compact of friendship was made over the Koran, Pershing being first consecrated as a Moro datto. The other dattos wore the full regalia of the office as chieftains of tribes, and the strange ceremony was conducted with all the splendrous rites of the Mohammedans, made even more picturesque in the midst of the semi-civilized tribes of Bayan."

Capt. Pershing is a native of Linn county, Missouri, and his boyhood was spent in the little town of Laclede in that county. It was from the congressional district of which Linn county then formed a part that he was appointed to West Point in the early 80's. In 1886 he was graduated from West Point and thereafter he served as second lieutenant in the Sixth cavalry and first lieutenant in the Tenth cavalry, taking part in the campaign against the Apaches and Navajoe in Arizona and New Mexico from 1886 to 1889 with Gen. Chaffee and under Gen. Miles in the campaign against the Sioux in 1890.

Meantime Capt. Pershing's parents had removed from Missouri to Lincoln, Neb., and when in 1891 the soldier was tendered the office of professor of military science at Nebraska state university he promptly accepted it, remaining there for four years. He at once became immensely popular with the students at the university and made his department one of the most popular and prominent in the institution. While he was at the university Capt. Pershing devoted his spare moments to study of the law and in 1895 he was admitted to the bar. Soon after the outbreak of the Spanish-American war Capt. Pershing went to the Philippines and his record there is now a matter of history.

Detectives lately entered Clinton prison, New York, as "convicts," on the trail of irregularities. They discovered that morphine is peddled among the prisoners, and sold at exorbitant prices. Also that lawyers addict largely to their incomes by this traffic.

Lantern Prevents Accidents.

An automatic signal lantern has been placed at street railway crossings in Lepsic which will avoid accidents at such points. It answers its purposes as well in the daytime as at night.

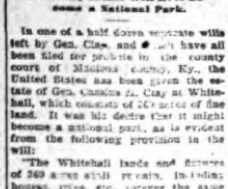
WHITEHALL AS PARK

Estate Willed to United States in Trust for Public.

Notes of Gen. Clay Will Contest Will and It Is Not Likely That Fine Kentucky Estate Will Ever Become a National Park.

In one of a half dozen separate wills left by Gen. Clay, and of which all have been filed for probate in the county court of Madison county, Ky., the United States has been given the estate of Gen. Cassius M. Clay at Whitehall, which consists of 10 acres of fine land. It was his desire that it might become a national park, as is evident from the following provision in the will:

"The Whitehall lands and fixtures of 240 acres still remain, including houses, trees, etc., known the same Intact—Great natural park on earth.



WHITEHALL, AS IT IS AT PRESENT.

It shall be in fee simple the property of the United States of America in trust for the inhabitants of this earth. It shall be so long under the care of my executors as may be deemed best by the federal government, and then be under their direction and support in the purposes of this legator."

In the following section he provided for the maintenance of the park by setting aside "my coal mines in Clay county, Ky., bought of Bill Bowlin, near Manchester, about 200 acres." He desired that they be controlled into a company and work to the end of supporting the park.

But it is very doubtful if the United States ever secures control over the estate, for the children of Gen. Clay have entered contest of the will and will maintain that their father was of unsound mind for several years before his death, embracing the period marked by his marriage to Dora Richardson, the 14-year-old girl from his kitchen, and beginning at the time that he shot a negro servant who disobeyed him.

On the other hand, friends of the old anti-slavery advocate say that if he was insane in the later years of his life he always was mad. It was a mad freak, they said, which made up his mind to talk against slavery to the southern planters after hearing William Lloyd Garrison lecture at Yale. He was in many fights and duels before he issued a challenge to the world to come and try to take him out of Whitehall.

He never attempted a more dangerous thing, however, than editing "The True American," an abolitionist paper, in Lexington about 60 years ago. This is the way he fortified himself for it, according to his own account:

"I selected for my office a brick building and lined the outside doors with sheet iron to prevent them being burned. I purchased two brass four-pounder cannon at Cincinnati and placed them, loaded with shot and nails, on a table breast high. I had bedding dooms, secured with a chain, which could open upon the mob and give play to my cannon. I furnished my office with Mexican lances and a limited number of guns. There were six or eight persons who stood ready to defend me. If defeated, they were to escape by a trap door in the roof, and I had placed a keg of powder, with a match, which I could set off and blow up the office and all my invaders; and this I should most certainly have done in case of the last extremity."

Whitehall, which has been willed to the public, is a large two and a half story building of brick and in a grove of beautiful evergreen trees. There are forty-two rooms, but only three or four of the rooms on the first floor are furnished. The main parlor and hall hold many relics of Gen. Clay's strenuous life. There are immense vases and gorgeous rugs, divans and chairs, all bought by Gen. Clay in St. Petersburg when he was minister to the court of St. James, and sent to his wife at Whitehall. There are also bowie knives and revolvers and guns of various descriptions that he used in the army and in his various fights and duels. Relic hunters from all parts of the country are already inquiring for the articles that are to be sold, and offered for sale the competition for them will be exceedingly keen. The house is just as it was when Gen. Clay died, and nothing may be done until the legal battle in the courts result in the final disposition of the estate. The mansion, although in good repair on the outside and well preserved within, is too large for a modern residence, and it is doubtful if it is ever used as a private residence.

THE AMBULANCE CAR

Useful New Feature in German Railway Equipment.

Wrecks Along Any Part of Government Lines Can Be Reached in 45 Minutes—Relief Trains at 77 Stations.

There may be more luxurious and faster trains in the United States, but Germany leads the American railways in one particular—a perfect ambulance system, by which quick relief can be afforded to the injured in disasters on the rail.

In a report submitted by the minister of public works it is shown that the organization of the ambulance service, established upon the recommendation of Emperor William on all German governmental railroad lines, has been completed. Relief trains are now in instant readiness at 77 stations, so situated that any place where a serious accident may occur can be reached by an ambulance train within 45 minutes. They possess the highest speed possible and have the right of way along every line.

The trains consist of a physician's car a wrecking car of the type that has been in use for many years, and coaches for the transportation of assistants and the accommodation of the wounded. The physicians' cars have only two axles and double doors at the front sides. They are equipped with a Westinghouse brake, steamheating apparatus and two gasometers, so that enough light may be secured and the car heated by gas, in case the engine is detached from the car. To facilitate the receiving of the stretchers the platform railings are hinged and a sort of stepladder is added.

The interior of the car is divided into a small compartment for the use of the physician and a larger one for the reception of the patients. The latter room can be divided by a curtain, so that male and female patients can be accommodated at the same time. There are large windows and a skylight of wire-glass in the physician's room, an operating table, an apparatus for the heating of water, a closet for bandages and instruments, a refrigerator and a large assortment of surgical instruments.

The folding and adjustable operating table has detachable cushions, and both table and cushion are covered with waterproof leather cloth. The water heater, a few seconds after the gas is lighted, furnishes a continuous stream of warm water. Distilled water is in the water box of the heater, in several cans and a special barrel containing 20 gallons.

In the patients' room there are two lower and two upper beds on every side, each bed consisting of a stretcher with a mattress and head rest, two woolen quilts with linen covers and linen sheets. In order that the patient may not raise himself, braided straps hang on the walls and from the ceiling of the car. In addition to the beds two chairs are in the car for those whose injuries are slight, so that at least ten patients can be accommodated in the physicians' car. The stretchers are made from maplewood, strengthened with handirons, turned at the ends into handles, so that they may also serve for putting the stretcher upon the frames in the car. The stretchers are provided with springs and rolls, so that the wounded will not even have to suffer by the vibration of the cars.

The physicians, officers and assistants of the ambulance trains must be ready for work at a moment's notice and it is the duty of a special officer to see that the cars and their equipments are always ready for use.

When an accident occurs the conductor of a train or another train man sends word to the nearest flagman, in whose booth there is a telephone. Arrows painted upon telegraph poles along the line indicate the location of the booths, which are marked with a T (telephone) from where the message may be sent to the next station. As soon as the character of the accident has been learned the physicians and assistants are called, fresh water secured and refreshments taken aboard for patients as well as for the crew. Warm clothing is taken along also. In the meantime the time table has been fixed so that the line is clear for the relief train, and if the accident is of a more serious character two or more are ordered from the next station. The arrangements are so perfect that the ambulances succeed in getting away in a short time.

Diphtheria Germs Live Long.

That diphtheria may live in packed clothing almost indefinitely is shown by an incident which occurred in an Ohio village. A child died of diphtheria and its mother packed its dresses and toys in a chest. The mother died 15 years afterward, and her daughter and granddaughter, who opened and handled the contents of the chest, were duly "exposed to all of diphtheria, although these had recently been

INVESTING IN MEXICO

Section of Republic Which Offers Capital Rich Returns.

The States Along the Gulf in the Extreme Southern Quarter of the Country Are Endowed with Fertile Soil.

If you are looking for a place to live cheaply and a quick way to make plenty of money, fold up your tent and follow the first birds to fly from the coming winter. Do not stop at lovely San Antonio, nor along the hills and valleys of central Mexico, but follow on till to the south of Vera Cruz, in the southern quarter of the great republic, you come to the states along the gulf.

Here you will find all that God has given to make man independent and sufficient unto himself.

A resident of this fertile country has but few clothes to buy, for it is too warm to wear any; but little food to purchase, for the most luscious fruits and the choicest vegetables grow rank on every side.

There is practically no expense connected with building a home, for material is going to waste and a few hours' work will construct as comfortable a home as you can find in the neighborhood. Surely the most critical can ask no more convenient spot.

A glowing tropic sun, copious rainfall, never a nipping frost or a blighting drought to blast the hopes and expectations of the planter.

On some of the coast counties the rainfall is so heavy at certain portions of the year that the water lilies may be found on the tops of the hills, and this is positively authentic.

The chief industry you will find consists in the raising of coffee, sugar, rubber and tropical fruits, particularly the finest oranges in the world.

Everything grows with but little care or attention, and all in great profusion, and of the most superior quality.

The labor question is in Mexico, as seemingly in every other country, the most vexatious problem of the day. It is really most difficult, and at times almost impossible, to find competent or incompetent hands to work on the plantations or haciendas.

The Mexicans, for the most part, will refuse absolutely to perform any kind of systematic labor, or, rather, they will not refuse, but promise most profoundly and then simply do as they please. A few hours' work and then a day's rest is the common accepted measure the more reliable; with the others, It is work an hour or two, borrow a few pennies and then rest and beg till driven by sheer necessity to go to work again.

Perhaps, though, theirs is the best philosophy; they have enough to eat, something to wear and a place to lay their heads—what is there more?

Of late years, since the railroads have push further south, gangs of Italians have been imported and worked in the fields. This has not proved successful, however, and such attempts will always fail as long as the méls are brought alone and the families left behind. There is some talk of Italian colonization, but whether that is practical or not remains to be seen.

Some idea of the fertility of the country may be gleaned through a glance at the prices received there for the choicest fruit in comparison to what we pay for much inferior goods.

Oranges, twice the size of our marketable article, go begging at four or five cents a dozen; bananas are grown for the shade the tree gives, and sell for a few cents a bunch; pineapples for three to five cents, and lemons for three for a penny. This, of course, is on the ground, and there is really no fixed price, as the natives ask what you will give before stating their price.

Do you see why, with a little money and a contented mind, a disregard for snakes and a love of the beautiful, a long, care-free life may be passed in the tropic zone of lovely Mexico; and more, a fortune growing independently in reach of your hand.

PARIS OF AMERICA

Mexico City Has Earned That Place and Title.

The Mexican Metropolis Declared to Be a Jewel Set in the Crown of the Sister Republic of the United States.

Mexico City has been called the Paris of America, and with good reason, surely.

Mexico City is a jewel set in the crown of our sister republic; it does not shine with a light reflected from the great metropolis upon our eastern shore, nor does it pale in close comparison. It gleams alone undimmed and with a radiance peculiarly its own.

Set upon a hood plateau, with the ever snow-crowned mountains standing as a sentinel, this lovely city commands as grand a view as is to be found in all the world. To the north a never-ending chain of verdure-hung mountains, while to the south the glowing tints and voluptous beauty of the deep valleys and tropic gardens lie dazzling in the golden sunlight.

The aristocracy of Mexico is found among the descendants of the pure Castillian Spanish and, with the flowing Mantilla and coffers of gold, have come the hidden dagger, the slow smile and treacherous hand of the Indian.

While you would miss the boulevard cafe of any Paris, you will find the mate behind gorgeous gilded pillars and heavy hangings. Here, if you wish, a fine lobster the waiter will bring a huge platterful of the crimson monsters that you may have your choice and decide which shall be prepared for your delectation.

A long drive, through overhanging branches of ancient trees, will bring you to the superb Tacubaya, the Monte Carlo of Mexico. Here all day and all night is the click of the wheel and the clashing of the dice. For the Mexican is an inveterate gambler, and everything is decided by the destiny of chance.

A most charming trip may be taken to the floating gardens by way of La Viga canal. Here you glide gently along, propelled by the long pole which your gondolier thrusts deftly against the bank or some neighboring craft. You meet long, shallow canoes loaded to the water's edge with great masses of flowers. Thousands of poppies, armsful of roses, orange blossoms that scent the air for rods on either side. It is a sight never to be forgotten.

During the morning you will find the streets and the shops crowded with gayly dressed shoppers, carriages blocking the streets in front of a fashionable church, while the flower market does a thriving business for cavalier or mantled lady.

Right in the center of the city lies the lovely Alameda, the queen of parks or plazas, with broad benches of velvet green, orange and magnolia trees spreading their fragrance over the promenades. Here are great fountains and magnificent statuary, while on each side run broad avenues of smooth asphalt, and shining clean.

One of these avenues passes between blocks of handsome buildings, until turning suddenly it widens to twice its width, and starting from that magnificent bronze statue of Charles IV., becomes one of the most famous drives in the world, the Paseo de la Reforma. This magnificent stretch of promenade is nearly three miles long, bordered on each side by fine statues of unforgotten heroes. Every once in a while it widens into an immense circle, in the midst of a large and splendid monument and statue.

This drive ends at the park and castle of Chapultepec, the pride of Maxmillian.

No place in the world is there a spot to compare with this princely domain. Viewed from the rock in the bath of Montezuma standing like guardians in a row are countless mammoth cypress trees, the growth of centuries, and above all, on the crown of a flower-wreathed, rocky eminence, is the fairy castle of Maximilian and his bride.

It would take pages to describe the objects of interest and beauty in this city of the Astecs. The government pawn shop, the grand old cathedral, second only to St. Peter's in Rome, Guadaloupe, the Mecca of all the faithful; the art galleries, the museums, all the hundred and one objects of interest and delight that unite in making this lovely city one of the finest, most interesting and most progressive of any of the places to be found in travel and research.

BITTER-ROT APPLES

Something About the Disease Which Destroys the Fruit.

Comes in July and August and in Some Cases Plays Wholesale Havoc in Orchards—How It May Be Fought.

"Ugh," says the man as he bites into his apple and as quickly spits out the bite, "that's bitter!" And so it is, for he has taken an apple which is infected with the bittor rot. With the coming of the new crop of apples to market, the unpleasant experience of the man who bit into the diseased part of the apple is quite a common one. But it is not as might be supposed a case of ordinary rot, due to bruise, but the bitter rot is caused by a fungus which grows in the ripening tissues of the fruit and induces decay.

The bitter rot appears in a apple orchard at different times during the months of July and August, the time of its first appearance varying with the climatic conditions during any particular season. The first spots usually develop on the apple fruits when they are nearly full grown. From that time on until the fruit is entirely ripened the disease is likely to occur with increasing severity.

Warm, sultry weather, particularly after a rain, forms the ideal condition for the development of the bitter rot. In cool, dry summers the bitter rot is usually present but sparingly. A short series of hot, wet days in August may bring about a sudden and very destructive attack. Nights with a heavy fall of dew alternating with hot days are usually followed by an extensive development of the disease. Numerous instances might be mentioned where the disease appeared in an orchard during the latter part of August, after a few hot days, destroying the whole crop in three days. A notable case of this kind occurred during the summer of 1900. Cold weather usually checks the disease and may stop it altogether.

The bitter rot fungus, like other species of the form genus Gloeosporium, has an almost world-wide distribution. In the United States it has been found in nearly all of the states east of and including Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. A careful search through the mycological literature available at the Missouri botanical garden has shown that under one name or another this fungus has been reported from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, North Carloina, South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Indian Territory and Texas. The states east of the Mississippi from which the fungus has not yet been reported are almost unexplored mycologically. It is extremely probable that it occurs in all states where the apple is being grown, even in the most northern latitudes.

The first signs of the bitter rot appear in the form of a very faint light brown discoloration under the skin of the apple. The spots are exceedingly small at first, and as they grow larger they appear circular in outline. The spots rapidly increases in size, becoming darker brown. When the spot is one-eighth of an inch in diameter the area appears distinctly sunken. The borders of these spots are usually very nearly circular and sharply defined.

The cankers found on apple trees in Illinois appear as blakened depressions on apple limbs of various sizes, from last year's fruit spurs to limbs three to four inches in diameter. Thus far the cankers have not been found on the main trunk.

Although the bitter rot has been so destructive to apple crops for 30 years or more, little if any headway has been made until recently toward combating it successfully. The disease may still be regarded as one of the most difficult ones to control, although it now seems probable that greater success ought to attend preventive measures. These may now be placed under three heads:

1. Removal of diseased fruits and mummies.
2. Removal of limb cankers.
3. Spraying with fungicides.

HISTORY OF PIUS X.

New Pope Is Highly Esteemed by Clergy and Laity.

Led a Very Quiet Life Until Elected Supreme Pontiff—Known as a "Liberal" and Patron of the Arts.

Giuseppe Sarto, who on becoming pope took the name of Pius X., was born 68 years ago at Riese, province of Venice, or, to be exact, on June 2, 1835. He went to school in his native place, and later studied at the college of Castelfranco, and at the Sacra Theologia, Rome. It was here that he was ordained a priest. Although then a very young man, he was given charge of the parish of Tombolo, and in 1867 was transferred to a larger parish.

It was not long before the bishop of Treviso recognized the merit of the young priest and nominated him canon in the cathedral, where he afterward became vicar-general. In 1884 he was made bishop of Mantua.

The ability of the prelate was quiel by made apparent, and he attained a wide reputation as a preacher. He was also known as a writer. In 1891 he was chosen patriarch of Venice, but he had caused the government some offense by a political act, and it was only with difficulty and after a long time that Sarto was really made patriarch. When he was finally given the patriarchate he was made a cardinal by Pope Leo XIII., at the consistory of June 12, 1893, receiving the title of St. Bernardo del Terma.

Sarto's life has been chiefly that of a parish priest, spent almost wholly in northern Italy. Venice alone, of all the important cities of Italy, has only patriarchal rank, while many smaller cities are seats of bishops and archbishops.

Sarto enjoyed great popularity in his diocese, and is honored by all for his purity, for the strict uprightness of his life, and for liberal ideas. He is a modest and agreeable man, highly cultivated, very kind-hearted, still strong and robust in spite of his 68 years. He has never taken great part in the political and public life of the church, but divided his time between study and good works.

Although most faithful in the holy see, he was presented to the king and queen of Italy, in Venice. He may be considered among the more liberal members of the Italian episcopate and sacred college. It is said that Leo XIII. always thought very highly of him, and sided with him on one occasion when Sarto disapproved of Rampolla's policy.

Maud Howe, daughter of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, who resided in Rome for many years, writing on "Who Will Be the Next Pope?" in the Outlook for the week dated August 1, says of Cardinal Sarto:

"He is one of the most popular of the cardinals, and is much beloved by the Venetians. He is a prudent, correct, well-balanced man. While never directly opposing the policy of Leo XIII., he is noted for his abstinence from all aggressive action, and his influence is always exerted to keep the peace between the opposing factions. When King Humbert went to Venice to meet the emperor of Germany, Cardinal Sarto announced his intention of making a state visit to the king. A hint was sent him from the vatican that his course might not be a wise one, and that he had best be absent from Venice at the time of the king's visit. The decision was left, however, with Sarto, who carried out his original plan, made his state visit to the king, and, it is said, mentioned the fact that the vatican had advised against it. Personally he is perhaps the most sympathetic of the papable cardinals. He has been many years carrying his 68 years lightly. Strong, modest, disliking the intrigues and the ceremonies of the papal court, he rarely comes to Rome, and is content to remain in his beloved Venice, the friend of the people and of the artists alike. For Italy his election would be fortunate; he has many well wishers in the Roman world, where, his friends hold, he is too little seen."

Sarto drew attention to himself by decisive reforms of doubtful authenticity and by other liberal acts. He has been distinguished as a patron of the arts. It was Sarto who launched Father Perosi, the Italian composer, on his career.

Early in April Pope Leo, in a conversation with Father Perosi, said, in speaking of Cardinal Sarto:

"Hold him very dear, Perosi, as in the future he will be able to do much for you. We firmly believe he will be our successor."

The studiousness and seriousness of Father Sarto were proverbial among his people. Even when he was a boy his rector said of him: "Sarto never was a child."

Sarto belonged to the ecclesiastical congregazione di [illegible] and received [illegible] and [illegible] relics.

CARE OF THE CHILD

How It Adds to Its Health and Comfort

THE two babies sat side by side on the nursery floor on a warm day in summer. Both were plump, sweet and bright for their ages, but close observation showed that while one child played contentedly with its toes the other soon began to wriggle and act as if it were very uncomfortable. These performances ended in a roar of such volume that the mother hastily snatched up the uncomfortable youngster, exclaiming in annoyance: "Oh, what a bad temper my little Peter has! How I wish he would sit quietly and play like your sweet little Marion!" Marion's mother smiled quietly. "Will you let me see how you have dressed your baby?" she said.

Examination revealed the fact that poor little Peter was first confined in a wide flannel band pinned very tightly. Then there was a knitted shirt over the arms and high in the neck. Then the heavy flannel pinning blanket was fastened on by means of another tight band about the upper part of the waist. In addition to this, the poor child had a flannel petticoat fastened with still another band, and over all there came the dress, very long and covered with heavy tucking and embroidery.

The contented baby, on the other hand, thanks to her sensible mother, was dressed in this wise. First she wore a band of raw silk, then a pinning blanket of fine flannel plainly made and attached to a waist of thin cambric, in order to have all, even of that light weight, depend from the shoulders. Then came the simplest of little dress slips, edged only with fine thread lace.

Indeed, the tendency now is to dress the child as lightly as possible. It is as bad for the child to be overdressed as it is for a grown person. The newest little flannel petticoat for a baby is made like a princess slip, the upper part being of cambric. It is without gathered fullness and fastens on the shoulder with two narrow straps, each having a buttonhole and a button. Thus whatever weight there is comes from the shoulders.

The young child is merely a little animal which must be allowed to sleep and eat as much as possible and be perfectly comfortable in order that it may have a chance to grow strong rapidly. The motion of having the baby for shoes and dressing it up in frills and ribbons is one that has entirely gone out of style, which is a good thing, as it was a most unnatural and silly idea.

The modern baby's day is about as follows: At 6 it awakes after a sound night's rest, due to regularity in the bedtime routine. It is given an early breakfast of milk and limewater and is then taken out by its nurse in the baby carriage. Until half past 9 it bakes the fresh morning air, and then it is brought home to have its regular breakfast of milk, in which some simple, easily digested cereal has been put, or, if the child is old enough, it can eat mush and milk. Then follows an hour's romp, and at 11 o'clock the bath, which forms perhaps the most important event of the day. First, standing on the bath rug, baby's little gums, by means of a tiny wad of medicated cotton, are washed with boracic acid diluted into a weak solution. The little nose and also the eyes are thus treated. Then the baby is sponged and soaped to its fat little stomach and back, and next it is popped into the lukewarm water or into its little tub to splash around happily for ten minutes. This part of the performance may be enlivened if toys of the floating variety are allowed in the water with the child. The bath then becomes an agreeable occasion and one to be looked forward to. After the bath comes a nap of two hours, and then the child's dinner, at which it may be given the yolk of a soft boiled egg or a little meat juice. Then it is tucked into its little carriage and lays out all the afternoon, until about 4 o'clock. In warm weather it may be given another bath at this hour. Next comes the supper of mush and milk, and then bed at about 7.

Under no circumstances should the routine of a child's life be interrupted or changed. It is regularity above all else which insures good health and good temper on the part of your baby and you should remember that.

FRILLS OF FASHION.

Birds on Early Autumn Millinery, Corselet Belts.

Birds are the most decorative form of early autumn head gear. They are used as trimmings in the most meaningless fashion, but they are a novelty and immensely smart.

These it certainly ought to be, for bedecorated and befrilled skirts. A useful dress of brown canvas seen recently was worn with a hat of brown tulle trimmed with pinkish yellow roses.

FOR OUT OF DOOR WEAR.

Norfolk Jackets—Skirts Match the Skirts In Color.

Sack coats are worn in town, but in the country, except for cycling, the short, tight fitting coat takes its place or the blouse caught in with a leather belt at the waist. Norfolk jackets also are being worn, so we may say that once again tailor made frocks are showing the figure. Even the neatly stitched bolero has a tendency to be tight fitting.

The new skirts are nearly all cut plain over the hips and all the fullness comes at the hem. Some are made with a separate kilted flounce put on invisibly under strappings of cloth or tweed. The old fashioned idea of a short skirt was a skimpy pattern most unbecoming to the average woman, giving her the appearance of being insufficiently clothed.

A blouse matching the skirt is much smarter than a difficult color. For instance, with a brown skirt what looks smarter than a brown taffeta or brown foulard waist? One can always add white muslin turnover collars and cuffs.

The picture shows an automobile suit in the new moleskin material, finished with bands of soft leather.

OLD LIBERTY BELL

Nation's Sacred Relic Claimed by Heirs of Bell Founder.

Trials Which Have Been the Bell Since It Became Famous—How the Prince of Wales Discovered It in a Dusty Attic.

Some one had declared that "with fame, in just proportion, envy grows." And it is equally true that with fame comes a multitude of perplexities and annoyances which would have been unknown had obscurity continued to cover with her sheltering cloak. Our own famous liberty bell is no exception to this experience. Had this bell never hung in the tower of Independence hall at Philadelphia, had it never pealed forth its loud message of liberty, and then burst with the joy of that message, its present tale of woe would not have been told.

The nation, secure in the possession of this cherished relic of the revolution, has been suddenly shocked by the claim of the heirs of one John Wittgank, the revolutionary bell founder, whom it is declared was never paid for the bell. Documents are said to be in existence which in some degree at least substantiate this contention. After over a century and a quarter, in which the bell has been allowed to remain in the undisputed possession of Philadelphia, these ambitious heirs, who hope to become sole owners and custodians of the precious relic, dig up from some dark and dusty corner, some parchments yellow with age, and disturb the peace and serenity of the old bell by proposing to take forcible possession.

Philadelphia may sleep sometimes—some people, generally the hard-pressed funny paragrapher, would insinuate that she sleeps most of the time—but she is thoroughly awake now that her claim to the liberty bell is called into question. City Solicitor Kinsey has donned his fighting clothes and declares that: "The liberty bell will not pass out of the possession of the city of Philadelphia, at least not without a fight which would do credit to even the revolutionary fathers."

But this disquieting claim against the bell is only one of its numerous troubles. The bell of late years has become quite a traveler, and has been toted from one section of the country to another, despite the opposition of a great many prominent Philadelphians. It is claimed that the dignity and sacredness of the relic should insure it a permanent abiding place in the Liberty Memorial hall at Philadelphia. A strong effort was made not long since to prevent the bell from going to Boston to lend its inspiring presence to the celebration of the anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill. But the bell went, and it has hardly had time to get comfortably settled down at home again before St. Louis is reaching out to secure it for her exposition.

If we could win our way into the inner confidences of the precious old bell, I wonder if we might not hear her sigh for the quiet and seclusion of the old attic of Independence hall, where she rested so many years, forgotten and alone. It was the prince of Wales, now king of England, who discovered the bell, and it was at his suggestion that the dust was scooped off her sides and her public career began. It was during the visit of the prince to this country many, many years ago. During his stay at Philadelphia he requested to be taken through Independence hall and shown the relics there treasured—the original copy of the Declaration of Independence (now at Washington), portraits of the various patriots, and many belongings of George Washington. "But where is the greatest relic of this important occasion?" inquired the prince, "the old liberty bell?" The official guide was unable to answer the question. He had never seen the bell, and did not think it had escaped the junk dealer. Finally an appeal was made for information to an old caretaker of the hall, who said he believed the bell was stored away "somewheres up in the loft." But the prince wanted to see the bell, and up into the loft he went, dragging the unwilling guide with him. After climbing crooked stairways and steep, dusty ladders, he saw revealed, through a veil of cobwebs, the tarnished relic which revealed to him at once "they have cracked it getting it up here," said the official guide. "No," said the prince; "it was cracked about 100 years ago, and deserves a better resting place than in an old lumber room." And the prince's words bore fruit, and with the recovery of the bell from the obscurity of the attic and the attaining of fame and honor, has come the multitude of her troubles. The nation will watch with breathless interest the legal contest for possession of the bell.

RICH PLACER MINES

Seward Peninsula, in Alaska, Giving Up Much Yellow Gold.

Region Where Thousands of Miners Are at Work with Pick, Shovel and Pan—Better Transportation Will Open Up Great Area.

The actual placer mining operations in Alaska during 1902, or at least the greater part, were carried on in the peninsula extending into the Behring sea, north of St. Michaels, which has been named the Seward peninsula. The one serious difficulty which hinders the development of this great and promising area is the lack of transportation. But it is through this section of Alaska that the proposed link of the all-rail route to Paris would extend, and when such transportation facilities are obtained the $5,500,000 output of last year will be increased many fold.

Because this little area is yielding at present nearly all the placer gold that is coming from Alaska another map has been prepared to show in detail the parts of the peninsula where thousands of miners are at work with pick, shovel and washing pan. The map here presented shows all the important locations in the peninsula where mining is in progress, and also the large area of placer grounds where it is believed there is plenty of pay dirt, though as yet only the most accessible mining districts are being developed.

Not long ago the beach at Nome, in the southwest corner of the peninsula, alone represented the mining industry in this district; but to-day mining is in progress on many of the streams and gulches in the interior of the peninsula, and though Nome is still the greatest producer, the other districts contribute a large amount of gold dust to the total output.

The large increase in the output of Ophir creek, a northern tributary of the Niukluk, is of special interest. Its production in 1902 was over $1,000,000.

This stream was one of the first on which gold was discovered in the Seward peninsula, and for several years was spasmodically worked; but it is only since the introduction of systematic methods of mining and extraction that Ophir creek has become one of the largest producers of the region.

These facts augur well for the future of the Seward peninsula placer fields. It is believed that other streams will have a history similar to that of Ophir creek.

In nearly every case thus far the first work is done along the channels of the stream. When these are worked out the prospectors turn their attention to the benches and terraces, which often yield good returns.

In some cases, however, the miners neglect thoroughly to prospect the terraces and benches, and they have also abandoned placers which, in the opinion of members of the geological survey, may still carry gold in paying quantities.

In Anvil creek last year the most important development was in the surface ocean gravels of the benches, which are found on both sides of the valley. This gave a new impetus to mining.

The high-bench gravels from 500 to 800 feet above the sea were discovered in 1900 and are still in process of development. Some of them have great depth and the extraction of the gold involves much labor.

The tundra, or coastal plain, p'aces back of Nome are still worked, but their development is not yet commensurate with their probable importance. It is believed that the gravels of this coastal plain carry many workable placers.

They are a few feet above and below sea level, are mined through shallow trenches, and operations have been hampered by lack of facilities for handling the surface water. When an economic method of mining these gravels in a large way has been devised handsome profits will certainly be made.

Everything points to the probability that the greatest placer mining interests of Alaska may, for years to come, be centered in the Seward peninsula; and it will not be surprising to hear at any time of most important developments in the regions shown on this map as gold producing, but in which little or no work has as yet been done.

Hardest Times Ended.

It is often easier to do a good thing than an easy one. An easy thing does not call for the gathering up of one's powers as a hard one does; and the easy thing is to let slip, where the hard one would be taken hold of with energy. It is the little things requiring attention day by day at one's office desk, or in one's home work, while the great demands on one's time are met manfully as they come. Many a person does best in an emergency. "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much," but it is not always true that he that is faithful in that which is much is faithful also in that which is least.—Sunday School Times.

of coatee over a white front, from which descended long tassels with panne ends, made like a gigantic mulberry in a light mauve tint. The violet color was repeated in small chiffon violets appliqued to the decolletage and to the angel sleeves. The satin belt was also of the same hue.

Many of the new toques turn up very abruptly on the left side and are simply trimmed with a bird and loops of velvet ribbon.

A most useful dress is one of serge, dark blue or dark red, both being equally attractive, with a plaited skirt bearing a plain yoke and a plain front. Gowns of greenish plaid are also considered ultra smart for fall wear.

The cut shows a plaid mountain suit with white vest and lapels.

DETAILS OF DRESS.

Accordion Plaited Skirts Still Popular—Chiffon Roses.

The accordion plaited skirts are really fascinating, and in the autumn they will be revived for evening wear, especially among girls. A good many in net voile and chiffon have been seen in various trousseaus, and the accordion plaited blouse, too, will have a revival of favor. It was always a smart mode and suited all slight women.

Many gowns are made of linon de soie incrusted with two or three different makes of lace in the form of medallions.

*Chiffon roses are still used as trim*mings, even on afternoon frocks. It is a lovely but perishable mode. The

WHAT IS MILKY WAY?

Interesting Chat with Astronomer on This Heavenly Wonder.

What Appears Like a Confused Mass of Starry Light Is Produced by Immense Numbers of Distinct and Glittering Stars.

The Milky Way, a "bow in the heavens" in monochrome, and permanent, is unfolded on the celestial vault as the most strange and most amazing of optical errors. Supposing that our retinas—an admirable instrument, the most sensitive organ with which God has gifted the body, but yet far from being perfect—supposing that it were improved to such a degree that the extremities of its nervous ramifications presented surfaces that were ten or a hundred times on a smaller scale to the rays of light; then the image of many small and very close stars would each find their own path of communication with the brain, there would no longer be a "confusion in the dispatch." It is true that the accumulation of luminous impressions which takes place now would not be produced, but, instead, all the small stars, down to a magnitude too feeble for our perception—say, to the 9th or 10th magnitude—would be seen individually in the sky. In such a case we should see on very clear nights a great crowding along a somewhat irregular curves—300,000 stars in the visible hemisphere; it would be like the great atlas of Argelander, the celebrated "Bonn Durchmusterung," spread out on the celestial vault. But we should see nothing of the "Milky Way"—except on a somewhat misty sky which might produce here and there some whitish spots and bands.

This word "Milky Way," the name given to the phenomenon which causes this grandiose optical error, gives rise to some rather curious confusions. It establishes a fundamental distinction between the clusters of stars whose constituents are sufficiently bright and sufficiently separated to be seen as stars and gatherings of stars which produce on our eye the sensation of "lacteal" light—although the two phenomena are identical in their nature; whilst the imperfection of our visual organ makes us class together from their appearances, but quite wrongly, gaseous nebulae and the Milky Way.

The visual organ is not equally good in all eyes, and this has two results: 1st. What is "Milky Way" for one man is not so for another. 2nd. What is called "Milky Way" in one quarter of the heavens is not called so in another quarter.

Those who are not accustomed to raise their eyes in the evening higher than the gas lamps in the street scarcely know the Milky Way at all, never having bestowed upon it more than a fleeting glance. They are amazed that any one succeeds in seeing in it more than a band, vaguely and uniformly luminous, and seen with difficulty.

In a very brilliant region of the Milky Way I have taken a surface measuring one per cent in declination and four minutes in right ascension. A single star is visible to the naked eye in this region. On a photographic plate by Prof. Max Wolf, of Heidelberg, I have observed and classified as carefully as possible all the stars included in it, drawn with their estimated magnitude; 1,760 are counted, classified as follows:

Estimated Mag.	Number of Stars.	Total light produced by each class.
8.1—8.5	6	252
8.6—9.0	6	324
9.1—9.5	17	1040
9.6—10.0	46	1656
10.1—10.5	81	1620
10.6—11.0	96	1512
11.1—11.5	136	1632
11.6—12.0	194	1746
12.1—12.5	304	1520
12.6—13.0	339	1356
13.1—13.5	329	823
13.6—14.0	95	237
Total	1760	14,918

These magnitudes are only estimated; they cannot be identical with Pickering's scale, for example, and the limits cannot be constant. But in any case it is clear that about half the total light (the share of each class of stars in the total light has been indicated in the last column of the table, the brightness of a star of the first-class having been taken as unity) is due to the magnitudes 9.6 to 11.5, or 9th to 12th, and that even large errors in the estimation do not sensibly modify this result; that neither the relatively bright telescopic stars (8th-9th mag.) nor the exceedingly feeble stars (13th-14th mag.) exercise any considerable influence in the production of the optical phenomenon of the Milky Way. A similar investigation in the region of the Milky Way much less brilliant leads to almost the same re-

The wisdom of selecting J. Herbert Case to fill a vacancy in the board of directors of the Plainfield Trust Company is unquestioned. Since the institution commenced business, Mr. Case has been a great factor in insuring the success and its present flourishing condition has been largely brought about by him as its secretary and treasurer.

The Plainfield woman who soberly announced her wedding to a already married man and then stayed off bigamy proceedings by coolly saying that she was only joking has a peculiar sense of humor. It recalls the proximistic declaration of Magistrate Crane, of New York, that he only believes one statement in a thousand made by a woman. Fortunately the character of women with which he comes in contact officially is a very small minority in this work.

Can anyone give a sensible reason for the practice of many Plainfielders doing their shopping in New York. Money earned here and spent out of town does Plainfield a positive injury. In detracts from the prosperity for it takes the money elsewhere. Excuses is sometimes made that local stores do not have such a line of goods from which to make a selection, which we think is an often exaggerated plea. Granting it to be so, however, when will the local stores be able to carry a greater stock if residents continue to purchase in New York. Whenever there is a demand, the shopkeeper is shrewd enough to supply it quickly.

The Newark minister who likened the average Christian voter to a balky horse standing in the way had some excuse for his contention that the better class of citizens stand and kick against vice but do nothing to correct political abuse. It is a fact that corruption would be largely minimized if the Christian voter would only perform his duty. Band together, attend the primary, and work with a mighty will for the nomination of fit men. Put some life in the campaign and take off your coat and get down to hard work on election day. That's the way the practical politician does the trick, except he sees the long green when needed but this feature would be largely eliminated if the Christian politician kept careful watch.

A vote for the amendments means that constitutional revision is a long way off, but use your own judgment.

BACHELORS DEFEATED BENEDICTS AT GOLF

Single Men Vanquish Married Men on the Park Golf Club Course.

HILLSIDE CLUB PLAY

FIRST HONORS TO SHOEMAKER IN COMMITTEE CUP CONTEST.

Nelson A. Miller Captures First Honors at the Park Club for the President's Cup, and Ray B. Carroll for Club Cup.

In addition to the weekly play for the President's and Park Golf Club cups at the Park Golf Club, on Saturday, there was a team match between the Bachelors and Benedicts. The single men won out by the large score of 14 to 1. The match was interesting throughout, for the victors, although the married men did not relish the defeat.

In the play for the President's cup Nelson A. Miller won first honors, Ray B. Carroll second and S. St. John McCutchen third, and for the Park Golf Club cup, scratch play, Ray B. Carroll won first, S. St. John Mc Cutchen second and Charles A. Reed third honors. These scores do not change the standing for the two cups very much, although the point-winners move up a peg.

These are the scores for this two cups:

Nelson A. Miller, 107, 34—68; Ray B. Carroll, 93, 9—84; S. St. John Mc Cutchen, 99, 14—85; Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, 105, 19—86; A. W. Anderson, 108, 71—86; Charles A. Reed, 100, 13—87; Charles B. Morse, 101, 12—89; Leon R. Thurlow, 10 6, 15—91; George T. Rogers, 115, 20—95; Samuel Townsend, 110, 15—96; Rev. J. O. McKelvey, 111, 15—96.

This is the summary of the team match:

Bachelors—Ray B. Carroll, 6; G. W. Faber, 2; Leon R. Thurlow, 2; Charles B. Morse, 4; Frank Rogers, 0. Total, 14.

Benedicts—Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, 0; S. St. John McCutchen, 0; Rev. J. O. McKelvey, 0; Samuel Townsend, 0; W. L. Murray, 1. Total, 1.

Owing to the fact that a number of the regular players went to Harbor Hill on Saturday to take part in a team match, there were not a great many contestants on the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club course to post their scores for the Golf Committee cup, weekly competition. E. R. Shoemaker won first honors with a net score of 74, while E. P. Goodwin finished second with a score of 75. The remaining point was divided between H. D. Hibbard, George A. Chapman and H. F. Fox each making a score of 81. The course was in superb condition, permitting the best of play.

These are the scores posted for the cup:

E. B. Shoemaker, 94, 20—74; E. P. Goodwin, 93, 18—75; H. D. Hibbard, 88, 7—81; George A. Chapman, 99, 18—81; H. F. Fox, 99, 18—81; C. B. Morgan, 93, 12—83; Charles A. Stover, 100, 15—85.

HELD FOR HEINOUS OFFENSE

SCOTCH PLAINS BLACKSMITH ACCUSED BY CHILDREN.

Justice Clark Releases the Prisoner When $500 Bail is Furnished—Awaits Grand Jury's Action.

Edward Gotlick, who conducts a small blacksmith shop in Scotch Plains, was arraigned before Justice Clark Sunday morning, charged with criminal assault upon his nine-year-old niece, Clara, daughter of Louis Funck, of Graceland. The complaint was preferred by the father. Gotlick, by his own admission, proved himself no fit man to be at large. After pleading not guilty to the charge he admitted that the little one's story as told, was practically correct.

Mr. and Mrs. Funck spent Saturday evening at Galvin's Park, leaving the children with their uncle, who had been making his home with them for some time. While the parents were gone, Gotlick committed the offense which may land him behind the bars at Trenton. When the parents returned the little one told them of the assault in her childish way. The father decided to make a charge against his brother-in-law. Gotlick was held in $500 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. During the afternoon a Westfield man furnished bail and the prisoner was released.

BIG RALLY DAY AT TRINITY

ROLL-CALL AT REFORMED CHURCH'S SUNDAY-SCHOOL SHOWS 419 THERE.

Rev. Dr. Edwin L. Earp Makes An Address—Special Music a Feature.

After the customary vacation the pupils of Trinity Reformed Sunday-school flocked back to their Bible lessons Sunday afternoon, four hundred and nineteen strong. This is said to be the largest attendance at any one regular session of the school since it was founded. The Rally Day celebration at that church, and with special song service and an address by Rev. Dr. Edwin L. Earp, pastor of the Grace M. E. Church, marked the commencement of school work.

The choir of the church rendered several special selections and Miss Florence Bennett, late of England, sang two solos. The roll call was an interesting feature of the afternoon. Secretary Elias Bird read off the names of each class, five of which responded, "all present." These were the classes of Mrs. Virginia Chickering, Mrs. Frank Woodruff, Miss May Randolph, Miss Grace Berg and E. F. Sheppard.

The address by Rev. Dr. Earp was especially helpful to the pupils. Taking the meaning of the word "rally" as found in the dictionary, the pastor dwelt on the definition "uniting for strength." The speaker said that rally day meant the reorganizing of the Sunday-school for another year's work which meant spiritual strength for the pupils and for the church. The primary department sang a children's selection, entitled, "The Shepherd's Song." The opening prayer was made by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, have returned from their summer outing.

KODOL Digests What You Eat

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

SCOTCH PLAINS WON; BUT ONE RUN SCORED

Great Exhibition of Ball in Game Between Suburbanites and St. Mary's.

A PITCHER'S BATTLE

MAN IN THE BOX FOR THE VISITORS FINALLY CONQUERED.

Only Two Errors Made by Each Team—Much Hard Work Fanning the Air—Few Hits Made—Some Clever Fielding.

In a pitcher's battle on Hops Common Saturday afternoon, the St. Mary's team was defeated by the Scotch Plains nine, the score being 4 to 1 in the latter's favor. It was the final game in a series of three. Davis, in the box for the visitors, and Hughes, occupying a similar position for the home team, fought it out, the Scotch Plains man carrying off the honors. St. Mary's could only make six scattering hits and Davis force eight of them to cut holes in the air. Hughes was touched up for a total of en hits, and he made four of the visitors pound the air.

The support back of both pitchers would put some of the league teams to shame, only two errors being made by each team, one of these by Davis in the home team's first half, was the means of giving them their one solitary run. Gauvan bit along first base line, "Lefty" in fielding the ball made an error that landed the runner safe at first. Hartman, who had been presented with a free pass, went to second on error. Butler lined safe hit in left field which advanced both runners. Lamar came up and "Lefty" for some reason could not find the plate, and the batter walked, forcing in Hartman. One of the pretty features of the game was Mr. Cullin's unpartial umpiring, not a kick being made by either team. Following is the summary:

"WARRY" GOES TO PIECES

UNTIL NEXT TO LAST INNING ALIS IN FINE FETTLE.

Big Crowd Cheers Rival Pitchers on Crescent Oval—The Story by Innings of a Fine Exhibition of Baseball.

It was a heartrending game of baseball between Alis and Westfield on Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, and the one thousand spectators left the grounds more fully impressed than ever of the uncertainty of the National game. After shutting the Westfield team out for seven innings and not giving them a ghost of a show to score, "Warry" MacLaughlin went completely to pieces and allowed his opponents to score ten runs, some of which he forced over the plate by giving the batsmen free passes. It was a bitter pill for the home crowd to swallow, for up to the eighth inning every Alis man was playing gilt-edged ball and the Westfielders were at their mercy. Honors seemed evenly divided between MacLaughlin and "Red" Waller, who pitched for Westfield, up to that fatal inning. In fact "Warry" had the advantage.

Armbruster, serving as a backstop for "Warry," was in fine form, although a trifle weak at the bat. Richardson held down first bag in his old time form, while Cooney, a snappy little player, covered second to perfection. Gastmeyer filled short stop position faultlessly, while Noyes, from the New London team, held down third base and accepted every chance and made some difficult stops. In the field, Snow, from the University of Michigan, played a brilliant game in left garden, while Freidburg, of the Equitable team, covered centre to the satisfaction of all. Both he and Snow had all of the flies. Banes was in right field, but he had little to do. His catcher did his best to hold him down in the eighth inning, but "Warry" was up a mile.

The game opened with Westfield at the bat. Smithson, the first batter up, went out on a ball thrown from MacLaughlin to Richardson, and Pastor followed suit, making the second out. Soffel struck out, retiring the side. In the first inning for Alis Cooney struck out, Armbruster got a free pass and on Snow's hit to Jones, a double play was made, Armbruster being thrown out at second and Snow at first.

The second inning opened with Mallen at the bat. He flied out to Gastmeyer. Rotchford made a two base hit, Carey went out on a fly to Gastmeyer, Jones got a free pass, and Burke was thrown out at first by Noyes, leaving Rotchford on third base. In the last half of the inning Richardson was thrown out at first base by Jones, Noyes was hit by a ball and reached first. Friedburg got to first on an error of Waller, and Barnes and Gastmeyer, the next men up, struck out, leaving Noyes and Friedburg on bases.

Waller made the first out in the opening of the third inning, being thrown out at first by Noyes, and Smithson went out the same way. Pastor flied out to Snow. In this inning Alis made the one lone run. MacLaughlin made a three base hit. Cooney flied out to Mallen and also Armbruster struck out, Snow made the crowd yell when he hit for two bases, bringing MacLaughlin home. The inning was closed when Richardson went out from Smithson to Rotchford.

The fourth inning was a short one. Soffel went out from Noyes to Richardson, Mallen struck out and Rotchford went out on a fly to Snow. For Alis, Snow went out on a fly to Smithson, Friedburg made a two base hit, but Barnes went out on a fly to Jones and Friedburg was caught at second, retiring the side.

Neither side scored in the fifth inning. Carey flied out to Snow, and Jones flied out to Noyes, while Burke struck out. In the other half Gastmeyer was thrown out at first by Smithson, MacLaughlin and Cooney struck out.

In the sixth inning, Waller reached first on a hard hit which Richardson could not field, Smithson was thrown out at first by Cooney. Pastor got a pass and Soffel flied out to Friedburg, while Waller was caught trying to steal third by Armbruster who threw the ball to Noyes. Armbruster opened the last half by getting his base on balls, Snow sacrificed, being thrown out at first by Waller, Richardson flied out to Carey and Noyes was thrown out at first by Smithson.

Again in the seventh there were no runs. Mallen flied out to Friedburg, Rotchford made a single, but was thrown out a second on a ball hit to Gastmeyer and thrown to Cooney, Jones flied out to Snow. For Alis Friedburg struck out, Barnes was thrown out at first by Jones and Gastmeyer was thrown out at first by Smithson.

Here is where Westfield brought terror to the hearts of the home crowd, when in the opening of the eighth, they scored ten runs. Burke got a free pass, Waller flied out to Noyes, Smithson hit to right field, Pastor got a fielder's choice and Burke scored. Soffel struck out, Mallen and Rotchford were given their base, forcing Smithson home, Carey and Jones hit to centre and left field and Pastor, Mallen and Rotchford scored, Burke was hit by a ball, Waller got a free pass, forcing Carey in, Smithson hit to centre field, scoring Jones and Burke and Pastor's hit scored Waller and Smithson and Soffel struck out. The damage was done and the snap was taken out of the game.

In the last half of the inning Alis could do nothing. MacLaughlin was thrown out at first by Waller, Cooney flied out to Burke and Armbruster struck out.

Westfield could not score in the first half of the ninth. Mallen flied out to Gastmeyer, Rotchford flied out to Snow and Carey struck out. Neither could Alis redeem themselves, Snow flied out to Pastor, Richardson reached first on a single. Noyes followed with an infield hit and a double play retired the side, Richardson being put out at second and Noyes at first.

VIGILANT MOSE AT WORK

PATROLMAN POUNCES DOWN ON CRAP SHOOTERS WHO ESCAPE.

One of the Alleged Evil-Doers Was Caught in the Drag-Net—Final Chapter to be a Feature.

Patrolman Moses Quass and a colored man named Austin Hamilton ambushed four crap shooters Sunday afternoon in the rear of the Babcock building. Hamilton eagerly volunteered his assistance in apprehending the evil doers and the two sleuths stationed themselves at either approach to the scene of action. Quass stealthily crept towards his prey with the intention of suprising them in the act, made a sudden onslaught and caught one of the culprits by the shoulder. The other two made a dash towards the other end of the alley-way where was stationed the faithful Hamilton and both butted into the negro at one man. The latter heroically clung on until several well-directed and forceful kicks were deposited on his shin-bones.

The crap shooters made their escape into North Plainfield. Joseph Gjettleson and a young man named Gammon, will report with him in the city court tomorrow morning for a review of the case.

VICTIM'S FATHER SUES.

Joseph Walls, Sr., Retains Counsel to Sue the Electric Light Company.

Joseph Walls, Sr., of Essex street, has retained counsel to bring an action against the Plainfield Electric Light Company for damages resulting in the death of his son, Joseph Walls, Jr., last Thursday night. It will be remembered that young Walls was on his way home in company with several companions. At the corner of Spooner avenue and Essex street, he found a live electric light wire hanging in a tree. It is said that he tried to remove the wire from its dangerous position, when he received such a shock that his death resulted within a half hour afterward. Craig A. Marsh represents Mr. Walls.

HOPES FOR NEW HIGH SCHOOL ARE CRUSHED

Plans for $125,000 Improvement Rendered a Nullity by Court's Decision.

ACT UNCONSTITUTIONAL

THE COURT OF ERRORS AND APPEALS KNOCKS OUT M'KEE LAW.

Plainfield Board of Education Will Have to Await Enactment of Another Law—What Corporation Counsel Marsh Says.

The Court of Errors and Appeals has declared the McKee school law unconstitutional, and the decision defeats for the present the effort of the Board of Education in its plans for the erection of a new High School at a cost of $125,000. The ruling upsets the general school law of New Jersey and compels a recourse to the laws that were in effect before any attempt was made to compress the school acts of the State into one general statute. The decision is a most unfortunate one for Plainfield. A very prosperity, corner of Ninth street and Arlington avenue, formerly the Seventh-Day Baptist cemetery, has been purchased as the site for the High School and the necessary school bonds issued and made ready for delivery. These bonds were purchased by Ladenburg, Thalman & Company, of New York, at a good figure and City Treasurer W. F. Arnold was waiting for the time of delivery.

The McKee school law sought to uniform and codify the many school laws of the State and put them under one general law, and its provisions were intended to apply to cities, boroughs and townships as before under the old laws, the difference being that in this case they harmonized, where before they conflict to some extent. It is held the act is unconstitutional in that is special legislation, certain districts having been excepted from its provisions.

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh in speaking of the decision today, said that he could not talk intelligently on the subject until he had had an opportunity of reading the opinion of the court which will be filed within a few days by Justice Pitney, but, he said, that in all probability Plainfield would have to go all over the work again of seeking such legislation as would give it the proper authority to erect a new High School. Several schools during the past few years have been unable to borrow money on account of the doubt surrounding their authority to do so under the McKee law.

GEORGE MARSH SETTLES WITH HIS SON-IN-LAW

Clifford Schorb Accepts $200 to End a Suit for $10,000 Damages.

HIS WIFE KIDNAPPED?

CHAPTER IN A ROMANTIC ELOPMENT STORY.

Claimed Father-in-Law Unlawfully Detained His Child-Wife—Episode at a Saratoga Hotel—Girl's Parents Unrelenting.

Another chapter has been added to the romantic courtship and marriage of Clifford Schorb and Miss Ethel Marsh, whose wedding occurred on June 9, after a carriage drive to Metuchen. The wedding has been attended with many sensational features and Monday another appeared. After bringing suit against his father-in-law for $10,000 for eloping his wife away from him and endeavoring to alienate her affections, a settlement was affected Monday for $200.

Clifford Schorb is the son of a liveryman in North Plainfield and Miss Ethel Marsh is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Marsh, of Scotch Plains, who are quite wealthy. It is alleged that there was parental objection on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Marsh against their daughter marrying young Schorb. A few weeks before her eighteenth birthday young Schorb called at his fiancee's house with a horse and carriage and they went for a drive. Young Schorb proposed and was accepted, while dashing through the country behind a fast trotter. They stopped at the home of Rev. Dr. Fenton, rector of the Episcopal Church at Metuchen and were married. Then they returned to their respective homes and kept the marriage a secret for several days.

Finally the bride announced the wedding to her parents. They strenuously objected to the match and threatened to take steps to have the marriage annulled, charging that Mrs. Schorb was married before she was of the required age.

It was but a few weeks ere the bride would be eighteen years old and realizing this the devoted husband, not to be foiled by parental objection, contrived to bring her to his home. She eluded her parents' vigilence in trying to keep her at Scotch Plains, and went to the home of her father-in-law on Somerset street. Under a pretence of forgiving her Mr. and Mrs. Marsh induced Mrs. Schorb to return to their home. While she was there, it is said, she was forcibly detained and spirited to Saratoga.

Young Schorb was unable to locate his wife. Realizing that some trick had been played upon her he went to the home of his parents in law and demanded to know her whereabouts. They refused to divulge the secret but love, not to be outwitted, found the way.

In a small hotel at Saratoga Mrs. Schorb languished for several days. At last a friend came to her assistance. A farmer visited her and to him she told her story. The farmer's heart was touched and he promised to help her. She wrote a letter to her husband's lawyer, Isaac Runyon, of this city, telling him of her whereabouts and saying that if Clifford wanted to have her return he should come at once. It was midnight but the young husband started for his wife. On the train he read the letter delivered by his lawyer. It contained a passionate appeal for him to come to her side. In the missive it was related that Mrs. Marsh, her mother, who had been there with her as her guardian, had that day gone to Scotch Plains Schorb arrived at the hotel just before day break and, with the aid of the farmer, smuggled his wife from the house, down the dark and narrow back stairs to the waiting farm wagon below. A wild dash through rough uneven country roads for the railway station was made, arriving there just in time to catch the early morning train for New York. On the way there they met Mrs. Marsh going back to Saratoga to take her daughter to Canada, it is said, where she would be out of the way of her husband.

Mrs. Schorb has since been at the home of her husband, where, like the old romantic story, she has been living happily. The suit would have been brought for trial at this term of the court at Elizabeth but through Mr. Gilhooley, of Elizabeth, the counsel for Mrs. Schorb's parents and Isaac Runyon, the counsel for Schorb, the case has been settled for $200.

EDITORIAL OPINIONS ON PLAINFIELD BOLT

Expressions of the State Press Regarding Wisdom of Local Republicans Action.

CHASING RAIN-BOWS?

BOLTERS TOO HIDEBOUND TO CARRY OUT THREAT, SAYS ONE.

Mercly Keane Pawns Says Another—Wonderful Discovery Regarding Annexation Scheme.

May Be In the Wrong.

The Plainfield Republicans now threaten Union County with the same mutiny that the North Plainfield Republicans practiced upon Somerset County last year. Because they could not control the action of the county convention they refuse to stand by its nominees. And it never seems to have occurred to these Plainfielders that they should not have everything their own way, and that they might occasionally be in the wrong themselves. —Somerset Unionist Gazette, (Rep.)

Representing Whole County.

The fifteen Plainfield delegates who bolted the Union County convention because their candidate for Assembly was not named, have little excuse for their action. A Plainfield man was nominated for assemblyman, and while he was not the one chosen by the majority of the Plainfield delegates, it should be borne in mind that he was not to represent Plainfield alone, but the whole county, and that being the case the county's choice should have been honored. There is no good reason for abiding by the lines of the old assembly districts except that of political policy. In wiping out the assembly districts ten years ago the Supreme Court showed emphatically that assemblymen represent entire counties. — New Brunswick Home News, (Ind. Rep.)

Kean's Pawns.

If there is any who doubt that Senator Kean's path to a re-election is not beset with serious obstacles, and that he realizes the fact all too well, the proceedings of the Republican county convention ought to have an enlightening effect upon them.

As between Buckle and Kirk he probably cared not a whit which one would go to the Legislature, only that he wants to be sure that one or the other will vote for him next year if they should be fortunate enough to be in the Legislature again, subject, of course, to the will of the voters and custom of the G. O. P. Of Kirk he is certain that he will vote for him, but of Buckle he knows that the chances are that he would line up where Fowler dictates. Therefore, he would take no risk on Buckle, even at the expense of disrupting his own party.

It looks as though Senator Kean had over-reached himself, however, and that his candidates for Assembly will be subject to a stinging defeat by the Democratic candidates to be named short'y, for whom the bolting Republicans declare calmly and intensely, they will work and vote.—Elizabeth Evening Times, (Dem.)

Too Hidebound.

The editor of the Summit Record does not share with his brethren of the Democratic press the belief that the Democrats are to be benefited by the bolt of a few delegates from the recent Republican convention. He says: "From now until Election Day we may expect to be regaled with all sorts of fanciful tales about the advantages that are to accrue to the Democratic candidates for Assembly row developed in the Republican convention at Elizabeth on Thursday. Stories of all the Republicans in Plainfield who attend to vote against Kirk will be told and retold until no doubt many will be convinced of their truth and accuracy. And then on Election Day—well, the hidebound partisans of the city of Plainfield will go to the polls and cast their ballots for the Republican candidates without a scratch or mark. Democrats who hope to gain any advantage from a Republican faction fight in Union County are chasing rainbows, of necessity getting but severe locations. The average Republican in this county and particularly in Plainfield believes that the most consummate rogue in that party is more preferable for any office to the most able and conscientious Democrat ever named as a candidate. Union has became a hot-bed of petty, intolerant partisanship and faction squabbles in Republican circles are forgotten on election day.

Last year we heard more lurid threats of the intentions of the Fowler gang in Plainfield with respect to candidacy of Senator Cross that even those blowhards were accustomed to but on election day they promptly turned in and gave him a majority of 683. The only feature of Thursday's row for which Democrats have any reason to be grateful is the fact that the gang backed by Fowler received such a complete turning down. Neither Union County nor the State has ever had a more petty, unscrupulous and worthless crew than that which Fowler has gathered in his political machine and it requires neither love nor respect for the Kean faction to regard its success with pleasure.—Summit Record, (Dem.)

LACKAWANNA ROAD TO ENTER THE CITY?

Report Has It That Road Will Build Line Through Plainfield.

TO MAKE COMPETITION

AFTER CENTRAL'S PASSENNER AND FREIGHT TRAFFIC.

Said That Line Will Be Run From Millburn to Springfield, 'Plains, Plainfield and Bound Brook.

Representatives of the Lackawanna Railroad are quietly securing consents and rights of way for what is believed to be a new line to this city, by which the company hopes to invade the territory heretofore monopolized by the New Jersey Central Railroad. The Lackawanna people apparently not only want to capture the passenger traffic, but they are after the freight business of the Central as well. From indications the new line will branch off at Millburn, run to Springfield, to Scotch Plains, and then to Plainfield. Hampton Junction, Bound Brook and Somerville will be on the line.

MORE ASSEMBLY NOMINEES

CHARLES H. MOORE, OF ELIZABETH, BOOMED HERE BY DEMOCRATS.

Plainfielders Argue That He and McNett Would Make Strong Candidates—Others Mentioned.

Their hopes raised by the Republican bolt, local Democrats believe they see an opportunity of electing an assembly ticket to be named by the Union County Democrats on October 15. Charles L. Moffett has been unanimously agreed upon by the Plainfield members of the minority party as a candidate for an assembly nomination.

Local Democrats are booming Chas. Moore, of Elizabeth, for a similar place on the ticket. Mr. Moore came within a very few votes of defeating R. Frank Coriell, of this city, the Republican candidate for sheriff, at the last election. He has a strong hold on the members of his party here and it is not unlikely that he will get the Plainfield delegation if his name is presented to the convention. William N. Fowler, of Elizabeth, whose name has also been mentioned, it is said, will probably decline to run. President Gunn, of the Springfield Democratic Club, is considered a probability for an assembly nomination.

CHIEF SAW HORSES IN AIR

T. O. DOANE WITNESSED WONDERFUL SIGHTS DURING STORM.

Returning From Firemen's Convention He Tells How Atlantic City Was Wrecked.

Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, returned from his vacation at Atlantic City Thursday. He reports a delightful trip, and tells most interesting tales of the storm and its effects in Atlantic City, which was probably the worst faring of any of the resorts along the Jersey coast. The storm broke several hours earlier in Atlantic City than here and was on in full blast by 6 in the morning with its fury spent three hours later. The Chief himself saw a heavy wagon and team of horses blown into the air and turned completely upside down and viewed the wrecks of numerous buildings.

The Chief said that the 31st convention of the International Association of Fire Engineers was the most successful he had ever attended. Representatives were present from all over the United States and Canada. The Exempt Firemen's Association convention was also extremely successful and marked by the presentation of a handsome dinner set to Bird W. Spencer who had begun his twenty-fifth term at the head of the organization. The next convention of the International Association of Fire Engineers will be held next year in Chattanooga.

MRS. TOMLINSON'S ADDRESS

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF W. C. T. U. SPEAKS BEFORE LOCAL UNION.

Told of the National Body's Work—N. Y. State Union Still in Office.

A meeting of unusual interest was held in the W. C. T. U. rooms Thursday afternoon, under the auspices of the Union. Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, County superintendent, was in charge and she gave a helpful talk on the subject "Picking up the Fragments." She told much of what is being done by the National body, and especially of the work of Mrs. Hunt, who has charge of the scientific instruction in the public schools. Mrs. Tomlinson also stated that the report to the effect that the president of the New York State Union had resigned her position to get out of temperance work, was untrue. She still retains her interest in the work.

CLAIMS ADJUSTED.

Insurance Companies Settle for the Damage Done in Somerset Street Fire.

Insurance adjustments were effected in three of the stores damaged by fire Tuesday evening on Somerset street. The company in which Nicholas Martone, the fruit dealer, in whose store of the fire broke out, has not settled so far, and it is alleged that the reason is that the insurance on all of the stock damaged is rated too high.

Frank Hand, the blacksmith, settled with the German Insurance Company for $65, although he claims his loss was $500. Herman Keller, who was insured in Union Insurance Company, settled for $75 and Adolphus Emery, who was insured in the Western Insurance Company, received $35, the full amount of his damages. All the companies are represented in this city by Henry Leifke. The insurance on the building has not been adjusted.

MR. WARING TO MARRY.

Invitations Issued for Wedding of Miss Laura Peckham and Edward B. Waring.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. William G. Peckham, of Westfield, to the marriage of their daughter, Laura, to Edward Hilennan Waring, son of Edward J. Waring, formerly of Willow avenue. The ceremony will take place Saturday, September 26, at 12:30 o'clock at the Congregational Church of Christ, Westfield. A wedding breakfast will follow the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Valley View, Westfield.

Work of Mother and Daughter.

Among the items of current talk on books and authors is the promise of a new book by Mrs. Laura E. Richards, to be brought this fall by Brown, Little & Co. It is to be entitled "The Golden Windows" and is a collection of fables. The design and decoration of the cover is drawn by Miss Julia Ward Richards, the daughter of the author and grand-daughter of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, of Boston. Mrs. Richards is a sister of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Madison avenue.

Dr. Cyrus Edson of the N. Y. Health Board and

Dr. Mott, of the Belleville Hospital and many other noted physicians gave their unqualified endorsement to Speer's Wines and Brandy for the sick, and debilitated and aged.

AMUSEMENTS.

Breezy and clean is the terse approval given "Peggy From Paris" which is enjoying a run at Wallacks. It is Savage's offering of George Ade's latest and best musical hit. The music is by William Loraine.

At the Broadway Theatre, James T. Powers is drawing great houses in "A Princess of Kensington," an unrivalled comic opera success. As usual "Jimmie" Powers is a show in himself. There's lots of good music in it.

It is seldom that a playright receives such praise as has been given by the critics to Stephen Phillips for his Ulysses, which is playing at the Garden Theatre. A great success and a grand spectacle is the Herald's endorsement.

All the Rogers Brotners shows are good, but the Rogers Brother in London is the greatest success yet. Klaw & Erlanger present the Rogers Brothers at the Knickerbocker for an eight-weeks' run, Saturday matinee only.

At the Victoria Theatre, Blanche Ring is starring in The Jersey Lily. It's a good show all through and Miss Ring is at her best.

Mrs. Fiske is the attraction at the Manhattan, the management presenting her in Mary of Magdala. The dramatic critic is speaking highly of the play. Mrs. Fisk is too well and favorably known to the playgoing public to need a mention.

John Drew has effected his reappearance at the Herald Square Theatre, acting with his accustomed lightness of touch and gayety of spirits the chief role in a comedy entitled "Captain Dieppe," written by Anthony Hope and Harrison Rhodes. Mr. Drew's name is sufficient to warrant that the show is a good one.

Temperance Play.

"Ten Nights in a Barroom" will be presented by the W. C. T. U. in its rooms on Madison avenue Monday evening, September 28.

"Vieux Pousoule," the latest addition to the several score of splendid features of "The Runaways" has already become one of the sensational song hits of the season. Miss Fay Templeton, who has never failed in anything she has attempted on the stage, gives a particularly delightful tang to this latest favorite of the Parisian cafe chantants.

Perhaps the finest array of vaudeville acts ever collected for one week's entertainment is that which composes the programme this coming week at Mr. Keith's ever popular play house in Union Square. There are nine big six acts on the bill which can truthfully be termed headliners and it is a difficult task to pick out the one which can be placed at the head of the programme.

Manager Sam. S. Shubert has made a most judicious selection for opening what tends to be a brilliant season at the Princess Theatre. The irresistible and interminable "Earl of Pawtucket," with Lawrence D'Orsay as "Lord Cardington," comes to this house with the prestige of being the first legitimate comedy to run in New York through an entire summer season.

A DESERVED HONOR.

J. Herbert Case Elected a Director of the Plainfield Trust Company.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of The Plainfield Trust Company held Thursday afternoon J. Herbert Case was elected a director to fill a vacancy existing in the Board. He will continue as secretary and treasurer of the institution, much of whose prosperity is due to his indefagitable and wise efforts. Mr. Case is a director of the Plainfield Public Library and is a prominent borroughite.

Can't Name Ticket.

The Middlesex Prohibitionists will be unable to hold a county convention this fall, at which nominations can be made for the Assembly and coroner for the coming election. The law specifies that the party holding a convention must poll two per cent. of the total vote cast in that county at the last election for the Assembly, which the party failed to do.

Dancing Classes.

Frederick T. Dawes, assistant teacher with T. George Dodworth, of New York, announces the opening of his eighth season of classes for dancing and polite training at Seminary Hall in West Seventh street. The classes will begin on Tuesday, October 13. Mr. Dawes has been especially successful with his work in this city.

MAYOR BILL SMITH'S MISHAP

CRUISING ALONG FRONT STREET HIS GOOD SHIP BECOMES FAST.

He and His Crew Waited for High Tide and Then Cruiser Floated On the Rocks.

"Mayor" William Smith was in town Thursday with his auto. The trolley company was made aware of the fact as were the people residing in the vicinity of Rock avenue and West Front street, by the stalling of eight cars and the general disturbing of the peace for almost an hour.

History states that he drove down West Front street at a fast clip until he struck Rock avenue, when he suddenly stuck fast in the mud in the driving rain. He put on "full steam ahead" and called to the stoker to crowd on full sail, but the great coaster still stuck fast. Trolley workmen had been engaged in tearing up the tracks at that point and soft mud was, in that spot, in profusion.

People residing in that locality say they heard loud noises in the street. Upon going to their front doors they heard strange sounds coming from the interior of a big red machine in the middle of the street. "Shiver me timbers, mate, 'tis indeed a nor'easter fresh from the banks, as were hard on fast on a hidden reef." "Pipe all hands on deck, and splice the main brace." (The main brace was accordingly spliced in a near by store.) "Shake out the baby baloon jibs and sew up the hatches." "All hands man the pumps" and other nautical terms, led the people to believe that there was about to be a yacht race for international honors. "Mayor" Smith was of a different opinion, however, when a call from over the starboard rail announced the arrival of succor. A trolley car crew volunteered to throw a line to the disabled cruiser but "Captain" Smith stood on the bridge, and, with a look of scorn repeated the words of his forefathers, "We'er all right and don't need to be tow'ed into port" and, turning to his crew, repeated Nelson's famous command, "Don't give up the ship boys."

People watching the disabled cruiser on the rocks relate that Smith and his crew waited for high tide and then floated off the rocks, and with "main sheet reefed," and "bow-sprit set on the port tack," started back for New Market as unconcerned as though he had won the America's cup.

Roasts the Mayor.

The Newark Evening News says: "Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, criticises the Republicans of Plainfield because they talk too much. It is peculiar how the faults of an individual always make that person see distinctly the same fault in others."

Realty Transfers.

But two realty transfers in North Plainfield were recorded at the County Clerk's office at Somerville last week. They are: David B. French to Elston M. French, $1, and First National Bank of Plainfield to William H. Kirch, of Duer street, North Plainfield, $2,150.

THE MARSH HAWK

How He Hunts and How He Lives, and Way Young Are Raised.

The Naturalist Drops In on the Bird While He Is Courting, and Is Entertained by His Wild and Amusing Antics.

One afternoon in early spring, I was walking across the low-lying land extending along the borders of a river. Before me lay a wide expanse of open country, chiefly grassy meadow, with here and there little hillocks, which stood out somewhat higher and greener than the surrounding sod. Suddenly there swept past me, in easy, graceful flight, a long-winged, ash-gray bird with a large white patch upon its rump; a male marsh hawk, hunting. Quite low he flew, sometimes so close to the ground that he fanned the tall grass blades, sometimes skimming lightly over plumes of bushes, rising and falling as though he rode upon the crest of a gentle ocean swell. For half a mile, perhaps, he continued on his course; then, coming about with infinite grace, he bore down upon me again. Back and forth he circled, "quartering" the country in a way which proved his title to the name of "harrier." All this time his bright hazel eye was searching every clump of weeds, every hollow in the grass, every twig of the leafless bushes, for a sign of his living prey. Presently he caught sight of that which he sought, for he checked his onward flight, and for an instant hung fluttering in the air. Then lightly he dropped into the grass, with a lightning stroke laid low a meadow mouse, whose soft, fat little body offered scarcely any resistance to these talons of rapier steel. The bird did not fly off with its prey in its claws, as a sharp-shinned hawk would have done, nor did he stop to devour the mouse on the spot, as I have often seen a marsh hawk do; it picked up the little rodent with its feet, and by a series of long leaps through the grass, it reached a rather more secluded spot, where it began to tear its victim to pieces.

About a week later, I was walking over the same open country, and again I saw my old acquaintance the marsh hawk. This time, however, he was not alone, for in his company there was a somewhat larger bird, dark umber brown on the back, and with reddish streaks on the head. This was his mate, and, despite the difference in coloration, she had the characteristic white patch on her rump. It was the courting season, and, as I was fortunate to see the manner in which the marsh hawk courted his bride, I hid myself in a ditch which drained the meadows, and waited. For an hour, perhaps, nothing unusual happened, and I had begun to fear that my patience was not to be rewarded that day, when suddenly the male bird floated into view, and began a series of evolutions such as I had heard of, but never witnessed before. After circling about as usual, he arose in the air, "stooped," almost to the ground, rose again, tumbled somewhat after the manner of a tumbler pigeon, and in this way proceeded for some distance, zig-zagging up and down, as though bereft of his senses. And perhaps he was, for wiser creatures than marsh hawks do funny things when they are in love. After doing his acrobatic "turn," he sailed away with the same grace and lightness which at other times characterized his flight.

The next, which I found in May, was made chiefly of coarse grass and twigs, on the ground near the river. There were four eggs in it, dull white, about an inch and three-quarters in length, and well rounded. The next time I found the nest, the young birds were hatched—beautiful, bright-eyed little fellows, covered with white down, and with black bills and yellow legs. At first they knew no fear, but soon it came to them, as it does to most wild things, and one day, when their pin-feathers had started, they greeted me by throwing themselves on their backs and striking at me savagely with their little talons. Their slender legs flew out as though propelled by springs and their little black claws, as sharp as fish-hooks, cut through my skin at every stroke. Sometimes I would take them some beetles or crickets, or a frog from the neighboring marsh, and after I had retired to a distance they would eagerly devour the food, apparently, as they swallowed mouthful after mouthful.

The last time I visited the nest, the young hawks, instead of waiting to fight me when I approached, leaped from their home into the surrounding grass, and hopped away rapidly in every direction, with their long wings raised high in the air to steady them as they bounced along. I left them to regain their composure. When I next saw them they were able to shift for themselves. Sometimes they might be seen perching upon the rails near the water, but usually they were skimming over the open country, making things very lively for mice and other small creatures.

CHICAGO POST OFFICE

Removal of Mr. Cobb Revives Interest in Great Federal Building.

Present State of Work—Will Be Finished in April, 1905—Interesting Comparison with Erection of Other Large Buildings.

The building of a large public building such as that of the new post office now being constructed at Chicago is apt to be punctured by full stops, exclaimers and question marks. In other words, there are generally long delays in the completion of the work, much criticism and many and awkward questions asked. The summary removal of the chief architect, Henry Ives Cobb, by Secretary Shaw, has reminded the city of Chicago and the country at large that a great and costly government building is being constructed there. It is so long ago since the Chicago post office spread its camp on the lake front that the employes and the people of the city have about accepted the squatty building as a permanent location. In fact, the story is told of William Penn, who, after showing a visitor around the city, and taking in all the points of interest, was asked where the post office was. By inquiry he finally found his way to the lake front, and was at last able to point out to the astonished visitor the present post office makeshift. "But I thought you had a new building," exclaimed the visitor. The proud Chicagoan scratched his head for a minute, and then replied: "Why, I believe I did hear something about it a few years ago, but I had forgotten. You see, we Chicagoans are not in the habit of waiting for things."

But Chicago has had to wait for her new federal building, and will be forced to continue the waiting attitude for many a long month. Those in a position to know, declare that the building will be completed by April 1, 1905, but others who are also familiar with the operations, think that it is impossible, as there has been no provision made for heating the building, and the work of finishing the interior will have to stop during the cold winter months.

An abbreviated history of Chicago's new post office building is as follows: Authorized by congress, February, CHICAGO'S NEW POST OFFICE BUILDING AS IT APPEARS TO-DAY.

1895. Possession given to wrecker of the old building, April, 1896. Substructure begun July, 1897. Substructure completed August, 1898. Contract for superstructure awarded to John Peirce, April 7, 1898. Possession of premises given contractor, September, 1898. Work begun spring of 1899. Twenty-five per cent. of building finished March 10, 1901. Date of completion at rate of progress, 1907. Date of completion required by contract, January, 1902. Contract price of superstructure, $1,987,000. Allowed by congress for interior finish, $1,200,000.

Our illustration shows exactly the progress which has been made on the building to the present day. The exterior is practically finished, the only work remaining to be done is some carving on certain portions of the stone work. But the structure is nothing but a great, gaunt, bare shell of stone and brick and iron. The interior finishing has hardly begun. Preliminary work on the building was begun in March, 1895, when the secretary of the treasury engaged experts to prepare plans and specifications. Congress voted $300,000 for this purpose. The cost of the building up to the present has been $2,346,702, for foundation and exterior construction.

The interior is to be finished in mahogany and marble of the finest kind. Late last year it was discovered that of the $4,000,000 which it was proposed to spend on the structure, but $1,653,-298 remained for the interior finish and decoration and heating and lighting apparatus, and elevators, etc. This was not sufficient, and it was proposed by the architect to finish in cheap wood as a substitute for the mahogany and plaster for the marble. But about this time the congressmen from Chicago got busy, and congress was induced to vote an additional $750,000 to finish the building as the original specifications called for. That it will be a long time before it is finished there is no shadow of doubt.

It is interesting to note in connection with the building of the Chicago post office the construction of some other great buildings in Chicago. While the foundations of the post office were being dug the Fisher building got up 16 stories. In the time consumed in covering the steel work the Marshall Field building, a magnificent structure of steel and marble and the finest interior finish, was rushed to completion, and since the construction of the post office building was begun nearly every year has been marked by the erection of some sky scraper. But if the post office is growing slowly to completion, it is growing magnificently, and will be one of the finest structures in the country when completed.

BENEVOLENT COUNCIL'S SECOND ANNIVERSARY

Juniors Observe the Second Year of Their Organization As a Council.

MANY GOOD SPEECHES

VAUDEVILLE PERFORMANCE A FEATURE OF JOLLY CELEBRATION.

Visitors From a Number of Nearby Councils—Banquet An Attraction—Committee in Charge of the Affair.

In appropriate celebration of the second anniversary of the founding of Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., the members Friday regaled each other with music and speech, and feasted elaborately in the early morning hours in the auditorium of Washington Hall.

Members of the order from out of town assisted in the celebration, among them delegates from Newark, Bound Brook, Mt. Bethel, New Market, Westfield, Rahway and Dunellen. The committee in charge from the local lodge consisted of J. V. Beckman, chairman; S. C. Terry, George A. Ballastyne, Orrs Baker and Henry Adams.

Preceding the regular evening's entertainment was the business meeting in the lodge rooms, at which rousing patriotic speeches were made by National Representative William B. Lane, of Bound Brook, Councilor Harry Winn, of Franklin Council; Walter Walker, of Somerset Council, and Attorney Robert M. Clark, of Newark, and Counsellor Harry C. Runyon and Frank L. Manchester, of this city.

The entertainers in the vaudeville performance that followed the business meeting were all members of the local lodge, and they exhibited a surprising amount of talent. Garrett Shepard's "stunts" on the slack wire were nothing short of marvellous, and "Professor" Louis Thompson's ragtime performance on the piano started every foot in the hall shuffling in the effort to keep time. Both were rewarded by continued outbursts of applause. Songs by M. C. MacGregor, phonograph selections by Robert Loughlin and coon songs by Fred Pope made everybody happy. The address of welcome was delivered in a happy vein by Harry C. Runyon. An elaborate banquet followed the musical feast.

Drake's Honesty.

Ignoring the rights obtained by a discharge in bankruptcy, Silas Dewey Drake, real estate operator and promoter, has commenced to pay one hundred cents on every dollar of the indebtedness, which is legally wiped out. He is determined to keep his credit as good as that of Mark Twain, who labored for years to pay conscience claims. Mr. Drake walked into the Trenton Times office, after his discharge, and paid his bill in full.

Aerial Cables.

Not wishing to continue the underground telephone conduits through West Front street, this year, the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company has constructed an aerial cable on West Third street from the corner of Liberty street to the corner of Grant avenue. Manager Runyon hopes to build the underground on West Front street next year.

HOME SEEKERS ARE BEING TURNED AWAY

Real Estate Brokers Unable to Meet Demand for Houses Here.

MOST ATTRACTIVE CITY

ELSTON H. FRENCH SAYS ITS THE FINEST EAST OF THE ROCKIES.

The Part a Wife Plays in Selecting a Place of Residence—Park Much Needed—An Interview With Real Estate Operator.

Plainfield, the home of the tired *New York business man, seeking re*creation in the cooling suburban breezes, away from the din and excitement of the metropolis, is about to launch forth into a great season of real estate activity. Realty transactions are to be found on every hand and the real estate dealers have many schemes on foot to bring Plainfield before the eyes of New York business men who seek homes in the suburbs. This goes to show that while other cities seem content to continue in a dormant condition year after year, Plainfield, through its active real estate dealers, is on the jump for "new business."

Elston M. French, one of the leading real estate men in this city, said yesterday when interviewed regarding the growth of the city and the prospect of a busy season:

"There never was a time when the *houses in Plainfield and North Plain*field were so well filled as at the present. Owing to the meagre supply to meet the great demand for homes of all descriptions, the real estate agents are turning home seekers away almost daily. Rents are going higher, and the old, run down properties are being repaired and put in tenable condition. There is today a better opportunity for investments which will net an income of from six to seven per cent. or more in the real estate market than there ever has been in the history of the city. I make this statement notwithstanding the comparatively high price of building materials. All kinds of houses are in demand, and the home-builder will net a gross income on his investment of from ten to twelve per cent. When the present leases on the properties expire I predict that the owners will demand increased rentals.

"This town is so situated between New York and Philadelphia, with such fine train service, that it is bound to grow much more rapidly in the next ten years than it has in the past ten. The fact that many of the Central Railroad's prominent officials, such as General Manager W. G. Besler and General Passenger Agent M. C. Hart, are among our residents has already mitigated in our favor. Today the Today the railroad is giving us better local passenger service than any road in the country.

"I have been in almost every city of importance this side of the Rocky Mountains, and know of no more attractive place of residence, when everything is considered, than this one. The home and surroundings are uniformally well kept and attractive. New comers invariably remark this fact. The Women's Town Improvement Association has been of great service in this regard, but could do much more by keeping the matter before the people.

"Women are the greatest builders of suburban towns, and they can do more towards booming this city by speaking well of it to their out of-town friends than all the men put together. It is a fact that in selecting a home the husband defers to the opinion of his wife and unless his wife is attracted to this city and is willing and anxious to settle here, it is useless for the husband to propose such a scheme. If the women of this city want to make it more prosperous, they have the matter largely in their own hands.

"In western cities particularly, all residents are boomers. They have nothing derogatory to say of their own city, but on the other hand are continually sounding its praises. Some people in this city who are discontented for any reason, are inclined to blame all their woes to the fact that they live here, forgetting that this is not only the queen city of New Jersey, but the most healthful in the State, and one of the best governed.

"Do you think a city park is necessary to the growth of a community?" asked the interviewer.

"All admit that a city park aids much in developing a city," he said, "and one is very much needed. Every year's delay increases the cost of acquiring the land, and there is no time like the present to bring this to a conclusion."

Simeon B. Sampson, of Westfield, is the guest of friends in this city prior to an extended trip abroad. He will represent one of the local factories. E Thomas Morcdyke, of Watchung.

WHITFIELD BROWN IS DEAD

CLAIMS PART OF HARLEM

NEW BRUNSWICK WOMAN CHASING RAIN-BOW.

If She Is Successful Mrs. Flavell Will be a Millionairess— Basis of Claim.

Mrs. A. M. H. Flavell, of New Brunswick, is one of the claimants to about two-thirds of Harlem, Borough of Manhattan, New York City. Mrs. Flavell's maiden name was Montayne, and it was in Montayne that originally settled on the disputed land as one of the 32 English patentees. But it is claimed that he was wrongfully dispossessed and the ownership of the land has descended to this day without good title.

A New York lawyer has taken up the matter and is collecting direct heirs of Montayne. There are about 1,600 already discovered with more to hear from. With the present number each would get about $1,500,000, for the estate is said to be worth something like two billions. The lawyer who has taken the matter up promises to carry the case through without a cent of cost to the heirs unless there is a successful termination. A meeting will be held in about two weeks by the heirs to decide upon what course to take.

Mrs. Flavell is an heiress to the Harlem property on her father's side. On her mother's side she has a claim on the Trinity Church property, New York City, which has also been the subject of much dispute as to ownership. If she can make good claims she will be heiress of most of Manhattan Island, for the Harlem claim begins near where the Trinity claim leaves off.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 17, "The Work of Home Missions."

"Charity begins at home," is an old saying which has acquired almost the authority of Bible truth. Indeed, it might almost be called a translation into colloquial speech of that passage of inspired Scripture, "If any provideth not for his own, and specially his own household, he hath denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever."

The Christian church has from the first given special care to assist in all possible ways by all available means her own members and people near at hand. A least this has been her theory and commission. If neglected in any measure, that neglect can be accurately measured by her decline in spirituality and apostasy from the faith.

The first officers appointed in the early church were charged with the duty of relieving the needs of the poor especially the dependent widows in the church at Jerusalem. In the church at Joppa, the only name that has been preserved to us, is that of a woman who was particularly active in providing clothing for the destitute and relieving their needs by her personal care. She was appropriately named "the Gazelle, Dorcas, Tabitha."

Paul gathered with great care from the gentile churches collections to relieve the necessities of the poor Christians of Jerusalem.

Methodism has ever been engaged in the cause of missions at home. The work of John Wesley and his immedi*ate helpers was home missionary ef*fort. The labors of Asbury, Lee and the early American Methodists were of the same character.

The recent enlargement in scope of this department of our church activity is in keeping with the needs and developments of the times.

The criticism sometimes heard, from people whose sympathies or information is defective, that too great attention is given to foreign missions to the neglect of the home field.

The fact is, much the larger part of our benevolent collections is spent in the United States. All the work of the Freedman's Aid and Southern Education society is in the southern part of our own land. The Church Extension society helps provide church buildings, and nearly one-half of the missionary collections are used for the people of this country. Nor should the aid of the board of education in assisting our schools be overlooked.

In addition to all this must be considered the hospital service, which is increasing so rapidly the deaconess work in visitation and relief.

Besides this there is the special labor of the Woman's Home Missionary society. The departments of work are numerous and well equipped. Its rescue work for women in the great cities hospitals, nurse training, distribution of clothing and articles of necessity and comfort to the poor of all sections of the land are all admirable in design and working of special importance is the industrial feature carried on in schools and model homes. Corresponding to the manual training of boys in *industrial arts and trades is the teach*ing of sewing, cooking, housekeeping and other occupations to the girls.

This branch of our church work should be studied by our leagues for broadening of our intelligence and quickening of our sympathies and confirming our diligence in doing good.

Wrong Prayer.

Wrong prayer sets our wisdom and desire as the measure of giving. It is not always denied, even when it asks for hurtful things. Right prayer comes in humility and confidence and asks from its own point of view for what is needed, but always in submission to the loving will of God. Right prayer is always heard, but petitions which are right in spirit may be unwise in choice, and the loving kindness of God may deny them for our good.

Prayer and petition are therefore whole and part. Prayer is the approach to God seeking communion. Petition is the part of prayer which asks for gifts. No man ever drew near to God but God drew near to him. Is it wise to pray? That is a question whether we shall live our lives alone. Prayer is communion. God's children cannot live without it. Is it wise to ask for definite gifts which we desire and need? That is a question of our faith and our humility. If we ask from the level of our own judgment—as if we had all knowledge—it must needs be that *many of our petitions will be mis*taken. No man in sober second thought would wish God to grant ignorant and foolish requests. That he could only do in judgment, not in mercy. Right prayer and no petition is urged in simple faith and humble acquiescence in God's loving will can ever be in vain.—Congregationalist.

Evil Life a Failure.

There is no happiness to an evil life. Malice, hate and envy rob their victims every day. Another's prosperity is a constant challenge to their peace. Judas was a miserable man long before he thought of betraying. His purse grew fatter than his money. Things but culminated at his destruction. The black stream of his life had reached its sea. Saul was wretched from the day his eyes were set on David. His thousands were surpassed by the tens of thousands that belonged to his rival.—Presbyterian Journal.

A Test of Christianity.

If you wish to know whether you are a Christian inquire of yourself whether, in and for the love of God, you seek to make happy those about you by smiles and pleasant sayings. Are you a comfortable person to live with? Are you pleasant to have about?—Gail Hamilton.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 17—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic—An evening with Japanese missions.—Mal. iv. 1, 2.

The prominence of Japan among the nations of the world, its rapid progress in modern civilization and the successful propagation of Christianity in the empire all go to make this subject an unusually interesting one. Every missionary committee should arrange a programme of special attractiveness and thereby interest all in the meeting and, what is still more important, in the winning of the empire of Japan to Jesus Christ.

Japan is composed of a number of islands which stretch in a crescent shape along the northeastern coast of Asia from Kamchatka to Korea. Their area is about 150,000 square miles. In location and climate the islands of Japan resemble Great Britain. The climate is temperate, the soil fertile, the air healthful and food abundant. Flowers and fruits abound, and the skies are beautiful and clear.

The Japanese people are kindly impressible, quick to observe and imitate, ready to adopt whatever may seem to promote their present good, imaginative, fond of changes, yet withal loyal to their government and institutions. The people are divided into two general classes—the samurai, including the military and literary classes, and the bel-min, or agriculturists, merchants and artisans. The Japanese are intellectually a high order, but of a low moral standard. Truth, purity, temperance, unselfish devotion, self denial, are all sadly wanting, which demonstrates their need of the gospel of Christ. Shintoism, Buddhism and Confucianism are the principal religions of Japan.

Catholic missionaries under Francis Xavier went to Japan in 1549. By making the transition to papal Christianity very easy, merely the substitution of one superstition for another, many converts were soon won. But the political intrigues of the Jesuits soon aroused opposition, the Catholics were exterminated, Christianity and foreigners forbidden an entrance into Japan and the island empire became shut off from the world until won over to a different policy by our own Commodore Perry in 1854.

The Christian church soon took advantage of the opening of the Japanese ports. Missionaries were at once sent in, and after years of faithful labor results were produced. The church of Japan was born in prayer. In January, 1872, the English speaking residents of all denominations united in observing the week of prayer. The results were tremendous. Past suspicion and prejudice passed away and for the first time the Japanese were on their knees in a Christian prayer meeting, pleading to God for His spirit. From that time on the work has been successful. In 1877 a number of missionary agencies combined their efforts. There are now seven denominations in this union, which is called "the church of Christ in Japan." They include the Reformed and Presbyterian denominations of the United States, and this union is one of the strongest bodies of Christians in the empire.

Recent events have made Christianity more powerful than ever before. The empire has come closer to the great Christian nations of England and the United States. Many Japanese students are being educated in these countries. Unlike China and India, in Japan the educated and cultured classes have been favorably disposed to the gospel. A great revival has within recent years been in progress in the island and thousands have been won for Christ. Let us earnestly pray for a continuance of this revival spirit until the entire land shall have become Immanuel's land. May the Sun of Righteousness come indeed to the empire of the Rising Sun and with healing in His wings.

EFFORTS TO SAVE BOY'S LIFE UNAVAILABLE, DEATH FOLLOWS.

Walls Was Mascot of Hope Baseball Team and Was Popular Little Chap—Only Twelve Years Old.

Joseph Walls, Jr., twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walls, of Essex street, died Sept. 16, as a result of a shock received by taking hold of a five electric light wire. The lad, in company with Willie and John Muir, Frank Rimmer and Arthur Mills were walking along West Third street, at the corner of Spooner ave. nue and Essex street the lads noticed the electric light wire hanging from a tree. Young Walls playfully jumped for the wire intending to pull it out of the tree.

He took hold the wire with both hands and instantly he was fast. His body stiffened and he became unconscious. The screams of the boys attracted the attention of Andrew Muir and George McComb, who were nearby. Mr. Muir made an attempt to take hold of young Walls, when Mc Comb prevented him. Otherwise Muir might have sustained serious if not fatal injury. McComb immediately secured a broom and with this released the lad's grasp on the wire. He was then carried to his home, where Dr. Cregar worked faithfully to bring the boy out of danger. He was unsuccessful, and in twenty minutes after the occurrence the boy died.

The lad is survived by a father and mother, two sisters, Hattie and Bessie and two brothers, Arthur and an infant child. Young Walls went to the Irving School. During the past three seasons he has been the mascot for the Hope Y. M. A. baseball team and was well liked by everyone.

HANDSOME TERMINAL FOR CENTRAL ROAD

Elaborate Arrangements for New Metropolitan Depot Presented in Detail.

OLD BUILDINGS TO GO

FERRYHOUSE TO BE A TWO-STORY STEEL-FRAME STRUCTURE.

Passengers to Use Both First and Second Floors in Reaching Boats—A Covered Bridge— Recreation Pier.

Plainfield commuters, who take pride in their city and in the railroad which has been the means of building up the town to a large extent, will hail with much pleasure the contemplated improvements at the New York terminus of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. For years, in fact, so long as many of the local commuters can remember, passengers have been obliged to enter a small, rather unin viting ferry building on West street, New York. At one time the building harmonized well with the rest of the road but today, with the system improved in every way, until it ranks with the best in the country, the ferry house on the Metropolitan side of the river stands in dreary contrast to the up-to-dateness of the rest of the road and serves as a monument of the unprogressive policy of former administrations.

Work has already been commenced on the new structure which, when completed, will extend from all along North river front on West street, as the foot of Albany, Cedar and Liberty streets. The buildings will be entirely new as all the existing structures are to be removed. These improvements will result in the greatly increased convenience of passengers on the New Jersey Central, as well as additional facilities for the road itself in the proper handling of all classes of business. People will no longer be compelled to work their way through the crowded traffic of West street, but will have an option of going over the street in a covered passageway which will conduct them to the upper deck of the ferry boat. The boats were all built having these ultimate arrangements in mind, and only a day or two of work will be necessary to convert them into the new system. Similar arrangements will be made for landing passengers from the upper decks of the ferry boat on the Jersey City side.

West street is to be widened by the building of a granite bulkhead wall at a distance of 250 feet from the easterly line of West street. The buildings will include a ferry house, two covered freight piers, and a building along the bulkhead, between and in front of the piers. The buildings will be of steel construction.

A further feature of this improvement will be the construction of a promenade or recreation place on top of the two-story office and ferry buildings along the full length of the West street front, approached by broad stairways from the street. This promenade is built at the request of Commissioner McDougal Hawkes, department of docks and ferries, New York, to afford recreation places along the water front.

The ferry house will be a two-story steel frame structure equipped on both floors with all facilities for the proper handling and comfort of passengers. The second story will be connected with the opposite side of West street by a broad foos-bridge.

The bulkhead building will be a two-story steel frame building forty-five feet wide and 325 feet long. The ground floor will be devoted to receiving and handling freight and the second story fitted up for offices of the freight department.

The roof promenade to be located on top of bulkhead building and ferry house, is forty-five feet wide and 510 feet long, approached from street by broad stairways at each end, and affords a recreation place for the public where a view of the harbor and the cooling breezes may be enjoyed.

Pier No. 10. This pier will be eighty feet wide and 760 feet long, covered with a single-story steel freight shed.

Pier No. 11. This pier will be fifty feet wide and 780 feet long, covered with a single-story steel freight shed.

REV. J. S. ZELIE BEGINS WORK HERE

Commences His Labors As Pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church.

MAKES AN IMPRESSION

PREACHES TO LARGE CONGREGATIONS AT BOTH SERVICES.

He Speaks Clearly and Forcibly—Uses Simple Language Which Carries Conviction of His Intense Earnestness.

Rev. John Sheridan Zelie, late of the First Reformed Church of Schenectady, N. Y., preached his first sermons to Plainfield congregations Sunday morning and evening as pastor of the Crescent Avenue Church. He made a most pleasing impression and was greeted at both services by congregations that filled every pew.

Though not a great pulpit orator, Mr. Zelie is a satisfying one. He is easy and graceful in carriage and gesture, and speaks in clear and incisive tones. His voice is agreeable, perhaps with no hidden depths of feeling, but still convincing the hearer that its owner is thoroughly in earnest. Mr. Zelie's addresses yesterday were thoughtful, forcibly presented in simple language, and claiming attention from first to last. The speaker confined himself closely to his notes.

In his morning sermon, Mr. Zelie referred to Dr. Richards' "ministry of ministers, a part of the great traditions of the church, filled with God's heritage and blessings and pointing the way to a hopeful future."

In the evening, he spoke of the meaning and power of prayer, stating that the true prayer consists in the consistent striving to do God's work. Mr. Zelie assisted in the service at Hope Memorial Chapel, one of the church's missions, in the afternoon. He was everywhere extended cordial greetings, assurances of faith in his successful pastorage and congregations to his able addresses.

COLORED BRETHERN ACTIVE.

Not Discouraged by Present Financial Troubles, They Plan Improvements.

Former Superintendent Jones says that Rev. Scott Wallace, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, preached a sermon of exceptional interest Sunday night. The audience was so large that all were unable to find seats. The pastor announced that the church is to be enlarged, a pipe organ is to be purchased and the edifice to be furnished with handsome new pews, all at an expense of about $3,000. Deacons Conway, Branch, Wellington, Probasco and Robinson declared their intention of backing the pastor to the limit.

DEMOCRATIC NEWS.

George J. Reiss Rubs Up As a Candidate for Legislature—Moffett and Gunn Almost Sure.

It is understood that George J. Reiss, of Roselle Park, who has been a Democratic candidate for the Assembly in two previous campaigns, is being urged by some of the influential factors in organized labor circles to get into the fight and endeavor to again become a candidate. Mr. Reiss is popular with the union men, and his friends believe that this year he can be elected with ease. Mr. Reiss is recording secretary of the United County Trades Council.

It is now almost certain that Joseph Gunn, of Springfield, and Charles Moffett, of this city, will be candidates. Plainfield Democrats are booming Charles H. Moore for a place on the ticket.

THEIR ANNUAL FIELD DAY

TRINITY COMMANDERY TO ATTEND KNIGHTS TEMPLAR OUTING.

Committee at Work Arranging for Railroad Transportation—Palestine Commandery to Go.

Preparations are being made by the members of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, to attend the annual Sold day at Atlantic City on October 14. A committee from the Commandery is now making an effort to secure a reasonable railroad fare between this city and Atlantic City. It is understood that the New Jersey Central wants $3 a round trip, and that a certain number of passengers are needed in order to secure that rate.

The committee has learned that the Newark and Jersey City Commanderies are to have a rate of $2.50 and believes that Trinity Commandery is entitled to the same rate.

Palestine Commandery, of Elizabeth, is planning to make the trip in a body and a special train has been chartered to convey the sir knights and their Masonic friends to Atlantic City. Others special excursions will be run from various parts of the State and it is expected that the attendance will be the largest in the history of field days.

THEODORE LESCHETIZKY

The October Century will have some "Anecdotes of Leschetizky," told by his sister-in-law, the Countess Angela Potocka. The stories deal with the three-year-old lad's playing a locked piano, incidents of his public debut at nine, his dancing with Fanny Elsler at twelve, his early impressions of Liszt, and many Leipsic and St. Petersburg experiences. The book, "Theodore Leschetisky," will be published in October. As far as possible the Countess Potocka has used the great music teacher's own words in writing these memories.

The Genuine vs. Counterfeits.

The genuine is always better than a counterfeit, but the truth of this statement is never more forcibly realized or more thoroughly appreciated than when you compare the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve with the many counterfeits and worthless substitutes that are on the market. W. S. Ledbetter, of Shreveport, La., says: "After using numerous other remedies without benefit, one box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me." For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles no remedy is equal to DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Sold by L. W. Randolph.

SOME PEACE SIGNS.

Turko-Bulgarian Conference Held at Sofia.

DEMANDS OF BULGARIA OUTLINED

Proposed Reforms For Macedonia Seem to Have Been Accepted by Turkey to a Large Extent.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 23.—Within forty-eight hopes the question of peace or war will probably be settled, according to authoritative opinions here. Premier Petroff has had an interview with Ali Feruh Bey, at which the whole situation in Macedonia was discussed.

The following is the position of the Turko-Bulgarian negotiations: The porte recently manifested a disposition to consider proposals for a direct understanding, and Bulgaria advanced the following conditions: First, the porte to grant a general amnesty and stop the persecution of the Bulgarians in Macedonia; second, a mixed commission to be formed, the Bulgarian members of which should be nominated by the Bulgarian exarch and never be in a minority on the commission, to elaborate administrative reforms, arrange for an extension of local administrative autonomy, insure the safety of the highways and the equality of Christians and Mussulmans before the courts, reform the taxation and gendarmery and provide for personal security.

After the accomplishment of these tasks the commission, which would probably sit at Salonika, would become the council of the inspector general and would depute one of its Bulgarian members to report to the sultan on the progress of affairs.

Bulgaria also asked that the burned villages be rebuilt with government assistance, the refugees repatriated, an especial ordinance issued providing for the organization and administration of the Bulgarian schools and churches.

These proposals seem to have been accepted in principle, although nothing definite has yet been decided. Even in the event of an agreement being arrived at proofs of good faith would be required as a guarantee of the execution of the reforms, and if not forthcoming the Macedonians would continue their agitation.

A list compiled from official sources is published giving the names of and details regarding twenty-three villages in the district of Malkotemovo, eighteen in the district of Kirk-Killisse, four in Vasiliko and three in Vezene which have been the scene of pillage, murder and outrage by Turkish troops.

As a result of this conference a much better feeling prevails, and confident hopes are expressed that a satisfactory adjustment will be reached. This view is strengthened by a report from Constantinople to the effect that the council of ministers after some days' discussion is within measurable distance of an agreement on the chief points at issue.

The premier complained to the Turkish diplomatic agent of the situation created by the arrival at Burgas of thousands of destitute and starving refugees from the district of Losengrad. After a discussion an understanding was practically reached that Turkey should guarantee the safe protection of the refugees and take steps to reinstate them in their homes.

The general effect of these conferences in Constantinople and Sofia has induced a much more hopeful feeling here, although the affairs is not always possible that the next day's happenings may change the entire situation.

The war ministry has taken steps to strengthen the Bulgarian frontier forces, and it is reported that troops will occupy all the commanding positions, thus making it almost impossible for bands to cross the frontier. Some regiments of the Second and Third divisions have been ordered to the Adrianople frontier, where the Turks have massed strong bodies of troops.

Revolutionary bands are reported to be active in the districts of Raslog, province of Seres, where they hold all the mountain passes. The Turkish population is fleeing toward Salonika.

Saving on Postal Supplies.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The rejection of the recent bids for the money order supplies outside of the blank money order forms recently contracted for has made a saving of $51,000 to the government for the next four years, the new bids which have just been received aggregating $181,000 as against $232,000, the total amount under the bids published. Assistant Postmaster General Wynne recently rejected as excessive. The present total also is $9,600 less than the total paid under the expiring contract for the same supplies.

Tonopah Trouble Settled.

OGDEN, Utah, Sept. 23.—Governor Sparks of Nevada has received a telegram from his private secretary announcing that the trouble at Tonopah is settled, and the authorities of Nye county are able to cope with the situation. The governor left last night for Texas. He said that the trouble so far as his information went was caused by a few barkeeps in the "Clubs and Waiters' union and that the miners were not implicated.

JETT FOUND GUILTY

Death Sentence For Notorious Kentucky Man Killer.

SAID TO HAVE SLAIN FORTY MEN

Convicted of Killing Judge Marcum and Sentenced For Life—He Now Gets Death Penalty For an Earlier Murder.

CYNTHIANA, Ky., Sept. 23.—After a trial lasting eight days the jury in the case of Curtis Jett, charged with the murder of Town Marshal James Cockrill at Jackson, Ky., July 21, 1902, last evening rendered a verdict of guilty and fixed the punishment at death.

When the jury entered the court room after agreeing on a verdict quiet reigned for a few moments. Jett's mother had gone away earlier under the impression that no verdict would be reached. The reading of the verdict did not affect Jett, but his brother was very much distressed. Elijah McKinney served as foreman of the jury, and after the delivering of the verdict to the court the jury was polled.

The death sentence was then read to Jett by Clerk T. J. Robinson, after which Jett was given over to the custody of the deputy sheriffs. Colonel Blanton, Jett's lawyer, will file a motion for a new trial, and if the motion is overruled he will appeal the case to the court of appeals at Frankfort.

This has been the second trial of Curtis Jett on the charge of murder. In the first trial for the murder of J. B. Marcum Jett and Thomas White were sentenced to life imprisonment.

Jett, who is said to have slain forty men, was accused in the present case of the assassination of his own cousin, James Cockrill, on May 4, 1903, in Jackson. The trial was pressed after Jett had escaped the gallows on his second trial for the murder of Judge J. B. Marcum.

The Cockrill murder grew out of a feud started in 1852 over the marriage of Miss Virginia Bulton and William Sewall of Jackson. During the last two years, it is said, twenty-seven persons have been murdered both by the Hargis and the Cockrill factions, which took opposite sides. Jett sided with the Hargis combination.

Thomas Cockrill, brother of James Cockrill, was the principal witness against Jett. There were forty witnesses called for the prosecution, and thirty-eight testified.

Thomas Cockrill was urged by his mother not to testify against his cousin, but Thomas had decided to testify to the fact that he saw his cousin fire the shot that killed his brother. He refused to listen to his mother and declared that his cousin also killed Judge Marcum and had been convicted of that crime.

General Chaffee's Report.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The annual report of Major General Adna R. Chaffee, commanding the department of the east, urges that after the adoption of a uniform it shall be adhered to without constant changes and alterations. General Chaffee states that the time seems opportune for the adoption of a pack in lieu of the blanket roll for foot troops. He describes the present condition as discreditable. The blanket roll, in his opinion, is an inconvenient thing. He also recommends that the cartridge belt be carried on braces in order that the weight may be transferred to the shoulders. Seven officers and 1,438 men were tried by general court martial during the year. Two officers and 79 men were acquitted. The number of men tried for desertion was 298. The number tried by summary court was 16,142, of which 2,548 were convicted of drunkenness.

Crack Shots in the Army.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Reports which are daily received by the war department show that as a result of the new regulations for small arm firing the men are acquiring wonderful proficiency. These regulations require the men not only to hit the bullseye, but to estimate distances up to 10 per cent of a thousand yards. In firing outside the target range at dummies the reports state that the results have been remarkable. The reports show excellent results in rapid pistol firing, it being a common thing for the men to put five shots in the bullseye at twenty-five yards in ten seconds, although they are allowed twenty seconds in which to shoot.

Bad For American Prospectors.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Sept. 23.—Advices received here from Caracas, Venezuela, state that the Official Gazette has published a decree of the government decree suspending the operation of the mining code for an indefinite period. This decree will render new acquisitions of mines in Venezuela impossible. The action of the government, taken without previous notice, will cause detriment to the American mining parties who are now engaged in surveying several mining claims in the district of the Orinoco.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 23.—The United States training ship Alliance is aground at Race Rock. The ship went upon the rock late in the afternoon, and although she is apparently hard and fast, she is in no danger. The sea is smooth, and unless there is a sudden change in weather conditions the ship will be safely floated.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR THE CONVENTOIN

Union County Democrats to Meet in Lyceum Theatre, Elizabeth, Oct. 15.

MUSIC BY THE BAND

CANDIDATES NAMED MENTIONED AT EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

Story That John W. Whelan is Attempting to Persuade the Democrats Not to Nominate C. L. Moffett is Ridiculed.

The Lyceum Theatre in Elizabeth has been chosen as a convention hall for the Democrats when they assemble October 15. The executive committee so announced at a meeting of the Democratic County committee in Elizabeth Friday. The executive committee were instructed to procure a band to provide music during the convention.

Judge O. P. Mahon presided over the meeting. The discussion was general as to the comparative strength of possible nominees for the Assembly. Opinions favorable to the candidacy of Charles L. Moffett, of Plainfield, were expressed, and four or five other names were mentioned of men who might be called upon to represent other places in the county. Joseph Dunn, of Springfield, was talked of as a probable township candidate. The story that has gained credence in this city to the effect that John W. Whelan, in support of Kean, was trying to dissuade the Democrats from nominating a Plainfield candidate in order to prevent the threatended split in the Republican ranks, was ridiculed. Andrew Nolan was the only member of the committee present from Plainfield.

SWACKHAMER SCORES STATE LEGISLATURE

Believes That the Republicans Will Rebuke Their Party Organization.

SPEECH AT CONVENTION

ADDRESSES THE MONMOUTH COUNTY DEMOCRATS AT FREEHOLD.

Democratic Party, He Claims, Gives Only Hope for Salvation From Present Political Evils in New Jersey—Great Ovation.

Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, of Somerset, made the principal address at the Monmouth County Democratic convention at the County Court House at Freehold yesterday noon. When he mounted the platform he was greeted with an ovation and cries of "Governor."

Incidentally he said: "I believe the great body of the Republican party has a settled purpose and I judge from the signs of the times that they intend to rebuke their organization and show their disapproval of the trend of recent legislation.

"The tremendous power which is being controlled in this State through the agency of legislation and favoritism, has startled the people and it is seen that a halt must be called. The Democratic party would not deny to corporations their equal rights under the laws but it would not stand for the legislation which binds the citizens of flesh and blood and makes them slaves of corporate bodies.

"The Democratic party stands between the weak and the strong—between the citizen and the corporation and simply says 'fair play.' Its cardinal principles, its perfect and absolute equality before the law in the Legislature last winter, the Democratic party stood 'as a barrier against —a foe to tyranny and injustice.' The Democratic party is the only political organization by which the political evils of the present hour can be cured. It stands for the principles announced by Thomas Jefferson, its immortal founder; firm as the eternal rocks that bound and hedge in the sea. Today it is the hope of the patriotic citizen who believe that the State Republican administration has shown a disregard for the sacred rights of that element in the government described by Abraham Lincoln, as the 'plain people.'"

PAY OF ELECTION OFFICERS

Fees for General Election Explained by Congressman Lanning—Rate $25.

Congressman-elect William M. With regard to compensation of election officers for conducting the primary and general elections, Judge Lanning has written as follows:

DR. YERKES OFFICIATES

MISS NETTIE WEISS, BRIDE'S SISTER, AS MAID-OF-HONOR.

Groom a Nephew of James T. MacMurray—Mr. and Mrs. Dixon Popular Here—Former a Member of Perseverance Lodge.

One of the charming home weddings held in North Plainfield this fall was that of Miss Caroline Elizabeth Weiss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weiss, of Regent street, to Frederick Jones Dixon, of this city, which took place at 5:30 Tuesday, Sept. 29. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor-emeritus of the First Baptist Church, was the officiating minister. The ceremony was performed in the front parlors of the home of Mrs. Kate Leland, an aunt of the bride, on Somerset street. The couple stood beneath a floral arch of smilax, backed on either side with palms and rare ferns. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Carpenter's orchestra played the wedding march of Mendelssohn as the bridal party entered. Miss Weiss wore a gown of white peau de sine trimmed with Persian lace medallions. A tulle veil was fastened at the head by a large diamond brooch, the gift of Mrs. Leland. Miss Nettie Weiss, a sister of the bride, was maid-of-honor. She wore a gown of dotted Swiss trimmed with Valenciennes lace and ribbons, and carried pink roses. Tiel roses carried by the bride were white. Thomas M. Muir was the best man. The ushers were George Egal, Jr., cousin of the bride, and Charles Dixon, brother of the groom.

A reception was held after the wedding, over two hundred being present, including guests from New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Perth Amboy, South Amboy, Tarrytown, Bound Brook and Highland Falls. A supper was served. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Dixon will reside at the home of Mrs. Leland for the present. They were well remembered by their friends. The groom gave the bride a ring studded with diamonds and to his best man he gave a diamond and pearl stick pin. His ushers each received pearl stick pins. The bride's gift to her bridesmaid was a ring set with diamonds and pearls. She received a beautiful brooch from her aunt.

The groom is a cousin of City Clerk John McMurray and has been employed at the Pond Machine Tool Works for several years. He is a member of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, and of the Trinity Reformed Church. Mrs. Dixon is a member of the First Baptist Church and is well known in the city and borough.

COMMITTEE STILL WORKING

COUNCIL INVESTIGATING SUBJECT OF TELEPHONE SYSTEMS.

No Report Until November Session —Much to be Done Before Report is Framed.

The special committee from the Common Council which was appointed to inquire into and investigate the several telephone systems in use in this connury, with a view to settling the question as to whether Plainfield should have competitive systems, is making steady progress. Mr. Tolles, who is chairmap of the committee, was in hopes that a report would be ready for the October meeting of the Council, but it has been determined that inasmuch as there is so much work to be done in connection with the investigation, this will be impossible and the report will probably not be presented before the November meeting.

*The committee has been looking in*to every known telephone system of any standing and the investigation has been conducted along impartial lines, that is, not a member has been or is prejudiced in the matter. A meeting of an informal character was held last night, when the work thus far accomplished was gone over. No one was present but the special committee and the talk was strictly of an informal nature.

LOCAL TOUCH TO STORY.

A Cousin Here of Character Portrayed in Miss Gertrude Atherton's "Conqueror."

Few people who have read Gertrude Atherton's new book, "The Conqueror," know that Angelica Church, one of the characters in the book, was a cousin of Miss Angelica Church, of this city. The latter's father, Benjamin Church, was the engineer in charge of the building of the Croton aqueduct in New York and also engineer of Jerome Park reservoir as well as being consulting engineer on other large works. The pistols used in the duel between Aaron Burr and Alexander Hamilton have been in the possession of the Church family for many years and are now in the possession of Benjamin Church, the grandson of Benjamin Church, who is a resident of this city.

All Records Broken.

Farmer Orator Martine's days of popularity must be waning, else why did the Elizabeth City Democratic Club limit him to three minutes' talking at its banquet last week, and then insist on his being choked off when he had orated for five minutes? This was the most unkindest cut of all that could have been inflicted upon the heroic leader who has six times submitted to defeat in the political arena to make a Democratic holiday.—Newark Evening News.

To Retire From Business.

Calvin H. Rugg, of West Fifth street, who a few weeks ago sustained injuries through a fall on the street, is planning to retire from business for the present at least. If he disposes of his stock of coal in the near future he will probably go South for his health.

Holds Responsible Position.

O. T. Waring, formerly of this city, has been visiting friends in town. Mr. Waring is at present in Wheeling, W. Va., where he holds a position as acting assistant division engineer of the B. & O. R. R.

Edward F. Turner, of North avenue, is visiting Paterson friends.

PREPARATIONS MADE HERE FOR A STRIKE

Work Being Rushed on a Building Intended for Use of Trolley Employes.

MYSTERIOUS ACTIONS

P. S. C. ARRANGING FOR SLEEPING QUARTERS HERE FOR MEN.

Structure to be Finished by Tonight — Similar Building Already Completed in Elizabeth— No Trouble Anticipated Here.

Evidence tending to show that the quietness among the conductors and motormen employed by the Public Service Corporation in Newark, Elizabeth, Jersey City and the Oranges is only a calm which comes before a storm, is apparent from the attitude taken by the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Railway Company during the last few days. The company seems to be preparing for a big strike and while the employes in this city affirm that there is absolutely no danger of an outbreak in Plainfield, it appears that the company intends making this city the headquarters for re-inforcements for other cities.

A permit was granted the company yesterday afternoon to erect a building on West Fourth street, adjoining the car barns. This structure which will be eighteen by eighteen by forty-five feet and sixteen feet high. In this building will be installed forty-two berths for the accommodation of trolley men. It will accommodate over 200 men. Michael Burns, of Elizabeth, is the contractor and the agreement stipulates that it shall be ready for occupancy before Thursday evening, October 1. It is probable the building will be completed by tonight.

J. Manning & Son are the sub-contractors. The permit was granted at 2 o'clock and as soon as the papers were signed a telephone message was sent to the barns and immediately a large corps of men started to work and before night the foundations were laid.

None of the employes of the road could throw any light on the action of the company in rushing through to completion a building of this character. Phillip Magnire, the division superintendent said that the first he knew of the erection of the building was when the contractor came to this city yesterday noon and applied for the permit. He declared that he did not know why the building was to be erected. None of the trolley men knew of the object for which the building was erected.

This is the second building of the kind erected by the company within the last few days. One was erected in Elizabeth and was hurried through to completion. The one in the Countyseat has a high fence about it and will accommodate more men than the one being erected here. It is stated that another building will be erected in Newark and in the Oranges.

One man said to a representative of The Daily Press yesterday that the company is erecting the buildings for the purpose of accommodating strike breakers. This has not been confirmed because none of the officials of the company will discuss the matter.

In discussing the matter with a number of trolley men, it was learned that the men in this city have no grievances and will not go out on a strike. The majority of them are pleased with the manner in which they have been treated by the company and are satisfied with their hours and wages. They do not want to strike and they will no doubt remain loyal to the company.

The fact that a strike-breaker's camp is likely to be opened in this city may mean in the event of trouble, a taste of the strike in Newark and Elizabeth and here.

Mr. Eckhardt's Funeral.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Peter Eckhardt, whose death occurred at Watchung Sunday, were held yesterday afternoon from the residence of his son-in-law, Augustus Mobus, in Regent street. Rev. Dr. Kolf, of Elizabeth, officiated. Misses Jennie and Alice DeMott sang "Good Night." The display of flowers was handsome. The interment was in Evergreen Cemetery.

Primer for Drunks.

John Kelley, was drunk. He was arrested. Chief Campbell put him in jug. Recorder Dood had a talk with him. The talk took place in the borough court. Kelley was defiant. "Three dollars," said the judge. Kelley paid.

OBSTACLES TO NEW SCHOOL VANISHING

Governor Calls Legislature in Extra Session for October 15.

A NEW LAW PROMISED

MR. M'CUTCHEN'S PART IN BRINGING ABOUT RELIEF.

Committee of State Board of Education Confer With the Governor Urging Prompt Action Which is Approved by Him.

The plans for the proposed $125,000 high school in this city will be held up but temporarily for Governor Murphy yesterday decided to call a special session of the Legislature, to be held on Thursday, October 15, to enact a law to remedy defects in the McKee school law, recently declared unconstitutional by the Court of Errors and Appeals.

The law committee of the State Board of Education held a meeting in the rooms of the Bar Association in New York City last Friday afternoon, and resolved to recommend to the State Board that it memorialize the Governor to call a special session. Samuel St. John McCutchen, of this city, president of the State Board of Education, took an active part at the meeting.

In the memorial which the committee decided to recommend that the board present to the Governor the demoralized condition to which the decision of the court had left the educational department of the State and the urgent necessity for immediate relief, was set forth.

The committee took up the McKee law and went over it exhaustively. The members considered at length each objection which the court raised to the measure, and, after discussing it, agreed upon changes which, in their opinion, will enable the law to successfully meet the objection of the court. These changes will be embodied in the new measure which will be submitted.

If the new bill meets with the approval of the State board it will be ready for introduction as soon as the Legislature is ready to receive it.

The Governor's decision yesterday came after a lengthy conference with the members of the law committee of the State Board of Education and several State officers. Among the members of the law committee of the board, who were in Trenton yesterday was Mr. McCutchen. Others present at the conference included Senator Joseph Cross, of Union County.

Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, Hold Affair.

A dime sociable under the auspices of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, was held last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, of West Fifth street and Lee place. A large number of friends of the council joined with the members. The evening was spent in playing games and in the enjoyment of vocal and instrumental music and recitations. G. Thorn, with several recitations and Miss Moorehouse, piano soloist, were among those who took an active part in the programme.

Judgment Against Brown.

James E. Guttridge, a grocer and provision dealer of Netherwood, was awarded judgment for full amount and costs on two counts in Justice Hand's court this afternoon in a suit on contract brought against Thomas L. Brown, proprietor of the Hotel Netherwood. The amounts involved were $174 on the first count and $134 on the second count. The plaintiff was represented by Assemblyman William Newcorn.

Building Permits.

Building permits issued this morning by Inspector T. O. Doane were to C. E. Gulick, of Marion avenue, for a dwelling on the corner of Park and Woodbine avenues, and to James Brown for a shed in the rear of his property at 1201-1203 North avenue.

COUNTY BASEBALL LEAGUE DISCUSSED

Scheme to Organize With Four or Five Clubs for Next Season.

PLAINFIELD A MEMBER

GOOD MATERIAL HERE FOR A FIRST-CLASS TEAM.

Elizabeth, Rahway, Westfield and Scotch Plains Considered as Members of a League—The Advantages to be Derived.

Although the present baseball season has not closed, next season's prospects are already being discussed in baseball circles and it seems to be the opinion of a majority of the lovers of the game in this city, at least, that one first-class team should represent the town in the National game. Dur*ing the past few days there has been* considerable talk about the advisability of forming a four or five-club league to include Plainfield, Scotch Plains, Westfield, Rahway and Elizabeth. It is believed that such a league would not only be a good thing financially, but would tend to increase the interest in the game considerably.

All of the places named are on the line of the trolley and easy of access and they are so near each other that a good healthy rivalry would exist between the towns represented in the league. As for Plainfield there is no doubt but what a first-class team could be supported. Crescent Oval could be used and the grounds inclosed. By increasing the seating capacity it would make an ideal place for the game. Westfield is well provided for in the way of grounds and seating capacity and it is understood that Elizabeth is similarly fixed as is also Rahway. Scotch Plains would have to improve its seating capacity somewhat.

The material for teams would not be lacking. In each of the places named there is a good strong nine and possibly with a little change there would be no trouble in getting together the requisite number of teams of about equal strength. This sort of a plan has the sanction of a host of sporting people, who would gladly lend their support toward making it a complete success.

It has been said that occasional Wednesday games would also pay in Plainfield with a strong outside club for an attraction. If properly managed there seems to be no reasonable doubt as to either Wednesday or Saturday games. The plan of selling season tickets has been successful in other places, notably Westfield, and there is believed there is no reason why it should not be in this city. This year the question of large expenditures of money for players has entered largely into the game in this city. If possible, it is argued, this should be eliminated and the expense put on a moderate basis.

In speaking of the subject a well-known "fan" said to a reporter of The Daily Press: "If the practice of paying more money to secure better players were continued it would not be long before an organization would go under for lack of funds. But on a business-like basis this could be avoided and yet good players would be brought into the game. Plainfield has plenty of material if properly handled and with possibly a little outside talent a strong team could be placed in the field."

It is said that as soon as the present season closes the St. Mary's and Alis clubs will call meetings and take steps toward next season's work. It has been suggested that the leaders in baseball in the city get together and formulate plans on a co-operative basis, instead of being called upon to support two or more teams.

Realty Conveyance.

The deed was passed this morning through the real estate agency of George F. Brown, conveying the property at the corner of Somerset street and Manning avenue, owned by the Peter Sea estate, to George Kirch. It is understood that Mr. Kirch has purchased the property with an idea of making some improvements.

For Naturalization.

Those who wish to take out naturalization papers will have their last opportunity before Election Day tomorrow, when the county committee on citizenship will meet at Elizabeth.

Informal Luncheon.

Mrs. J. B. Proteaco, of East Front street, gave an informal luncheon at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, today. Covers were laid for nine.

NOW ASSURED OF A RURAL DELIVERY

The Inspector Goes Over the Route With Postmaster Elias H. Bird.

THE SEVERAL DISTRICTS

CARRIER INVESTED WITH POWERS OF A POSTMASTER.

Going Over More Territory Today—Districts to be Included—The Pay of the Carrier—Other Details.

There now seems to be no reasonable doubt regarding the adoption of the proposed rural free delivery mail service, as detailed in The Daily Press a few days ago. Postmaster E. H. Bird has for some time past been interested in this matter and as a result of his efforts, Special Agent Edwin W. Shriver, of Westminster, Md., who is the "father" of this rural system, having been the first one to introduce it, was sent to Plainfield to investigate the matter, conduct an ex*amination for a carrier and make such* recommendations as would come under his observation in such an investigation.

Mr. Shriver came to Plainfield on Monday and yesterday morning he and Mr. Bird, together with Walter Darby, of Alton, which is in the section of territory proposed to be covered, made a trip over the route. It was learned that there are 177 families in the territory which covers twenty-three miles in all.

The route includes Park avenue to Pumptown, back to Oak Tree, through Woodland avenue by Maroonnier Chapel, to the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club grounds, to Mellick's corner, to Mt. Pleasant, to Dog Corners, to Lambert's cider mill, back to King street, to Terrill road and to the home office. At Mt. Pleasant there will be established a Government mail box and at this point there will be an exchange of mail between the carrier attached to the Plainfield office and the one attached to the Rahway office, for it is expected that a carrier from the latter office will cover about the same amount of territory extending from Rahway to a point half way to Plainfield.

If this service is adopted the territory will be known as Route No. 1, and persons sending mail to anyone living in that territory must add to the address on their letters or parcels "Route No. 1, R. F. D., Plainfield, N. J." It seems probable that the service *will be adopted the last of Novem*ber or the first of December at the latest. The service for Plainfield has received the endorsement of Congressman Charles N. Fowler.

The powers invested in the carrier on this route are extensive, almost reaching in scope those of a postmaster. He has the right to accept registered mail, cancelling the same, selling postal cards, stamps, stamped envelopes, and in fact he can do almost anything that a regularly appointed postmaster can do. For instance, if a person on his route has a letter for another person on the same route, the carrier can stamp the letter, deliver it and it will never reach a postoffice. The same is true of packages and other mail matter. This would hold true of mail picked up on the Plainfield route addressed to person son the Rahway route which would be delivered by the Rahway carrier without going to the postoffice at the latter place.

In another respect the carrier's rights are extensive. He can deliver packages or parcels of any kind for persons in Plainfield or on his route and charge whatever fee he thinks the service is worth. This would be extra money for the carrier. He can also sell newspapers, or in fact anything in general. The Government fixes his salary at $600 and he must supply a horse and wagon, but he would be able to increase his revenue considerably through the work that the Government allows him to do in connection with the duties of the position.

Mr. Shriver estimates that the carriers can cover the twenty-three miles in about five hours, that is in leaving the Plainfield office at 7:30 in the morning he should be through about 1 o'clock.

As the examination held yesterday at the postoffice and which was conducted by Mr. Shriver, there were three applications—Floyd D. Fuller, Isaac Leslie Tingley and James Leslie Lambert. The result of this examination will not be known for at least

THEY DISAGREED

Note the Reason Why

SOPHRONISBA and Athanasia were devoted friends. Sophronisba was a buyer for a department store and got $30 a week. Athanasia was a stenographer and managing clerk in an office and received $25 a week. They ought to have been happy, but they were not—not quite, that is. Nobody ever is.

The young women had heard and read of the æsthetic homes business women often made together and lived in, as it were, in paradise. They determined to take a flat. They took it. They furnished it artistically. It had china bric-a-brac from the ten cent store, a chafing dish of a kind they had read about in a woman's page edited by a man and little gilt chairs that nobody but a young woman could sit in. There was indeed one chair large enough for a man, and in that it was intended Athanasia's sweetheart should deposit his noble form—if he came.

Sophronisba and Athanasia looked upon their possessions and were happy —ever Sunday. Monday evening they reached home, each after her day's work, weary and longing for sympathy and pity, Sophronisba from Athanasia, Athanasia from Sophronisba. It was Sophronisba who opened the hall.

"Oh-ah-ah-ah!" she groaned. "I wish I was dead, I do! There's that insulting old Yardstick up and told me today the last lot of neckties I got for the store were off color and I must look out what I was about. He'll be the death of me yet, that man will. He's crazy, and he sets me wild. I've had a headache all day, and I'm not strong anyhow, and I'm all tired out and stiff from working so hard fixing up the flat. There's that snippy Nellie Bray, the notion salesgirl, nobody but a cash-girl three years ago, and now she's as impudent as a lord and sets herself up over me just because old Yardstick said she was pretty. I won't stand it!"

Athanasia had a sorrow that she did not mention. The possible sweetheart had not called the evening before, and she had looked for him. It tinged all her day with sadness, and she was feeling a little down in her mind on general principles because something had gone wrong with the business. She opened up so soon as Sophronisba paused for breath:

"It's enough to kill anybody to be a business woman, and I'm nearly dead. I've got a pain at the base of my brain. I always have it when I'm overworked, and the doctor told me I ought to be careful and never go among people who would hurt my feelings, for it would fly to the base of my brain. Doctor says I'm too sensitive anyhow to work for my living and never ought to do it. I've got such a cold I can hardly see, and every breath I draw gives me such a pain in my lungs. Oh, dear!"

And Athanasia collapsed. Sophronisba suddenly straightened up and looked miffed. This was not what she wanted. The two kept house a month. Every night the story told by each was the same, with slight variations. Each came home slumpy and whining to the other. Each had some new grievance, a pain in another place. Each wanted the other to condole with her, for her she was an angel and a martyr and a victim of deserved love and appreciation and diamonds. Instead of that, each spilled her own sorrows over on the other, and that was all the sympathy either got. At last Sophronisba exclaimed:

"Athanasia Stimmerson, you are enough to kill a horse with your whining and complaining and never a word of sympathy for anybody's troubles but your own. You've not got half as much to bear as I have. You're enough to make a man get a divorce from his wife."

"And I'd like to know what you are, with your eternal groaning and down in the mouth business? I come home at night here tired to death and disheartened, expecting to find somebody to tell my troubles to, and you don't do anything but turn around and slop all over me with your own selfish woes. They're all imaginary anyhow. You're enough to drive a saint to strong drink."

The idyllic flat was dismantled. The two friends now do not even nod as they pass by. But neither has yet found a friend who will let her pour out all her troubles without in return mentioning some of her own.

PHYSICAL CULTURE.

A Few Simple Exercises For Developing Grace of Body.

The present ideal of beauty is the tall, graceful athletic girl. We cannot all be tall, at least not in this incredible, lost century, but we may become strong and graceful. It is even claimed by physiculturists that a habitually maintained erect carriage and a steady "stretching up" of the body will in course of time add something to the height. Well, it may be so, but this much, at any rate, is certain—such a position, accompanied by habitual deep breathing, will surely prevent the unsightly slumping down of the body and the thickening about the waist that too often accompany the approach of middle age.

First determine that you will stand well. To know when you do this, test your position. Put your heels together and stand with your back against a wall, perfectly straight. One celebrated physical trainer says the whole back of the body, full length, from heels to head, should touch the wall when we stand correctly; that the properly carried human spine should be perfectly straight, without any of the hollowing which the fashionable corset attempts to accentuate. He declares that only by holding the spine perpendicular can the spinal cord be free from uneven pressure and thus send full stimulus to the great nerve trunks. At any rate, the more nearly you can make the back of your legs through their whole length, also your backbone through its whole length, touch that wall the better you stand.

Now for the front of the body. Stand upon one side of a room and approach with a long, free step to the opposite wall. Of course your toes will touch the opposite wall first as you come in to it. But now notice concerning the rest of the body. Does your chest or your stomach touch first? If your stomach, then that is all wrong. In the properly developed person the chest stands out forward beyond the stomach and when you walk up to a wall will touch first every time.

The full, round, deep chest is one of the leading marks of beauty in a woman. If you find you have it not, then develop it by holding your chest up and by training it until it is a habitual deep breathing. The shoulders themselves have not much to do with elevating the chest. Just draw your lungs upward, and the flabby, spongy muscles around and above the waist will follow.

The deep breathing habit itself will draw your chest upward. Stand erect, back and legs against the wall, clothing absolutely unhampering. From the region of the waist line, also a little below, begin and slowly draw in all the pure air you can hold. It is no good if the air is not pure. Then exhale as slowly as you inhaled. That is all. Habituate yourself to this, and it will develop your chest magnificently. If along with it you constantly stand erect and hold yourself up. The very breathing itself lifts the chest, as you will notice. It is a good plan to take physical exercises standing in front of a mirror, so you can note the effect.

The erect carriage and constantly elevated chest give a carriage so noble that the woman who habituates herself to this attitude will be noticed and admired to exceed wherever she passes. Strangers will involuntarily conclude she is "somebody." Pity indeed that the correct carriage is so rare among our sex that a woman who possesses it is instantly singled out wherever she goes.

There are some plain exercises that greatly strengthen and limber the muscles of the back, hips and legs and prevent the body from becoming unwieldy and hippopotamus-like. Here is one: Wearing very little clothing, and that entirely loose and unhampering, lie upon the floor flat upon the back, arms at the sides; then, without using hands or arms any more than if you had none, rise from the floor, first to a sitting posture, then upon your feet, straight up. Maybe you cannot do it at first, but practice will give you power. Think what you would have to do if you were armless and act accordingly in this exercise. Another excellent practice is while lying upon the back on the floor to raise the legs in the air, first one, then the other, at right angles, gradually bringing your feet over toward your head. By and by you will actually be able to touch the floor above your head with your toes while you lie upon the back.

The exercises indicated in the illustrations are for strengthening and making nimble the legs and back. They explain themselves, and there is nothing better for the purpose for which they are intended.

FALL COSTUMES.

Three Quarter Length Coats Are Becoming to Most Women.

Three-quarter length coats will be "the thing" next winter, and they will be elaborately stitched and trimmed.

The same rule of coat length applies to suits. The short coat, blouse or Eton will not be seen nearly as much, even on short women, for it is a mistake to think a three-quarter length coat shortens a woman who is not tall. It does nothing of the kind if properly proportioned.

How much more sensible is this fashion of ample coats than the foolish abbreviated outer wraps with which we have sought to keep warm during freezing weather.

Lace is appliqued on many of the more expensive costumes, but it must be very handsome, heavy lace enriched with embroidery and figures made of velvet a shade darker than the material.

The hat to be smart in the winter must match the costume, and even furs should harmonize. The well dressed woman will be she who is in one tone from head to foot.

The picture shows a blouse of stitched fawn colored flannel, with tiny braid and velvet figures.

FASHIONABLE COLORS.

Soft Shades of Green, Leather and Tan—Red Still Popular.

Some very soft, subdued shades in green are shown, but these are not likely to be generally worn. Leather tints are conspicuously shown, and the tan shades are certain to be seen in combination with emplre green and imperial red and purple. An exquisite Paris model for autumn wear shows a soft colored brown vigogne, the skirt with a vandyked band of brown velvet partially overlaid with an applique design in passementerie. The bodice is almost tight fitting with the exception of the pouched front, and there is no belt, thus giving a longer waisted effect than we have for some time enjoyed. Over this are worn a pelerine and long stole ends of brown velvet trimmed with mink fur and many tails in front, and at the neck there is also much saffron tinted lace.

Blue is always a favorite color for autumn wear, but the blue gowns this year are extremely pretty and wondrously bright and smart, for there are so many little additions of lace embroidery and tasseled passementerie, which, with linings of light silk or satin, complete the effect.

Graceful shoulder straps in soft china or tussore silk have been made in large numbers for early autumn. These are particularly effective when embroidered in pastel tinted silks and fringed with soft strands of silk, colored thread or chenille. The shape of some much resembles the early Victorian scarf, while others are fashioned to slope over the shoulders and fall in to a bood pointed behind and decorated with tassels and cords, all more or less of an old world character.

The cut shows a tan dress trimmed with heavy lace and deeper tan panne velvet.

"Song Spotting."

"Song spotting" is a new industry described by "T. A. T." the new English penny paper, the Comic-Journal. The "song spotter" is the accredited and responsible agent of the big London music publishing firms—or some of them, at all events. His business is to go from one seaside resort to another all the summer round, spending a week or so at each, and "spotting" which ditties "go" and which do not. He knows that some among the songs whose choruses are hummed upon the sands this summer will be the favorites during the dark winter evenings. So he reports each evening to his principals in London. These latter have, of course, other "song spotters" working on similar lines in other districts, and should the reports coincide regarding any particular ballad negotiations are at once opened with the composer for the acquisition of the copyright.—N. Queer Church Tribute.

Smoke-farthings were offerings paid in olden days at Whitsuntide to the priest, according to the number of chimneys in his parish. Sometimes these dues were demanded by the bishop of the diocese, as an old manuscript records: "The bishop of Elie hath out of evrie parish in Cambridgeshire certain tribute called smoke-farthings, which the churchwardens to levie according to the number of chimneys that be in a parish." Peter's pence or smoke-money was still paid at the end of the sixteenth century in many English parishes. Similar to this was a chimney-tax levied from time to time to raise funds. This was most obnoxious to the people, and Pepys in his diary notes: "Much clamor against chimney-money; and the people say they will not pay it without force." It was abolished in the reign of William and Mary.—Chicago Post.

Infallible Insomnia Cure.

Two distinguished Berlin physicians, Profs. Emil Fischer and Von Mering, have discovered what they regard as an infallible cure for insomnia. They call it veronal. It has been used with remarkable results, it is said, in a large Berlin hospital by Prof. Lilienfeld, who expresses the firm conviction that no other medicine to produce sleep approaches veronal in certainty and intensity. He administered 450 doses to 60 patients of both sexes and various ages. Each morning after the dose the patient was fresh and felt as if the sleep had been wholly natural. In all of the experimental cases the heart and lungs performed their functions with the utmost exactitude.

Dried Oysters in China.

Oysters in China are frequently dried for use instead of being eaten fresh. They are taken from the shells, plunged for an instant into boiling water, and then exposed to the rays of the sun until every particle of moisture has evaporated, when it is said they will keep for a length of time, while preserving the full delicacy of their flavor. The finest and fattest bivalves, with the shells of the leaves and cuttings of the bamboo, are chosen for this process, those taken from the natural beds being inferior in quality and not sufficiently plump for the operation.—Golden Penny.

Constant Patron.

A lady enters the shop of the picture-framer and leaves an order. When she has gone the maker of frames turns to his customer who has been waiting and says:

"That lady certainly is a good patron of mine."

"Gives you a good deal of work, does she?"

"Not a great deal; but if she continues as she has this summer, I can count on a regular income from her. In May she came to get her college diploma framed; in June she had me fix up her marriage certificate in a neat gilt molding; and now she wants her divorce decree mounted and framed."—Judge.

Measuring Hides.

The ancient tanner paid an expert high wages to gauge at the contents of his hides when sold by measure. Today an unskilled workman hands the irregular-shaped pieces to a little machine that looks something like a table with a double top, which, quicker than the mind of the expert could guess it, reckons with exactness the square contents in both the metric and standard systems.

WOMEN WORKERS.

Odd Ways In Which Some of Them Earn Their Living.

In the old days there were practically only three ways in which a woman might earn her living—by sewing, by teaching and by nursing. Anything else was considered unladylike, and indeed any other occupation was not likely to be open to women. Now all is changed, and we keep hearing of new ways by which woman can earn her daily bread.

For instance, in Berlin (just think of it, that most un-new womanly city) women sign painters are no novelty. There is a regular school for them. They learn how to use the brush and how to mix paints. Gymnastic training is carefully practiced before they are allowed to ascend the scaffolding, so that they may not lose their nerve in standing on the ladder. They wear the gray linen frock and cap which are the house painter's badge as well as his defense against paint.

A Minneapolis woman has constituted herself a traveling librarian, organizing and cataloguing libraries wherever she finds occasion. Of course to do this work one must have a regular library training, a thorough knowledge of bookkeeping and ability to read French and German.

Entertainment catering is another branch in which several clever girls are engaged. It is a calling particularly suited to girls of good education and social standing. When the busy hostess wishes to give an entertainment she calls in one of these young women, who takes all responsibility from the shoulders of her employer. She superintends the making out of the programme, if any; the menus and the order in which any diversions shall appear. She is an expert on table decorations and can plan novel figures for a cotillion.

A very profitable occupation is that of designer of advertisements. With a certain cereal or article of commerce in mind, the clever girl writes a line or two or a verse. She accompanies this with the suggestion for a picture and takes it to the advertising manager of the firm to which the article belongs. If the idea is a good one she is well paid for it and is probably asked to submit more of her ideas. Indeed, the successful planning of advertisements is something which pays far more than the higher forms of art.

But it is the French women who have the strangest modes of earning their daily bread. Snails are raised in great quantities in the gardens around Paris and Bordeaux, as they are considered dainties on the Paris bills of fare. A woman on the outskirts of Paris, by name Mlle. Blanche, provides the zoological garden with ants' eggs. So blitz is she by her modes that her skin has assumed a leather like texture, and bites do not worry her any longer, for she lives and sleeps among her sacks of ants!

The bed, washstand, etc., are in a small alcove which may be curtained off from the day. The rest of the large apartment is furnished after the fashion of a sitting room and filled with the bric-a-brac, books, etc., of the owner.

The paper of the room in the picture is an empire pattern, green and white. The woodwork is white, but the furniture is mahogany inlaid with a light tracing. The washstand is fitted with green and white china. The old fashioned dressing stand is worthy of notice on account of its quaint lines.

The sitting room section is furnished with [illegible] including the chairs. The pictures are surrounded by narrow gilt green frames, and the floor is covered with a dark green carpet.

DAME FASHION'S MOODS.

The Modes of the Season Are Based on Common Sense.

So far this season fashion has appeared to take a common sense view of things in general and to choose out of what we have been wearing all that is useful, pretty and becoming and after making a few changes and alterations giving them back to us for fall and winter wear. The shirt waists that so many were sure would be relegated to the bourn whence old styles never return are with us still. They are now of fine flannels, either Scotch or French, and of silks of quite heavy qualities, some of them overlaid with lace. Veilings are also used largely for these waists, and they take so kindly to heavy applications of lace that it seems to belong on them by right. Linen in white or very light color is often employed for the dressiest of these, and many of them show a small cape line entirely of lace or nearly if not quite covered with the material. Quite a number of these small capes and pelerines are bordered with fringe, and some have an elaborate pattern worked in spangles.

NEW WAISTS AND CAPELINES.

The voile gowns will soon be thought too transparent for the season, but the waists of that pleasing fabric will be seen often. Crepe de chine, leopard panne in very rich colors, embossed velvets, the Persian designs in the same and the shining gun metal velutinas all are designed for separate waists.

The general plan of making them is not very different from that of the last season, but one may say that they are not so loose and look much trimmer at the waist line. The point in front is a matter of personal taste, for some of them are quite round. Others are deeply pointed, and almost all, of whatever kind or quality, have tucks as a part of the body of the waist or trimming.

For everyday wear the vestings give a fine variety of stuffs and colors, all mercerized. The vestings, being so thick, require less trimming, but they make a stylish and striking waist. Madras is another cotton which is developed into almost a new fabric, so heavy and so carefully designed is it. Most of the flannels are intended to be washed, and so the coloring is not so rich and vivid as silk, but it is handsome, particularly a velvety mulberry shade. This in soft woolen goods is simply beautiful.

I notice on many of the waists much shirring. This is put on the shoulders and at the wrists and waist. Shirring was always pretty. Black brilliantine is used in many pretty and useful garments of this kind. But in the veiling there are many colors and shades, including lilac, champagne, pale blue, rose and shell pink, nattier blue, ecru, castor and several shades of delicate green and the helios. Some have deep lace covered yokes, and in fact one can have what she thinks she would look pretty in.

Buttons are to be a factor in the season's styles, and some of them are almost as fine as jewels, while others are severely plain. Some are large and others very small; some are of pearl and others of silk to match the dress. Buttons covered with linen are seen on many waists, and the amount of fancy passementerie with small crocheted pendants is limitless. Belts are made of fancy silk braid and have tasseled ends, while some are military in style, extending around the back and Hungarian braids are offered with confidence, for they are too handsome to overlook.

Some of the fancy collars and belts look as if they had been taken from some museum where a special cult had been made of Indian relics. The same way of weaving must have been employed, and the same figures have been wrought. There is a glistening bead belt all in white, with a twisted fringe of the same, which is really beautiful from every point of view. All these bead belts are long enough to cross at the waist line and hang down several inches, say six, with the fringe still below.

Among the silks we find the new soft finished black taffeta, which is to be a leading fabric for nice suits. There are also many colored taffeta dress silks and velours chiffon, which is a marvel of beauty.

Next to silks for fineness and desirability comes the imported broadcloth. This may be satin finished or dull finished, as one prefers. When made as such superb material deserves it is one of the most elegant of woolen goods.

HENRIETTE BOUSSEAU.

THE NEW WOMAN

She Is in the Lead

I HAVE been reading a brief outline of one of the strangest lives ever lived by a woman. A remarkable and famous career it would have been even for a man. The woman was Mrs. Jane Burke, Indian scout, hunter, army guide—likewise, unfortunately, gambler and whisky drinker, it is said. Had she left off the last two she would have been easily as distinguished in her career as Colonel Cody has become in his. She was not very old when she died in Terry, S. D.—only about fifty-one. Yet the true story of her life would outstrip in romance, in deeds of daring, strength and skill almost any mere fiction tale of adventure that could be written. Mrs. Burke was born in Princeton, Mo., but went when the latest whip of a girl with her father to Montana to hunt gold. The life of the miners' camp of those days appealed to her powerfully, and she fell in with it at once. Famous Indian fighter and scout she became very soon. She feared nothing dead or alive. She wore a man's buckskin suit, with knife and pistols at her belt. Once in a hard fought Indian battle she saved the life of Captain Egan of the United States army in 1872. He gave her the name of "Calamity Jane," and under that designation you have often read of her. She acted as scout for General Crook in his Indian campaigns, carrying dispatches and accomplishing desperate rides, taking risks that few men would have dared. Another of her feats was the capture of Jack McCall, the murderer of "Wild Bill," otherwise William Hickok, whom she seems to have cared for with all a strong woman's devotion. When she was dying and knew it she asked that her body be buried beside that of "Wild Bill," and this was done. But civilization overtook even this great character at last—great, though unfortunately placed. At length there were no more Indians to fight or horse thieves to lynch, no more galloping over the plains with knife and pistols at belt, no more wild mining camp life. Then "Calamity Jane" died. Her life ought to be written.

Mrs. Booker T. Washington is working bravely for women of her own color. It is a field of labor a prophet and hero might be grateful for. Negro women today are making better use of their race's newly obtained advantages than negro men are. Mrs. Washington says of her colored sisters: "There is still much foundation work for us to do, but some time, somewhere, we shall stand equal to any body of women, for we accept the theory that we are inferior only in opportunity, not in ability."

Ella Wheeler Wilcox is of opinion that woman is growing in America as nowhere else, and she adds the significant prophecy, "From her will come the great leaders for whom the world waits." It is not likely there will be hereafter many great single leaders either among men or women. That age is probably past, and happily so. The whole feminine sex is gradually developing the powerful, splendid qualities that only the finest, even among men, have hitherto attained to. Thousands of strong, glorious, perfected women will move forward all together, and the rest of the sex will be with them, a resistless army. This is what the world is waiting for.

In a coal mine one morning no men appeared to go to work. Investigation showed that the evening before, when most were cared for the day, the company's mules were hoisted up the shaft to the surface of the earth ahead of the company's miners. "After mules is manners for me" did not suit the miner, and he struck in consequence. Men have their little feelings, too, it seems, as well as women.

One of the best signs of the times is that so many girls take a real interest in political questions.

I certainly have never seen anything like so many handsome, well groomed old ladies as I have met in the past year or two. They are plainly not young, but they are really more beautiful than many of the girls, and they dress with exquisite care and taste.

How to tell when your clothes are too tight? Breathe in all the air you can hold. If your garments over your head and clasp your hands. If you cannot do this with perfect ease and without the feeling of being bound, then your garments are injuriously close fitting. They are tighter than skin tight, for the skin permits you to make all motions freely.

It is better to earn the money to get new dresses than to sit down and make over old ones.

It has been said often that if a horse knew his own power no human being could control or drive him. The same is exactly true of woman. What is it that makes one human being superior to another? It is the sense of one's own inward power, and that sense of power can be cultivated.

Have resources within yourself. Then you will never be lonely or dependent on others for happiness. There are gardening, cycling, reading, music—a dozen entertaining and improving exercises a woman can devote herself to.

All things are possible to the will and the illuminated mind.

Geronimo Now a Methodist

Murderous Apache Chieftain, Who Was a Modern Attila, Joins the Church, Awed by Story of the Thief on the Cross.

GERONIMO, in the twilight of his life, has given his Indian heart to God. The one time chief of a murderous band of Apaches has joined the Methodist church. He has taken the solemn vow that makes him a follower of the gospel of love.

It was an impressive moment when the decrepit warrior of the plains bowed his head and received the drops of water that symbolized his change of heart. The old spirit of defiance was gone and in its stead was a gentle mien of submission. The man who had slaughtered innocent women and children, ambushed the luckless palefaces, was under the spell of the precept of the Great Peacemaker.

Taken from his prison home at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, to a little church not far away, Geronimo professed his new faith before a great crowd of whites and Indians. Geronimo was not alone in his profession. Twelve of the men who had followed him into many a revel of death and destruction also joined the church. After the ceremony they went back to prison, where, in the custody of the United States government, they may spend all their days.

Rarely have the simple prairie folk of the west seen such a ceremony as that which made Geronimo and his little band a part of the great army of Christians. The Rev. Mr. Brown's words were chosen as though he were talking to little children. On one side was a picturesque group of Comanches, on the other the Apache warriors. Each tribe had its interpreter, standing in the foreground repeating the words of the palefaces preacher.

The minister told the story of Him of Galilee. The tragedy of the cross was described in words that brought tears to the bronzed cheeks of the men around him.

"Christ came," said the speaker, "not to save the white man alone, but to bring everlasting joy to all the world."

The red men learned how they could receive free and full salvation, how they could pass from life to a happy death and from death to another life in the happy hunting grounds which God had prepared for those who loved and followed Him. The thief on the cross was not forgotten, in the Scriptural story. This part of the sermon seemed to appeal with peculiar force to Geronimo, about whose withered face played a wan smile.

The New York Herald says that when the sermon was done the doors of the little church were thrown open and Geronimo and his 12 companions passed inside. They moved to the front and there, through the medium of interpreters, they professed their love for and faith in the white man's God. They wanted to "walk the way of Jesus," they said, and atone for the deeds of the past.

Then Geronimo and the others bowed their heads in turn and were baptized "In the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, amen." Thus the grim old warrior who had terrorized the southwest for years and defied the majesty of the great father's government became a Methodist and set his face serenely toward the fast setting sun.

The story of Geronimo and his tribe of hostile Indians is not unfamiliar to American readers. The tribe was for years the terror of Arizona and New Mexico, where they killed and burned without mercy. Men, women and even children were their victims, and, not satisfied with ordinary murder, they often mutilated those they slew.

Many attempts to capture the band and bring it to justice were made without success. Finally Lieut. Gen. Sheridan planned the pursuit, capture and destruction of the band. The expedition against the outlaws was led by the late Gen. George Crook, who came into close conflict with Geronimo March 25, 1886.

To the demand for an unconditional surrender the Apache chief declared that he would give himself up only on condition that the band, with their families, be sent east for a period not exceeding two years and that they then be returned to the reservation. On the way the Indians escaped. Gen. Crook was then succeeded by Gen. Nelson A. Miles, and there followed the memorable pursuit of Geronimo and his brave.

Gen. Miles and Maj. Gen. Lawton cornered Geronimo in the Four Peaks basin, near Prescott, Ariz. After months of starvation and after all hope of cutting their way through the cordon of troops around them had gone, the Indians raised the white flag. They were first sent to the military post at Mount Vernon, Ala., but the climate there did not agree with them. Many of the band died from consumption

STICKS TO COACHMAN.

Countess Russell Becomes Reconciled to Bill Brown, Who Masqueraded as a Prince.

The announcement that Countess Mabel Russell has forgiven and become reconciled to her husband, a coachman named William Brown, who married her last December under the title of Prince Archibald Stuart de Modena, has caused much gossip in London. Countess Russell, at the time of Brown's conviction for making a false entry in the marriage entry, said she would have nothing more to do with him, and that she would try to secure a divorce. Now, however, she says that, although he accused her, she will stick to him. She thinks she will not lose her title by her marriage.

Few women in British society have been more discussed than the countess. By a curious irony of fate, she bears the title which was held for half a century by the remarkable woman who, first as the wife and then the widow of the statesman affectionately known to the British people as "Lord John Russell," held a position almost unique in society, her home, Pembroke lodge, Richmond Park, having been visited by most of the distinguished men and women of the Victorian era.

The countess, notwithstanding her youth, has had a variegated career. She was the wife of Earl Russell, from whom she obtained a divorce on the ground that he had contracted a bigamous marriage with Molly Somerville, at Reno, Nev. On his return to England the earl was tried for bigamy, was convicted and spent three months in jail. The countess has been quite successful on the stage.

whose names have been in the papers lately in connection with the papacy. His age is 52 years, and he was created a cardinal in 1894. Svampa longs for that era, long gone by, when the idea prevailed that the pope should take the first place among the secular princes of Italy. He avoids the present king on every possible occasion, as he did his late lamented father, Emmanuel, and the king's grandfather, whom he positively hated. Some superstitious Italian cardinals supported Svampa's candidacy because of a very curious fact. There is a prophecy dating from the twelfth century, according to which Rome would in time see a line of popes indicated by certain symbols. The "Benedictus" denotes "Fame," and therefore it was believed that the old prophecy pointed to Svampa, and that in time his light would be sure to shine in the papal sky. Cardinal Svampa is a very large, rather corpulent, jolly man, and in striking contrast to the late pope, the most spiritual pontiff who has ruled these many years.

FISH THAT CARRIES WEAPONS.

Species That Has Skin Like Sand-Paper and Armed with Three-Cornered Files.

Two of the fish at the aquarium wear armor and carry concealed weapons. As the police seldom visit the aquarium and no complaints have been filed, the fish have not been disturbed in the possession of their armaments, says the New York Tribune. They are the orange filefish, which are coated with a skin that resembles sandpaper in the latter's most striking characteristic, and is a hollow on the top of the back they carry sharp three-cornered files. When not in use these lie along the back. When a grudge is to be settled the filefish literally gets his back up and vindictively tickles the object of his hatred in the ribs.

The two specimens at the aquarium were secured a short time ago in Gravesend bay by fishermen in the neighborhood of the bay have other names for them. "Old sow," "old maid" and "foolfish" are some of the designations which they apply to them when they sit over the fire and spin yarns. The shape of the head and mouth is responsible for these names. The mouth opens upward, the lower jaw protruding beyond the upper. Crustaceans are the diet of this fish, and the shape of the mouth and the sharp teeth within are for catching and destroying this kind of food. One would say, judging from their appearance, that their diet was not well suited to their needs, for they have a starved look. The other day a party of sightseers observed this look.

"Here's a fish trying the starvation cure," remarked one, turning to his companions. "There's something the matter with him. Don't you see how thin he is?"

CORRECTED HIS MISTAKE.

Klondike "Dentist" Got the Right Tooth Later On and Charged for It.

High prices often prevail in frontier towns, and those who live in new settlements become accustomed to the charges and think little about it. A man who recently returned from the Klondike tells a good story which is printed in the New York Tribune.

People get used to paying big money for trifles, he said, and two dollars for a box of sardines or five dollars for a round of bad coffee came to be regarded as reasonable prices. But once I had the surprise of hearing an unexpectedly low price named. It was like this: I had a jumping toothache—was nearly wild with it—and went to a shanty which was told there was a dentist. A rough-looking fellow told me that he was the dentist, and I asked him to draw my tooth. He looked me over, got his forceps fastened on my tooth and yanked it out after a couple of hard twists.

"How much?" I asked.

"Well, two dollars, I guess," said the dentist.

I paid him, although my jaw still ached badly.

"That's the cheapest thing I've seen round here," I remarked, as I gave him the money.

"Well," he said, "I thought I'd make it low, because on account of the bad light I pulled the wrong tooth."

I had to go the next day and have the bad tooth out, and he made matters square by charging me ten dollars.

INDIAN BANK DEPOSITORS.

Red Men of Kansas Are Learning How to Put Away Their Money Like White Men.

The Lawton Enterprise states that many Indians near its city have learned how to take care of their money. Nearly every bank in Lawton has several Indian cash deposits, says the Kansas City Journal.

A week ago a withered squaw with buckskin leggings and moccasins went to the bank. From under a leather thong which she wore as a substitute for a belt she produced a leather pouch, with fringe and beads. From out of this receptacle she produced a little buckskin sack. After fumbling about in it she secured a small purse. Tucked into the corner of it was a wad of paper twisted smaller than the end of your little finger. She began to untwist and unfold the wad with the care of a specialist performing an operation on the human eye.

Gradually the paper developed into a crumpled deposit check. She had some difficulty in explaining to the teller how much money she wanted. She signed with her hand, grunted, held up her seven fingers, finally he understood, grunted three times and she grunted one and smiled—when the sum that she asked for was handed over.

A Full House.

According to a Washington story writer President Roosevelt says that the accident on his long trip that aroused him most occurred at a small town in Kansas, where a two-minute stop was made. The president had been talking freely of his "race suicide" notion that day, says the Kansas City Journal. At the station in Kansas a man stood holding three small children on his left hand, while a woman beside him carried two babies. The president's speech was going along smoothly when suddenly the man with three children broke in with a voice that could be heard a quarter of a mile.

"Hey! Teddy," he said, "can you beat this? It's a full house, Teddy—triplets and twins; three of a kind and a pair!"

SPORTS AND ATHLETICS

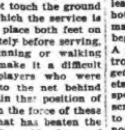
Tennis experts have been playing a more or less prominent part in the public prints of the east, and the preliminary practice for the international matches have caused considerable interest. American players have, as a rule, been playing an unsteady game and their real form not shown. H. L. Doherty, the British champion, who with his brother,

H. T. Doherty.

R. F. Doherty, and H. F. Mahony, recently arrived to take part in the matches, has perhaps displayed the best tennis shown yet in the east, and that only when forced out of his easy-going stride to prevent the loss of a set. Doherty goes at the game much like a man playing for the pure animal enjoyment of it, leisurely making his strokes and at peace with himself and the world. Once aroused, though, his speed and steadiness are something remarkable and are some indication of the style of game the Americans are up against. His cross-court drives and smashes, beautifully and fiercely placed, are decidedly depressing to his opponents. If in the international matches he has the ability to so vary his style from the easy strength-saving game to the fierce, fast play there is no doubt he could win the series, strength conditions being equal.

In the tournaments so far played on the Metropolitan tennis courts this season little attention has been given the new service rule, more familiarly known as the foot-fault rule which was made by the United States National Lawn Tennis association. Where the average American player is at variance with those who advocated the change is in that part of the rule which says: "It is not a fault if one only of the server's feet does not touch the ground at the moment at which the service is delivered. He shall place both feet on the ground immediately before serving, and not take a running or walking start." This will make it a difficult matter for those players who were so fast at getting to the net behind their service to attain that position of vantage. It has been the force of these aggressive tactics that has beaten the Englishmen from the old days of Goodbody down to the time of the great competitions of the last year, which will be recalled as overthrow of the Doherty brothers.

Speed and ability to break world's records do not always win middle-distance bicycle races, as a was shown recently in Boston, when Bobby Walthour defeated George Leander, of Chicago, and Bastide Guichard, the Cuban champion. The distance was 15 miles from a standing start and Walthour won in 18:11. De Guichard is the rider who recently reeled off a mile at Pittsburg in 1:08, creating a new mark, while Leander came into prominence recently by breaking all world's records from one to 15 miles.



George Leander.

Middle distance pace following nowadays is a much more dangerous proposition than it used to be in the days of the triples and quads propelled by legpower. Since the introduction of mechanical pace there have been several fatalities and more serious accidents is taken to guard against such accidents as resulted in the deaths of Johnny Nelson, Harry Elkes and others. The pacemaker, too, comes in for a great deal of consideration and the man over the motor must present a strange sight to eyes accustomed to the scanty attire of the old days. In the first place the pacemaker is provided with a solid leather cap, such as is used by football players. This fits snugly on his head and also protects his ears, so in case of a fall he has a chance to escape fracture of the skull. He is dressed as warmly as if going on an arctic expedition—a leather suit and rubber overshoes being designed to protect him. The clothes are all heavily padded and this saves him some when an accident results in a fall. The pacefollower has to take more chances. He cannot handicap himself with heavy clothing and a headgear and has to take his chance in a mix-up. About the only safeguard he has is an iron attachment on the rear of the pacing machine which prevents him from touching wheels with the motor. This in itself, however, saves many falls, although in the old days Jimmy Michael used to nonchalantly rub wheels while going at top speed without causing the cropper that usually results.

The grand old games of yachting has been revived on the Oconomowoc lakes in Wisconsin. The twenty-fifth annual regatta of the Oconomowoc Yacht club was sailed on La Belle lake recently. Boats from half a dozen lakes were entered. The event was the most interesting regatta that has taken place on the lake in years and as a social affair it surpassed all expectations.

Hughey Duffy, manager of the Milwaukee Western League club, has announced that there was no truth in the report that the Milwaukee club was to be transferred to Peoria and the latter club shifted here for the balance of the season.

WRITER'S THOUGHT CRAMP.

Distressing Periods of Mental Apathy When the Brain Refuses to Work.

If the fiction writer has his delicious moments, when he states the joys which come with the excitement of creative composition—and these he undoubtedly has—also he knows distressing periods of mental apathy, says the Reader.

He has been working away at top speed, full of gladness in that subtle faculty which he weaves in the warp and woof of paper and ink. His head is packed with inspired ideas, like a gift box from the gods. His hopes ride high. His ambitions scrape the clouds.

Then something happens. It is not a snap, a break, a crash—nothing so tangible. It is just a ceasing. Abruptly, unexpectedly, all his fine thoughts vanish. No longer is life a country of majestic, white-robed heights and alluring purple-toned valleys. All is flat and gray and bleak.

Just about now, if the writer only knew it, is a most excellent time to go fishing.

Instead, baffled, discouraged, heartsick, he sits with his head in his hands, contemplating with foolish self-pity the melancholy spectacle of himself.

But, like drought and flood, war and pestilence, and all other ills great and small, it passes. And he knows not how or when it goes. Days after he wakes up to find himself, pen in hand, hard at work again. Of its own accord, apparently, the machine has set itself in motion.

MISLAID EYEGLASSES.

A Common Occurrence in the Heated Season When People Dress Lightly.

"Summer is the time for mail order business in our trade," said an optician who has a large trade in the Wall street territory, relates the New York Times. "A man who is in the habit of carrying his eyeglasses in his waistcoat pocket when it is cool enough to wear a full suit of clothes is more than likely to leave them around in restaurants, on hotel piazzas, or any other place he may happen to lay them down when he begins to wear flannels and outing suits. A number of men won't wear coat-and-trousers suits simply because they can't get along without the waistcoat pocket. To lose a pair of eyeglasses or spectacles made to order from a prescription and costing anywhere from $5 to $15 is no trifling matter, to say nothing of having to get along with a cheap pair for two or three days until we can make another pair. Opticians keep these prescriptions in books, just as druggists do medicinal prescriptions. We are constantly getting orders from customers away on their vacation to duplicate glasses that have been lost or broken. Sometimes they are in such a hurry that they send us the number by telegraph."

OUR FREAKISH NOTIONS.

"Crazy Social" a Yankee Idea Which Gives Londoners Something to Say About Us.

That some English people believe Americans capable of any sort of freakish notion under the guise of entertainment is attested by a paragraph in a recent issue of an English weekly. The writer, a woman, says an American friend tells her that "a new Yankee notion is a 'crazy social,' at which the idea is that everybody and everything should look and act as insanely as might be. The costumes, the women and the men should be eccentricity personified, and the food served must be arranged to match." According to this chronicler, at a recent "crazy social" the meats were served in jelly molds, jam pots or dust-pans; the vegetables in cake-baskets, and more awful still in a fire shovel, the ice cream in a stew pan, the wine glasses were filled with mustard, the jellies trembled in a saucepan lid, the cream was in a pickle bottle, the sugar in the salt cellars and the salt in the sugar basins. The thing which ought to have been roasted were boiled, and salt flavored the food which is usually sweet. Attempts were made to eat clear soup with dessert forks, and ice cream with table knives.

CHAMELEONS IN BATHING.

New Fad Which Summer Girls at Atlantic City Have Made Much Of.

Taking chameleons in to bathe is a new fad which Atlantic City has developed, says a recent report.

Scores of girls have adopted it.

The scheme was worked by a girl who owned a chameleon that had grown lazy. She tried various ways of arousing it from its stupor, and at last hit upon the idea of taking it in swimming. Her efforts were rewarded with an instantaneous change in the little lizard's demeanor. Just as soon as it heard the roll of the first breaker its skin went through a whirl of colored hues. And when she took it in, ducking it produced a new shade of pink verging into yellow and green that she never knew it possessed.

Little time was lost in making known the discovery to others through the resort, and girls who had no chameleons bought them right off to see the ocean's effect on them.

"Oh, girls," cried one, as she held out her chameleon for inspection, "some water splashed into his eyes, and he looks like a box of paint. I wonder if the fear thing's angry?"

Russia and Japan

EVENTUALLY THEY WILL HAVE TO FIGHT FOR POSSESSION OF KOREA

THAT the interests of Russia and Japan in eastern Asia almost inevitably conflict must be apparent to the most superficial observation, but there is no evidence that the danger is at present sufficiently acute to suggest the possibility of war.

The population of Japan numbers some 45,000,000, and is increasing at the rate of about half a million a year. The agricultural area of the island empire is so little adequate to sustain this population that foodstuffs form a large item of its imports. The menace of congested population has been made less formidable by the development of manufactures in Japan, but for any greatly increased volume of production a foreign market must be found, and the nearest and most promising openings for Japanese trade are in Korea and northern China. Hence the vital importance to Japan of keeping Manchuria and Korea out of the grasp of a power likely to close the door on its commerce by the imposition of a differential tariff.

MANCHURIA AND KOREA.
(The Country in Dispute Between Russia and Japan.)

But even in the most favorable circumstances it may be doubted whether any possible expansion of her manufactures will, in itself, supply a satisfactory solution of Japan's population question when it becomes really pressing. Some oversea territories must be found to receive the overflow, and it is only in the peninsula across the straits of Tsushima that room is immediately available for immigration on a large scale. It is generally known how many inhabitants there are in the 80,000 square miles in Korea, the estimates varying from 6,000,000 to 15,000,000. Assuming that the truth is somewhere between these extremes, the peninsula is certainly equal to the support of another eight or ten million people. Large tracts of its soil are well suited for sericulture, the mineral wealth of the country has only partly been exploited, and it has an agricultural area larger than that available in the whole of Japan.

But, says the Chicago Post, if Japan is vitally concerned about getting seated in the peninsula, Russia is equally concerned about keeping the islanders out of political control of a country which it regards as essential to the control of the communications between its northern and southern arsenals on the Pacific. The Japanese already hold one side of the Korean straits by their forts on the island of Tsushima, and if they were to establish a strong naval base on the southern coast of the peninsula they would have full command of the sea communications between Port Arthur and Vladivostock.

Obviously, with the whole of Korea in Japanese hands, the overland connections between the two Russian bases would never be safe. The latest reported convention between Russia and Japan in regard to Korea was signed in April, 1898, and is known as the Nissi-Rosen protocol. It consists of three short articles, whose essential clause is that the two governments definitely recognize the sovereignty and independence of Korea, and mutually engage to refrain from all direct interference in the internal affairs of that country.

In view, however, of the large development of Japanese commercial and industrial enterprise in Korea, as well as of the considerable number of Japanese subjects resident in that country the Russian government bound itself not to impede the development of the commercial and industrial relations between Japan and Korea. This document has been called Japan's charter for the peaceful, economic and industrial conquest of Korea, and it is certain that Indipendent are the present Japanese cabinet is to seek any cause for quarrel with Russia, it will not tamely submit to any infraction of the terms of the Nissi-Rosen protocol.

An expert observer noted some three years ago the energy with which Japan was pushing the development of her industrial and commercial interests in Korea, and contrasted it with the apathy with which she has regarded most of the commercial advantages China acquired by the treaty of Shimonoseki. It is certain that the Japanese interest in Korea has not diminished since 1900, and it is equally certain that the instinct of national preservation, if nothing else, must impel Japan to resist at any cost an attempt on the part of Russia to impair the independence of the hermit kingdom.

The only notable fact about the strike in Newark was its brevity.

Now that he is down and out, it looks as if Jerome will have to be a political party all by himself.

Wonder how many local political leaders will be either on the sick list or out of town on election day?

The price of silver has gone up ten cents an ounce. Now, Mr. Martine, please don't. We'll take your word for it.

It would be less startling to hear that a suffering public rather than the employes had struck against the Public Service Corporation.

New Jersey's white ribbooners are making a fight for the expulsion of Reed Smoot, of Idaho, because he is a polygamist. Women are so jealous.

A California newspaper croaks over the fact that a woman out there derives a big income from raising frogs. Better be doing that than raising cain.

Prince Albert went a mile in 1.57 on the Empire track the other day. We have trolley cars which can go the same distance in 9.00 on a clear track.

An Evanston, Ill., man has deserted his wife because she fed him mostly on a musical diet. He declares that the principal dish on his bill of fare was "Hiawatha."

"It's one thing to secure an appointment for your friend. It's another to get a favor from him when he is once seated in power.—Paterson Evening News.

What do you seek, brother?

There's nothing strange in the fact that one Michael Casey, who has rubbed up against the world for twenty two years, did not drown when he fell overboard in New York the other day. The Irish are always on top.

A Philadelphia member of the Pennsylvania Legislature gave a pass to one of his constituents in 1898. The favored mortal returned it unused the other day with a request that it be renewed. Still, Rip VanWinkle holds the record.

Unitarian divine remarks that "a minister must be first of all a man, not an angel." This is getting down to sound talk. To do good work among his fellow creatures, a minister should be broad in his views and should make the rest of human kind feel that he does not hold himself superior. Man is a fallible being and has to be reckoned with as such.

According to Attorney-General McCarter it was necessary for the voter to write the word "against" on the ballot nine times in order to register a negative vote on the constitutional amendment proposition. We don't know what his opinion is worth, but it strikes us that he is to be censured for waiting until the election is over before making such an important announcement.

Here's a spasm from the Hunterdon County Democrat:

"The Suburbanite, the magazine published by the N. J. C. R. R. to boom the residential towns along its line, seems to find very little that is attractive this side of Plainfield."

Just so. It proves that the editor of The Suburbanite is a wide-awake man. Will our Hunterdon County brother leave his editorial work in charge of the printer's devil, hitch up the gray mare and come and see the sights? We're the finest city in the land. No mistake about it.

We are unable to see any reason for opposition to the plank in the Republican platform of Union County which advocates the establishment of the office of register of deeds. The matter of recording titles to property, it would seem, should constitute a department separate from that of the county clerk. It has been found elsewhere that the current expenses of such an office are defrayed by the fees received during the course of business. Would it not be well for the Democrats to join hands with the Republicans in advocating such a department?

Mayor Leeds, of Stamford, Conn., has set an example which might be profitably followed by other officials throughout the land. He has matriculated at Yale for the purpose of pursuing a course in political science. One would possibly think that Mr. Leeds has started at a late day to seek some general education, but such is not the case for he is a graduate of Princeton and a man of much ability. But what he wants is more knowledge in political science. Would that the Governor and the State Legislature of New Jersey had pursued such a course prior to the last session of the New Jersey lawmakers.

The weekly play for the Golf Committee cup and the regular play for the Men's Handicap cup were the events at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, on Saturday afternoon. The one set of scores counted for both cups, but E. P. Goodwin, who made the lowest score for the day, a 73 net, failed to post his name for the Men's Handicap cup competition and failed to score a win for that trophy. He won first honors, however, for the other cup. Julius E. Erickson scored the win for the Handicap cup and on Election Day will meet C. B Morgan in a play off.

Second and third honors for the Golf Committee cup were won by Julius E. Erickson and H. D. Hibbard. Walter Peterson, with a net score of 79, failed to improve his standing for the cup, although he holds a leading position.

Leaders Discuss Past and Future at Meeting Saturday—Musical Entertainment.

The year's work for the Young Men's Christian Association began Saturday night with a reception at the association parlors. The attendance was large. An address by the president of the association, Stephen Cahoone, was of especial interest. Mr. Cahoone told of the work of last season and of the intention to strive this year for an even better record.

Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood gave an outline of the work in the physical department and Kenneth White described the boy's department. Secretary J. Harry Manning discussed the aims of the association and the efforts to bring in new members.

The musical feature of the evening was especially enjoyable, George E. Garretson entertaining with selections on the hand bells, sleigh bells and mandolin.

ROAD BUILDING SCHEME.

Municipal Authorities Decide That Tar Will be Used Where Streets Are Washed by Storm.

It is thought by the city officials that the process of sprinkling streets with tar would not be satisfactory on any streets where there was much travel, as the tar does not go much below the fine top dressing, and would soon wear off with the latter.

The work to be done in Plainfield will consist of about twenty-five feet square only, where the street has been badly washed during heavy rains, and will differ from the Westfield experiment in that the tar will be incorporated with the one and a half inch stone for a depth of several inches.

PLAINFIELD'S NEW BASEBALL CHAMPIONS

St. Mary's Won the Title Saturday by Taking a Hard-Fought Game From Alia.

THE SCORE WAS 4 TO 3

DECISIONS OF UMPIRE BROUGHT KICKS FROM ALIS' CROWD.

Teams Aided by Out-of-Town Players—Scotch Plains Played Poorly and Lost to Garwood — Westfield and Rahway Didn't Score.

Plainfield's two crack nines bravely battled for supremacy in the deciding contest on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon, and when it was all over the score board showed a victory for St. Mary's over the Alis by a score of 4 to 3, and the cohorts of the former team shouted themselves hoarse with joy because they had won the championship of Plainfield.

Much comment was caused by a decision of the umpire in the last half of the sixth inning with Alis at bat. Snow, the big fielder who hails from Michigan, met Linderman's delivery for a clean hit. Richardson banted a slow ball toward first. It rolled outside the foul line, and as it approached the base, "Foul" bawled the umpire. Snow, who was scattering for second, halted. So did Richardson and both men started to retrace their steps. Then the ball began to roll toward the line again and jumped over the bag. The umpire said "Fair" and there was no trouble in getting out both Alis players. Umpire Bligh came in for the blame from both sides. He insisted that as the ball had rolled fair the men were out. When Hopper, known to fame as the twirler for the Equitables, placed the ball in the outfield, out of everybody's reach, the Alis supporters groaned at the thought of what might have been.

The familiar figure of "Tuck" Turner, famous in the days of the old Crescents, loomed up as St. Mary's first baseman. He gave Brown at shots something to do and Brown threw too high. A sacrifice by Jones sent "Tuck" to second. Alis steadied and Zimmerman's and Tierney's grounders were gobbled up in no time.

Quimby, for Alis, hit the first ball pitched and nobody was there. He advanced to second on McCormick's sacrifice bunt. Snow disappointed the rooters by missing three good balls. Richardson placed a lively one in front of St. Mary's shortstop, who wasn't quite equal to the occasion. Quimby, who had stolen third, went home. Hopper closed the inning with an easy grounder.

Quimby missed Kernan's drive in the second inning and the St. Mary boy reached second with the aid of Driscoll's sacrifice. He tried to get third on Lemar's effort but was caught before he reached it. Cobeland made the third out on strikes.

Ambruster was given his base but Stahling and Brown fell victims to the man from Hoboken and McLaughlin was taken care of by Cobeland.

Linderman started a vicious one that nobody wanted and "Tuck" Turner joined the procession when McLaughlin fumbled. McCormick nipped a short fly from Jones and by a throw caught Turner at first. Zimmerman made the longest hit of the game into the weeds giving Linderman a chance to score St. Mary's run. Zimmerman was too ambitious, however, and was caught at third. Alis' half of the inning was quickly ended, Quimby and McCormick striking out while Snow sent a fly to deep centre.

After Tierney opened the fourth inning for St. Mary's with a fly to right, Kernan and Driscoll were each presented with first base. Armbruster nailed Kernan at second in beautiful fashion, while Cobeland ended the inning with an easy ball to McLaughlin. An easy catch, three strikes and a well fielder grounder smothered Alis' chances in the same inning.

In the fifth Kernan handled Lemar's grounder and Linderman and "Tuck" Turner were retired on strikes. After Stahling's high foul fly had been nabbed and Brown struck out, McLaughlin warmed things up on the Alis side by a clean hit through the infield. Quimby was given his base and McCormick lost his chances of distinguishing himself by missing three of Linderman's pozzles.

Jones' grounder in the sixth went through Richardson at first and the St. Mary runners went down to second on Zimmerman's sacrifice. He scored on a wild throw intended to nip his career at third. Tierney made three wild attempts to hit the ball and was retired. Kernan was given his base again and then Stahling dropped Driscoll's easy fly to right. With men on second and third, Cobeland disappointed the St. Mary cohorts by putting a ball in Quimby's hands. It was in Alis' half of this inning that the umpire's decision defeated Alis' chance of scoring.

The Alis contingent came dangerously near going up in the air in the seventh. Lemar made a two-bagger to score on a passed ball. Linderman struck out. Turner lifted the leather over second for a base. He started to steal second. Although the batter tipped the ball, Armbruster had it down to second in time. There was nobody waiting to receive it and while it rolled out to centre field "Tuck" trotted to third. He completed the circuit almost immediately on Zimmerman's hit. The latter tried Turner's trick at second but Alis' infielder stopped it.

Stahling sent a fly that looked as if it was never coming down but when it did Cobeland at left was under it. Brown was given his case to be caught at second on McLaughlin's infield ball. In throwing to catch the Alis pitcher, Kernan put it over Driscoll's head and "Warry" went to second. Quimby caught a curve on his arm and trotted to first. Then McCormick, who has been playing with Holyoke in the New England League, gave Driscoll a brisk one that the man from Hoboken didn't keep hold of. Mc Laughlin lost no time in scoring. Tierney threw the sphere to third but his aim was poor and Quimby crossed the plate as well. Snow stopped any further scoring with a grounder that was cared for at first.

In the eighth, Kernan went to first on four balls and achieved second on a sacrifice hit Tierney. Driscoll and Cobeland all were disposed of at first. Armbruster received the gift of first but Richardson supplied the infield with exercise, Hopper didn't touch the ball and Stahling sent the ball heavenward to drop into the hands of the waiting centre fielder.

Lemar's long drive in the ninth was captured. Brown fielded Linderman's effort and Turney, after getting first on a fumble, by McCormick, found that Armbruster and Brown were too strong a combination to make base-stealing effective. A strike out for Brown opened for Alis. McLaughlin hit safely but it didn' count for anything as Quimby's foul fly was gobbled up and McCormick's best was gathered in by Mary infield.

On the lines Tierney proved a source of unending joy. Alis had Brown, of last year's Cornell team, McCormick, Hopper and Stahling, while St. Mary's strength was drawn largely from Hoboken's team. Both pitchers were in fine form and kept the ball in excellent control.

When it was all over, the crowd broke loose and cheered itself hoarse over the champions of Plainfield. Later in the evening, a huge banner bearing the word "Champions" headed a procession of jubilant followers of St. Mary's with the Independent Fife and Drum Corps to furnish the music.

WESTFIELD, 0; RAHWAY, 0.

Westfield and Rahway played nine innings of snappy, errorless baseball, on the Westfield grounds Saturday, the result being a shut-out for both nines. The game was called in the ninth on account of darkness. Rahway had a trifle the better of the game, filling the bases twice. Not one Westfield man passed second bag. "Red" Waller was in fine form allowing but four hits. Pardee did the twirling for Rahway, and his delivery was a "Chinese puzzle."

The line-up: Westfield—Barry, 1b; Pastor, cf; Soffel-Smithson, 2b; Rotchford, 3b; Carey, rf; Beck-Mallen, lf; Jones, ss; Burke, c; Waller, p. Rahway—Boehler, cf; Armstrong, 2b; Neeble, lf; Owens, rf; L. Potter, ss; Friedberg, 1b; Bird, 3b; R. Potter, c; Pardee, p. Umpires — Callum and Johnson.

AEOLIANS, 7; SCOTCH PLAINS, 2.

The Scotch Plains team went down to defeat, Saturday afternoon, before the Aeolians, of Garwood, by a score of 7 to 2. The game itself was one of the poorest Scotch Plains, at least, has put up this season, especially in the first and sixth innings. In the sixth, a regular merry-go-round was in operation for a few minutes. A three-base hit together with the errors netted four runs for the Aeolians and clinched the game. Davis, for the Plains, was in poor form at times, although one or twice he settled down and pitched his usual steady game. Manner was touched up for a three-base hit and two two-baggers, but he kept the hits scattered. Scotch Plains made the only earned run of the game, Batch, in the first inning's lining out a two-base hit to infield, scoring on Crozins clean hit to center.

DURABLE TIMBER.

White Oak in Hazen Barn on Watchung Avenue One Hundred and Fifty-Five Years Old.

As an evidence of the durability of wood used for building purposes, a remarkable case has just been reported in the demolition of the old barn at the Hazen residence on Watchung avenue. A white oak timber that has been in that barn forty years was found as one of the supporting beams on the foundations. It is known for a fact that that timber is 155 years old for it was in Lewis Webster's house on Watchung avenue, opposite Isaac Brown's residence for 115 years. It is in a fine state of preservation and from appearances it will stand many years of wear.

DIOCESAN SEMI-CENTENNIAL

ST. MARY'S AND ST. JOSEPH'S R. C. CHURCHES TO CELEBRATE.

Solemn Triduum in Which Cardinal, Apostolic Delegate, Bishops and Priests Will Participate.

The parishioners of St. Mary's and St. Joseph's Churches and all others throughout the Newark diocese are interested in the plans of an elaborate character, which have been arranged for the proper celebration of the semi-centennial jubilee of the diocese. Practically the occasion will be honored by services extending over a week, beginning Thursday, October 29 and continuing until the following Wednesday.

A solemn triduum, or three days of service, will be commenced by way of preparation for the general celebration, which will be held Sunday, November 1, the anniversary of the date in 1853 that the then bishop, subsequent archbishop of Baltimore, and primate of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States, the Rt. Rev. James Roosevelt Bailey, came to Newark to assume charge of the see.

In the local churches and throughout the diocese in every church Sunday, November 1, there will be a special mass of thanksgiving in honor of the occasion, and in every church in the diocese a sermon will be preached on work, growth and progress of Catholicity in the diocese.

There will be no services the next day, Monday, but on Tuesday, November 3, the culminating religious service will take place. This will be in the form of a solemn high mass, to be celebrated at St. Patrick's Church, Newark, by Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Connor. The sermon of the occasion will be delivered by Rt. Rev. Bernard J. McQuaid, Bishop of Rochester, and former president of Seton Hall College.

At this service the Most Rev. Diomede Falconio, delegate apostolic to this country from the Vatican, will be present with several of the attaches from the delegation at Washington. Clergymen from all parts of the diocese and from other dioceses will be present. It is not unlikely that Cardinal Gibbons will be present as well as Arch-bishop Farley, of New York, and the other bishops in the province of New York, of which the diocese of Newark is a part.

ALL MAY NOMINATE.

Socialists, Prohibitionists and Other Minor Parties May Place Tickets in the Field.

The Socialists, Prohibitionists and labor men will be able to nominate tickets as usual this fall, even though they did not come under the operation of the new primary law.

At first sight it looked as if the new primary law barred them out. The new act affects only those parties that polled 5 per cent. of the total vote or more. Only the Republican and the Democratic parties come under the head.

Under section 41 of the general election act the Socialists, labor men and Prohibitionists may as heretofore, nominate their tickets, and the county clerk must provide them with ballots as usual.

BABY CAMP CLOSED.

King's Daughters' Institution on Mountain Shute Up for the Season.

The King's Daughters' Baby Camp on the mountain was closed on Thursday of last week after a successful season. The members of the City Union King's Daughters, under whose auspices the camp is conducted, are grateful for the generous contributions received during the season, making it possible for them to give many babies and their mothers outings. Henry Weiss moved the baggage from the camp to Plainfield for storage.

NEW ROADS TO BE OPENED IN THE BOROUGH

Western Part of North Plainfield to be Converted Into Streets and Building Lots.

A REAL ESTATE BOOM

CHAPLE, WILLOW AND MYRTLE AVENUES TO BE EXTENDED.

West End Avenue Included in Proposed Improvement—New Boulevard May be Opened Up to Dunellen—Contracts Closed.

An important improvement is being planned for the western end of North Plainfield and property which now lies idle, will, according to the scheme, be converted into public streets, the land fronting thereon to be made into building lots. The work is being planned by Charles McGeehen, W. J. Buttfield and the trustees of the Percy Brown estate. Contracts are about to be closed with William Emmons to begin work on the property which extends from West End avenue to the county line at Dunellen avenue, from there to Greenbrook road and from Greenbrook road back to West Front street.

West End avenue, after it passes Myrtle avenue, is a country road, and this will be transformed into a modern Macadamized street with sidewalks. Chaple, Willow and Myrtle avenues will be opened up to Clinton avenue and all the property adjoining will be made into building lots.

Much has been said lately about a scarcity of small houses in the city and borough and it is said that the real object in opening up this territory is to make room for real estate investors of this class.

As soon as this city acts in the matter of opening up Dunellen avenue to the bridge across Green brook, the borough will take steps to have the avenue connect with Myrtle avenue, thus making a continuous driveway from Watchung avenue and Craig place to Dunellen, away from the trolley tracks. This promises to be the principal boulevard between this city and Bound Brook, connecting with the Bound Brook telford paved roadway at Dunellen.

thirty days, as the postal officials take that length of time to consider the examinations, as well as the report of the special agent.

Today Mr. Shriver and Mr. Bird will go over another route extending toward Dunellen and New Market, but just what will be done in this direction is not known. Later on another trip will be made over the mountains toward Mt. Bethel, Warrenville and the surrounding country. It seems quite likely that the time is not far distant when Plainfield will be connected with several rural delivery routes, possibly including Scotch Plains, as well as Dunellen, New Market, South Plainfield and the places over the mountains. If this should come to pass, there is no doubt but what some postoffices now doing a small and limited business will be abolished.

Mr. Shriver first introduced the service in Maryland and was a carrier. By the adoption of this service a great many postoffices were abolished and a far better mail service put into effect. Persons who before could not get mail under one and two days, afterwards received it the same day and within a few hours after letters were mailed.

REV. J. S. ZELIE GUEST OF COMMITTEE

Those Delegated to Select a Pastor Hold Quiet Dinner at Hillside's Clubhouse.

FIFTEEN ABOUT BOARD

CRESCENT AVENUE'S CHURCH OFFICALS COMPOSE PARTY.

Evening's Entertainment Said to Have Been Enjoyable—Members of Sessions, Trustees and Deacons There.

In honor of Rev. J. Sheridan Zelie, whom they selected for the pastorate of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church, the committee of fifteen gave a dinner at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club's club house Monday. The affair was arranged quietly and was intended to partake of the form of a reception. Much amusement is said to have been caused by the toasts, which were quite original. In fact the evening's programme was unique.

There were fourteen members of the committee gathered about the board, Isaac W. Rushmore being unavoidably absent. John Leal, Henry G. Squires, Leander Lovell, Ernest R. Ackerman and Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, all of the session; John Deol Miller and S. E. Whitney, both trustees, and William D. Murray, Ira W. Frazee, T. F. Bedlong, Henry B. Newhall, Charles F. Abbott and John F. Harman, deacons.

LITERARY.

John Burroughs is to contribute to The Century for 1904 a number of articles on "Current Misconceptions in Natural History," giving his views as to what he believes to be errors of observation, record, or deduction on the part of contemporary writers on nature subjects. The echoes of Mr. Burrough's article on a similar topic which appeared in The Atlantic last spring are still reverberating, and in this series Mr. Burroughs will take up the subject more fully, publishing the latest opinions as to instinct, the alleged teaching of young animals by their parents, the play of animals, and the kindred themes.

Jack London's new novel, which he is just finishing, is to appear serially in The Century Magazine. It is said to have the distinctive strength of "The Call of the Wild," but as a narrative is even more thrilling.

Contents of Leslie's Monthly for October are these: The Laborer's Hire, the Art of Knowing How, Bayard Veiller; Spunk Foley Visits the Countess, a story, Bewell Ford; The Reaction, a story, E. F. Stearns; How Cordial Relations Were Strained, story of the Pettison Twins, Marion Hill; The Lesson of the Leaves, verse, Florence Bell Cochrane; Give Them a Chance, Maud Ballington Booth; The Clubman, Frederick B. Hoppin, Jr.; An Occupation for the Unemployed, a story, H. G. Rhodes; Kyrie Bellew, Frederick Street; The Fall of King Chris, a story, John M. Oskison; Dusie Dent, chapters XXIII.—XXV, Ernest W. Hornung; The Great Park Strike, a story, Ellis Parker Butler; The Adventurer in Spain, the Romance of Beggar Man, S. R. Crockett; The Watcher, verse, Clinton Scollard; Marginalia, Men, Women and Books.

BLAZE IN MILL.

Fire Supposedly of Spontaneous Origin Was Quickly Extinguished.

Matches in the pockets of a greasy pair of overalls caused a fire of spontaneous origin in E. H. McCullough's mill in Steiner place, North Plain*field, at 6:35 Monday night. The fire* was discovered, by a man named Allen, in a pile of shavings. An alarm was turned in and the fire department arrived in remarkably quick time. The flames had been extinguished before the department got on the scene. The damage will not exceed $60. John McCullough, a son of the owner of the mill, while rushing through the mill, ran against a board and was severely cut in the side under the arm.

Narrow Escape.

John P. VanHorn, of Summit avenue, had a narrow escape from serious injury, Saturday night at about 6 o'clock, while riding his wheel along Somerset street, near Fairview avenue. Near the corner of the two streets he encountered Mrs. E. S. F. Randolph, who was coming toward town in an automobile. The young man's injuries consisted of several scratches on the leg and a general shaking up.

Criterion Club to Reorganize.

Clarence T. Brokaw announces that the Criterion Club will probably reorganize early next month. A dance will be held in the Casino in the near future. An invitation has been received by the members to join with the Norwood Club but it is hardly likely that this combination will be effected.

SCHOOL BOARD'S DOINGS

AUTHORITIES IN NORTH PLAINFIELD HOLD SHORT SESSION.

Discussion of Plans for the New School—Borrow Money—Order Bills Paid.

Sites were discussed last Monday for the proposed new school building in North Plainfield at the regular meeting of the Board of Education. It was the consensus of opinion of the members of the Board that a new school should be built and that the new structure should not be limited to four rooms. It is probable that the new school building will be rushed through to completion as soon as possible.

After the regular business had been concluded the Board went into executive session. The matter of selecting a site was discussed and estimates received on the various locations. Nothing definite was done in the matter and another meeting will be held Monday evening when further action will be taken.

The President and Clerk were authorized to draw warrants for the payment of bills amounting to $3,304.-35, divided as follows: General fund, $2,883.37; manual training, $340.20, and library, $80.88. It was carried that the amount of $3,000 be borrowed on demand. While the clerk was reading the minutes A. V. D. Honeyman suggested that the wording of a minute be changed. The minute referred to was that of a resolution offered at a previous meeting that a new building of four rooms be erected. The word "four room" was ordered stricken from the record.

ENDEAVORERS DISCUSS JAPAN

TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH SOCIETY'S INTERESTING MEETING.

Mrs. F. E. Woodruff in Charge—Pictures Shown—Five New Members Proposed.

A meeting of unusual interest was held in Trinity Reformed Church Monday, under the auspices of the missionary committee of the Christian Endeavor Society. Mrs. F. E. Woodruff was in charge, and the subject was "Japan." During the evening a number of pictures and printed items depicting every-day life and mission work in Japan were passed among those present, intending to increase their interest in this work. These pictures and clippings were obtained by the missionary committee, the former showing mission stations, natives in costume, while the clippings told of the work being done.

During the service there was special music by the Endeavor Society choir. As an evidence of the society's prosperity and steady growth, five new candidates were proposed for active membership.

RECEPTION IN HONOR OF AN ENGLISH WOMAN.

Affair at Home of Mrs. J. Kirkland Myers—Many Guests Present.

A delightful reception was given Monday afternoon by Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, of East Seventh street, in honor of her aunt, Mrs. William J. Stillman, of London, England. Mrs. Myers and Mrs. Stillman were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Charles H. Stillman, the mother of Mrs. Myers and her brother's wife, Mrs. William M. Stillman.

A large number of guests accepted the invitation to meet Mrs. Stillman, whose husband was distinguished as a diplomat, author and critic. Mrs. Stillman herself is possessed of great personal charm and rare artistic ability.

SCHOOL GIRL ATHLETES.

Girls' Olympic Club Name of North Plainfield High School Organization.

The Girl's Olympic Club is the name of the first athletic club for young women at the North Plainfield High School. It has been organized with these officers: President, Miss Marie Woofston; vice president, Miss Florence White; secretary, Miss Sadie Fountain, and treasurer, Miss Mabel Farlee. It was decided this morning that a hockey and basket ball teams will be a feature of the organization. It was formed for sociability as well as athletics and among the teams will be one for tennis, tether ball, quoits and other games.

Among the guests of the Maplewood Hotel at Pittsfield, Mass., are Mr. and Mrs. John K. Bushnell, of Central avenue.

Stephen Cahoone and family, of Watchung avenue, have returned from Jamestown, R. I., where they have been spending the summer.

ORIENT MEN TO ORGANIZE

THE DEGREE MEMBERS OF JUNIORS TO BAND TOGETHER.

State Organization to Be Formed —First Session to be Held in Trenton.

The two or three hundred local members of the Jr. O. U. A. M. are greatly interested in the announcement that the Oriental degree men are *about to form a State organiza*tion. The councils of the order in Union County at a recent convention appointed a committee to formulate plans. W. N. Chapin, of Elizabeth, is chairman of the committee, and the secretary is W. N. Gray, of Cranford.

The committee has already held several sessions and has decided to make the recommendation for the State organization. A meeting of the members of the Oriental degree of the State will be held for the purpose at Trenton on the night before the convening of the State Council the third week in October. Mr. Chapin, chairman of the committee, has made a tour of the State during the past six weeks and has visited a number of the order. He has found a unanimity of approval of the scheme among leaders of the Oriental degree.

It is probable that after the forming of the State organization of the Oriental degree a team will be designated to confer the degree on any delegates to the State Council who have not yet received it. The Jr. O. U. A. M. is the largest beneficiary order in the State.

AMUSEMENTS.

Miss Mabel McKinley, niece of the martyred President, is the attraction at the Circle, Broadway and Sixtieth street, this week. She has a rich soprano voice. Other favorites on the bill are Louis A. Simon, Grace Gardner & Co., Lewis and Ryan and Avery and Hart.

The programme for the six afternoons and evenings of the Old Guard Fair, which will be formally opened on Monday evening, October 5th, at Madison Square Garden, is replete with events. Governor Odell will personally declare the fair open. On Monday evening, the American team, wearing the Khaki uniforms, in which the team's members beat the world at Bisley, will be escorted to the Garden by the Old Guard and other troops.

In "Running for Office," George M. Cohan's latest musical comedy, Mr. Cohan handles that most amusing topic—political aspiration and its side-lights. A temperance crank, who figures in the play, gives an opportunity for humorous situations. The Four Cohans, individually and collectively, make immense hits in the play and they give one of the most stupendous musical comedy productions at the Grand Opera House this week.

Nobody living outside of the city thinks of going to New York now without taking in Ned Harrigan in "Under Cover," at the Murray Hill Theatre, while in the city proper, his clientele reaches from High Bridge to the Battery. People like Annis Yeamens and Jennie Yeamens and Dan Edward Harrigan in "Under Cover" at the Murray Hill.

Collyer, Joe Sparks, Harry Fischer, Will Bray, Maude Knowlton, Adelaide Manola, and others, make a long and strong salary list, and it is a very serious question whether the pay roll at the Murray Hill, just now, won't show more figures than any theatre pay-roll in New York. That's one of the strong elements that help to make the Harrigan show really and truly great. Harrigan is drawing the same houses as when he played "Reilly and the Four Hundred."

NO RACE SUICIDE IN NORTH PLAINFIELD

President Roosevelt's Theory Knocked Into a Cocked Hat in the Borough.

STORK HAS BEEN BUSY

SOME FACTS AND FIGURES OF TIMELY INTEREST.

Board of Health's Figures Show That Stork Has Been Busier Than Cupid or the Grim Reaper—North Plainfield Growing in Population.

Figures given out by Assessor Elston M. French show that North Plainfield is rapidly growing and increasing in property values proportionately, but for more interesting figures showing an increase in population come from the Board of Health. Secretary William K. Honeyman, in making his annual report to the State Board, has discovered a condition in the borough which has a bearing on the race suicide theory.

In fact, there have been more happy papas, with the smile on their faces that won't-come-off, during the past year than during any year in the history of North Plainfield. The stork has been busier by far during the year 1906 than Cupid or the Grim Reaper.

Never before has the North Plainfield Board of Health been able to report 100 births in twelve months. This year is the first that the one hundredth mark has been reached and now the stork sits calmly on a high branch and flaps its wings in keen delight. The 1906 stork broke the record.

Usually the births average from ten to twelve more than the number of deaths and marriages but this year there are over thirty more. The marriages this year in North Plainfield were forty and the deaths were forty-one. Each year the average of deaths in the borough are between seventy and eighty and the marriages between thirty and forty.

AMUSEMENTS.

Houses crowded to the doors greeted Charles Warner, the famous English actor at the Academy of Music the past week, to see this really talented actor in the marvellous play of "Drink." The newspapers were unanimous in their endorsement of Mr. Warner's work and their really ecstatic remarks are heard about the city nightly, at the clubs and dining resorts. He is indeed a most talented man and is looked upon as the best male actor who has yet appeared in this country from any land. His work is very remarkable going from a young man in the first scene until at his death he resembles an old man. The ravages of drink are shown not alone in the case of "Coupeau" but others—and their degree is easily read—and the few temperate character are well to the front and are well liked by the audiences, as is easily shown by them. His company is conceded to be really meritorious.

CITY'S NEWSBOYS HAVE A BIG TIME

Little Merchants as Guests of the Rescue Mission Enjoy An Entertainment.

MANY LITTLE FELLOWS

PARTICULARLY AMUSED BY SLEIGHT-OF-HAND PERFORMANCE.

Speeches Caught Their Fancy, But a Feast Was the Captivating Feature—The Committee in Charge.

Good, solid fun in large quantities was dealt out to Plainfield's newsboys Thursday for several hours by the Rescue Mission in its chapel on Grove street. About thirty of the little men were there and they enjoyed hugely every minute of the entertainment provided them.

The paper peddlers listened with delight to the words of W. J. Wright, superintendent of missions, Washington, D. C., who delivered the welcoming address; to the sober and kindly advice extended them by John Goodwin, president of the mission; to the sage words and merry jests of Rev. Mr. Carpenter, of Washington, N. J.; and to a jovial speech by Joseph Oakley, superintendent of the Elizabeth mission. They clapped and cheered with high enthusiasm at the tenor solos of William Jeffery and joined in the chorus whenever they knew the words, and rejoiced also at the solos of Robert Brackbeimer, of New York, accompanied by Mrs. John Manley. At the sleight-of-hand tricks of A. A. Lake, of Dunellen, they expressed unstinted admiration, though doing their utmost to expose his methods, and the recitations of Miss Oakley, of the Elizabeth mission, they appreciated equally well.

When a little chap from Elizabeth, Walter Ford, a newsboy like themselves and his little sister, who had been in America only six months, went on the stage and gave several clever recitations, they rose in their seats and fairly shouted their approval. But the grand climax came when the ice cream and cake were passed around. This was what they had been waiting for and to it they did ample justice. And when they had finished they filed out completely happy and started for home with a whoop and a "jolly" for everybody.

"Holly chee," said one of the little merchants, "but home ain't nothin' like dis."

"Youse betcher," said his companion, "dose missionary guys is all tur the good."

With which encomium, the leaders in the undertaking, John Goodwin, Henry DeMott, Mrs. John Manley and Mrs. J. N. Honeyman, may well rest content.

THIS LAWN A BEAUTY SPOT

GROUNDS SURROUNDING PERCY STEWART'S HOME FINELY ARRANGED.

Rare Trees and Hedges Make a Pretty Landscape Effect—Work of an Englishman.

Another show place has been added to the many in this city and persons driving near West Eighth street, Plainfield and Stelle avenues, have had their attention attracted to the artistic new gardens recently laid out on the property of Percy Stewart, whose home is located in the center of the plot of ground surrounded by those streets.

The grounds surrounding the house have been rearranged by C. W. M. Harrison, skilled English landscape architect, who has recently come to this country and has opened an office at 514 Watchung avenue. The work is a credit to him.

Among the many novel innovations at the new gardens is the only Japanese holly hedge in this State. The hedge is known as the species Ilex-Crenata, which is exceedingly rare in this country. The hedge surrounds the property in place of a fence. A number of specimen trees have been planted and walks have been placed around the gardens. It is now one of the prettiest places in this city.

C. W. M'CUTCHEN'S PURCHASE

DISTINGUISHED BOROUGH CITIZEN NOW HAS FINEST ESTATE IN THE VICINITY.

His Property Now Bounded by Four Avenues—Mr. Reynolds to Build.

Charles W. McCutchen's estate now covers an entire block in the most valuable section of Washington Park, he having acquired the property of H. P. Reynolds on Washington avenue. Some years ago this popular boroughite conveyed a tract to Mr. Reynolds and recently he had been anxious to again acquire possession of it. Lately he has made many improvements on his estate, including the erection of green houses, which are said to be the finest in New Jersey. The McCutchen mansion is probably the most beautiful in the twin communities of handsome residences. It is surrounded by Rockview, Sycamore, Linden and Washington avenues. Mr. Reynolds has purchased a large lot on Myrtle avenue, near Washington avenue, and it is his intention to erect a handsome dwelling.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Three Little Maids" is at Daly's Theatre. The run there of this successful musical comedy from England cannot last longer than November 14, and the public, realizing this, is making the best of the opportunities. The songs "She Was a Miller's Daughter" and "Men" are the two hits of the play. The crowds are perhaps larger than at any other house on Broadway.

Charles Hawtrey in "The Man From Blankley's" at the Criterion is still drawing those who remember his success in "The Message From Mars." His role of a peer interested in Egyptian lore, who gets into a dinner party to which he was not invited, is a laughable creation, and Mr. Hawtrey's interpretation of it makes it all the more attractive. The crowd in attendance is large every evening.

Andrew Mack is in his third week in "Arrah-na-Pogue" at the Fourteenth Street Theatre. As Shaun the Post he has made a sensation, and it is no exaggeration to say that it has been hard to get standing room in the Fourteenth Street Theatre unless one applied hours before the curtain rose. The run will last six more weeks, instead of two more, as was at first intended.

No success in the city now is greater than that of Charles Warner, who, in "Drink," is filling the Academy of Music every night. Though some distance from the glitter of Broadway and the high-priced theatres, the large Academy now has what is admitted to be about as good a production in its way as anything in New York. Mr. Warner, of course, is the big attraction about the metropolitan, since it has been here many times before without him and has not made neighboring barrooms close for lack of business.

There is one rational way to treat nasal catarrh: the medicine is applied direct to the affected membrane. The remedy is Ely's Cream Balm. It restores the inflamed tissues to a healthy state without drying all the life out of them and it gives back the lost senses of taste and smell. The 50 cents size is tired of vain experiments should use it. Druggists sell it for 50 cents. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York, will mail it.

WOMEN BUNCOED BY ENDLESS-CHAIN

Alleged Scheme of American Anti-Cigarette League in Philadelphia Exposed.

LOCAL PEOPLE VICTIMS

SLICK TRICK TO RAISE MONEY IN QUAKER CITY.

Woman's Christian Temperance Union Sounds a Warning—Man Inventing Endless-Chain Idea a Sing-Sing Prisoner.

The "endless chain" scheme, said to have been invented by a convict who wished to help his wife make a livelihood while he was in Sing Sing, has become a nuisance in this city as well as in this State. There are endless chain schemes for securing watches and oil stoves, diamonds and barrels of flour, household furniture and cheese, trolley tickets and tobacco, and almost every other article which could be named. Some have been started to aid the suffering, to erect homes for the poor, or the infirm while others have been started to advertise a brand of cigars, tooth paste or shoe polish or to combat the cigarette smoking evil among boys. Many people took an interest in the scheme when it was first started but of late it has been very much overdone.

The latest scheme to reach this city is that of combating the cigarette smoking evil among young men and many members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of this city and State have been victimized. It is alleged to have been started by the "American Anti-Cigarette League," with headquarters in Philadelphia. Letters have been sent to members of the organization in this city and many of them have sent money and spent much time in circulating the letters among their friends, believing that they were doing a good work.

Their labor has been in vain. In a letter from the headquarters of the W. C. T. U. in Philadelphia, one of the officers state that the movement has not the sanction of the Union and is believed to be a fake. All women are warned against helping along the work.

TOO MANY OUTSIDERS.

Complaints Made Regarding Indiscriminate Use of Sea Girt Range.

Many complaints are being made by National Guardsmen about the manner in which the State rifle range at Sea Girt has been conducted during the past season. It is asserted by some of the disentitled ones that so much money has been spent in entertaining outsiders that there is not enough of the appropriation left to enable the militia to get proper practice at the butts.

WHERE THE FOREIGNERS LIVE

While Thoroughly American It Affords the Spectator Interesting and Picturesque Glimpses of People from Many Lands.

Chicago.—One walks the streets of Chicago and quickly votes it thoroughly American. One takes a second glance, and discovers a crowded Ghetto; again, quarters given over to Russian and Bohemian; goes farther, and glimpses of Hollander and French, Greek and Italian, Swiss and Welsh, Scandinavian and German, Oriental and Islander. And perhaps these motley folk but make the huge city still more American, for is not America built up in strength and progressiveness from this very admixture of diverse elements?

Let us look at some of these foreigners.

Persecutions, and a desire to give their children a better chance than they themselves have had, have caused the Jews to herd in the close quarters of the Chicago Ghetto. Though Chicago is fortunate in her wide territory, giving easy foothold to many thousands of her millions, yet even here there exists a crowded Ghetto. Over 60,000 persons dwell in this quarter, near to the very heart of the city; and doubtless, owing to present active persecutions in Russia, these numbers will presently be greatly augmented. In this quarter the looker-on comes upon Jews of well-known types; old, bent, thin men, with long gray beards straggling over long black silk dust-coats; old women, with great bundles on thier heads and gay shawls about their shoulders; push-cart men, old, young and middle-aged; sharp-nosed, sharp-eyed youths; dark-eyed maidens, displaying about their persons the Jewish love of finery; old-clothes folk galore; myriads of children. Though everywhere are visible and penetrable the filth and squalor attending overcrowding and extreme poverty, and in a considerable number of instance, kindliness and helpfulness. And here, while one finds eager ambition for a rise to better conditions, one finds also a true democratic spirit; willingness to lend a hand, and a belief in the gospel of equality. A foreigner is a Jew, well, then, he must be given a welcome and a lift; be he Austrian or Hungarian, Pole or Russian, Bohemian or Roumanian. The Ghetto, it is needless to say, is by no means a locality where sanitary laws are rigidly enforced, but in spite of its dirt and disease one cannot but note the many evidences that the Jews of Chicago find life worth the living.

From France and Wales.

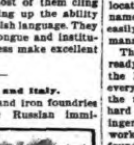
Thrifty and peaceable and beauty-loving, the French residents of Chicago are unmistakable and desirable. About 30,000 they count, and it were well for the city if their numbers were largely increased. The streets where they live are clean and pleasant, the homes adorned with flowers, the inhabitants merry and courteous. The influence of the French in Chicago is being shown in an increase of interest in things artistic, and in a considerable spread of the study of the French language.

A Welsh Character.

Chicago has many Jones, and every Jones a Welshman. The Welsh are thrifty, independent, industrious, and their colony, 12,000 strong, ministers considerably to the prosperity of the city. They are great church folk, the church being with them the chief social center. As musicians, they are farfamed, both at home and in church, taking great delight in the rendering of musical composition. In appearance and speech, they seem unmistakably American, though most of them cling tenaciously to keeping up the ability to use the peculiar Welsh language. They love the old Welsh tongue and institutions, but none the less make excellent American citizens.

From Russia and Italy.

In the steel mills and iron foundries of Chicago work the Russian immigrants; come from their fields of snow and ice to our furnaces heated to 170 times over. But they are men of splendid strength and great longing to give their children a taste of better things; and so they toil away at the hardest and most poorly paid work the city has to offer.



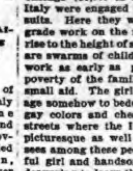
From Sunny Italy.

Very few of the 75,000 Russians try for anything above common manual labor, most of them being from the peasant class; but the children of these day-laborers are reaching towards those conditions coveted for them by their parents. The children learn our language quickly, and they, and the different spirit of the new land, are all working towards the uplifting of the many varying folk from the czar's broad domains.

Quite unlike the Russian are the Italian dwellers of Chicago, though both are poorest of the poor. Living in dirty, tumble-down, over-crowded houses, they manage to make merry, to carry about with them some of the sunshine of their native land. Most of the Italians now crowded in a downtown portion of Chicago (30,000 in a small area), is Italy were engaged in agricultural pursuits. Here they work as peddlers, at grade work on the railroads, and some rise to the height of storekeepers. There are swarms of children, who are put to work as early as possible. The dire poverty of the family requiring their small aid. The girls and women manage somehow to bedeck themselves with gay colors and cheap jewelry, and the streets where the Italians abound are picturesque as well as dirty. And one sees among these people many a beautiful girl and handsome youth, both endeavoring to learn the ways and ideals of the land of their adoption.

Hollander and Swiss.

The Chicago Hollander is quite a different proposition to the Italian. The former lives in a neat cottage surrounded by flowers and vegetables. Everything, within and without, is speckless, though "the woman" may take part in the field work. And the frau is neat and tidy, from the crown of her cap to the blunt end of her wooden shoes.



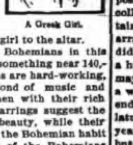
From Holland.

The Hollanders are engaged in dairy and market gardening. They are thrifty, temperate, religious, and the 30,000 of them living in Chicago are welcome additions, good citizens.

The Swiss, too, are desirable immigrants. There are about 10,000 in Chicago; most of them live on the North and Northwest sides of the city, but they are not largely grouped as are the other foreigners. Like the Hollanders, they own their own little homes. With their large families of healthy, rosy children, their thrift and industry, they are indeed residents worthy of respect. And they seem so comfortable and happy in their new environment; these sturdy mountaineers transplanted from their land of heights and valleys to the flat lands along Lake Michigan.

Greek and Bohemian.

How would Chicago get along without the Greek and his fruit stand? One sees him on every corner down town. With the Greek male the Chicagoan is familiar, but the Greek woman is little known. And for a good reason—among the 10,000 Greeks in Chicago there are 100 women. The Greek has to seek his wife among the Italians, and occasionally one leads an American girl to the altar.



A Greek Girl.

There are many Bohemians in this cosmopolitan city, something near 140,000. The Bohemians are hard-working, provident, though fond of music and dancing. The women with their rich embroideries and earrings suggest the Bohemian love of beauty, while their busy lives speak of the Bohemian habit of industry. Most of the Bohemians own their homes.

THE STARS AS GUIDES.

Ingenious Device for Use on Vessels When the Heavens Are Obscured by Clouds.

The stars have always been the guide posts of the sea, but only recently has a device been invented by which they are accurately identified, says World's Work. In an overcast sky they will appear for a moment and then lose themselves behind a cloud. The mariner must by guess or by some diagram of his own work out his location from them. The new invention consists of a star map over which swings a transparent scale, and it revolves from the point located on the map as the north pole. On this scale are engraved the circles of altitude and the lines of bearing. From this map, by a slight calculation, and by revolving the transparent scale until it is opposite certain figures indicated on the map, the ship's location can be instantly taken. The name of this particular star is obtained easily by reference to the nautical almanac by a guide on the chart.

This seemingly simple device is already in use on the Hamburg line and the Red Star line of steamers, and every new test reports success. It is the result of many years' study and hard labor on the part of Dr. Geisslinger, whose idea it is. Even after the working model had been made and found satisfactory a difficulty arose. It seemed impossible to duplicate by any mechanical means the transparent indicator. No engraver could be found who was willing to undertake the work of reproducing exactly the fine lines and figures on this scale, the use of which depended entirely on accuracy. The inventor immediately went at the task of planning a machine that would make the desired lines, and after infinite labor he constructed a mechanical device which engraves on the scale exactly the lines of his ingenious original model. This new invention is likely to be an added preventive of accidents and delays in ocean travel.

Threats of Plainfield Republicans Lighter Than a Thought Says One.

PARTY IS IN DANGER

PAINFUL SLUMPS IN MAJORITY IN LEGISLATURE POSSIBLE.

Summit Record Tells a Story in Replying to Newark Evening News—What the New York Press Says.

Value of Threats.

"The editor of the Summit Record doesn't take much stock in the tales that are being told how the Plainfield Republicans are going to sacrifice their ticket this fall in order to show their hatred of Mr. Kean. And the editor is a Democrat who has had many years of experience with politics in Union."—Newark Evening News.

In Invention.

There is a rumor going the rounds that Senator Kean's influence with the President had something to do with the failure so far to call an extra session of Congress. The Jerseyman is reported to have told his relative that he didn't have time to attend, but this statement is believed to be an invention of the Fowlerites, who want to make it appear that they are keeping the Senator more than busy.—Newark Evening News.—(Ind. Rep.)

Party in Danger.

Unless the peacemaker and the foolkiller wrestle with some of the discordant factions in the Republican party there is going to be a painful slump in its majority in the Legislature of 1904, and its possible overthrow in that of 1905. The forces for and against Senator Kean, sweating over defeat in several sections, are threatening vengeance. For instance, the Fowler contingent in Plainfield is preparing to defeat Assemblyman Coyne, a Kean adherent, because Buckle, a Fowler man, was denied a nomination for Assembly after he carried the Plainfield primaries. There never was a time of greater peril for the Republicans of this State. Instead of a general purpose to re elect a Republican legislature for the public good and party supremacy, continuing to build to it in another year when all worthy party leaders may aspire to the United States Senate, the bitterness of today threatens to make it impossible to return a Republican as the colleague of Senator Dryden. Certainly Kean is contemplating the array of independent Republican candidates for the Legislature, is not in a humor to brook opposition, and this may have led his champions to begin a warfare which, unless checked, will end not only in the loss of the Legislature this year, the Governor next year and the defeat of Kean himself, but make certain the return of ex-Senator James Smith to Washington.—New York Press.—(Rep.)

Not very many years but a sufficient number to enable him to estimate at something like its true value the threat of a disgruntled Republican to injure one of his party candidates for a State or county office, or the promise of a hidebound partisan of that party to aid a Democrat. To use an expression coined recently in New York politics such threats or promises are lighter than a thought. As an illustration we recall a campaign of many years ago in which a Democratic candidate for Assembly who could by no stretch of the imagination be regarded as a rainbow chaser did allow himself to be attracted by the illusion of possible Republican voters promised voluntarily by the voters in a township he had aided. This candidate had served two years in the Assembly and in his second year had conducted a vigorous fight against a legislative scheme that the voters of Springfield declared would ruin their property if successful.

Because Springfield was a part of his district the Assemblyman brought all the resources at his command and labored night and day to defeat the scheme. It was a long bitter struggle and while it was pending at least twenty-five men known to be stalwart Republicans from Springfield spent hour after hour at his office telling in glowing terms of their intentions should he ever again be a candidate for office. They would vote for him certainly and the voters of the township were so grateful for his splendid work that they were certain he would receive at least fifty Republican votes if he should run again in the fall.

Well this Assemblyman was renominated in the fall and the extent of Springfield's gratitude and the value of a Republican promise shown by the result. When the votes in Springfield were counted this particular Assemblyman's name appeared on just one Republican ballot and the Republicans carried the township by a majority of 34 in a total vote of 210.—Summit Record, (Dem.)

The Misses Janet and Barbara VanVliet Acted as Flower Girls.

Howard Crosby Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Foster, of West Seventy-second street, New York, and Miss Emmagene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Miss Jennie Foster, sister of the groom, was maid-of-honor and the Misses Janet and Barbara VanVliet, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. VanVliet, of Washington avenue, were flower girls. The guests were limited to the immediate families of the bride and groom.

WRECK CLAIM SETTLED.

Miss Cassenove Receives Consideration for Injuries.

Miss Fanny Cassenove, formerly of Pearl street, and one of those injured in the Westfield disaster, has just settled her claim against the New Jersey Central. The settlement was effected with Claims Agent Johnson at Large. There are now but a very few cases to be settled and Mr. Large hopes to have nearly all of them adjusted within a short time.

Central's Poor Year.

Compared with the Lehigh Valley and Erie reports, the annual statement for the fiscal year ended June 30 was a disappointment. With a deficit of $68,408, compared with a surplus of $674,476 in 1902, it was evident that at least one of the coal roads has failed to reimburse itself during the eight months following the anthracite strike for the loss incurred during the four months' period of disaster incidental to the fiscal year. The Central Railroad of New Jersey is controlled by the Reading company.

Mr. Cathers in Paterson.

Harry Cathers, formerly of Grandview avenue, and at one time superintendent of the schools of Piscataway township, is at present superintending the work of the schools in Paterson.

TRIPS BY TROLLEY FOR PLAINFIELDERS

Starting at Boston en Route for Philadelphia and Through This City.

FROM HERE TO DETROIT

DESCRIPTION OF JOURNEY FROM HUB TO QUAKER CITY.

Delights of the Jaunt—New Jersey Trolley Roads Superior to Others—The Route.

"Change here for Bound Brook, New Brunswick, Trenton and Philadelphia," said a conductor on one of the cars of the old Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey railway mail line yesterday afternoon, as he began to whirl his trolley pole about again preparatory to starting the trip back to Elizabeth, Newark, New York and Boston.

A Daily Press reporter made some inquiries among the officials of the company and learned that not only was it possible to travel from Boston to Philadelphia by trolley but with the exception of several breaks, which can be made by steam cars, the trolley trip can now be made from Boston to Detroit, Michigan. It was even prophesied that before many years it will be possible to cross the continent on the trolley cars. This country, the official said, has gone trolley mad and each year new lines are being built. Private corporations buy up private rights of ways when they cannot get permission to operate a line through a certain section and in that way air line roads are built.

Indeed it is a common thing to carry passengers, who, with a small hand satchel, a pocket full of cigars, (chewing gum for women) and a little trolley guide book, have come all the way from New Haven or Boston, to this city with the intention of going on to Philadelphia. During the summer the trip was made from Boston to Philadelphia by Miss Connelly, of 534 Hicks street, Brooklyn, and the officials of the local line have a letter from him describing the trip in detail.

He said the trip from Boston to Hartford, Conn., was delightful but the traveling was slow; the ride from Hartford to Bridgeport was faster but the cars were not so comfortable, the ride from Bridgeport, Conn., to New York was slower still but when he reached Jersey things were different. He boarded a comfortable car at Jersey City and in good time reached Newark, where he changed for one of the North Jersey cars to Elizabeth. Then, he states, the true pleasure of the ride was enjoyed all the way to Philadelphia.

The trip to this city was a fast one in very comfortable cars. The trolley trip between this city and Bound Brook was a quick one and the ride from Bound Brook to New Brunswick, down the Raritan river and past prosperous farms, was one of the prettiest ones on the entire trip. From New Brunswick to Trenton, is described by the Brooklynite as the fastest and most comfortable one of all his experience. Large heavy cars, with upholstered seats and excellent road bed make the ride a delight. The trip to thirty miles is made in a little over an hour. Between Trenton and Philadelphia, which is covered in about two hours and a half, is a pleasant one.

In the trip from Boston to Philadelphia the traveler passes through five states and New York city. Trenton, is of a convenient hotel over night and making good connections, a little less than seventy two hours are consumed in all. The trip from Elizabeth to Philadelphia consumes seven hours and five minutes, which costs $1.20 and the trip from Boston to New York is $8.15, which takes one 266½ miles.

Much of the travel is because of its novelty but between Newark, Elizabeth, Bound Brook and New Brunswick the travel is so heavy that the managers of the road are planning to operate double track cars through from New Brunswick to Newark. There is track connections all the way through and as soon as the double track between New Brunswick and Bound Brook is completed it is probable the double track cars will be put in operation.

Babcock Building Opening.

An effort will be made to open the Babcock building about the first of October. The work on the elevator is completed and there yet remains a little work to entirely complete the rebuilding of the large structure.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 6—Conducted by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Subject—Great Men of the Bible—What Abraham teaches us.—Gen. xii. 1-5; Heb. vii. 1-10; Rom. iv. 1-9.

With this topic we begin the study of the lives of a number of Old Testament worthies—Abraham, Joseph, Moses, David and Elijah. Biography is one of the most interesting and profitable of studies.

Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime
And departing leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time.

This is particularly true of sacred biography. The lives of the men of the Bible have had a tremendous influence in uplifting the lives of others. They were given to us for examples, and we should take advantage of this course in sacred biography and learn the lessons that their lives teach us.

Abraham was the son of Terah and was born in Ur of the Chaldees. The first great event in his life was a call from God to leave the land of his nativity and to go to Canaan, which land God promised to give to him and his descendants. Abraham obeyed, taking with him his wife Sarah and Lot, his nephew, and his servants. Living a nomadic life, they went down through Canaan, stopping at various places, and Abraham was tempted by famine to go to Egypt. After returning to Canaan the herdsmen of Abraham and Lot quarreled about the pasture and the uncle and nephew separated, "Lot pitching his tent toward Sodom" and Abraham dwelling in the plain, while Abraham pastured his flocks in the lands to the west. These events afterward resulted in the capture of Lot by the enemies of Sodom and his rescue by Abraham. God frequently made covenants with Abraham, promising him a seed as the seed as the stars of the heaven in multitude. At last Isaac was born, and when he was grown God put Abraham to the severest test of his life when he called upon him to offer up Isaac as a sacrifice unto Himself. But Abraham stood the test and God saved Isaac and pronounced His blessing upon Abraham. Sarah died before Abraham and was buried in the cave of Machpelah, which Abraham bought for that purpose. Isaac died near Mamre under oaks, where Abraham once sojourned for a time. Here Abraham himself was buried, when he "died in a good old age, an old man and full of years." His age at death was 175.

In these lessons from Hebrew history we have been taken to teach especially faith and works; not faith without works, or works without faith, but faith and works.

The recent campaign in a concerted movement for the formation of new Christian Endeavor societies and the addition of new members to the old societies. It was set on foot last November, and its success already marks it as in the Christian Endeavor movement. CENTRAL SETTLING RAPIDLY

ONLY TEN OF MANY CASES GROWING OUT OF WESTFIELD WRECK REMAIN.

But One Court Verdict Against Company—Road's Policy Considered Liberal.

Out of the large number of claims resulting from the Westfield wreck on January 27, only ten remain for settlement. Eight of these are for injuries and two for death. There has been but one case which reached court, that of Fred Kazen, of East Fifth street, who was badly injured, but this one was appealed by the Central, a verdict claimed to be excessive, having been rendered by the jury.

There are suits pending for the October term in the Union County court, for one death and six for injury, caused by the disaster.

It is considered rather remarkable that for the large number of claims arising from the accident a settlement of so many should have been effected in the comparatively short time, and with so few law suits. This is taken to mean that the settlement offered by the Central has been liberal. Some cases which were given to lawyers to handle were later taken from their hands and the settlement was effected direct with the company.

BASEMENT AS SCHOOL ROOM

TEMPORARY ACCOMMODATIONS FOR PUPILS OF WATCHUNG SCHOOL.

Absolutely Proof Against Dampness—Plans of the School Board

Considerable comment has been heard about the accommodation of children in North Plainfield who have been seeking admission into the schools there by reason of the fact that a new class has been started in the basement of the Watchung School. This has caused adverse criticism on the part of some parents. One complaint has been received by Superintendent Wightman.

An investiagtion into the school room reveals the fact that while it is one foot below the surface of the surrounding property it was built with a view of making it absolutely damp proof. The manner in which the flooring was built is as follows: A layer of cement, a foot in thickness, a layer of pitch, another of cement, four inch sleepings and one inch Georgia pine flooring. The windows are all regulation size and the ventilation, while not as good as that in the upper rooms in the building, is fifty per cent. better than that in the outside rooms where classes are held in vacant stores and halls.

The fact that the pupils have had to be placed in a basement of a school building, shows how important it is that a new building should be built as soon as possible. It has been said that during the heavy rain storm of last week, when the Somerset street school cellar was flooded, not a drop of water was seen in the basement of the Watchung school. The Board considered the advisability of placing the school room in the basement of the German Reformed Church or the Watchung school and, after considering carefully the sanitary qualifications of both places, decided upon the latter as the most healthful of the two.

Thoughtful Plainfielders.

That the Plainfield commuters are appreciative, is shown by the recent action in presenting a handsome check to the widow of Phil. Case, of Flemington. Mr. Case was an engineer on the New Jersey Central over thirty years, running the 7:35 morning train to New York. R. O. Bowers, of Franklin place, took the initiative in the matter and the commuter-element was quick to respond.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 6, "Know and Obey the Word of God"—Text, Matt. xiii, 17; Jas. i, 22-25; Ps. cxix, 9, 11—Bible Study Rally Day.

Vacations are over. Schools have begun. People are once more back in their homes. The hot weathers is past and the season is favorable for more energetic effort. The preparation for the holidays is not yet pressing. Now, if ever, is a good time to push the work of the church. Now, if ever, it is needed.

Routine of church work and home life has been so long relaxed or broken up completely that many will drift away from regular habits and lose all religious life unless special effort is made to reawaken interest and reestablish regular practice of religious duties.

The Sunday school and Epworth League, prayer meeting, class meeting and public worship should all be put in line for active work. The plans should be laid comprehensively for the forward movement in all departments for the whole season. Special emphasis should be placed on Bible study. The text of Matt. is had at the present time. The Sunday school is not in any great measure filling the requirements of our people, nor can it do so completely under its present limitations. No adequate provision is made at the present time in the churches generally for a proper understanding of the Bible. Lesson helps are published in superabundance, and yet the ignorance of the majority of the people who attend church and Sunday school is lamentable and appalling. If any one doubts this a few questions put to the scholars of almost any school or congregation, if any answers are received at all, will dispel doubt and add astonishment. This holds true not only of matters of Bible history, biography, geography and the externals of Scripture teaching, but is equally fact in regard to the fundamental principles of divine truth and the rules of human duty.

The existence of this lack of real knowledge of essential laws of conduct and faith there is a relaxing of effort for righteousness in social, industrial and civic circles as well as apathy in the churches.

The danger from the drift of the times is imminent. The tide of popular interest sets strongly away from righteousness, as it always has. There must be determined effort, skillfully directed and persistently maintained, if we are to escape the disaster of an age ignoring, because ignorant of, the divine revelation in the Christian Scriptures.

No solid basis for personal piety can be found except in a knowledge of and obedience to the commands of God found in the Bible. There is no way to arrive at a proper conviction of divine truth except by a persistent study of the Word. This must be by individual application. When one steadily reads the Scriptures with earnest desire to know God's will and determination to do it when known there comes enlightenment to the mind and the spiritual powers to the heart and the possession of truth which is deeper than intellectual ideas. It is vital experience.

Every revival of devotional piety or ethical righteousness must be based on Christianity and fresh knowledge of God's will and work as recorded in the Bible. There is no substitute for genuine, thorough searching the Scriptures.

If you want to know and serve God, search His word.

If you want to help others to salvation, search God's word.

Apply yourself to the truth, and the truth of God shall be applied to your heart.

Every great revival the world has ever known has risen from earnest searching the word.

Sunshine and Shadow.

Till a man has learned to be happy without the sunshine, and therein becomes capable of enjoying it perfectly, it is well that the shine and the shadow should be mingled so as God only knows how to mingle them. To effect the blessedness for which God made him, man must become a fellow worker with God.—George McDonald.

Modern Heroism.

Modern heroism does not consist of throwing away our lives on some fanciful field of honor, but in enduring smoothly the little trials and temptations of everyday life.—Religious Herald.

Temptation.

When we feel within us rise
Passions that we thought were slain,
When we find the stalwart tares
Growing in our field again,
Then, if patiently we toil,
If temptations be withstood,
Then may we be counted good,
If we stand and overcome.

STATE'S BUILDING AT ST. LOUIS SHOW

Washington's Morristown Headquarters Reproduced on Original Lines.

STRUCTURE DESCRIBED

MEETING PLACE FOR JERSEYMEN AT THE INTER-NATIONAL FAIR.

Original Building Property of State—Contains Revolutionary Relics—Built by Col. Ford—Occupied by Washington.

Historic New Jersey will be represented at St. Louis next year in a novel manner. A reproduction of Washington's headquarters at Morristown has been erected to conform to the size of the original and during the exposition it will be known as the New Jersey Building, a place which will be sought out by each one of the thousands of New Jersey people who will visit the fair.

The only addition or change to the original design of the historical house will be the addition of a large verandah. The house as it stands, has what Colonial people termed a piazza, which is a porch, six feet square. The broad verandah is supported by Doric columns, a device which is the coat of arms of New Jersey. The small window panes dormer windows, outside stone chimney, and weatherboards that do not lap, but are ploughed and groved, all contribute to give the structure a quaint yet pleasing neat appearance.

The interior is a faithful reproduction of the original. Wall papers of Colonial patterns, antique furniture that has also been selected with a view to comfort will be found in all the rooms. A feature of the main hall, the floor of which will be covered with rag carpet, is an old-fashioned fireplace, and all the rooms will contain collections of relics of historic value. Of course this will be headquarters for Jerseymen during the fair, where they may register, rest, meet friends, attend to their correspondence, etc., but the wine buffet will also be in evidence with its cut glass and other accessories, this, of course, being one of the viewplaces of the house.

The upper floors will be cut into sleeping and other apartments, as they were when occupied by Gen. and Martha Washington, and the structure, liberal in its size, and the possibilities of offering the largest hospitality to Jerseymen, will be the Mecca of every one from this State. The building is 63 by 83 feet. It will be one of the first to greet the visitor's eye when he enters the exposition grounds at Oakland avenue and Clayton road.

The headquarters at Morristown is the property of the State. It is in the hands of the Washington Association, numbering about 400 members, who have made it one of the most valuable depository of Revolutionary relics in the country. The building is open for the inspection of visitors the entire year, and thousands, not only from all over the United States, but from the uttermost parts of the earth, visit it, while, with its spacious and well kept grounds, it is a favorite camping place in summer for picnic parties from a radious of twenty miles about.

The old building is in the very best state of preservation. It was built by Col. Jacob Ford, who also manufactured both powder and cannon for the patriot army on his estate. He spared no expense in its construction, the water tables of all the windows frames, for instance, being covered with heavy sheet lead, a fact that led the late Governer, Theodore F. Randolph, who was the first president of the Washington Association, to remark that "the headquarters building has been saved by lead in more ways than one." Washington occupied the headquarters at Morristown from Jan. 7, 1777, to May of that year, and again occupied it in 1779, as the guest of Mrs. Theodosia Ford, widow of Col. Ford, who had died since Washington's first visit.

PROMINENT WORKERS ADDRESS W. C. T. U.

Good Speeches a feature of Plainfield Union's Annual Meeting.

MEMBERSHIP IS NOW 206

MRS. ELIZABETH A. PARSE CHOSEN PRESIDENT FOR SIXTH TIME.

Mrs. John H. French Consents to Fill Office of Recording Secretary for Sixteenth Term.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, held in the rooms in Madison avenue Wednesday afternoon, was attended with a number of pleasant features, including talk by prominent workers for the cause. The first part of the session was devoted to the presentation of the report of the secretary and treasurer, Mrs. John H. French, which showed that the present membership of the Union is 206, an increase over last year. The receipts for the year were $530.38 and the disbursements, $555.78, leaving a balance of $3.50.

There were also reports from superintendents of the various departments of work and each showed marked progress and cause for encouragement. After the reading of these reports, there was the annual address by the president, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse, which was filled with practical suggestions and helpful ideas in carrying on the work of the Union. She personally mentioned the various committees and told briefly of the good work accomplished through them.

Although Mrs. Parse declined to serve for another year, she was elected for the sixth time. Miss Jessie Pruden resigned her office as corresponding secretary, being unable to attend to the duties of that office, and Mrs. F. H. Bennett was chosen in her place. Mrs. John H. French was re-elected recording secretary for the sixteenth consecutive year and Miss Jessie Pruden was elected treasurer, she being able ot look after that work. The election of vice presidents was laid over until the next regular business meeting owing to the lateness of the hour and the desire of the members to hear a few remarks from Mrs. Davis, president of the Somerset County Union, but now a resident of Plainfield, and Mrs. Bodine, who has been president of the Dunellen Union for nineteen consecutive years. Each speaker gave a short and helpful talk along the lines of temperance.

In the selection of delegates to attend the annual State convention to be held at Morristown, next month, Mrs. Winter and Miss May E. Howlett, were chosen. Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, County president, who presided at the meeting, also gave a short address which was inspiring. She and Mrs. J. W. Yates were re-elected honorary vice presidents of the Union.

An encouraging report was received concerning the organization of a Legal Temperance Legion at the Mt. Olive Baptist Church, with a membership of thirty members. The organization is constantly growing and there is much interest shown in the work.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT WORK.

Experiments Being Made at Westfield to Show Value of Tar Asphalt.

As an experiment and also to demonstrate the value of the treatment of tar asphalt for the surface of macadam roads, a well-known company will make for Westfield, under the direction of the road, sewer and water committee, of which Arthur M. Pierson is the chairman, an application of this material to the surface of Mountain avenue, Westfield, today and tomorrow, weather permitting. The claim for this treatment is the water-proofing of the roads, the preservation of the bond at all times, especially during dry seasons. An added claim is the absence of dust.

Suspended Sentence.

For disorderly conduct last week on the corner of Front street and Central avenue, Edwin Belson was warned and released on suspended sentence by City Judge Runyon.

NEW METHOD IN ROAD WORK ILLUSTRATED

A Successful Demonstration Made With Tar Preparation on Macadam Roads.

IMPROVEMENT CLAIMED

ROAD BUILDERS PRESENT WHEN EXPERIMENT IS MADE.

No Dust and No Mud Features of Tar Prepared Highway—Tried on Westfield Street—To be Tested Here—What Experts Say.

As an experiment and to demonstrate the value of the treatment of macadam roads with a preparation of tar, the application of this material was made on one thousand feet of roadway in Westfield Friday afternoon, which was witnessed by well-known experts in road building in New York and New Jersey. It is claimed by the company which tried the experiment, and by the engineers who saw it, that the ideal macadam roadway has been secured. It is said that a road, treated with tar will be free from dust in dry weather, mud in wet weather and frost in winter. The tests made yesterday demonstrate that the scheme theoretically is perfect and the question as to whether it will bear the test of time remains to be answered. The town of Westfield intends to make a thorough test of the road so treated, and if it proves to be what the company claims the streets and roads leading into that place will probably be treated in that manner.

The ideal country road is one which, in dry weather, is free from dust and in wet weather free from mud. The nearest approach to such a road has so far been the macadamized road, carefully sprinkled. Now they treat the roads with a preparation of tar. It is an improvement over the method used in California, that of pouring crude petroleum on the surface of the roads. Its secure dustless high ways, because the composition acts as a binder as well as a means of keeping the dust down. It is also an improvement over the schemes used in France and Germany where pitch is mixed with sand and gravel to make a dustless and even roadbed. In California the operation has to be repeated several times a year and in France and Germany the pitch becomes brittle and loses, to some extent, its adhesive properties. As prepared by the Barrett Company, the tar acts as a binder, keeping out the water and making the macadam, keeping the fine earth in perfect bond and makes a smooth surface with just the required resiliency to it to prevent injury to horse's hoofs.

This road on which the experiment was made had been laid but two months. The top dressing was carefully brushed away, leaving exposed the bond or body. On this the preparation of tar was sprinkled and allowed to sink in for about half an inch. The top dressing was then put back on the layer of tar and on top of the gravel the finer sweepings, including the dust, was sprinkled. This was rolled down with a heavy roller and allowed to "set." One thousand feet were thus treated. When the operation was completed there was no evidence of the presence of the tar from the top of the road, although the top dressing could not be scraped by the foot as loose dirt.

Each particle of gravel was held fast in position thus preventing the water from beating through to the bedford beneath and tearing ruts and crevices in the roadway. When a steel tired wagon passes over this stones each little particle of dust is instantly caught up by the tar although none of the tar clings to the wheels or to the horse's hoofs. It will not injure rubber tires as the tires rest upon the top dressing and not upon the layer of tar beneath.

To test the claim that no dust is raised on the road thus treated a large automobile, driven at full speed along the finished stretch, failed to raise any dust whatever, although when it arrived at a point where the roadway was in its natural state, a blinding cloud of dust arose and shut the automobile from view. This was considered a thorough test for the new process, inasmuch as the preparation had not been firmly rolled.

It is claimed by the company that the cost of treating a road which has already been laid is about $650 a mile. When once it is laid it will keep the dust down, prevent mud on the road on the wettest day and will keep the frost out of the ground in winter for seven year, depending on how the road is treated. The road will remain water proof for that length of time after one application.

Prominent road engineers were present as well as members of the Union County Board of Freeholders. Some of those present were Herman W. Merkel, superintendent of the New York Zoological Park in the Bronx, and George M. Beerbower, the engineer of the Park; J. P. Hubbard, director of the Union County Board of Freeholders, and other members of that board, Benjamin King, chairman of the roads committee; S. R. Ryno, clerk; John Farrell, E. K. Adams, Henry Krouse, C. A. Smith, W. W. Connolly, Arthur N. Pearson, chairman of the road, sewer and water committee of the Westfield Common Council, engineer of the township, Harry C. VanEmburgh, of this city and Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett, of this city. All seemed well impressed with the theory of the new scheme but desired to see the roadway after it has undergone a test of time before voicing an opinion.

Mr. Merkel, however, declared: "I believe the system to be a good one and can see no reason why it should not do what the company claims. I think it should be thoroughly rolled into the roadbed after the layer of fine gravel has been put on, and then allowed to thoroughly soak into the ground. It would make the road water proof and where you have a water proof road you have a road free from dust and mud. He said that he would have experiments made on some of the driveways in the Bronx Park and, if it proves to do what is claimed for it, we will have all the roads in the Park treated in that manner."

Mr. Beerbower, the engineer, said: "I doubt very much if it will do as well on a road which has already been built. If it is put on the gravel while being laid in place in a new roadbed it would not only make the road dust and waterproof but it would make it almost permanent. The plan is a good one and it is an improvement over the California petroleum and the European pitch systems."

Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett said, when asked his opinion of the new scheme: "The plan is a good one and I believe it will do what is claimed for it. An experiment will be made on Watchung avenue, in Plainfield, in fact we have been thinking of making these experiments for some time. We have the tar and a test will be made shortly in Plainfield so that it can be watched and the effects of time upon it carefully noted."

"Should it prove satisfactory, would you advise having the streets of Plainfield treated in this manner?" he was asked.

"If it will do what it is claimed—that is keep away the dust, the adoption of the treatment will be urged in the Common Council."

Mr. Pearson, of the Westfield Council, said that he had been making a special study of good roads and when Mr. H. Phillips, a resident of Westfield, came to him and told him of the new process which had been tried successfully in a short street in Brooklyn, he decided to have the company make a test of it. It will be left in position for a year, and then if the result is what is anticipated, it will be adopted in the town.

PROCEEDINGS BY RECEIVER.

Voorhees Applies for Relief for Loan Association Investors.

Former Governor Foster M. Voorhees has made new applications in the Court of Chancery as the receiver for the Republic Savings and Loan Association for the relief of several investors who are about to lose their homes through the foreclosure of mortgages. There are a number of Plainfielders interested in this concern.

Mr. Voorhees, it will be remembered, succeeded recently in having the court approve the settlement of one of these claims in a case where a poor man had paid more money into the association through dues, fines and interest, than the amount of the original mortgage. Nevertheless the association could have sold the property under foreclosure proceedings.

It was suggested by the former Governor that the best way out of the difficulty was to accept a small payment covering the cost of the sale and the court approved of this.

VAN WORMERS TO DIE

Intend to Meet Their Fate Without Showing Fear.

DO NOT WISH TO SEE STEPMOTHER

Mrs. Van Wormer Is Prostrated by Refusal of Governor Odell to Intercede and Request of the Boys Not to See Them Again.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Mrs. Estella Van Wormer, stepmother of the three brothers who are to die tomorrow morning in the electric chair at Dannemora, was told upon her arrival at Dannemora that her stepsons had requested that she should not be allowed to visit them or even so much as see them in their cells in the death house. It was not because they did not wish to see the woman who has been the only mother they have ever known and who has stood by them through thick and thin, for it required all the courage the young men could muster to take the stand they took after a long talk with Warden Deyo and Rev. Father Belanger, their spiritual adviser, but solely because they were afraid that the ordeal of the farewell would completely unnerve them.

The thought uppermost in the minds of Willis, Burton and Frederick Van Wormer is that they must not weaken or even appear to weaken. Realizing fully that they must die within thirty-six hours, they intend to meet their fate with fortitude. They appear to regard any evidence of fear as even more disgraceful than death in the electric chair.

Mrs. Van Wormer was on the verge of nervous prostration when she reached Plattsburg after her attempt to plead with Governor Odell at Albany.

During the hour's ride from Plattsburg to Dannemora Mrs. Van Wormer said: "I think Governor Odell's action in refusing to see me was heartless. I am poor and unable to pay the cost of removing the bodies of my sons from Dannemora to Kinderhook, but if I could only get their bodies back to Kinderhook I know I could arrange for their interment there. I hope and pray that some way can be found to bury my boys somewhere near my home in Columbia county, so that I can visit their graves. I expect to see them just after I reach Dannemora, and I will stay all night and visit them again."

Mrs. Van Wormer was so overcome with emotion that she broke down and cried like a child. At Dannemora station she met Rev. Father Belanger, the venerable pastor of St. Joseph's church, who conducted her to the parish house, where she was met by Warden Deyo.

Mrs. Van Wormer was then told by Father Belanger, at the request of her sons that she should not visit them and of the reasons why it seemed best to them that she remain away. At first she was overwhelmed at the thought that she could never see her boys again, and it seemed as though she would utterly collapse, but after a time she partially regained control of her emotions and was soon convinced by Warden Deyo and Father Belanger that it was for the best. She remained at the parish house until train time and then returned to Plattsburg. She took the train for Kinderhook and will endeavor to arrange to have the bodies of her sons sent to her at that place. If she cannot arrange it the bodies of the young men will be come for, as provided by law, in quicklime in the prison burying ground.

Father Belanger and Warden Deyo visited the boys and found them calm and prepared to die. The question of which shall go first to the chair is still an open one and will in all probability remain so until the very last minute. It is intended that if any one of the trio shows signs of weakening he shall be taken first. If all three are apparently equal to the ordeal Fred's, the youngest brother's, plea will be adopted. Fred has told both Warden Deyo and Father Belanger that he is ready to go first and that he believes Willis should go second and Burton last. Burton wrote a letter to Pearl Connor, bidding her goodby. The three brothers are declared by Prison Physician Ransom to be in excellent physical condition, and they eat and sleep fairly well. State Electrician Davis will arrive at Dannemora and will make an unusually thorough examination of the entire electrical apparatus.

Since Governor Odell's refusal to interfere in their behalf the three young men have received scores of letters from people in all parts of the country, mostly from women, breathing them of the divine forgiveness and urging them to be brave and to trust in God's mercy.

TILLMAN ON TRIAL.

Important Testimony In Regard to Gonzales' Death.

THE WEAPON AN AUTOMATIC PISTOL

Lieutenant Bamberg Stated That the Accused Had Said, "If He Hit Where He Aimed He (Gonzales) Was a Dead Man."

LEXINGTON, S. C., Sept. 30.—Good speed was made in the trial here of former Lieutenant Governor James H. Tillman, who is charged with the murder of N. G. Gonzales, editor of the State.

Mrs. J. H. Tillman and the defendant's mother occupied seats within the railing throughout the day. One line of examination pursued by the state was with a view to laying the foundation for the introduction of dying declarations. Four of the physicians who participated in the operation on Mr. Gonzales after he was shot were on the stand—Drs. Guerry, Pope, Taylor and Griffith, all of Columbia.

Ambrose E. Gonzales, publisher of the State and a brother of N. G. Gonzales, was called to the stand when the solicitor offered in evidence the files of the State for the year 1902, the purpose being, as announced by counsel, to introduce the editorials in the State newspaper, of which N. G. Gonzales was editor, from July 1, 1902, to Dec. 31, 1902. The editorials in question are in relation to James H. Tillman. The reading of the editorials was postponed so that counsel for the defense might read them first.

On cross examination Mr. Gonzales was asked by counsel for the defense:

"The relations between your brother and Mr. Tillman have not been pleasant for some years, have they?"

He replied, "They have not been pleasant."

Mr. Gonzales was asked on further cross examination by the defense if he had not heard his brother express himself in denunciatory language in regard to Mr. Tillman, to which the witness replied:

"I cannot say I ever heard him use such language in the office. I think everything he said, not everything he knew or believed, but everything he said to his relatives or friends, he said in the State newspaper so that the people all could know."

In reply to further questions Mr. Gonzales said he could not say that he knew his brother to have entertained bitter feeling toward J. H. Tillman, nor could he say that he knew his brother's feelings toward the defendant to have been hostile. His brother had been, he said, in control of the editorials, and his brother wrote them without consultation.

Mrs. Van Wormer was then told by Father Belanger, at the request of her sons that she should not visit them and of the reasons why it seemed best to them that she remain away. At first she was overwhelmed at the thought that she could never see her boys again, and it seemed as though she would utterly collapse, but after a time she partially regained control of her emotions and was soon convinced by Warden Deyo and Father Belanger that it was for the best. The question of which shall go first to the chair is still an open one and will in all probability remain so until the very last minute. It is intended that if any one of the trio shows signs of weakening he shall be taken first. If all three are apparently equal to the ordeal Fred's, the youngest brother's, plea will be adopted. PRETTY NUPTIAL EVENT

MARRIAGE TAKES PLACE IN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, WESTFIELD.

Orville T. Waring, Best Man—James F. Middledith An Usher—The Couple to Reside in East Orange.

Miss Laura Peckham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Peckham, of Hillside avenue, Westfield, and Edward Hileman Waring, son of Edward J. Waring, formerly of Willow avenue, North Plainfield, were married last Saturday at 12:30 in the Congregational Church, Westfield. Rev. Dr. J. B. Danforth, pastor of the church, officiated in the presence of a large and fashionable throng of guests from this vicinity and distant points.

The bride wore a gown of white silk, trimmed with lace and ribbons and she carried white roses. She also wore a veil. Attending the bride, as maid-of-honor, was her sister, Miss Ruth Peckham, who was gowned in green Liberty silk. She wore a black hat and carried carnations. MAYOR A FIRE FIGHTER

MR. SMALLEY CLIMBS ROOF AND EXTINGUISHES BLAZE.

Fire at George F. White's in Willow Avenue—Loss Trifling—False Rumors.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, proved himself to an efficient fire fighter at a fire at the home of George F. White at 41 Willow avenue, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

A spark falling from a chimney set fire to the wooden shingles on the house and in an instant the structure was ablaze. A pedestrian saw the smoke curling up from the roof and on examining closer saw flames. He rushed to Mayor Smalley's house near by and told him of the fire. A telephone message was sent in to the Warren Engine Company but before the firemen arrived, Mayor Smalley had climbed to the roof with an extinguisher, put out the fire before $20 worth of damage had been done. Considerable excitement was caused in this city on account of the report which spread about that George White's house had been burned to the ground and the house adjoining was afire.

CENTRAL'S HEAVIEST TRAIN.

Trial Run to Ascertain Advisability of Using "Hog Back" Engines.

The longest train which has ever passed through this city was one of sixty-six forty ton cars on the Central Railroad of New Jersey Friday afternoon. It was a test train and weighed 4,000 tons.

The Jersey Central Railroad ran the train as an experiment to test the feasibility of running heavy trains with a regular large "hog back" engine in front and a huge passenger locomotive in the rear as a pusher. The train made good time to Jersey City and it is believed the test was a successful one.

COMMITTEE'S SCHEMES

A COUNTINUOUS PERFORMANCE TO BE RENDERED BY LOCAL TALENT.

Play as a Feature—The Caste—Music and a Dance—Iona Council's Part in the Exercises—Other Details.

The third anniversary of the institution in Plainfield of Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 229, I. O. R. M., will be observed in a notable fashion by one of the best entertainments of the kind that will be presented in this city this year. A continuous performance of more than two and a half hours' at the Casino on the evening of October 28 will conclude with the presentation of the farce, "Hector," by the following competent cast:

Frederick Long, a merchant, A. E. Willard; Louise, his wife, Mrs. A. E. Willard; Oscar Spencer, a young student, Mortimer Slater; Jacob Einstein, a pawnbroker, C. E. Stott; August, a colored servant, Matthew D. Sweeney; Watson, a confidential clerk, Walter Emmons; Fanny, a maid, Miss Ethel Reynolds; a messenger boy, Master Harold Willard.

Of this cast, C. E. Stott is a professional performer, of New York city, who has just returned to this county from a European trip. He is a sleight-of-hand performer and ventriloquist, as well as an actor and will contribute much to the vaudeville part of the programme. There will be several specialty teams on the stage and Mrs. Willard will give serpentine and fire dances midway on any stage. Master Harold Willard will contribute some Irish specialties.

One of the oddest and funniest numbers on the programme will be the enactment of the saving of Captain John Smith by Pocohontas in which the star parts will be taken by the red men themselves and their sisters in Iona Council. The evening's entertainment will end with a dance. Music will be by Dreier's orchestra.

The committee of red men in charge of the affair consists of R. H. Humphrey, chairman; A. E. Willard, general stage manager and coach; Fred Firstbrook, R. Scott, M. Leichtentritt, W. A. Westphal and J. Clark. The speaker of the evening will be the Great Incahona of the United States.

On October 27 at the Casino, one of the greatest spectacular production yet staged in Plainfield will be presented. The dramatization of Edward Bulwer, Lord Lytton's famous novel, "The Last Days of Pompeii," will be given at that time by members of Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, United Order of Odd Ladies, under direction of A. E. Willard. Mr. Willard has managed a professional presentation of the play on many stages.

The electrical effects in the presentation of the play will be something never equalled on a local stage. The fire scene and the bursting of Mt. Vesuvius will be pictured in full splendor. The fancy dances will border on the marvellous and costumes for the performers to the value of $2,000 will be provided. Two hundred people will appear on the stage at one time or another. A feature of the dancing will be a "Carnival of Trade" in which each of the local merchants will be represented by a girl in costume. The "Columbia Drill" and the "Flight of Butterflies" will be other dances of especial beauty.

PLAINFIELD IS IN GOOD HEALTH

Sanitary Conditions Reported Excellent at Meeting of Board of Health.

BETTER MILK PROVIDED

VITAL STATISTICS FOR THE MONTH SHOW TWENTY DEATHS.

Thirteen Marriage in September—Nuisances Abated—Harberger's Dump at Front Street and Grant Avenue Ordered Closed.

Business chiefly of a routine nature was considered at the October meeting of the Board of Health, yesterday afternoon, President C. J. Fisk, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, Dr. T. S. Davis, F. W. Dunn and Charles Dunham being present. The sanitary condition of the city as shown through the various reports is excellent. There were 138 inspections and visits to the houses with contagious diseases and forty dairies were visited. Twenty-one samples of milk were analysed during the month and all showed an improvement over the preceding month, especially in the number of bacteria which was materially less. One dairyman was discovered watering his milk and this source of supply was closed to the city. Two complaints were made of violation of the ordinance and the men appeared before City Judge Runyon.

This is a statement of the mortality for the month of September, 1903, compared with the preceding month and the corresponding month of 1902.

The death rate being computed on an estimated population of 16,000.

	Sept. 1903	Aug. 1903	Sept. 1902
Total deaths	20	32	19
Annual death rate per thousand	15	24	14.25

Males	9	14	13
Females	11	18	6

During September there were received thirteen marriage certificates, thirty-four birth certificates and one still-birth certificate. A special report read on the question of the city's garbage collection and disposal, was ordered sent to the Common Council. Rules relating to the manner of keeping a quarantine were adopted and will soon be published.

These permits were granted: Frank Moore and P. J. Haines, to sell milk; T. M. Ingraham, to carry on business of scavenger; Theodore Glazer and W. T. Banks, to collect offal and to Mrs. Noah Terry to collect garbage. The plumber's bonds from John L. Miller of Westfield, and W. H. Kirch, of this city, were filed.

The question of opening the Harberger dump was discussed and finally referred to the nuisance committee, which has decided that, on account of the nuisances which have previously come from this dump, it is a matter of public safety and comfort to keep it closed.

Leo XIII Depicted.

The New York Mail and Express speaking of the Pope Leo pictures that will be shown with other interesting features of illustrated songs, etc., at the Casino tomorrow afternoon and evening, said: "Carnegie Hall was filled, and the exhibition in every respect was successful. The pictures displayed with remarkable accuracy every change of the Pope's expression. His benignant smile, and, on one occasion, his hearty laugh, were as natural as life. The Postifical blessing was again and again given from the canvas, and those present who had never been enabled to make the pilgrimage to Rome, felt that at last, Rome had been brought to them." Reserved seats are on sale at Armstrong's pharmacy.

NO EPIDEMIC.

False Report That Diphtheria Is Raging in City and Borough.

There is no epidemic of diphtheria in either Plainfield or North Plainfield. This statement is made on the authority of the boards of health, a report being in circulation that there are at least nineteen cases of the disease in the city alone. There are a few scattered cases about the city, and but three in the borough.

SUPT. MAXSON'S ANNUAL REPORT

He Tells the Board of Education That the Increase in Attendance at Schools is Large.

CROWDED CONDITIONS

PROVISIONS FOR ACCOMMODATING PUPILS IN THE SEVERAL SCHOOLS.

Presence of Out-of-Town Pupils an Advantage—Probably Possible to Get Through Year With Present Accommodations.

In presenting his report to the Board of Education at the meeting Monday night, Superintendent Maxson said that "the total attendance for last year in Plainfield schools was 375,875 days, which is an increase of nearly 23,000 days over the attendance last year. The average number of pupils in attendance was nearly 150 more than for the previous year."

Continuing his report on the subject he said: "When the schools opened this fall, it was soon apparent that there would be a still farther large increase in numbers. The reports of attendance for last week show an increase of more than 150 over the attendance at this time last year. This increase is distributed among the various schools but is greatest in the Irving School and in the High School, in each of which there are over fifty pupils more than last year. Thus far we are able to provide for all the increase by instituting half day classes in the lowest primary at the Bryant and Washington Schools, and afternoon classes in the kindergartens of these schools and at the Irving, but the afternoon session has been lengthened for these classes so that while the arrangement is not quite as desirable as the two session plan for these young children the loss is very small. In this connection the question may be asked by those not familiar with the situation, why not exclude pupils that are from out of town now that the schools are so crowded.

"That number in any one class is so small that their exclusion would make very little, if any difference in the crowding. On the other hand, the tuition which they pay the city amounts to over $2,000, while their presence costs the city very little. Their presence is therefore a decided advantage to the city.

"By having one or two small classes recite in my office, the High School will probably be able to get through the year with the present increase of pupils."

DEVOE'S WEATHER PREDICTION

THUNDERSTORM FOR NOVEMBER AND RAINING WINTER.

To be Little Skating in December—Not Much Ice Until March—Other Predictions.

Professor Devoe, the Hackensack weather prophet, has cast his eye over he signs for the next few months, and he doesn't think that the coal barons and the top coat makers will be overworked this winter. Said the prophet yesterday:

"New York and New Jersey, especially on and near the coast, will have a warm fall and early winter, with a dry October and a wet November. Thanksgiving month promises to be characterized by the unusual phenomenon of severe thunder showers.

"December will show a falling temperature, but it will not be sufficiently cold to please the farmers or ice skaters. In fact, my calculations cut out heavy snows and material ice formations until March. I don't believe there will be any ice stored hereabouts until that month, when the severest cold will prevail for some days, if not weeks.

"Last year my predictions of a warm March were fully verified, and you will find that just the opposite weather conditions will prevail next March. There are not likely to be many heavy wind storms this winter, but carry your umbrellas pretty consistently, for rains will be numerous."

Hard on Smokers.

In some of the trolley cars on the main line, between this city and Elizabeth, the smoking compartments have been removed.

There will be a meeting of the Republican city executive committee, tonight, to fix the date for the city convention.

NEW DRAMATIC CLUB FORMED

YOUNG PEOPLE BAND TOGETHER TO LEARN ACTING.

Organization to be Limited to Membership—Plays to be Produced.

An amateur dramatic club is to be formed among some of the young people in this city and within a few days a meeting will be held at which time an organization will be effected. The name of the organization is to be the Willard Dramatic Club. It is being promoted by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Willard, of West Front street.

Among the members of the club are Miss Ethel Reynolds, Mortimer Slater, Walter Emmons and Matthew D. Sweeney. The total membership of the club will be limited to thirty. The object of the organization is to give the members practice in elocution and so far it has proved to be a popular association. The meeting for permanent organization has been called for Friday evening.

The club is to assist in the production of the drama, "The Last Days of Pompeii," which is to be held under the auspices of the local lodge of Odd Ladies some time during the week of October 26. Another play is to be given in the Casino on the evening of October 28. This will be a one act farce comedy entitled "Hector." It will be produced under the auspices of one of the local lodges.

During the winter the club will give little plays which will be invitation affairs. It is planned to have an enrollment of between twenty and thirty members who have some ability for acting.

MISSING WATCH RECOVERED

W. W. WARNOCK'S WATCH FOUND BADLY BATTERED.

Masonic Charm Not Attached—A Child Discovered the Timepiece.

A remarkable case of the loss of property presumably through theft and its recovery by accident came to light yesterday. Several months ago William Warnock, the West Front street baker, was at work in his bake shop and hung his vest containing his watch and a Masonic charm on a peg. He forgot about the vest and later went to get it and found that the watch and charm were missing.

It was suspected that the watch had been stolen but the identity of the thief could not be positively established. Yesterday afternoon a little boy, playing marbles in the back yard crawled under the barn to recover a marble which rolled under the structure. While there he discovered a shining piece of metal and bringing it out with him found it to be the long lost watch. It was battered and mutilated. The jewels had been extracted. A search failed to reveal the whereabouts of the charm and it is presumed that the chief took that, extracted the jewels, consisting of diamonds, rubies and emeralds and pawned them.

EIGHTEEN YEARS OF CHURCH SOCIETY

The Christian Endeavorers of Trinity Church Celebrate Anniversary of Organization.

PROGRAMME RENDERED

INTERIOR DECORATIONS A FEATURE AT THE AFFAIR.

Social Committee Assisted by the Flower and Reception Committees—Those Taking Part in the Proceedings.

Under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society, of Trinity Reformed Church, a social was held last night in celebration of the eighteenth anniversary of the organization. A musical and literary programme made the evening an enjoyable one. There were fully two hundred people present. The rooms were decorated with autumn leaves and in the front part the figures in silver colored numerals "1885-1903" were conspicuous.

Miss Jeanette Young and Miss Frida Gray gave several piano duets and these were followed by a game in which it was necessary to guess the name of cakes by written descriptions. This proved to be a novel form of entertainment. A musical trio was perhaps the most pleasing of the renditions during the evening. Kenneth Shepp, Arthur Mosher, E. P. Wheeler and Miss Charlotte Cooper, accompanist, favored several times with selections and they were loudly applauded. Miss Florence Bennett, a member of the choir, gave several pleasing selections. This was followed by another game which was somewhat of an author guessing contest. Refreshments were served.

The social committee which had charge of the arrangements is composed of Miss H. M. Kreitling, chairman; Miss Minnie Wyman, Miss Jeanette Young, Miss Kate Bodine, Miss Emma Lindsley, Miss Bessie Martin, Miss Elizabeth Davenport, H. S. Humes and Clarence Rittenhouse. The social committee was assisted by the flower committee, consisting of Miss Anna Searing, chairman; Miss Anna Bodine, Miss Anna Randall, Miss Jean Lindsley and Mrs. W. J. Trembath and the reception committee composed of E. P. Wheeler, J. W. Trembath, John VanHorne, Chauncey F. Colthar, Julius Williams and Fred Bach.

During the evening Rev. Dr. Schenck, pastor of the church, made a few remarks congratulating the society on its growth.

DUNELLEN BOTTLER DEFEATED

THE CITIZENS SUCCESSFUL IN FIGHT AGAINST LICENSE.

Strange Words of Judge W. Strong, Who Heard the Remonstrants.

The people of Dunellen were represented in New Brunswick yesterday by members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, ministers, and president of the Levering & Garrigues Company, in a fight against the granting of a liquor license to Joseph F. Soukup, for a bottler's permit. Soukup was represented by Former Judge C. T. Cowenhoven. H. Brewster Willis, Esq., was counsel for remonstrants.

Judge Woodbridge Strong in refusing the license said that he did not think a large number of saloons is responsible for vice. He declared he was often surprised at the number of liquor places in New Brunswick and of the little crime. New Brunswick, said he, is a good city, one of order, morality and decency, in spite of the 205 saloons. He said this as an illustration that the multiplicity of saloons in any locality does not necessarily increase disorder and intemperance.

Mr. Jackson says he sincerely hopes that all persons who have subscribed money for the repairs will respond as soon as possible.

At present the foreman is sworn in and the others are asked if they will do the same as the foreman. It is proposed to change this so that the foreman shall be sworn in first and then the other members, either individually or collectively, with the full oath in detail.

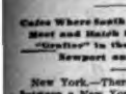
NEW YORK LETTER

Glimpses of the Varied Side of Life in a Great City.

HOME SWEET HOME IN DUMPS

Cafes Where South American Plotters Meet and Hatch Revolutions—The "Grafter" in the Labor World—Newport and Saratoga.

New York.—There is this difference between a New York slum and one in the old world—in London, for instance, particularly. In New York poor people have oftentimes to live in detestable holes not to be matched in Europe north of Naples, but they generally have enough to eat.



A New York Home

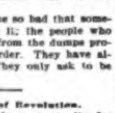
Fat and rosy and contented in the main are the dwellers in New York's most incredible "homes," now to be vacated by order of the board of health—the "dumps."

The rubbish dumps at the waterside have been famous for years. Big canal boats lie there beneath a high platform whereon wagons with street sweepings are backed up and dumped over into their holds. Here the stuff has to be "trimmed"—a process something like loading hay upon a rack, so that it will "ride." This trimming costs the city nothing; on the contrary it brings in many thousands a year. Contractors bid eagerly for the privilege of sorting over the rubbish and take out of it a perfect gold mine of valuable refuse. And under the platforms, breathing daily and nightly the air of the refuse, have lived the laborers who do the trimming.

There is no home so bad that someone does not love it; the people who are to be evicted from the dumps protest against the order. They have always lived so. They only ask to be let alone.

The Cafes of Revolution.

There is room in a great city for all sorts of queer people. Certain Spanish cafes of the lower West side make fine prowling places for novelists in search of material for stories of Latin-American life; for they are always well provided with scowling, whispering, mysterious plotters against the peace of the Southern Central American republics. They are the "cousins."



A Cafe of the Conspirators

Some very rich ex-dictators and ex-presidents—they are much the same thing—go to Paris to spend in luxury, among the "kings in exile," of whose Dundreary wrote, the millions filched from their countrymen and with difficulty saved. More come to New York. Here the two great South American trading houses, the Flints and the Graces, are popularly credited with supplying the funds of revolution and counter-revolution. Their alleged activities in this line, for the sake of "concessions" from successive parties in power, have been woven into fiction by Kipling and by Richard Harding Davis and Harold Frederic.

The sober fact is that quite aside from these alluring possibilities, here is the mart for the smuggling of arms; here and in Washington center the management of business enterprises that live in troublous states by pleasures of the executive, and that appeal for gunboats to the secretary of state when anything goes wrong.

Here, too, are arranged those little wars "on the side" between rival tractors, as when a brave scion of Santiago, Capt. Rafferty, was hired by one asphalt trust to fight the soldiers of another in Venezuela.

Plotters and counter-plotters are polite above all. And in New York they seem to recognize neutral ground, where all quarrels must cease until they can be renewed beneath hotter skies.

The Spanish Americans in Port.

There are other Spanish-Americans less troubled by politics who light-heartedly add to New York's attractiveness. They are the birds of passage who stop in harbor a day or two while waiting for their ships to proceed to Spain. Mostly about the old Battery, or at piers in farthest Brooklyn, warp in the tall tramps with the Latin names—the "Concepcionas," and the "Carmenitas," and over their rails lean Cuban, Guatemalan, Costa Rican, Brazilian beauties in garb that brightens up the dull streets of warehouses.

A Dance on Deck

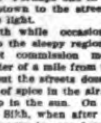
They come ashore in little groups to enjoy a breath of fresh air and wander up and down the streets, arm [illegible]

There are gentlemen in escapes and in spotless white decks and in sombreros. And at night when they return to their floating homes there is the tinkle of the mandolin and the strumming of guitars, and upon the decks there is dancing quite impromptu, but alive with Castilian grace. Few are these visitors of a day who cannot dance. A queer idea of New York they must carry away. Perhaps one in five ever ventures uptown to the streets where it is always light.

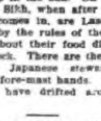
It is worth while occasionally to wander into the sleepy regions of the South street commission merchants. It is a quarter of a mile from the stock exchange, but the streets done. There is the odor of spice in the air. Roustabouts sleep in the sun. On the deck of the ship Silth, when after long absence she comes in, are Lascar sailors eating by the rules of their caste, squatting about their food dishes flat upon the deck. There are the Chinese cooks, the Japanese stewards, the Portuguese fore-mast hands. Kanakas even, who have drifted around the Horn.

The Ways of the "Grafter."

New York stands appalled at the revelations of "graft" in the labor world. Conceded the main are the leaders of the labor leaders are men not only of honesty and sincerity, but of unusual ability. I have met many of them in this country and in England, and can bear testimony to their high average character. But there is the easier for the occasional black sheep to "do business." Of their [illegible] methods the trial of Larry Murphy, treasurer of a stone cutters' union, was eloquent. Murphy was put on trial for getting away with the funds of the union. His counsel, Mr. McIntyre, formerly an assistant district attorney and a keen one, offered the original defense that the money didn't belong to the union. How, he innocently asked, could the union ask Murphy to account for money it never owned? Of course, there was a hidden motive behind such a "defense." That motive was revenge. It was brought out in testimony that Murphy had been bled by other leaders of the union; that six members had practically divided a fund of $10,000 which Andrew D. Baird had paid on behalf of master stone-cutters to end a "strike."



Farmers Are Not Interested.



I know Baird well. He is a grim old Scottish warrior, a brave veteran of the civil war, a man of wealth and position, once a candidate for mayor of Brooklyn. What terrorism must have existed to make this man—not for his own sake, believe, but to keep other men at work, and save weaker contractors from bankruptcy—pay blackmail!

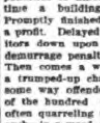
The chances for "graft" are enormous. Imagine a contractor under penalties to finish within a certain time a building costing $1,000,000. Promptly finished the work nets him a profit. Delayed so as to bring creditors down upon him or to cause demurrage penalties, it will ruin him. Then comes a walking delegate with a trumped-up charge or having in some way offended against some one of the hundred conflicting rules of often quarrelling unions. He demands cash—in a word, a bribe. What is the contractor to do?

Who gets the money? Ostensibly it is a fine. In the Baird case, the money was deposited in bank to the order of six men, about $1,666 to each. They could not trust each other.

Newport and Saratoga.

Saratoga is having the most brilliant year in its history—and last year set a record not easy to beat. Newport is melancholy.

Wall street is at the bottom of it. Newport is the capital of those who have "arrived" in business and society. Saratoga is more democratic. Newport has been made sad by the depression in stocks; Saratoga welcomes the lucky bears with the "bulls" who wish to forget their sorrows in trying the "little horses," in the slang of the day.



The Little Horses

Newport, as I have written, suffers by the growth of the fashion of the real country home, amid broad acres such as in Newport are impossible. Saratoga is frankly a hotel resort, where comparatively few attempt cottage life. There is at Saratoga no such splendid array of homes of wealth as in Newport, just as in the latter one looks in vain for mile-long hotel piazzas where the fashion is all day blazing with diamonds while they toil at fancy work.

Racing makes Saratoga. Without gambling, the place would be dull. On the race track gambling is legitimized by the law of the state. Thousands of dollars are risked there by men who do not look as if they could raise a thousand cents. Pittsburg Phil pulled off nearly $70,000 there recently in one race. Where else could he have bet so much without yanking down the odds?

In Saratoga, too, the state politician loves to gather in August to make slates and break them. It is alive, [illegible]

CENTER OF NEW YORK

Everything in Gotham Revolves About Wall Street.

IT WAS A "RICH MAN'S PANIC."

The Recent Flurry in the Street Did Not Greatly Concern the Poor—No Sympathy Shown for Keene—Other Items.

New York.—It is in the main true that the troubles in Wall street are a "rich man's panic."

There were poor men who had been lured by seductive circulars to buy stocks "at the top" who were sold out long ago; there were nervous widows who had bought perfectly sound stocks for investment and were frightened into unnecessary sale by sagging quotations which did not hurt them in the least so long as the dividends were paid. But in the main the public, which usually gets hold of the tarred end of the Wall street stick, is having a lovely time just now. It is even languidly nibbling at bargain sales of stocks of sound worth at prices which will hardly be equalled for a generation to come.

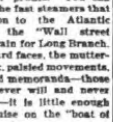
The figures have been printing estimates that the fortune of John D. Rockefeller has shrunk by $100,000,000 during the slump. There has, of course, been a great decrease of his wealth on paper, but even if the figures were as big as this it would not prove that Mr. Rockefeller has really lost a cent. Whatever his investments, if they were made with his usual judgment, they are as sound as they ever were.

There are, of course, rich men who have been more severely than by the shrinkage of paper profits. You can pick them out on the fast steamers that run every afternoon to the Atlantic Highlands, where the "Wall street crowd" takes the train for Long Branch.

The white, haggard faces, the muttering lips, the shaking, palsied movements, the hastily penciled memoranda—those little sums that never will and never can "come right"—it is little enough like a pleasure cruise on the "boat of the brokers" every day.

The Great Bear's Downfall.

Mr. Keene has had his reverses before and has bravely borne them. This time he, too, looks old and worn and haggard. His appearance of physical ill-health is heightened by the difficulty of his walk, owing to a lame leg that has been bothering him for some time.



The Bull Ate the Worse for Wear.

There is little sympathy in the street for Mr. Keene. He has been the most conspicuous example of the "operator" pure and simple. Most men of his wealth become identified with some special property, and at least a large majority of them honestly strive to administer their trusts. The day of the "railroad wrecker" is past, as the experience of Rock Island might hint, but he does not often get hold of an important line, and his prey is apt to be wrested from him, as Mr. Morgan took Louisville & Nashville from the reckless Gates.

Men like Vanderbilt, Gould, Harriman, Hill, Cassatt and the rest do their best to build up and protect their systems. Mr. Gould, for instance, could no more repeat his father's evil exploit of wrecking Erie than could slavery return in the south. So Hill is more impatient to felt with a man who has made his reputation and two or three fortunes by bearing stocks, and who has never done a stroke of work developing any property.

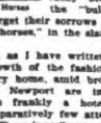
I heard a curious prophecy of the Keene catastrophe two or three weeks before it happened. Up in the Adirondacks Talbot J. Taylor, Keene's son-in-law and head of the shattered stock-breaking firm, had bought for $60,000 a magnificent point of mountain land jutting out into Upper Saranac lake. Costly furniture expressed to Mr. Taylor was lying about the dock of the little steamboat, but there was no sign of their owner.

"I guess I know why he isn't building that big camp he talked about so much last year," said an Adirondack guide, pointing out the site selected for a cottage which would have surpassed those of Levi P. Morton and the Lewisohn brothers. "He's lost a million or so through Keene. He's pretty near the end of his rope, I hear."

The Adirondack guide is no fool, and he keeps his ears open.

Gamblers in Wall Street.

From the fact that the banks did not greatly exert themselves to help Keene out there have been rumors about financial Titans striking at each other blows which wounded the whole investing public. Mostly bosh.



The Broker's Pleasure Trip.

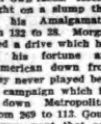
Wall street is the most pitiless place on earth. Let a hint escape that a certain man or group is in trouble, and the bears will in an instant pounce upon the stock of which that man or group makes a specialty. As it declines he must go to the wall or throw overboard other gilt-edged securities to placate his pursuers. So Stow, though personally popular on the street, was hounded by the bears on Mexican Central. So Keene was bombarded until his bank loans contracted beyond power to save the situation.

But the big men do not cut off their noses to spite their own faces. Rockefeller has never brought on a slump that cut the price of his Amalgamated Copper down from 132 to 38. Morgan never countenanced a drive which has swept away half his fortune and brought North American down from 132 to 71. Whitney never played a bear in the street in a campaign which incidentally sold down Metropolitan Street Railway from 269 to 113. Gould never favored a movement that cost Southern Pacific half its market price.

It was the great wave of heedless over-capitalization two years ago that caused the trouble. It will take time to get over it. And the promoters who caused the difficulty will not soon be forgiven.

The "Contract Labor" Clergyman.

The death of Rev. Dr. E. Walpole Warren would hardly be a matter of wide interest outside of New York but for the unwilling, annoying and ludicrous part which the gentleman played in a comedy of the law some years ago.



What Made Warren Famous.

Dr. Warren was the son of Samuel Warren, whose "Ten Thousand a Year" was one of the "six best selling books" of its day. He was English born and was already a man of 48 when, in 1887, he was called to the rectorship of the Holy Trinity church.

Mr. J. Kennedy Tod is a very rich and generally eccentric banker, also of British birth. The contract labor law was then newly passed by congress, and Mr. Tod bitterly resented what he conceived to be an injustice to thrifty men from the old world who secured employment before venturing to the new. The bright idea occurred to him that he could make the law ridiculous by opposing the importation of Dr. Warren as a "contract preacher."

Tod's motive was friendly, though hardly appreciated by its object. He had no objection to Dr. Warren's coming, but thought the preacher should be willing to have the law beaten over his shoulders.

However, the courts know no jokes. The case against the preacher and the church was gravely taken up and considered. Two decisions in the lower courts were given against Dr. Warren, but the United States supreme court finally decided that a congregation in New York could legally "call" a London clergyman. And the constitutionality of the law as to the laborers stood just where it was before, so that Mr. Tod had his labor for his pains, and Dr. Warren his vexation of spirit for nothing.

The Latest International Romance.

The new Lady Bagot, of Blithfield, Rugeley, England, is one of the most beautiful of the many American women in the British peerage.

Lady Bagot.

As Lily May, of Baltimore, she was a favorite with the king and queen of England and with aristocracy for some years past. Lord Bagot is almost 50, and might have been a confirmed bachelor but for the tradition that a lord must marry to "provide for the succession."

The Mays of Baltimore are one of those families which are famous for years for the manly strength of their men and the beauty of their women. It was with a member of that family that James Gordon Bennett when a young man had the celebrated difficulty which resulted in his being caricatured for years with a strip of plaster adorning his nose.

The Jaffrays in New York are such another family. All the sons are big, strapping fellows, all the daughters beauties of commanding presence and of vigorous type.

What it costs America to have its wealthy daughters marry foreign titled men is shown in the contract records of the Garner family, recently reviewed.

The father and mother were drowned four years ago. Of the three daughters one is the wife of Sir William Gordon-Cumming and the other two of Parisian noblemen. The entire estate was divided among them. Each got more than four millions, of which part was paid over absolutely and part was represented by several great cotton mills, which were to be carried on as a trust and a part of the profits paid to the heirs. A part of the profits were, however, to be held for a reserve fund of "working capital"—an eminently wise provision, it would seem, but not a legal one, for the daughters have just succeeded in breaking the will, and they are to get the entire profits of the trust. There is to be no working capital reserved, and the management is to be put into the cold, clammy and impersonal hands of a trust company.

Factories may be run in that way, but it isn't the way in which they are usually built up. OWEN LANGDON.

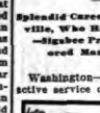
NAVY LOSES VALUABLE OFFICER

Splendid Career of Rear Admiral Melville, Who Has Just Been Retired —Signbee Promoted—Gifted Colored Man—Robb's Future.

Washington—In the retirement from active service of Rear Admiral George W. Melville the navy loses one of the bravest men who ever wore its uniform and one of the most striking characters of this generation. For 16 years Melville has been engineer in chief of the navy. He has held the office under four presidents, Cleveland, Harrison, McKinley and Roosevelt; and during his incumbency the branch of the service to which he has belonged has advanced in prestige from a position of little consideration until to-day it stands as high as any other branch. That advance has been due in great measure to his power of concentration, clearness of observation and pride in his work. He has done more to break the medieval traditions and customs of the sailing age than any other dozen individuals in the service or out of it.



George W. Melville

Up to the time he became chief of the bureau of steam engineering the engineers in the navy were looked down upon by the line officers as "greasers." That was the term of contempt which was usually applied in speaking of them. When looking over the complement allowed each warship the new chief discovered that the entire engineer's force was officially designated as "idlers." The officers above deck would not tolerate the idea that the men who were really responsible for the condition of the ship, its speed and control, should be given any consideration.

Melville changed all this. For years he worked for the proper rating and rank of the engineers, until under the personnel bill what he had fought for was won, and an engineer now has the relative rank to which he had long been entitled. It was likewise to bring recognition of the fact that, as Prof. Hutton said at Columbia university, when Melville was honored with the degree of master of science, "the achievements of our fleets are the result in great part of his thought, the planning and the capacity of those engineers who gave them their weapons and who operate for them the battle machines with which their work is done."

Heroism on Jeannette Expedition.

Melville, with his splendid great head and his bushy beard and hair, has often been compared to a Viking, and that description also fits his fine record, that while connected with the Jeannette expedition to the Arctic years ago. Melville is one of the few men who has held a commission in the navy for two generations. During the retreat of the crew of the Jeannette there were days when he carried for hours over hummocky ice a blind and helpless brother officer weighing 175 pounds.

Hero of Viking Type

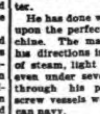
With this man clinging to his side he would move among the crew, directing affairs, and even helping to launch a boat where the footing was insecure and dangerous. He is heroic in size and shape. Every feature of his face denotes firmness of purpose, intelligence in action and surpassing powers of endurance.

He has been honored greatly for what he achieved on that famous expedition after finding the bodies of Capt. De Long and his companions in the Lena Delta. He was given receptions everywhere at the time, has been admitted to countless learned societies, and for his services in the Arctic ocean he was voted by congress a gold medal and advanced 15 numbers in the navy register.

He has done wonders in his insistence upon the perfection of the fighting machine. The machinery designed under his directions is economical in the use of steam, light in weight and durable even under severe conditions. It was through his persistence that triple screw vessels were built for the American navy.

Signbee to Be Promoted.

In the list of promotions to follow the retirement of Rear Admiral Melville comes the name of Charles D. Signbee, who now becomes a rear admiral. It may be doubted, however, whether Signbee's new title ever sits easily on him. He won his place in the American roll of fame at Capt. Signbee, and then he will always be remembered.



Charles D. Signbee

Signbee is known all over the world as commander of the ill-fated Maine when she went down in the harbor of Havana, and he is perhaps the only officer in the history of any navy who received signal honor through the loss of his ship. Yet such was his conduct at that time when, in the midst of appalling disaster, he showed superb nerve and courage, that he has been accorded all the honor that usually comes to a sailor who gains distinction in battles.

It so happened that the fortunes of the war succeeding the blowing up of the Maine did not bring to Signbee the opportunity for further achievement in the active service, for he was placed in charge of a big fast steaming scout from which no serious fighting could be expected, but he is one of the men in the service who could be counted on for any emergency and who will be counted on in any emergencies which may come again.

Signbee's position in the navy has not been gained simply by his experience with the Maine, although his popular reputation rests on that. He is one of the most thorough-going officers in the entire service, fine-grained and of scientific attainments. For several years before the war with Spain he was at the head of the hydrographic office, and in that capacity he introduced improvements and invented appliances which bear his name and which have been of extraordinary value. Personally, he is one of the most charming of gentlemen, a rare story teller and an artist of considerable attainment.

Gifted Young Colored Man.

At the papal reception in Washington is a colored messenger whose accomplishments have attracted the attention of many of the most prominent people in the capital. During the anxious days of Pope Leo's last illness this colored boy who attended the doors of the automobiles of the foreign embassies who called frequently to inquire about the pope's condition, replying promptly to each of them in his own language with all the purity and accuracy of idiom imaginable.

James J. Mattingly

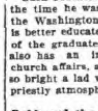
This colored messenger, who is only 20 years old and whose name is James J. Mattingly, is one of the most accomplished linguist in Washington. He speaks English, Latin, Italian, German, French and Spanish with equal facility, and, besides, he is a skilled musician. He not only sings and plays exquisitely, but he is a composer of no mean ability.

Young Mattingly is a Maryland youth, and he went to work for the apostolic delegation as a house boy eight years ago, just after leaving school. All his accomplishments have been acquired since then, and he has taught himself, with such help as he has had from the priests at the legation, who have taken a great interest in him. He is familiar with the best literature in all languages, ancient and modern, and he is constantly adding to his stock of accomplishments.

Such education as the boy had up to the time he was 13 he had acquired in the Washington public schools, but he is better educated now than nine-tenths of the graduates of universities. He also has an intimate knowledge of church affairs, as might be expected of so bright a lad who had grown up in a priestly atmosphere.

Robb and the Postal Investigation.

Of all the men who have made reputations in the post office investigation none has deserved more credit than the young man who was selected to take the place of Assistant Attorney General Tyner when Tyner was dismissed. The young man's name is Charles H. Robb. He is a Vermonter and he is still some distance under 40.



Charles H. Robb

He looks as though he might have just come of age, for his smooth shaven face, with its clean-cut features and keen, flashing eyes, have all the characteristics of eager youth.

Young Robb was a subordinate in the department of justice when the postal scandals began. He had been working away there without any special desire to bring himself before the public for months, but the quality of his mind had attracted the attention of the attorney general, and when Postmaster General Payne asked Mr. Knox to detail somebody to the post office department to assist in the legal features of the inquiry the attorney general promptly suggested Robb. The young man had a feeling that in leaving the department of justice he was cutting himself off from association which would be of value to him in his profession, and he at first begged to be excused. But so great was the attorney general's confidence in him that both Mr. Knox and Mr. Payne insisted on his accepting the assignment, and he agreed. It was with the understanding, however, that when the investigation was concluded he should resign and return to the department of justice if he desired.

It is doubtful, though, whether he demands the fulfillment of that agreement. He has displayed keenness, knowledge of the law, splendid judgment and courage. He has won the regard of everybody in authority and, unless all signs fail, he will stand out for himself a career.

RELIGION IN MEXICO

The People Zealously Observe Every Rite of the Church.

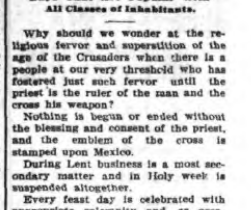
Many Forms of Penance That Are Customarily Performed — Feast Days That Are Popular with All Classes of Inhabitants.

Why should we wonder at the religious fervor and superstition of the age of the Crusaders when there is a people at our very threshold who has fostered just such fervor until the priest is the ruler of the man and the cross his weapon?

Nothing is begun or ended without the blessing and consent of the priest, and the emblem of the cross is stamped upon Mexico.

During Lent business is a most secondary matter and in Holy week is suspended altogether.

Every feast day is celebrated with appropriate solemnity and, as occasionally there is a feast, or fiesta, once or twice a week, you may see it makes considerable difference to the busy mine-owner or manufacturer who may be employing scores of those exceedingly religious peons.



THE SYMBOL OF THE FAITH.

On the day of the Feast of the Passover quite a curious ceremony takes place. During the day everyone in the village, man, woman or child, repairs to the church. On this occasion the altars and galleries are draped in purple, significant of mourning, and the priest, after brief services, advances to the altar rail to bless the faithful worshiper.

As the suppliant kneels before him the priest, by means of a little powdered charcoal and a rubber stamp, places a black Greek cross upon the upturned forehead.

It is a most curious sight to note the old men and maidens, business men, stately senoras, tattered beggar or babe in arms, each bearing the symbol of the faith.

For years it was a universal custom, and is even yet maintained in some parts of the republic, to crawl upon the hands and knees for miles over thorns and rocks as a penance or as a supplication for divine favor.

At the mines, the men of mines you will invariably find a little shrine before which each miner will bow his head and cross his breast before entering to work, and at night the ends of the dripping candles will all be placed in front of the little altar to propitiate the blessed saints and assure goodwill during the coming darkness.

Once a year, on the day of Corpus Christi, early in June, there is a grand procession and the virgin is besought to bring rain and sun to the summer harvest.

A statue of the virgin is carried about the town and then placed in some wayside shrine. Here she stands for ten days, and if it rains during that time it is taken as a token of the goodwill and blessing of this sweet saint.

The first of May is the ceremony of blessing the fields. Young girls dressed in white, and each carrying a small image of the virgin, will form a weird procession, dancing backwards and forward over the fields and calling on the saints to bless the harvest.

On Easter Sunday is the greatest feast of the year. Effigies of Judas, stuffed with torpedoes and pennies, are strung over the principal streets of the town, and on Eastern morning the fireworks and shooting at Judas resembles our Fourth of July. At last the effigy will be pierced and, with a great explosion, the remnants of the unfortunate Judas will be scattered far and wide, while all the populace scrambles for the pennies.

FOR DRESSY OCCASIONS.

The 1830 Capes Are Becoming Brown a Present Fad.

For evening use there are old brocade bags of Louis XV. design traced in brilliants, while plainer ones show beautifully wrought clasps.

The 1830 capes will be prevalent in the early autumn, and some of the mixtures of fur and lace are really lovely. Velvet and panne, too, form the foundation of many of these new pelerines.

Ermine is a good deal used, especially for evening wear. Squirrel is revived somewhat in a new form, but chinchilla and marten will be prime favorites.

Fur stoles have given place to broad cape collars or fichus of fur. Some reach below the knees and are very magnificent.

Brown is a very popular color, and some beautiful gowns have been made in this color mixed with mushroom shades. For instance, a tight fitting tailor bodice, ending just below the waist, and a smart skirt were of fine dark brown cloth. This costume had revers and trimmings of pale mushroom cloth with little black spots. It was worn with a chenille toque trimmed with some queer pink wings.

All the motor wraps, dust cloaks and traveling coats seem to be composed of taffeta or a new make of tussore silk. The former is also used in a variety of ways as a trimming on frocks, even sometimes appearing on linen dresses.

The cut shows a costume of gray cloth with stitched bands. The hat is of white felt trimmed with a white satin ribbon.

NEW FALL HATS.

French Sailors Ever Popular. Crowns Becoming Higher.

The French sailor of rough white felt is the favorite head gear with the tailor made suit. This has a sharply curved brim and is most simply trimmed with a couple of wings or even a band of ribbon twisted into a bow in front. The veil of chiffon, with a hem an inch and a half wide, is the chief ornament of such a hat, and it varies in color to match the costume with which it is worn.

The crowns of all hats are becoming much higher, and the brims are even more sharply curved than they have been this summer.

The Spanish turban is being revived in a modified form with a fitted in back and a drooping plume touching the hair. This is especially smart when carried out in white with a white plume made of cock's feathers.

Purple hats are still the rage. They are made of braided chenille trimmed with shaded flowers or feathers.

Brown hats unrelieved by any color will be worn with tan costumes and brown furs.

The cut shows a green felt French sailor trimmed with quills and rosettes with bands of green glace ribbon.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Revival of High Collars—The New Evening Dresses.

Collars are again worn high and are even boned at the back and sides. It is pleasing to see this neatness at the neck after the floppiness with which we have put up so long.

The new evening dresses are very gorgeous. Some old Louis brocades are beautiful, and jetted and pailletted robes will again be much worn. Gold and silver tissue, too, will form the foundation of many a beautiful empire frock, while accordion plaiting will be a feature of young girls' frocks. It is also effectively used in many tea gowns.

Some of the new little coats show the most fascinating small basques. There is no doubt that the basque is revived again, and very charming specimens of soft, crinkled suede belts are seen. These are particularly effective in brown.

Many smart frocks for afternoon and evening wear are trimmed with small ruchings laid in large scroll designs. These are a little hard unless softened by lace entredeux.

As a covering for evening or against high winds when driving the pelisse or long loose sack coat will be popular, together with collars of lace, outlined with raveled colored taffets ruchings, which will figure as wraps for dining at favorite open air restaurants or the casino.

The cut shows a costume of black lustrous veiling over black taffets. It has a plaited hanging jacket and plaited sleeves.

USEFUL REMNANTS.

Short Lengths of Velvet, Silk and Serge Make Pretty Costumes.

Remnants of white serge or paisley fawn and biscuit cloth are useful for little wraps reaching to the hips, and if the quantity is not too ample false stole fronts or wide revers and simulated undersleeves will supply the deficiency in a picturesque fashion. An example of this is a dainty sack coat made from two yards of double width biscuit cloth and one and a half yards of duchess satin. Four yards of taffeta in deep ivory tint formed the lining.

Tucked lisse chiffon and silk can be used in many ways and cut in three parts will cover a silk or sateen bodice lining without ripping the seams. This is especially true of an evening bodice with transparent sleeves.

Short lengths of velvet in emerald green, rose, tangerine, orchid pink and other bright and fashionable colorings are useful for belts, stocks, choux and tabs.

Remnants of chiffon are most useful for hair and collar rosettes.

White lustrine silk makes a dainty, dressy gown for a young girl, and it can be cleaned over and over again.

The cut shows a dinner toilet of white mousseline de soie trimmed with tiny embroidered frills over lace.

FRACTION OF TIME LOST.

Scientists Are Making an Expensive Search for Missing Sixteenth of a Second.

A sixteenth of a second is missing, and despite the work of scores of learned scientists no one can tell where it has gone.

A search for this minute fraction of time that is costing hundreds of thousands of dollars is under way, and it will be continued till the lost is found, for its recovery is of world-wide importance, states the New York World.

If one grain of sand on the shore of the ocean were lost and scientists were to spend years in trying to find it, their search would seem to be little more hopeless and unimportant than this task, upon which the leading astronomers of England and France are now working.

The sixteenth of a second is missing between the sun's time as recorded at Greenwich and as understood in Paris. The failure to discover the discrepancy in observations may change the nationality of thousands of people.

Longitude is calculated on the basis of Greenwich time. The boundaries of countries are determined by the calculations at this famous observatory. If the Paris calculations and not the Greenwich observations are found correct, boundaries may be moved miles.

No expense is being spared to trace the missing fraction. A special building has been erected at Paris, costly instruments installed, a corps of skilled mathematicians engaged and a process that may take years to complete has been commenced.

MASSAGE BY THE BLIND.

London Institution to Open New Occupations for Which They Are Peculiarly Adapted.

There is to be a very new field of work opened for the blind by the London Institute for Massage by the Blind, which is about to be started under a committee that includes many representative medical men. It is not an experiment. It has proved that the blind can become expert in the practice of massage, which in Japan is commonly recognized as their work, reports the Philadelphia Press. The occupations open to the blind are few and rarely remunerative. The difficulty is one of the gravest obstacles to the improvement of the condition of this afflicted class. There are already several blind masseurs in that country. Some £500 is needed, and central rooms are then to be secured under a hospital matron. Blind students must obtain first-class medical certificates in an art which is daily more used, especially by surgeons in sprains and bruises, and masseuses will be allowed to treat only women and children and masseurs only men. The whole scheme needs only to be mentioned to be approved. It is also worthy of note that the blind are usually endowed with a sense of touch exceptionally fine, so that here, and perhaps here alone, is a field in which they may surpass their seeing brothers, massage being dependent for its success upon the nicety of its application, dependent in its turn on the nicety of the operator's tactile sense.

CHEESES OF ALL COUNTRIES.

Some Familiar Kinds That Have Become Well Liked in the United States.

Each country has its favorite cheese. The Swiss make the gruyere cheese. It is made of goats' milk, and is full of holes, caused by the gases in fermentation. The typical English cheese is the cheddar, first made in the English town after which it is named.

Brie is a popular French soft cheese; and camembert, originating in Normandy, is another. These cheeses are cured in caves, where the temperature never rises above 12 to 14 degrees.

Roquefort, a celebrated French cheese, is made from the mingled milk of goats and sheep that browse on the thyme-clad banks of the Arno. These cheeses are also ripened in caves, but the temperature is kept at 40 degrees.

Akin to the roquefort cheese is that called gorgonzola, made in Italy after similar processes. It is milder than roquefort, and not quite so good; but it sold much cheaper. Another Italian cheese, the parmesan, is very hard, and is usually grated.

Limburger cheese, so beloved by the Germans, originated in Belgium. It is extraordinarily rich, being allowed to ripen by putrefaction, hence its horrifying odor to unaccustomed nostrils.

Some persons have a saying: "Gorgonzola is a cheese to swear by, limburger to swear at!"

Name Famine in Denmark.

The Copenhagen correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt has sent his paper an interesting article on the "name famine" in Denmark. In no nation, he says, is the choice of the family name so limited. It very often happens that four persons unknown to each other sit down to a game of whist, and later present themselves, respectively, as Hansen. He proves this statement by quoting Dr. Krak, the compiler and publisher of the Copenhagen Directory, the largest Danish street directory. According to Dr. Krak, out of a population of 500,000 in the Danish capital, 42 per cent. end their names with "sen." Some 15,000 are named Hansen, which is used by the largest number of persons.

Queer Underclothes.

Eskimo women wear the most curious kind of underclothing, its peculiarity being that it is made of the skins of birds. These skins before being sewed are chewed well by the women in order to make them soft. About a hundred skins are required to make a shirt, and the labor of chewing the skins which form their garments is quite enough to account for the active, well-developed jaws of Eskimo women.

COLD WEATHER STYLES.

Attractive Sack Wraps in Two Shades—Brown Accessories.

The sack wraps in coat form, both long and three-quarter length, have quite a chic style and are particularly attractive in blue and scarlet or in navy blue with biscuit, overlaid with small designs in blue braiding. The blue coats lined with champagne silk and trimmed with coarse lace are smart and useful, but black coats are quite in the minority.

The new brown leather foot gear is very dark and has no touch of yellow. It harmonises beautifully with the brown tones of knapsack frieze and cloth prepared for autumn and winter wear. Earth brown vigogne flecked with dashes of black and white, made up with a little apricot panne and just one touch of vivid turquoise blue, makes a delightfully harmonious gown.

The odd lengths of lace insertion and piece lace bought at the sales make pretty coffee coats, and if there is barely sufficient material it may be eked out in many ways with figured silk or ribbon.

In veils a popular fashion is the pale shade of blue, rose or mauve mousseline or gauze spotted with black chenille and velvet pastilles. These are arranged in a very plentiful fullness. From gathers at the top they puff out in a striking fullness, but are then drawn in a little tightly beneath the chin and disappear up the back of the hair, where a series of tiny quillings seems to finish off the mousseline, combining a continuation of the hat garniture. These are worn with large picture hats and may be considered becoming, but appeal more to those who drive than to the promenader.

The cut shows a plain blue velvet dress, the waist of which laces over an underblouse of guipure.

FOR STREET WEAR.

Gowns Have Cape Effects—Stoles and Hats Should Correspond.

The gowns made for the early autumn are usually finished with some kind of cape effect, and later on we shall supplement our costumes with large capes of fur. The coatee or blouse will have a deep cape effect finished with fur. Narrow fur trimmings and fur tails will be in great request during the coming winter, for a warm costume always looks well adorned with fur.

So far blue and brown are likely to be the leading autumn colors for gowns, and black will still be in great demand. A very brilliant empire green is to be much used for trimming, and this new tint is more intense than the vivid emerald shade of last season.

When a wide fluffy stole or a huge boa is worn the flat hat condenses the figure and has not a happy effect. The new autumn hat, with the left side turned over on to the crown, is very effective with the bushy stole or boa, and the flat spreading chapeau is most harmonious with the cape effect.

The picture shows a costume of dark and light gray cloth, with the latest double sleeve.

FASHIONS IN FUR.

Embroidery on Fur Coats—Velvet Mixed With Sable and Ermine.

There will be a good deal of embroidery used on fur coats.

Ermine will be used both as a lining and as a trimming, but not so much on coats or for street wear in general. Sable never ceases to look on any garment. Fur edgings will be seen on a good many of the cloth and velvet frocks. This is good news to people who have had yards and yards of narrow fur trimming laid away for years.

It will be good news to the possessor of sealskin to hear that once more this fur will be very fashionable, especially in the shape of boleros with cape collars and of carriage wraps mixed with sable.

Velvet and panne are often used with fur, and the clever woman can eke out her scanty fur stole by this means.

A SQUIRREL COAT.

Hats are more picturesque than ever, and shaded gray feathers are the latest millinery rage.

The run on navy serge has never been more pronounced than it is this year. The great French houses all favor the time honored fabric and style, the quality in chief request being fine, but of rough surface and incredibly light. The smartest little coats, be they sack or close fitting to the figure, are supplied with vests, these carried to the underarm seams only and held in position by a broad piece of elastic passed round the back of the waist. And it were easier to tell of what these vests are not than of what they are, the fabric composing them ranging from brocades to coarse linens. One particularly effective was of a red and white sort of canvas check, while another was a pale powder blue and white mixture.

The cut shows a squirrel coat trimmed with skunk. The deep yoke is of Irish lace.

SMART MILLINERY.

Beaver Hats Very Chic—New Shapes In Velvet Toques.

First and foremost among millinery novelties stands the beaver hat—the real old fashioned silk beaver. This has returned in many guises. Black and white are the favorites and are mostly of the big picture shape, with high jam pot crowns, though a few show conical crowns. These shapes without any trimming at all are quite expensive. Furthermore, they are trimmed with gold or silver lace and a single plume of rare beauty.

A rough make of beaver will also be used for knockabout hats in the form of toques and small shapes to take the place of the plateau hat we have had so long.

The three cornered, or highwayman, hat will again be seen. Some people always look their best in this shape, and they are becoming to the coiffure of the hour.

The favorite toque will be of the Tudor shape. This will take the place of the toreador and the turban. It fits closely to the head and is generally made of velvet.

There is a new kind of velvet known as chiffon velvet which is popular on account of its lightness.

The picture shows a hat of gray felt with a white pompon and a black velvet ribbon.

INDEPENDENT WOMEN

There Are Too Few of Them

"WHY is it that so many women are failures?" asked the bachelor. "It isn't that they haven't gumption, for they often start out bravely, but before long fizzle out of just remain mediocre."

"It is because half the time they don't dare to think for themselves," answered the wise woman. "They lack independence."

"Humph! Their independence! They are always talking about it," grunted the bachelor. "I thought the new woman was a precious lot too full of it."

"Well, that is your great mistake then. She dares to do certain things—enter trades and professions, for instance—but, once in them, nine times out of ten she will be content to fall into the ruts of other workers and will invent nothing original herself. She lacks initiative, the daring initiative of thought and action. This very difference between the independence of men and women is shown in the art schools even. It is no unusual thing to have a girl work there from four to seven years and never earn a penny during that time. She will, for instance, spend season after season copying plaster casts. You never find the male art student doing this, and I may remark incidentally that it is not from him that the school makes its money. From the first he is anxious to put his knowledge into practice. After school hours he makes little sketches embodying the principles he has learned. He makes headpieces and tailpieces and even letterings—anything that he can sell to the art editors of papers and magazines. In this way he acquires practical knowledge of things and is slowly but surely getting back his tuition money and becoming known even in a small way. The thing he is proudest of and gladdest to cultivate is his originality. The girl, on the other hand, having been told she must go through such and such classes before she can draw, believes it absolutely and slumps down patiently instead of trying every now and then to find out what her own powers will do for her."

But it is in their cringing to the conventionalities that women lose their greatest chances. "What will they think?" This is the greatest bugbear of the average woman, and this nameless skeleton in the closet has prevented more genius, stifled more ambition and ruined more lives than you or I would care to know about.

We cling to convention until we recognize its hollowness and even long after. It is an inheritance from long generations of downtrodden and oppressed womanhood, but that is no reason why it should stay with us.

You take the girl who feels that she has the ability to act, for instance, and who defers year after year going upon the stage until finally it is too late just for fear of what her friends will say. The question is, Are such friends worth the sacrifice? Is it indeed friendship at all which prevents a friend from doing her very best in whatever direction that best may be?

Then take the girl who won't live alone "because it looks so horrid at my age" and who suffers the tyranny of an exacting relation or the tyranny of a boarding house where she is forced to hold a conversation as best she may with her friends in a parlor occupied by at least a dozen chattering people and where she may not do this and must not do that until it seems as if the world were one collection of don'ts. She might have, if she were wise, a little home of her own somewhere, even if that home were represented only by a studio. In this home she might be supreme with her own books, her paints and her pictures, and there she could give little lunches and afternoon teas and receive her friends as they should be received. She might do all this if she were independent.

Don't depend on any one—not on your relations, not on your parents even, least of all upon your friends. If you know you can do a thing successfully do it even if all your world is against you. You will find another world which will appreciate you. If you are convinced a thing is right do it even if all the world is convinced you are wrong. Dare to be yourself, to be an individual woman.

WHAT IS WORN.

The Serges and Repsenkings—Some Useful Girls' Costumes.

Blue serge and blue bopeack are largely used for fall dresses. Very pretty effects are obtained by introducing bands of blue herringboned ribbon laid over white or pink silk, the slight touches of color thus shown through the dark silk stitchery being effective and serviceable.

The Russian blouse costume is very popular for young girls, and the open front is generally filled in by the lining fastening down the center, while plastrons are arranged to fasten in separately, so that much variety may be obtained. A wide lace scarf can also be worn around the neck and the ends brought down to form a species of vest. In this fashion the blouse costume is more suitable for older girls.

A best frock of white delaine nun's veiling or crape is invaluable, as it answers for quiet evening wear and makes a smart outdoor costume in fine weather.

The black picture hat is very smart with a white frock.

The cut shows a deep red broadcloth gown with fawn and gold braid trimming. The stock and front are of ecru chiffon. The hat is of chinchilla with a deep red plume.

THE LATEST FASHIONS.

Odd Pointed Toques—Popular Shades of the Season.

Black, of course, is ever popular, but in Paris the leading shades are wine color and cobalt blue or a bright shade of sapphire. This wine shade takes on curiously rich tones in handsome fabrics, but is only suited to the individual few.

It is yet too early to talk of fur hats, but one or two model toques recently seen are close fitting, with a point in front—in fact, the particular pointed toque which Parisian milliners tried to force on us six months ago in straw trimmed with cowslips and violets. It is not a becoming shape even to Parisians, but some very smart models made after this style are in a kind of willow straw plaited with chenille in two or three shades either of wine color, blue or brown. A favorite Paris shade is mushroom, which tones well with autumn browns.

Smart gowns will be worn longer and fuller than ever. Given the right occasion, there is nothing so becoming as a soft froufrouing skirt, but tailor made costumes still clear the ground all around.

In the illustration is shown a mountain or rainy day costume of navy blue cheviot. The coat has the revers and a girdle effect of deeper velvet.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY,

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Ed... ...ager & Proprietor

If the bachelor Congressman who claims that he knows all about women happens to marry some day, perhaps he will find out his mistake.—Paterson Evening News.

Is this to be taken as expert testimony, brother?

Mayor Carter Harrison, of the Windy City, says that if he could "find" all the men he suspects of being identified with "grafting" they would be jumping out of all the windows of Chicago's city hall. Probably if Mayor Low would do the same in New York, the windows of municipal buildings would be choked up with humanity.

A Boston man has two advertisements, just alike, running simultaneously in the same newspaper, says the Philadelphia Record. He tried one advertisement and the results were so good that he inserted another. What he considers curious is that after a time she two "ads" brought in more than twice the business credited to the first.

Some criticism has been made on the hasty action of the Public Service Corporation in erecting a dormatory here for the accommodation of men who may take the regular employes' places in case of a strike on the trolley. The local employes of the company are strongly adverse to any strike, admitting that they have but little or no grievance against the company. We can see no reason why they or the public in general should take any offense at the company's act. Strikes are apt to spread and although the company is satisfied that there are no signs of discontent among their men here, it is but natuarl that they should take precautions to cope with a possibility. Let's be fair with the corporation. The only real grievance that can be had in this city against the P. S. C. is that we are afflicted with dingy old rolling stock which should be relegated to the dump heap.

This comes from the Trenton Tree American:

"In Union County, the home of Senator Kean, an agreement was entered into prior to the convention between Hamilton Kean and James MacMurray, the Republican boss of Plainfield, or in other words, between the Kean and anti-Kean factions, by which the faction that carried the primary in the imaginary assembly districts of Plainfield and Rahway should control the entire nominations for county offices which fall to that section. The anti-Kean faction on sixteen of the nineteen Plainfield delegates.

"In the convention, however, Hamilton Kean insisted that the agreement was that the party should carry a majority of the entire delegation from the assembly districts, and he refused to allow the Plainfield delegates to name an assemblyman.

"In retaliation for this it is reported the papers pledging the signers to vote for the Democratic assemblymen are being circulated in Plainfield and that in one ward alone one such paper has been signed by more than 150 Republicans."

Talk about manufacturing "news"—this is the richest yet. The alleged are agreements and votes pledges are good reading but make trash to blush.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION

AS SEEN BY COUNTY CHAIRMAN HAMILTON KEAN.

He Asks Elizabeth to Make up for Lack of Republican Majority Here.

That the split in the Republican party in this city is serious has been admitted by no less a personage than County Chairman Hamilton F. Kean, chairman of the Republican County committee. Mr. Kean addressed Friday night's session of the Republican City Central committee at Elizabeth and he was not at all enthusiastic about the prospects at the coming election.

Mr. Kean said that since the convention he had visited this city on several occasions and had investigated the situation thoroughly. He confessed to having found the conditions even less encouraging than he had expected and impressed upon his hearers the fact that Republican supremacy in the county is threatened.

Without mentioning any names, Mr. Kean intimated that the Fowlerites were quite determined to defeat the ticket and he feared that they might succeed unless Elizabeth should make up for the deficiency in the Plainfield vote. He therefore urged the committeemen to canvass their wards even more thoroughly than heretofore has been done with the idea of reducing the Democratic majority in Elizabeth.

WORKING ON COURT HOUSE

LARGE COLUMNS NOW READY TO BE PLACED IN POSITION.

Building to be Fully Enclosed Before Winter Arrives—Nearly Ready for Roofing.

Work on the new Union County court house building at Elizabeth has been pushed with such vigor since the laying of the cornerstone, July 30, that from present indications, by the end of this present month the massive granite walls will be up to their required height, and the building ready for roofing.

The south wall, facing Rahway avenue, is so near completion that the stone masons began this morning placing in position the massive, handsomely carved Corinthian blocks, which will ornament the upper part of the outerwall on that side.

Work on the front and rear walls is almost as far advanced as that on the south side, while the western wall is up a considerable height above the first floor.

The immense granite columns which will ornament the front of the building at the main entrance have arrived, and the bases on which they will rest are placed in position. The columns as received are in sections.

PLAINFIELD'S NINES DEFEATED SATURDAY

St. Mary's Nine Beaten by Westfield's Aggregation in An Eight-Inning Game.

SCOTCH PLAINS WON

ALIS' TEAM DEFEATED IN A WELL-PLAYED CONTEST.

McGeehan, St. Mary's Pitcher, Injured—Details of Spirited Games—St. Mary's, 1; Westfield, 4; Alis, 1; Scotch Plains, 3.

The first of the series of three games, between the St. Mary and Westfield baseball teams, was won Saturday afternoon by the Union County champions. The Westfield boys started off in the first inning hitting McGeehan hard enough to make one talley. The Saints nearly scored in the fourth, Burke, the Westfield catcher, had his finger split open by a wild pitch of Waller's, and he was unable to throw to base well. Westfield scored again in the fifth. With two men out and two strikes on the batter, Rotchford started to steal second, Roth, the Saints' catcher, threw the ball to catch the runner, McGeehan turned to see the result, the ball struck him in the back of his head, and bounded over in the bleachers, he fell to the ground where he lay. Dr. Kempton Browning was among the spectators and he rendered assistance to the injured man. Time was called, and it was twenty minutes before McGeehan was able to face a batter. He then struck out Carey, Westfield's best batter, amid cheers of the large crowd. Westfield crossed the rubber twice in the sixth, making a total of four runs. Alberts scored the visitors' only run in the seventh. The game was called at the beginning of the eighth inning on account of darkness.

The Scotch Plains and Alis teams, in the deciding game of their series of seven, which was played at Scotch Plains on Saturday afternoon, gave the baseball lovers one of the prettiest and snappiest contests of the season, fully one thousand people, enthusiastic rooters for the opposing teams, gathering about the diamond.

The snappy plays, and there were many on both sides, were cheered to the echo. Manager Johnston, of Scotch Plains, made no changes in the personnel of the team. "Warry" Mac Laughlin and Arndt Meister were in the points for the visitors and "Lefty" Davis and Brogan for the home team.

For two innings not a man was brought across the plate. It was simply a case of one, two, three and out. In their half of the third Scotch Plains earned a run with Malley's two base hit in right garden, Brogan scoring him with a clean single to right, which Sperling was slow in fielding. Scotch Plains' rooters went wild, as one run meant much, the way both teams were playing.

Alis evened up the score in their half of the fourth, when Noyes planted a two base hit in center garden, scoring on Williams' wild throw to first base of MacManus' hit to third base. This was the only error of the 'Plains' boys during the game.

No more runs were scored until the eighth, when the home team made two runs, Malley hit safe to center field, stole second; MacLaughlin walked Brogan. Two men on base and only one out, the hopes of the local fans were high as a good clean hit meant much. Orvisins flied out to second base and gloom began to show itself in the 'Plains camp. Conley had two balls and two strikes and the next moment meant a great deal. "Warry" planted a nice one over the plate, Conley met it and instantly became the hero of the hour, the ball sailed out over the outfielder's heads between center and left and dropped over the fence, Malley and Brogan scoring and Conley was on third before the ball could be fielded.

The game itself was clean and devoid of any arguing. Bligh's decisions were fair and not a kick marred the game. "Lefty" Davis, for Scotch Plains, pitched his greatest game of the season, only allowing the sluggers of the Alis team three base hits and one scratch, while MacLaughlin was touched up for a total of nine hits, including one for three bases and one for two bases. Both were steady, only one man being given his base. This was in the eighth, when "Warry" walked Brogan.

Elizabeth Importing Goods.

The Veteran Firemen's Association, of Elizabeth, has placed an order with Harry Werner, the West Front street clothier, for forty-five pairs of blue trousers to be worn by the members at the firemen's parades to be held at Wilmington, Del., and Allentown, Pa. This order speaks well for the Plainfield manufacturer.

TRINITY COMMANDERY READY FOR OUTING

Arrangements Completed for Annual Field Day at Atlantic City.

PARADE AS A FEATURE

CRESCENT MILITARY BAND OF RARITAN ENGAGED.

Public Invited to Accompany Local Templars—Date October 14—Day at the Shore—Parade in the Afternoon.

Arrangements for participation in the annual inspection, dress parade and review of the Grand Commandery, K. T., of New Jersey, at Atlantic City, October 14, have practically been completed by Trinity Commandery, No. 17. The local commandery will leave Plainfield at 8 o'clock accompanied by the Crescent Military band, of Raritan, on a special train which returning will leave Atlantic City at 7:30 in the evening. The committee having charge of the arrangements consists of three Templars: Harry W. Marshall, chairman; W. H. Sebring, William Macintosh, Bogart T. Conklin, L. B. Woolston, James A. Stafford and Louis L. VanAlstyne. Samuel Bingaman is eminent commander of Trinity. D. C. Adams is drilling the commandery in preparation for the parade.

After arrival in Atlantic City, the several commanderies will form for dress parade, inspection and review at 2:30 o'clock and will march a distance of one and a half miles through the principal streets. Dinner for the members of the commandery, their wives and guests, will be served at 12:30 o'clock at the Beaumont on South Tennessee avenue. The guests of the commandery will occupy seats on the verands of the Hotel Rudolf at which point the parade will be reviewed by the Grand Commander. The knights will march in full dress.

The local commandery has had a creditable record in the State in past years and is especially honored this year by having one of its fratres, Dr. D. O. Adams, Grand Commander, and another, Jacob Kirkner, Grand Generalissimo.

The public is invited to accompany the knights on their excursion.

PAY OF ELECTION OFFICERS

THE UNION COUNTY'S BOARD TAKES NEEDED ACTION.

Provision Made for Rental of Polling Places—Board's Next Meeting.

Election officers, who served on the days of registry and election, on the occasion of the special election last week, will receive a compensation of $6 for the two days' work, $3 for registry day and $5 for election day. This has been decided at the meeting of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders and is in accord with an opinion County Attorney W. R. Codington, of this city, furnished the board as his interpretation of the law.

There is no provision in the law for the amount of rent to be paid for polling places, but Freeholder King suggested that as $30 was the amount paid for the other four days, the special election having taken but two days, the landlords be paid $15 for the two days. This was agreed to. The board will meet again on Thursday afternoon, October 15, at 2:30 o'clock, when the election officers will receive their pay for the special election.

KILLED MAD DOG.

Officer Moses Quass Rescues Several Children by Shooting Dog.

A mad dog, followed by an excited mob of men and boys created much excitement on Park and North avenues Sunday afternoon, and before the animal was killed by Officer Moses Quass, several children had narrow escapes from being bitten. The animal belonged to a colored family on West Fourth street. It had been teased and tormented by little colored children.

Officer Quass gave chase to the dog as it turned from Park avenue into North avenue and cornered it in the doorway of VanSickle's butcher shop. One well directed bullet ended the canine's existence. The carcass was still lying in the street this morning.

BOARD OF EDUCATION PREPARES NEW BILL

When Legislature Convenes, State Educators Will Introduce Proposed New Law.

CONTRAST TO M'KEE ACT

LAWMAKERS' SESSION TO BE SHORT,—IT IS REPORTED.

No Action to be Taken on Tuberculosis Commission Act—Fight on New School Bill to Come Before the State Senate.

When the special session of the Legislature, for which Governor Murphy issued the proclamation last week, to be held Thursday, October 15, convenes, the State Board of Education will have ready for submission a new educational bill, which it is confident will meet the objections on which the court of errors and appeals has just reined in the McKee law. The law committee of the board, at a meeting held in New York last week, went over the McKee law carefully, and revised it in a manner which the board thinks will make it constitutional under the recent decision of the court.

The first alteration is in section 33, which provides for school districts. This now provides that each township, city and incorporated town shall be a separate school district, but each incorporated village and each borough "hereafter created," shall remain and be a part of the school district in which it shall be situate at the time of its incorporation. It then goes on to say that each borough hereafter incorporated which shall not have assumed the functions of a separate school district by the election of a board of education, or which shall not have acted as a separate school district, shall remain a part of the school district in which it was situated at the time of its incorporation.

Then follow two of the fatal amendments which authorize the State superintendent to create a borough, a separate school district and provide that the section shall not abolish any school district which has acted as a separate school district by the election of a board of education prior to the introduction of the act.

This section is changed by striking out of the third line the words "hereafter created," and all of the section after the words "its incorporation," in the sixth line, so that the section will read:

"Each township, city and incorporated town shall be a separate school district, but each incorporated village and each borough shall remain and be a part of the school district in which said incorporated village or borough shall be situate at the time of its incorporation."

The next change is in section 244, which provides that in any district which comprises a municipality and a portion of an adjoining municipality, members of the board of education shall be selected in the same manner as they are selected in said district at the time of the passage of the act, and moneys for the maintenance of public schools therein shall be ordered and collected in the same manner as they were at the time of the passage of the act. In the new bill this entire section will be eliminated.

Section 246 of the present law validates all contracts, bonds and obligations which were incurred under the act of 1900, and all elections or submissions to the qualified voters of any school district of the question whether the board of education should be created by election by the people or otherwise held in compliance with the act of 1900, which was declared unconstitutional.

There is reason to believe that the court of errors and appeals in setting aside the McKee law will hold that while the Legislature has the power to validate contracts and obligations incurred under a law, which may be declared unconstitutional, it has no power to validate an election held under that law. So the part of section 246 which validates the election may be taken out of the new bill.

The Governor is reported to have said that the extra session will be short and that the defects in the McKee law will be quickly remedied. There are those who differ with the executive on that point. They recall the bitter opposition with which the law was confronted when it was before the Legislature, and predict that the same efforts will be made to defeat the passage of a new measure. This they say will precipitate a fight, and unless drastic measures are resorted to to curb the opposition, the session will be prolonged.

It is expected by some men that the special session may be called upon to correct the defect in the tuberculosis commission act and make an appropriation for the work which the Legislature at its last session failed to do, but on the other hand, it has been hinted that the deliberations of the legislature will be confined to the school bill.

JERSEY'S A. O. U. W. LODGES TO SECEDE

State Organization to Withdraw Membership in National Order.

REASONS FOR ACTION

NEW JERSEY'S WORKMEN ARE LOSING FINANCIALLY.

Losses in Other States Have to be Made Up by Strong Organizations in This State and Delaware.

The New Jersey branch of the Ancient Order of United Workmen is about to separate from the Supreme Lodge. The action will be taken as a result of a change in the assessment plan voted by the Supreme Lodge last June, the effect of the change being a heavier financial burden for the Grand Lodge of New Jersey.

At the June meeting of the Supreme Lodge, new legislation was enacted affecting the plan of assessments, which established a new class of assessment for men of 55 and over and adopted a level rate plan in addition to the classified plan of assessment, leaving the choice of either for the members of the jurisdiction adopting them.

Immediate legislation of this kind was necessary for some of those jurisdictions of the order which have been receiving relief year after year in order that they might meet more of their claims as New Jersey is doing. Unless the New Jersey Grand Lodge adopts the plan, there will be no change in this State.

A number of the larger States in the order such as New York have been running behind financially for several years and this has borne heavily upon the smaller and self-supporting States such as New Jersey and Delaware. New Jersey has been paying about $1,700 a month into the treasury of the Supreme Lodge and the new laws enacted last June would mean that the sum would be increased to $2,500 a month. To this New Jersey objects and for this she will probably separate from the Supreme Lodge. Similar action has been taken in the past by Maine and other States.

O. F. C. ELEVEN WINNER

DEFEAT OF WESTFIELD IN A SNAPPY GAME—SCORE 12 TO 0.

Losing Team Depends on Mass Plays While Plainfielders Rely on End Runs.

The Orange Field Club opened the football season in this city Saturday afternoon by trouncing the Westfield A. C. eleven 12 to 0. The score was all done in the first half. Three minutes after the kick-off the Orange team took the ball on a fumble, and by three plays, including a 30-yard end run, Smith had the pigskin over the line for a touchdown. Smith kicked goal. Shortly after the next kick-off Smith took the ball on a double pass and ran 40 yards for the second and last touchdown, and again kicked goal. In the second half the ball see-sawed back and forth in the middle of the field. Westfield tried mass plays throughout the game and Orange depended upon end runs to advance the ball.

Features of the game were the all round work of Smith for Orange and the superior defensive play of Lake and Heyler in the line. Emmons on one occasion tackled Davis, of Westfield, for a 30-yard loss. Douglass and Hamilton also excelled for Orange. The game was characterized by very little punting and a small amount of fumbling for so early in the season. The new rules had no appreciable effect on the play although Westfield tried a quarter-back end run once with no success. Westfield was considerably the heavier team. The summary:

Orange F. C., 12—Emmons, le; Lake, MacCullar, lt; Kenyon, lg; Heyler, c; W. MacCullar, rg; Lake, Heyler, rt; Douglass, er; Hamilton, qb; Shurtwin, rb; Smith, lh; Joseph, fb.

Westfield, 0—Thompson, re; Mason, rt; Kenney, rg; Bird, c; Taylor, lg; Whitke, lt; Johnson, le; Messersmith, qb; Walker, lh; Richardson, rb; Davis, fb.

Time—Fifteen and twenty minute halves. Umpire—Phillips, of Orange; referee, ——, Westfield; timekeeper—Mason; touchdowns—Smith, 2; goals from touchdowns—Smith, 2.

MISS M. C. BRUNSON AN OCTOBER BRIDE

Wedded to Elias H. Bonnell, of Orange, at the Brunson Homestead, Hillmer.

A. J. BRUNSON BEST MAN

MRS. AUGUSTUS BRUNSON WAS THE MATRON-OF-HONOR.

New York Orchestra Plays During Wedding and Reception—Groom a Bank Officer—To Reside in Orange—On Honeymoon.

Miss Marion C. Brunson, sister of A. J. Brunson, vice president of the First National Bank, of this city, and Elias H. Bonnell, cashier of the Second National Bank, of Orange, were quietly married Saturday afternoon at 5:30 at Hillmer, the homestead of the bride's grand-parents on Greenbrook road. The wedding was attended by only a few friends and relatives of the bride and groom. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Charles Townsend, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Orange, assisted by the Rev. John S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church. The ushers were M. W. Faitoute and H. E. Moore. Master Albert Foster acted as page.

Mrs. Augustus J. Brunson, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor and Miss Brunson's brother, Augustus J. Brunson, was the best man. The music was provided by an orchestra and a quartette from New York. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Brunson wore white silk mulle over which hung a train veil. Orange blossoms held the veil in place and she carried a large bouquet of lilies of the valley. Mrs. VanDeventer, the maid-of-honor, wore pink silk of the same material and carried a large bouquet of bridal roses. The parlor was decorated with plams, Southern smilax and cosmos. The wedding was performed in the front parlor of the house. From the flowers and greens a number of small in*candescent lights shown*, which gave a pretty effect. The lawn and outbuildings were also decorated with electric lights in honor of the occasion.

Immediately following the ceremony a wedding supper was served and a reception was held. None but a few chosen friends and the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present. At 8 o'clock they were driven to the depot and left for a short wedding trip in the South.

A large assortment of presents were received from the friends of the bride and groom. Included in the display were articles of cut glass, jewelry and furniture. The gift of the groom to the bride was a circlet of pearls and diamonds. Upon their return they will reside in Orange, where the groom is well known and is prominent in social circles.

OFFICIATES IN ROBE.

Rev. Dr. Schenck Wears a Geneva Gown During Services at Trinity Reformed Church.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed Church, wore a handsome silk Geneva gown at the communion service Sunday morning. The innovation had been planned for some time. It was a gift from the ladies of the church.

His appearance in a robe at the time was quite a surprise to the congregation, which heartily approves of the change. The simple black gown seemed to lend grace and dignity to his bearing and one was impressed by his evident unconsciousness of the innovation. Eight new members were received on confession and two by letter at the service.

Jim is All Right.

Farmer Orator Martine, since he declared against Cleveland as a candidate for President, has been given some unexpected rebuffs. This newspaper recently told how a Democratic club limited his remarks to three minutes, and now the Plainfield Press prints the following: "Just before going to press, James E. Martine, whose perpetual optimism is refreshing, telephoned that silver pesos in the Philippines are so valuable intrinsically, that they are being sent to mints to be melted into bullion. The farmer-orator rushed into the office three minutes later. We rushed on." The need for a harmony dinner in Union County is evident.—Newark Evening News.

J. B. DUMONT WEDS MRS. J. PARKER MASON

Marriage Ceremony at Bride's Home in Stelle Avenue At Noon.

TWO PASTORS OFFICIATE

REV. DR. WM. R. RICHARDS ASSISTED BY REV. E. V. STEVENSON.

No Attendants—Society People Attend the Ceremony—Bride Given in Marriage by Father—Now on Extended Honeymoon.

Mrs. J. Parker Mason, of Stelle avenue, and John B. Dumont, of East Seventh street, were married today at 12 o'clock noon, at the home of the bride, in the presence of the relatives and near friends of the contracting parties. The affair was simple and quiet. The home was tastefully decorated with flowers and autumnal foliage.

The bride and groom were unattended. The bride was given in marriage by her father, J. Howard Wright, of Lexington avenue, New York. The ceremony in accordance with the ritual of the Episcopal Church, was performed by Rev. Dr. William R. Richards, formerly pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church, but now of the Brick Presbyterian Church, New York. Assisting him was Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace Episcopal Church.

Immediately after the ceremony congratulations were offered and during the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Dumont left the city. It is understood that their honeymoon will include a trip across the briny deep, and upon their return will take up their residence in Stelle avenue.

An elaborate wedding luncheon was served during the hours of the reception in a New York caterer. The bride was generously remembered with handsome gifts of beauty and use.

Mrs. Dumont has been a resident of Plainfield for many years during which time she has been prominent in the leading social events of the city. She has also been identified with many events of interest in New York society.

Mr. Dumont also has been a resident of this city for a number of years and has always been actively engaged in municipal affairs. He represented the Second ward in the Common Council between eleven and twelve years, serving on all the principal committees as chairman.

Not only in the Council, but in the management of the Public Library, as a director, he has been prominent. At one time he was a member of the vestry of Grace Church. His business is that of a stock broker, with offices in Wall street, New York.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Peggy From Paris," George Ade's latest musical hit, invigorating and refreshing, is drawing immense crowds nightly at Wallack's theatre, where it has entered upon its fifth week. One of the most popular numbers in the piece is the "Enzealeon" song, in which the chorus shines to special advantage. "Peggy From Paris" seems to have settled down for a long run at Wallack's.

Over in Newark at Proctor's playhouse in Broad street, Charles T. Aldrich, America's cleverest eccentric comedian will head the all-star bill. With the tennis tournament completed the next thing on the programme of the P. H. S. A. A. is the inter-class field meet which will be held the last of this month or the first of next. It is expected that the meet this year will be a greater success than the one of last. To accomplish this every endeavor has been made to arouse class spirit in the matter. The tug-of-war which has been introduced for the first time is to be contested by a team of seven boys from each class and the teams are already training for it. The other events are 100 yard dash, running broad jump, 220 yard dash, 60 yard dash junior, running high jump, 440 yard dash, shot-put, hammer-throw, and pole-vault.

Additional events may be added by the committee later on. The committee is composed of H. G. Thompson, chairman; H. C. Evans, Howard Craig and Jack Douglass.

Last year a silver medal was given to the one scoring the greatest number of points. The medal was presented by The Daily Press and was won by H. G. Thompson. To the first three in each event appropriate ribbons will be given. Entries are received by any member of the committee at a charge of ten cents an entry.

The Glee Club entertainment for the benefit of the Athletic Association, of the High School will be given on the night of Tuesday, November 24. The chorus will start the practice as soon as possible. The committee in charge is L. T. Koons, chairman; Isaac Walters, and Geo. L. Babcock. The entertainment will be on the same plan as the very successful one given last year. ANOTHER TROLLEY PLANNED

LINE BETWEEN DOVER AND ELIZABETH THE PROPOSITION.

Will Open Up Communication Between Springfield and Union's County Seat.

The proposition to include Springfield in the plan of the Morris County Traction Company, which is seeking right of way to Summit has been announced. The object of the company is to build a trolley line from Dover to Elizabeth.

This is the latest proposition for railroad communication for Springfield. At intervals for the past ten years the residents of the place have heard of some company, either railroad or trolley, that wanted a franchise in the town. The plan to connect New York and Philadelphia was the first to include Springfield in its route and a franchise was granted. Then the Elizabeth and Westfield company obtained a franchise for a cross-country line. Both of these franchises were surrendered after several extensions of time.

Then came the Elizabethtown Company, with the Kean interests behind it, going to Summit, and, after a meeting with Frank Bergen, the company counsel, that project fizzled.

The steam roads were the next to try their hand. The New Orange and Four Junction Railroad secured a right of way through Springfield and Summit, and only recently their representative visited the town and secured an extension of time until January 1. The latest move in the railroad line came two weeks ago, when it was said that the Lackawanna would run a branch from Millburn, through Springfield to Scotch Plains, paralleling the Central to Hampton Junction. To date nothing has been done.

EDGAR ALLAN POE DAY

MONTHLY ENTERTAINMENT IN ST. MARY'S PAROCHIAL SCHOOL.

Father Egan Made Address—The Programme as Rendered—Those Participating.

The monthly concerts at St. Mary's Parochial School were resumed Friday when the pupils entertained their parents with song, recitation and musical selection. Reports were made of the commercial department. The pupils were congratulated on their high percentages by the pastor.

The afternoon was called "Edgar Allen Poe day" and Miss Elizabeth Casey gave a biography of him. After the reports of the second grammar grades were read, Miss Helen Hanrihan read a selection creditabky. John Kyle gave a transposition of "The Raven" and a chorus, entitled "The Bells" was given by the girls of the senior and grammar grades. These scholars were awarded with silver medals for having high percentages: Commercial, Miss Helen Hanrahan, John Kyle; second grammar, Miss Elizabeth Bebout; fourth grammar, Miss Mary Kennedy; fifth grammar, Miss Mary Powers; primary, Miss Nora McManus, Miss Helen McCarty, and John McCarty. A BURLESQUE ON BASEBALL

ACCORDING TO UMPIRE'S AFFIDAVIT LAWYERS DEFEATED NEWSPAPERMEN.

Score of 28 to 20—The Umpire Revenges Himself on Reporters.

The legal lights and the scribs had a battle royal for supremacy on the diamond Thursday afternoon on Hope Common and provided about an hour hundred spectators with a farce comedy exhibition seldom surpassed in baseball annals. After the dust of conflict had cleared in the final round, Umpire Thomas Timbo took affidavit to the fact that the barristers had won by a grand total of twenty-eight runs to twenty and the newspapermen consequently had the pleasure of entertaining their conquerors at dinner at Timbo's. Although no accurate summary of the game was possible, it can be authoritatively stated that no man made more than sixteen errors nor less than that number of hits or runs on balls. The more shining lights of the game were Hetfield, whose base sliding awoke much enthusiasm, and DeMeza, who on one occasion attempted and partially succeeded in stopping the ball with the crown of his derby hat. The newspaper men made a grand rally in the ninth inning and would probably have scored often enough to defeat their opponents had they not grown weary in running bases. Thomas Timbo, who passed decisions on the bases, was the big attraction of the game, especially in the ninth inning, when he narrowly escaped being mobbed for a decision objectionable to the lawyers. Judge William Van Runyon, who umpired behind the bat, gave entire satisfaction "as usual." The line-up: Lawyers—Owens, c and ss; Nash p, and 2b; Hetfield, 1b; Hoyt, 2b and p; Marsh, ss and c; Mc Nabb, 3; Huff, lf; H. Runyon, cf; De Meza, rf. Newspapermen—Firstbrook, c; Fearing, p and 3b; Hacquer, 1b; Laing, 2b; Shea, ss; Mallen, 3b and p; Hall, lf; McLoughlin, cf; Muir, rf.

COMMANDERY ON PARADE

PLAINFIELD TEMPLERS, ALL SHRINERS, AS SALAAM'S GUESTS.

Over 700 Templars in Line—Each Visiting Noble Received Souvenir.

Thirty members of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., all Shriners, attended the ceremony of granting the charter to Salaam Temple of Newark, last Friday. The exercises were preceded by a parade in which 700 Templars were in line, led by two bands. George W. Weidemeyer, of Newark, was in charge of the ceremony which took place in the new temple on Belmont avenue. Each visiting noble was presented with a handsome silver watch fob, appropriately inscribed as a souvenir of the event.

AMUSEMENTS.

Klaw & Erlangers' revival of "Ben Hur" at the New York Theatre has proved the greatest success made in New York in years. It is staged with all the elaborate scenery and costumes utilized in its presentation at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, London, two years ago. The leading parts in "Ben Hur" were never so well played as now. Harry Woodruff, a young and talented actor, is the realization of Gen. Wallace's hero, both in personality and in his interpretation of the role. The "Simonides" of J. E. Dodson, the "Iras" of Miss Annie Irish, and the "Mother of Hur" of Mabel Bert, who played the part 1071 times in the original company, are artistic performers of rare dramatic merit.

Fay Templeton and "The Runaways" have only two more weeks of their long and prosperous engagement at the Casino to play. Closing on Oct. 17 the big company will have played more than six months, or nearly 200 performances at the Casino without a slip or a miss. "The Runaways" are compelled to leave the Casino on account of the booking more than a year ago of the big revival by Messrs. Nixon & Zimmerman of "Erminie" with Francis Wilson and a star cast of players.

MISS CLARA FORCE WEDS

BRIDE OF OWEN SMITH—WEDDING BEING QUIET.

Groom is Engaged in Newspaper Office—Bride Was Formerly an Actress.

Miss Clara Force, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin R. Force, of East Front street and Owen Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, of North avenue, were married Sept. 30, at the rectory of the Church of the Holy Cross, Rev. W. M. Downey, officiating. The wedding was a quiet one, the parents of the couple being unaware that the wedding was to take place until a few hours before the time set.

A reception was held at the home of the groom's parents after the ceremony and later they left for New York, where they will make their home permanently. Mrs. Frank Huff was the bridesmaid and George W. Force, Jr., was the best man. The bride wore a tailor made traveling dress.

The groom is a well-known newspaper man in New York. He was at one time a reporter in this city and later secured employment in the office of the Elizabeth Times. He is at present employed as a linotype operator in the office of the New York Sun. Five years ago he met Miss Force at a reception in this city. Until recently Miss Force was connected with the theatrical profession and appeared with Ada Rehan and other stars. Her career before the footlights was a bright one but a year ago she resigned her position for one in a business office in New York.

Mr. Smith was at one time a compositor in The Daily Press office.

ATTENTION, VOTERS!

Although the newspapers throughout the State printed column after column of information concerning the issues of the constitutional amendment election, hundreds of voters went to the polls in ignorance of the questions at stake and large quantities of ballots were thrown out as a result. Now another venture is to be made at the coming regular election. It is the introduction of the voting machine. Very few people in the State have any knowledge of this method of balloting. In order to give The Constitutionalist readers accurate knowledge in ample time before the election takes place, this paper publishes today complete instructions on "How to vote," accompanied by illustrations. See editorial page.

TORPEDOES FOR CATS.

Little Detonating Bombs Made Especially to Break Up Their Nocturnal Concerts.

"No, we have an all-the-year-round business," said a Park Place fireworks dealer, when the remark was made that he was probably folding his hands in idleness now that the Fourth of July was over, reports the New York Times.

"Just sold $200 worth of Roman candles, rockets and red fire to a district leader who is to have an outing on Saturday. Then there are fireworks and colored fire for lawn parties. It would surprise you how much these things are used both at private and public affairs in the suburbs. The frequent feasts of the foreign colonies of Roman Catholics give us quite a business, too. Then there is a steady trade in cat torpedos."

"Cat torpedoes?"

"Yes; little detonating bombs made especially to interrupt the duets of Thomas and Maria. You live in the city! Well, have you never heard cats performing on the back fence, followed by a sharp explosion? You have probably thought some fellow-sufferer had discharged his revolver. Well, he merely tossed a cat torpedo at his feline torturers.

"These torpedos are made to explode very easily. They will go off, with a sharp report, even if they hit a clothes line or land on a grass plot. You are way behind the times if you throw your boots at the cats. They don't mind those old-fashioned missiles, but if you drop a torpedo out of your window you will be rid of the vocalizing of the felines, for they will scamper a block at the explosion and you and your neighbors will rest in peace."

SEA TAKES BACK ISLANDS.

The Tuamotu Group is Rapidly Crumbling Under Tidal Waves and Floods.

From advices received from Papeete, Tahiti, it is learned that the 90 islands, known variously as the Low archipelago and the Tuamotu group, are destined to be reclaimed by the Pacific ocean, says a San Francisco report. Last January they were swept by a sudden flood of high tidal waves from the ocean and the lesser ones crumbled into the lagoons and in consequence nearly 6,000 of the inhabitants of the islands were drowned and property to the value of $1,500,000 was destroyed.

And now, six months later, fierce gales from the southwest and southeast have again caused great crests to sweep over the islands. So far only four persons are believed to have perished, but the fear is great that when all the islands are cleared there may be a distressing list of fatalities. The steamer Excelsior suffered much damage during the series of gales while she was on her way from Tahiti to the Marquesas group.

Three of the Tuamotu islands were under water to such an extent that the inhabitants had to climb cocoanut trees for safety. Houses and stores, copra and finally the trees themselves were destroyed, while the inhabitants had a close call of death. It is thought that most of the islands in the group were visited by the storm.

MISSOURI'S SHIFTING FARMS.

Thousands of Acres Transferred from One County to Another by the River.

The Missouri river plays sad tricks with land owners all along its way, but none has lost more and none has gained more by its constant changes of course than certain farmers in Coone and Cole counties, Mo., says the Country Gentleman. The Columbia Herald estimates that Boone county has been robbed of 6,000 acres of valuable land since 1865, all of which has been added to Cole county. Ten Boone county farmers have suffered losses ranging from 40 to 120 acres, and one of them lost 120 out of 160 acres. People on the Cole county side have profited proportionately—H. T. Wright, to whom has accrued 400 acres; Ewing Johnson, 600 acres; Presley Woods, 160 acres and B. M. Anderson, 480 acres. What is worse, Boone county is in great danger of losing 3,000 acres by a threatened change in the river's course. Fifty years ago the little town of Wilton was two miles inland. Now it is within a stone's throw of the river, and it is considered only a question of time until its inhabitants will have to move back or be swept away. The people of Boone county are becoming much concerned about the situation, and are trying a plan with which to wage battle with the aggressive "Big Muddy," which seems disposed to turn all of their property over to their Cole county neighbors.

Shorthand Machine.

The stenodactyl is a machine for writing shorthand and is the invention of a Frenchman. It will write more than 200 words a minute quite easily. It has ten keys, five to be operated by each hand; one set of five represents consonants, or groups of consonants, while the other set deals with vowels and diphthongs. Several keys can be operated at one time.

Cumbersome Currency.

The representative of a hardware firm, seeking the other day to establish a trading connection in Yap, one of the islands in the Caroline group, found himself unable to trade, owing to the extraordinary currency of the natives. The only money they use is a huge flint or limestone slab, varying from the size of a dinner plate to that of a cartwheel.

Machinery and Men.

It has been estimated by an expert in the employ of the government that agricultural machinery reduces the number of men employed to do a given amount to one-third, where manufacturing machinery reduces the number to one-fiftieth.

RATTLESNAKES OF GOOD OMEN.

Where They Are Found Are Found Also Huckleberries, Trout and Health.

"I have always noticed one thing about rattlesnakes," said Simon Kent, of Clinton county, reports the New York Sun, "and that is that if I am trout fishing and the trout are biting good I am certain to run across all the rattlesnakes any snake hunter would care to find in a day's hunting for them. But if the trout are not biting briskly I will not run across a rattler maybe all day long.

"I can't explain why it is, because I don't know. I can't account for it any more than I can account for the fact that there are always rattlesnakes where there are trout and huckleberries, or for that other curious fact that there is never malaria where you find this combination of reptile, fish and fruit. I am speaking of our own brilliant-hued and up-to-snuff rattlesnake, and not the lazy, overgrown, vindictive rattler of Florida, Texas and other unfavored localities where poisonous reptiles seem to breed along with fevers.

"Wherever you find one of our ever-cheerful rattlers giving forth its music and telling you to watch out, there you will find the purest water, the freshest air and the highest, dryest land. As long as you hear a rattler anywhere you have to kick a rattler off your doorstep every now and then you needn't be afraid of chills and fever sneaking across your threshold.

"Instead of a locality being shunned because rattlesnakes abound therein it should be just the one for people to seek."

MEN HAVE A SIXTH SENSE.

Scientists Claim That One Human Perception Has Certainly Been Overlooked.

It is commonly supposed that a human being has five senses—sight, hearing, feeling, smelling and tasting. It is now held, however, that to these must be added a sixth.

The sense of muscular tension that we experience when we sustain or raise a weight is really distinct from any or all of the so-called "five senses," and is entitled to be considered a sixth sense, says Success. Physiologists who have tried to measure it, however, are confronted by numerous difficulties. Not only is it hard to separate its indications from those of the sense of touch, as experienced by the skin on which the weight rests, but the feeling of heaviness differs when the sustaining member is moved in order to "heft" the weight, as the provincial term has it. A recent French experiment avoids all this trouble by causing the subject to hold the weight suspended by a thread between his thumb and forefinger. When the weight is suddenly supported from below by raising a board till contact is made with it, the person who holds the weight feels a sensation, if the weight be sufficient, and this is entirely independent of all the elements that have hitherto proved troublesome. The smallest weight that is necessary to produce the sensation is the measure of the muscular sense in the person experimented upon.

COFFEE MAKING IN 1662.

Process of That Time Was to Boil for One Hour Until Fit for Use.

Sir Thomas Lipton has among the treasures of his library an old cook book, published in 1662, that gives what is perhaps the first English recipe for coffee, says the Detroit Free Press. The recipe reads:

"To make the drink that is now much used, called coffee.

"The coffee berries are to be bought at any druggist, about seven shillings to the pound. Take what quantity you please, and over a charcoal fire, in an old frying pan, dry them, always stirring until they be quite black, and when you crack one with your teeth that it is black within as it is without, yet if you exceed, then do you waste the oyl, and if less, then will it not deliver its oyl; and if you would coole all this fine till it be white, it will then make no coffee, but only give you its salt. Beat and force through a lawn sieve.

"Take clear water, and boil one-third of it away, and it is fit for use. Take one quart of this prepared water, put in it one ounce of your prepared coffee, and boil it gently one hour, and it is fit for your use; drink one-quarter of a pint as hot as you can sip it."

Summer and Watch Crystals.

"What's the matter with your crystals?" asked the summer man of the jeweler. "You put a new crystal on my watch last week, and it's broken. Is it the heat?" The Broadway watchmaker carefully brushed the face of the watch and started to put in a new glass on the dial. "No; the heat does not affect a crystal," he replied. "Glass is not contracted or expanded by hot or cold weather. You probably carry your watch in your little trousers pocket next to your body, and the glass is apt to get you help along the business. We put on more crystals in the hot days of July and August—and on women's watches, too—than we do in the other ten months of the year."

Growth of the Beard.

According to a Dublin scientist who has spent considerable time in making the necessary calculations, a man's beard grows on an average about three millimeters in a week. At this rate it would increase in length about 16 centimeters every year, and thus at the age of 84 a man who had never shaved would be equipped with a beard about 27 feet in length.

Starry Conflicts.

If the new comet isn't careful, says the Chicago Tribune, it is likely to get some of its numerous tails entangled in the handle of the great dipper.

Y. M. C. A. CONFERENCE ON THE BOYS' WORK

Dr. Norman H. Probasco and Martin Stutsman to Read Interesting Papers.

MEETINGS IN NEWARK

PLAINFIELD TO BE WELL REPRESENTED AT SESSIONS.

Organization Effected Here in 1891 —Rapid Growth—Programme for Meeting Commencing Friday, Oct. 23—The Speakers.

Kenneth Robbie, secretary for boys' work, at the Y. M. C. A., and the committee in charge of that branch of the local association, will attend the boys' annual conference of the New Jersey Young Men's Christian Associations of the Newark association, beginning Friday afternoon, October 23, and closing with a farewell service in the First Presbyterian Church, Sunday evening, October 25. Dr. Norman H. Probasco will read a paper on "The relation of an association boy to the association from the professional man's standpoint." Martin B. Stutsman will talk on "The relation of an association boy to the boy outside the association.

These conferences have been held since 1891, when forty-five delegates assembled in this city for the study of boys' work. The number in attendance has steadily grown until last year 314 gathered together, from the city and town associations to discuss problems which the association boys have to face.

The programme committee of the State has secured a number of speakers, among them Edgar M. Robinson, the international secretary, who will have charge of an open parliament; George W. Hickley, superintendent of the Good Will Farm for Boys, located at East Fairfield, Maine, will conduct the "Quiet Moments" each session; Rev. Dr. John H. Elliott, of New York, will be the speaker at the boys' meeting to be held in the Second Presbyterian Church Sunday afternoon, October 25, when it is expected 1,000 boys over fourteen years of age will be in attendance. Dr. Henry Spellmeyer and Rev. Dr. D. R. Fraser will also appear on the programme.

The theme of the conference will be "The Association Boy," and the committee has endeavored to treat the subject in a broad-minded way, so as to give the clergy, association workers and parents an opportunity to study this all-important and perplexing personality.

The conference will open with a supper served in the commodious gymnasium.

This department of association work has had a remarkable growth, there being 38,312 boys in the membership of the United States and Canada. In New Jersey 2,485 boys are enrolled as members, and during the past year 922 boys were members of the Bible classes, with a total attendance of 13,600. The attendance at the weekly religious meetings was 21,119, and the gymnasium enrollment was 1,780. The growth of this work is due largely to the conferences held each year and the supervisory work of the State executive committee.

WOODEN-MARTIN.

A Former Plainfielder Marries a Newark Girl—Ceremony Being Quiet.

A wedding of interest to Plainfield-ites took place in Newark last Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, when Miss Louise Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Martin, of Newark, was married to Alfred B. Wooden, formerly of this city and a son of Mrs. Sarah F. Townsend, of Watchung avenue. Mrs. George Pierpont, of Stafford place, this city, was matron of honor and Charles Faber, of New York, was best man. Rev. T. M. Lee, of the Reformed Church, of Newark, was the officiating clergyman. The bride was gowned in pearl satin with duchesse point lace and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The groom's gift to the bride was a house and lot. Guests were in attendance from New York, Newark, Brooklyn, the Oranges, Morristown and Plainfield. Mr. and Mrs. Wooden will reside at Roseville.

BETTER FACILITIES FOR MAKING GAS

Plainfield to Have One of the Largest Gas Tanks in the State.

IS NOW BEING BUILT

OTHER EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS IN LOCAL PLANT.

Greatly Enlarged Capacity and New Machinery Will Enable Company to Provide Better Grade of Gas at Cheaper Rates.

The largest gas tank in this section of the State is being erected at the Plainfield Gas Company's plant at the corner of East Fourth and Washington streets. This improvement will mean that the plant will have a much greater capacity, which has become necessary on account of the larger territory covered by the company. The impression has gone about that the company is about to manufacture gas on a different plan from that which has been in force here since the company organized, but this was branded as erroneous yesterday by Superintendent E. A. Brokaw.

When completed the tank will have a capacity of 300,000 cubic feet of gas which will make the total capacity of the plant 700,000 cubic feet a day. The contractors for its erection are the Bartlett-Hayward Company of Baltimore. It will be completed on or about the first of the year.

The installation of the new tank and additional machinery will not make gas cheaper in this city. It will be the means, however, of securing a better grade than that now used and Plainfield, as a result, will have one of the best gas plants in the State when the improvements are finished. The plant itself has been undergoing extensive repairs. A new retort, larger than that now in use, is soon to be installed and in order to accommodate the larger machinery an addition to the building has been built. The work has been delayed somewhat on account of the difficulty of securing iron.

Among the other improvements is a purifier which, it is claimed, will do away with "sooty gas." The cost of the improvements will be somewhere in the neighborhood of $60,000.

GOOD PUMP

And a Big One Installed at Netherwood Pumping Station.

The large five million gallon pump, recently installed by the Plainfield Water Supply Company at the pumping station at Netherwood, has been put in regular service and has, thus far, worked in a most satisfactory manner. A representative of the Worthington Pump Works, of Brooklyn, which concern erected the machine, declared yesterday that it was the most satisfactory pump ever built by the company. The official also declared that the pumping station of the Plainfield Water Supply Company was a model one of its size. Numerous intending purchasers have been sent here to inspect the machine.

REAL ESTATE BOOM IN EAST END OF CITY

Few Capitalists Interested in Street Railway Planning Extensive Building Operations.

$100,000 IS INVOLVED

POSSIBILITY THAT FACTORIES MAY BE LOCATED IN THE TERRITORY.

Property Bounded by Terrell Road, East Second Street, Midway Avenue and Scotch Plains Road to be Opened Up.

With the opening up of large tracts of land in the West End of the city and borough comes the announcement that capitalists interested financially in the Plainfield, Elizabeth and Central Jersey Railroad Company, are about to open up an extensive property in the eastern part of the city. Nearly $100,000 is to be expended in making the property bounded by Terrill road, East Front street, Midway avenue and Scotch Plains road into desirable building lots with streets and other improvements.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company, granting the request of the Inter-Urban Realty Company, of Newark, the owners of the land, has started the work of laying piping along East Second street from the Richmond street mains, to supply that district with water.

Part of the district has been undergoing changes during the summer months. Some of the streets have been laid out and plots of land, suitable for building, have been staked out. It is said that as soon as the water system is in working order, the work of erecting houses on the lots laid out will be begun. Sixteen houses will be erected at once and more will follow as soon as the streets have been graded and the water pipes laid in the new streets.

The Inter-Urban Realty Comapny is a corporation having its headquarters in Newark. Included among the stockholders are a number of well-known trolley men, among whom is Adrian Riker. It is planned to open up that part of the town and small houses will be erected and rented to employes of the factories in this city.

The need of small houses which will rent for $15 to $20 a month has been long felt by real estate dealers in this city, who, according to one of the most prominent of them, are compelled to turn people away every day because they cannot supply them with the kind of houses they seek. Realizing this the trolley company has taken teps to supply the demand. The action of the realty company will be the means of generating a building boom in that section of the town which heretofore has not been developed as fast as the West End. It is said that a number of factories are being negotiated with to locate along the railroad tracks east of Richmond street.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 11—Commend by Rev. S. B. Doyle.

Topic.—Great men of the Bible—What Joseph teaches us.—Gen. xli, 14-16, 47, 48.

The life of Joseph reads almost like romance, and yet it is true, and one of the lives that illustrate that truth is stranger than fiction. The favorite son of his father, he was treated with unusual consideration. The jealousy and envy of his eleven brethren were aroused, and after a determination to take his life they did sell him as a servant to merchants traveling to Egypt. Here he started in a lowly position, and was even subjected to a false charge and to a false imprisonment. But, wonderful to tell, he was, in the marvelous providence of God, raised from the prison to the palace. He became second only to the king, and saved both Egypt and his people, the Israelites, from starvation during a famine of seven years' duration.

1. Joseph teaches us trust in God. Undoubtedly, in all his years of adversity, Joseph must have kept his mother's God first in his heart. His life must have seemed a hard one at times, his future must have looked dark and foreboding, yet God watched over him, and when he trusted Him he was not put to shame. All have their adversities. No pathway in life is strewn alone with flowers. Let us learn from Joseph to trust God along the rough ways.

2. Joseph teaches a lesson in purity. His act in resisting the advances of the wife of Potiphar, even at the risk of his life, demonstrates the great purity of his heart and life. This lesson needs to be impressed upon us today. Impurity in thought, word and deed abounds all about us in life, and many, indeed, make no effort to restrain their passions and appetites. Let us follow the example of Joseph, remembering the words of the Master, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

3. Joseph teaches a lesson in forgiveness. His forgiveness of his brethren stands as one of the most conspicuous illustrations of Old Testament forgiveness. It bears a likeness to the spirit of the Master when He prayed, "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do." It is hard to forgive sometimes, but we should forgive one another, "even as God for Christ's sake has forgiven us."

4. Joseph teaches a lesson in God's providence. "It was not you, but God, who sent me to Egypt," said Joseph to his repentant brethren. God was working out his plans in the life of Joseph. So he is in all our lives. Our God is a sovereign God. He moves in a perfect way. His wonders to perform, but He moves and performs His will. Our lives are in His hands. Let us rejoice over that fact and then strive more and more to come into complete harmony with His will.

Emery, of South Amboy, were quietly married at the home of the bride Wednesday evening. Rev. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed Church, officiated. The ceremony was witnessed only by the bride's parents. The couple intended to keep the event a secret until next week.

LITERARY.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle left us in doubt at the end of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" about what became of Sherlock Holmes. Sir Arthur has now written especially for Collier's Weekly a new series of stories, connected, though each complete in itself, begun last week with "The Adventure of the Empty House."

The most effective methods for "The Administration of Public School Systems" are set forth by C. B. Gilbert in the October-December Forum. He urges particularly that the business side of school work should be conducted on business principles, by persons directly responsible to those who appoint them.

The aerodrome or air runner of Professor Langley, of the Smithsonian Institution, had four silken wings and three propellers, one for steering; and when launched from a house-boat off Wide Water, Va., August 8th, she sailed or flew "erratically," that is, she cabbled; and she came down kerplunk! after a voyage of about 100 yards. The silken sails were rent; her steel frame-work was battered; the whole concern was stuck, head-first, in mud. Mr. Manley, Professor Langley's chief assistant aerodromist, declared that "the experiment was entirely successful."—From "With the Procession" in Everybody's Magazine for October.

Strawberries in September.

A strawberry festival in September was the rather unusual entertainment given by Mr. and Mrs. Estelle Elliott, of West Eighth street, last Wednesday evening. The berries were picked from Mr. Elliott's garden. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott entertained Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Harris and Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hall among others of their relatives.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 11, "Put First Things First."
Text, Matt. vi, 24-34.

"But seek ye first His kingdom and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

What one would best do when the house is on fire depends on circumstances. It is all right to try to save the goods if there is time. Considerable risk of pain and injury may well be run if there is a reasonable chance to save valuables. But many have lost their lives in trying to save things. Deeds and diamonds have value, but not to the dead. One is unwise to try to save an empty jewel case and leave untouched gems of great value. In the excitement of the time many have done such things. Better let the clothes burn rather than the body. It is not uncommon to see notice of fire in a hotel and the statement that the guests were obliged to escape in their night clothing, losing all else in the fire.

The pity for those who lose and at the same thus congratulate them on their escape. Scarcely a month passes without news of some marine disaster in which passengers and crew escape from shaking vessels in scant clothing and are glad to get off with life.

The matter of first importance is life, after that goods and then comfort.

No one's life consists in the abundance of things he possesses. It is more than health; it is higher than reputation and honor.

The life itself is more than breathing and acting through a body. It may be in a body, but it is, more than all, physical powers and experiences. The value of life lies almost wholly in the unseen things of spirit. A wounded spirit is worse than a broken arm. Heartache is the hardest pain to bear. A joyous heart will make a person unmindful of cuts or bruises on the body. A resolute spirit often makes a weak body do things beyond its natural limit. What a lesson to the world of worrying mortals was the life of Pope Leo XIII.! Indomitable will and concentrated purpose compelled a frail body frame to bear for long years beyond the ordinary limit of physical endurance tasks under which a stronger one might bend or break if not sustained by such powers of spirit.

The comforts and luxuries of the world, the pleasures of bodily existence, are valuable just in so far, and so far only, as they help the inner spirit to come to its best attainments.

Purity, righteousness, peace, have no equivalent. If not obtained on no other gain will make up for the lack. If lost no other thing saved can fill their place. Fire and flood may strip us of every other thing and leave us destitute of any lands or goods, may even take the friends and loved ones, though all we still keep a soul united in faith and love to God we have saved that of most value and shall find all the rest in due time.

This lesson means far more than this, however.

Young people must learn to make their way in this world, become skilled to gain a living and do the world's work. What tasks must be mastered, what skill gained in the schools, what learn the lessons and train the powers to do the work! How shall time and strength be found for anything else? If we are faithful in this, can we not gain the whole that is to be had? Surely that should be positive reason and gain his gain you may, but no coin of heaven's mintage pays the wage of his workmen.

If you think character and heaven of any value then seek them first, and God, who made and owns and rules all worlds, will pay His workmen their wage in coin of righteousness here and hereafter, now and ever.

The Sweetest Homes.

The sweetest and happiest homes—homes to which men in weary life look back with yearning too deep for tears; homes whose recollections linger round our hearts like light and the sunshine and the sweet air, into which no base things can intrude—are homes where brethren dwell together in unity; where, because all love God, all love their brothers also; where, because all are very dear to all, each is dearer to each than to himself.—Frederick W. Farrar.

A Beautiful Sight.

It is a beautiful sight to behold all the towering, spiritual figures of the past turning to Christ for the message to guide their age, as some of our flowers turn to the sun before they can reveal their own true beauty. No message of redemption, no panacea for sin, no gospel of salvation, no strong winged hope has sounded from any lips not touched by the finger that opened the blind man's eyes.—American Friend.

We Shall Know.

"We shall know each other there."
"I'm a pleasant strain to sing,
For our friends are very dear,
And we do not cease to cling
To each form, each face, each name.
Love is there and here the same.

"We shall know each other there."
Years may pass and changes come,
But forever, everywhere,
Love is changeless—shall by some Sign or bond or token true
It will ever be renew.

"We shall know each other there"
By the fellowship we share,
By a thousand memories fair,
Postures, glances, smiles and tears.
Recognition follows these.
Here and in the home above.

"We shall know each other there."
Tender thought and blessed hope;
Cheering all our grief and care,
Mingling every bitter cup
But—it strikes a deeper chord,
This question—Shall we know our Lord?

Will He know us when face to face
We meet Him on the other shore?
He trace in us the lines of grace,
Which in His life we pondered o'er?
Wounds which on Him our sins had made,
Grace which in us His love displayed?
—Rev. A. Parke Burgess, D. D.

"AL" SHEDD WELL-KNOWN AND POPULAR

Sketch of Railroad Engineer, Who Has Many Friends in This City.

HE IS AN OLD-TIMER

HAS NEVER BEEN IN A WRECK DURING LONG YEARS' OF SERVICE.

Prominent Lodge Man—Tips the Beam at 271 Pounds—He Has Many Years of Service Still Before Him.

"One of the best known locomotive engineers in the East, and the oldest engineer in active service on the New Jersey Central, is A. F. (familiarly known as 'Al', Shedd, of Somerville, who runs a passenger train between that town and Jersey City," remarks the Railroad Employee. Mr. Shedd is as well-known in Plainfield as well as Somerville and this sketch from the Employee will be of interest:

"Mr. Shedd was born on a farm near Augusta, Me., on March 23, 1843, and at the age of 15 years he found employment as a newsboy on passenger trains running between Skowhegan and Portland, on the Portland and Kennebec Railroad. At the age of 16 years he commenced firing on the Eastern Division of the Maine Central, running between Waterville and Danville Junction, where he remained for one year and one month, when he went with the Portland and Kennebec, where he fired for one year and two months, when he was promoted to engineer, on May 8, 1863. He ran on that road until April 15, 1865, when he resigned and on May 16, of the same year, was employed by the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey in the passenger service. Mr. Shedd is the oldest engineer in road service on the Central. He is an ardent Brotherhood man and was one of the charter members of Division No. 30, which was organized on November 11, 1865. He was chief engineer of this division for many years and also secretary and treasurer of the insurance branch.

"During his long years of service as an engineer, Mr. Shedd has never been in a wreck or received the slightest injury to his person, or has he cost his employers one cent for any damage to their property, through neglect or carelessness, or derelictness of duty on his part.

"Mr. Shedd is one of the heavyweights of the Central and tips the beam at 271 pounds. He has a wife and two grown sons; his oldest being assistant trainmaster of the Cheotaw, Oklehoma and Gulf Railroad, with headquarters at Little Rock, Arkansas. His youngest is the manufacturer of the celebrated 'Comfort Oscillating Electric Fans,' at Roselle, N. J., and president of the Shedd Electric and Manufacturing Co.

"Engineer Shedd is a man well preserved, considering his long term of service, and if no accidents befalls him, bids fair for many more years of faithful service with the corporation he has served so long and so faithfully."

The foreign committee reported progress in the work of preparing useful articles to be sent to mission fields.

There was also an informal report from the committee having charge of the entertainment to be given in Y. M. C. A. Hall on Tuesday evening, October 20, at which time Mrs. Minnie Marshall-Smith, the well-known dramatic reciter, and other talent, will appear.

The latter part of the meeting was occupied in rolling bandages to be sent to the mission hospital in Arabia, and after this work was completed the meeting adjourned.

FIFTY YEARS OF A "GRAND SWEET SONG"

Mr. and Mrs. John Bodine Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary.

LOVED IN CHILDHOOD

FOUR GENERATIONS REPRESENTED AT THE RECEPTION.

Sat Side by Side in School Many Years Ago—Story of Their Courtship and Marriage—Those Present.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bodine, of 28 Grandview avenue, Thursday celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding. A family reception was held at the home of the aged couple where four generations gathered to observe the occasion.

The story of Mr. and Mrs. Bodine's courtship and marriage is a pretty romance. As little children together in Hunterdon County, near Rocktown, they grew to man and womanhood. They attended the little district school and sat side by side as school children. As they grew older their friendship riped into love and on October 1, 1853, they were married by Rev. John Moore, pastor of the Dutch Reformed Church, of Bound Brook, N. J. Soon after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Bodine came to live in this city in North Plainfield. Mr. Bodine was one of the first carpenters in this city and many of the houses in North Plainfield and in the city have been erected by his hands. He retired from active business recently.

Before her marriage Mrs. Bodine was Miss Clara A. Sine, daughter of well-known residents of Hunterdon County. Only one person who was present at the wedding fifty years ago is alive today beside the bride and groom. The survivor is a Newark man who is seriously ill and could not be present today.

Four generations are represented at the celebration. They are: Mr. and Mrs. John Bodine, the celebrants and their children; Mr. and Mrs. John M. Bodine, Mr. and Mrs. David Bodine, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Bodine, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Lawshe, Mrs. John H. Niece and Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Smith. The children of the third generation present are Miss Olive M. Bodine, John B. Bodine, Pauline Bodine, Miss Bertha Bodine, Miss Kate Bodine, Miss Anna Bodine, Miss Laura Bodine, Miss Elsie Bodine, Miss Beatrice Bodine, Miss Mabel Bodine, Miss Clara Lawshe, Miss Lillian Lawshe and Carl and Miss Agnes Niece, Mrs. Clarence Cooper and Earl Smith. The great grandchildren are John E. Cooper and Dorothy Cooper.

During the afternoon a photograph of the family gathering was taken by William Demarest.

Somerville Firemen's Parade.

A large number of people from here are anticipating the Somerville firemen's parade, October 22. It is understood that the up-to-date volunteer department of that place is making strenuous efforts to have this parade eclipse all others. There will be at least twenty handsomely uniformed companies in line, with as many bands, and this together with the modern fire apparatus will make a pleasing spectacle.

MOVE TO ABOLISH SHAVING ON SUNDAY

City's Boss Barbers Petitions Borough Council to Close North Plainfield Shops.

MATTER IS REFERRED

LAWS, ORDINANCE AND TAXATION COMMITTEE TO PASS ON IT.

Edward Maynard and Others Ask Borough Fathers to Act—Husbands Robbed of Excuse for Not Attending Church.

It is probable that Sunday shaves in North Plainfield will be tabooed. The Boss Barbers, knights of the razor, shears and hair oil, in this city, have taken a decided stand to close all shops on Sunday. They insist that Sunday be not defiled by the rasping sound of the razor over the faces of borough citizens who have neglected to have superfluous hair removed from their faces Saturday night.

It will now be the fashion for men to retire at night with their moustaches entwined in curing kids and dampened paper because it is probable that the sign "This shop closed on Sunday" will greet them as they seek their "tonsorial artist" Sunday morning while heir wives are in church where they should be also. There will be no more opportunity for the domesticated husband to steal away from home on the first day of the week to while away time in a shop whose chief adornment is the "pink page pictorial paper."

At the North Plainfield Common Council meeting last night a petition was received, praying the Council to enforce the closing of all barber shops on Sunday. It was signed by Edwin Maynard and others, who belong to the Boss Barbers Association in this city. The matter was referred to the laws, ordinance and taxation committee.

LITTLE BUSINESS DONE AT FIRST FALL MEETING.

Next Meeting Thursday, November 5—Arrangements for Dinner.

The members of the Board of Trade met Thursday for the first time since their adjournment for the summer months. The attendance was small owing largely to a misunderstanding of the date of meeting. It was voted to change the time of meeting from the third Tuesday in the month to the first Thursday and the members will accordingly assemble for their next meeting Thursday, November 5. The place of meeting will be, as last night, in the rooms of the Exempt Firemen in the Coward building. It is expected that the committee on the annual fall dinner of the board will report at the November meeting. Alexander Gilbert, chairman; Harry C. Runyon, Chas. A. Reed, Newton B. Smalley and Secretary Frank Smith compose this committee. There was no formal discussion or action taken at last night's meeting although street railway and real estate activities were tentatively considered.

CROSS AND CHILDS HONORED

APPOINTED AS MEMBERS, COMMISSION OF BOARD OF CANVASSERS.

To Go Over State's Vote on Constitutional Amendments—Meetings in Trenton.

Senator Joseph Cross, of Union County and Senator S. S. Childs, of Somerset County, have received their commission as members of the special State Board of Canvassers appointed by Governor Murphy for the purpose of canvassing and estimating the votes of each of the constitutional amendments cast at the election held September 22.

The board, as appointed, consists of five senators, three of whom are Republicans, and two are Democrats.

They will meet in the Senate Chamber, Trenton, on October 18, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and will canvass the returns as submitted by the secretary of the State, who receives them from the county boards of election throughout the State. This State board merely passes upon these certificates, and has no authority to go behind these returns.

It is hardly probable there will be any attempt to have a recount. It will certainly not be asked for by the State Republican organization. The attitude of the Republicans in this State has been clearly presented by ex-Senator Stokes, and they will disapprove of anything that may look like an attempt to modify the expressed will of the people. The returns by the county boards throughout the State, as determined in the canvass yesterday, show that the amendments were defeated by the vote of the people.

LEICHTENTRITT ACCUSES HIM

GAUSLER ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF EMBEZZLEMENT.

Defendant Held in Bail for a Preliminary Examination on Thursday.

Isaac Gausler, of West Third street, Monday morning appeared in Justice Huff's court charged with the embezzlement of $90 from Meyer Leichtentritt, a West Front street clothier. Until recently Gausler has been employed as a collector for Leichtentritt, his duty being to receive weekly payments on clothes bought on the installment plan. Leichtentritt charges that in so doing Gausler embezzled $90 since January 1 and up to last Monday, September 28. Gausler is now employed by Bear Brothers in the same line of work and it is said that Leichtentritt's action was taken because of this fact. Leichtentritt had previously written a letter to Gausler, stating that if Gausler did business with any of his, Leichtentritt's, customers in Round Brook, Dunellen, Garwood or Plainfield, he would be arrested.

Gausler was held in $300 bail this morning by Justice Huff to await the action of the Grand Jury. Bail was furnished by Samuel Rothberg. William Newcorn represents Leichtentritt and V. W. Naab, Jr., Gausler. A preliminary examination in the case will be given Thursday morning.

THE WORLD'S RECORD

German Electric Car Makes Quickest Time.

A SPEED OF 125 MILES PER HOUR

Electric Force Was Capable of Driving the Car 200 Miles Per Hour. Heavy Life Insurance For Those on Trial Trip.

BERLIN, Oct. 7.—An electric car on the Marienfelde-Zossen experimental line reached a speed of 125 4-5 miles per hour, or a kilometer more than the highest previous record, at a trial just made.

The machinery and roadbed were unimpaired. The engineers are determined to try for still higher speeds and venture the opinion that they will be able to attain the rate of 140 miles per hour.

The current was between 13,000 and 14,000 volts, capable of driving the car at the rate of over 200 miles. This power is reduced by transformers to about 450 volts. The car used had four motors having together about 1,100 horse power. It was constructed on the Siemens-Halske system.

The lives of all on board the experimental car were heavily insured.

A large party of engineers, military men and civilians gathered at Dallwitz, where the highest points of speed are reached in these experiments. A French observer remarked that the new sensation of the power of velocity inspired by the car's flight was worth traveling from Paris to see.

There were twelve or fourteen persons on board the car, all technical men. They affirm that the motion of the car was no greater than that of an ordinary express train.

A curious phenomenon accompanying the car was the continuous sparking of electricity from the six trolley arms.

While the engineers do not believe a speed of 125 miles is practicable at present on the state railroads, they are prepared to recommend a speed of ninety-three miles an hour between Berlin and Hamburg.

Alleged Murderer Looked On.

BARRE, Vt., Oct. 7.—In the presence of an immense throng, but without the band of music which usually accompanies an Italian funeral and the formality of priestly rites, the body of Eli Corti, who met his death in a clash between the bands of socialists and anarchists at Socialists' hall, was consigned to the grave in the Protestant cemetery. From a cell window overlooking the cemetery Alexander Garretto, the alleged murderer of Corti, watched the funeral procession as 200 Italians followed the bier of their anarchist leader to his last resting place.

He attached another chain to the doubletrees and fastened the end of it around his neck. He then whipped up the horses, and they sprang forward. He was decapitated.

The president and Mrs. Roosevelt were met by Arthur S. Kalkes, first secretary of the British embassy, who had been designated by King Edward as his personal representative at the services. They sat in the first pew on the right side of the main tier of pews and directly in front of the chancel. At the left of Mr. Raikes sat Major Maude, military secretary of Lord Minto, the governor general of Canada, and his personal representative.

Opposite the main tier of pews sat R. T. Wilson, father of Lady Herbert, accompanied by his daughters, Mrs. Ogden Goelet and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, and his sons, M. Orme Wilson and R. T. Wilson, Jr. Across the aisle to the right of the president the pews were occupied by Admiral Dewey and Lieutenant General Young and their staffs. The members of the diplomatic corps occupied pews directly back of the president, while officers of the army, navy and marine corps occupied seats in the body of the church.

The services were the prescribed funeral services of the Episcopal church. Dr. Smith was assisted by the Rev. Dr. Randolph H. McKim, rector of the Church of the Ephiphany.

The musical programme was rendered by the choir of St. John's and the string orchestra of the Marine band, under the direction of H. H. Freeman, the regular organist of the church. The three hymns rendered were sung at the cabled request of Lady Herbert and are the same as those rendered at the funeral services in Great Britain. The hymns were "Hark, Hark, My Soul!" by Sir Joseph Barnby; "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Fight the Good Fight With All My Might."

Two anthems were chanted by the choir, "Lord, Let Me Know My End and the Number of My Days" and "I Heard a Voice From Heaven."

The only deviation from the funeral services prescribed by the church ritual was the insertion of the name of King Edward in the prayer for the president of the United States.

BOROUGH COUNCIL'S ROUTINE BUSINESS

Charles Sebring Now Wants to Move His Building to Greenbrook Road.

TAX COLLECTOR'S WORK

WARREN ENGINE COMPANY ALLOWED TO TAKE STEAMER TO SOMERVILLE.

F. M. Whitney Appointed Special Marshal to Collect Over Due Taxes—Claims Ordered Paid—Thirteen Arrests Made.

Charles P. Sebring again petitioned the Borough Council Friday to remove a building in North Plainfield. He now desires to transfer the Front street building out Grove street to a point on Greenbrook road. It was referred to the street committee which reported unfavorably. It was referred back and will be again reported on at the next meeting.

A petition from Warren Engine Company asking that the fire engine attached to Warren Engine Company be loaned to the company to be taken to Somerville on October 23, at which time the company will parade with the county seat fire laddies, was granted.

Claims amounting to $2,780 were ordered paid. The amount of $232.22 for street work was ordered paid as was $786.19 for the fire department bills for the past month. Councilman Lee reported, as chairman of the police committee, that thirteen arrests had been made during the month, $48 has been collected for fines and three prisoners had been committed to Somerville.

Francis M. Whitley was appointed special marshal to collect the personal taxes now overdue. Mayor Smalley, in making the appointment, said that the small number of unpaid taxes in the borough this year was creditable to the tax collector and to the property owners.

Tax Collector George F. Brown submitted his report: Receipts, taxes and interest, $1,906.99; Board of Health, $33.93; special school tax, $1,057.56; sale of brick, $285; recorder's fines, $49; macadamizing, $59; bills payable, note, $2,000; balance on hand Sept. 1, $1,735.96; total receipts, $7,071.44; disbursements, $4,000.51; cash on hand, $3,000.93.

The new organization will be identified with the State Association and a committee was appointed to take action on this matter at once.

Religious Scruples.

The Hebrews who reside in and about this city were unable to vote on the constitutional amendments as the election took place on their new year day and their law forbids them to vote on holidays. The rule held good all over the State, and as a result very few Hebrews votes were cast. There are over 25,000 Hebrew voters in New Jersey, it is said.

BANK STOCK TRANSFER BLOCKS ASSESSMENT

Borough Loses Large Taxable Value by A. J. Brunson's Action.

THE COUNSEL'S OPINION

FORMER SENATOR C. A. REED ADVISES NORTH PLAINFIELD COUNCIL.

The Result Will Have No Effect on the Present Tax Rate—The Borough Will Miss the $1,000 in Taxes.

The First National Bank stock which was transferred from North Plainfield to Atlantic County by A. J. Brunson, is not assessable by the borough, according to a written opinion submitted by Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, at the meeting of the North Plainfield Common Council last Friday.

In his opinion Former Senator Reed says: "Bank stock is assessable to the owner where he resides, according to its ownership on May 20, and where a corporation is the owner it is assessable to such corporation at its office. In the case in question the assessor has power under the statutes to demand from the previous owner the name and residence of the corporation to which the stock has been transferred and it is the duty of the assessor to notify the the assessor of the taxing district in which the corporation's pincipal office is located, so that the latter may assess the stock. Of course the taxes would be payable in the district where the principal office of the corporation is located if that be within the State of New Jersey. If it is not owned within the State, then it is assessable in the district in which the bank is located. The result is that unless the principal office of the corporation which owned the stock on May 20 is in the borough the stock is not assessable in the borough.

"I have not the means of ascertaining when the stock was transferred, if at all, but am informed that it was tranferred to a corporation whose principal office is located in Atlantic County, prior to the twentieth of May."

This is somewhat of a surprise to many in North Plainfield who were in hopes that the tax rate could be kept down by taxing the transferred stock of the First National Bank which was taken out of North Plainfield and taken to Atlantic County where a saving in taxes could be secured, amounting to something like $500 a year, by the owner, A. J. Brunson. The opinion of the corporation counsel will not change the tax rate for the coming year which was recently given out by the assessor. Those figures were prepared irrespective of the transferred stock.

Mr. Brunson transferred 861 shares of the stock from the borough. The shares, as they were assessed last year, are worth $65 each, amounting practically to $65,000 for the entire block. They would be taxed something over $1,000.

LOST IN NEW YORK.

Chapter From Real Life of John Kilbride, a Plainfield Youth.

John Kilbride, eighteen years old, of West Fourth street, went to New York City Wednesday for the first time in his life. He landed in the metropolis at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning and did not return to Plainfield until early in the following morning. The intervening time he spent largely in attempting to locate the Liberty street ferry of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. His wanderings started in the Bowery and embraced pretty much all of the territory between 59th street and the Battery. He finally encountered a friend from Plainfield who started him safely on his homeward way in time to render unnecessary the relief expedition that worried parents and friends at home had contemplated.

LITERARY.

Scribner's Magazine for October contains a remarkable narrative written by a brilliant woman. It is a graphic account by Mrs. John Quincy Adams, wife of the President, of her perilous journey by coach from St. Petersburg to Paris. In February, 1815, she stared alone with her sixteen-year-old son (the late and distinguished Charles Francis Adams,) to join her husband (then a member of the Peace Commission) in Paris. Her journey was along the trail of Napoleon's army, and glimpses of the recent battle-fields appear in the journal. On the borders of Germany rumors of the return of Napoleon from Elba were heard, and it was only by subterfuge that Mrs. Adams reached Paris in safety. Brooks Adams, her grandson, writes a brief introduction to this vivid, human document.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXVI. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1903. NO. 42.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

ELEANOR C. COOLEY WEDS H. C. JENKINS

Married According to the Friends' Ceremony in Local Meeting House.

SISTER, MAID OF HONOR

ONLY RELATIVES AND CLOSE FRIENDS PRESENT AT WEDDING.

Miss Marjorie B. Cooley and Miss Elizabeth Haviland Bridesmaids —Howard W. Jenkins Best Man—Guests Present.

Miss Eleanor Clifton Cooley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Justus H. Cooley, of North Plainfield, and Henry Carpenter Jenkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Jenkins, of Brooklyn, were married yesterday at 1:30 at the Friends' Meeting House on Watchung avenue. It was the third wedding ever performed in that building since it was erected in 1777 and the first in seventy years. The ceremony was performed according to the custom of the orthodox Society of Friends and was witnessed only by the immediate friends and relatives of the couple.

The custom of the Society of Friends does not prescribe that a minister shall officiate but instead a committee is appointed to act as official witnesses. The committee was composed of Cornelia A. Gavett, Anna Rice Powell, William W. Angell and William D. Williams, all of the local congregation. The service was a simple but impressive one.

The bridal party entered the Meeting House and took their places in the front. The vows of matrimony were recited by the bride and groom which is of the form of an agreement both verbal and written. After reciting the words of the contract the groom affixed his name to the document in charge of one of the committees and was followed by the bride who also placed her name on the paper. Following this ceremony a season of prayer lasting almost an hour was held.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Agnes M. Cooley, as maid-of-honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Marjorie B. Cooley, her sister, and Miss Elizabeth Haviland, of Bellefontain, Ohio. The best man was Howard W. Jenkins, of Brooklyn, brother of the groom. The ushers were Walter K. Cooley, brother of the bride, and Howard W. Drake, both of this city.

The bride's dress was of white peau de crepe trimmed with Duchesse point Bertha. She wore a white tulle veil and carried a bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The maid-of-honor wore white point de esprit trimmed with white ribbons and carried white bridesmaid roses, while the bridesmaids wore gowns of point de esprit trimmed with pink ribbons and carried pink American beauty roses.

After the wedding and prayers at the Meeting House the wedding guests were driven to the bride's home on Westervelt avenue where a wedding luncheon was served previous to the departure of the bride and groom on their honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside in Brooklyn.

Palms, ferns and flowers made the parlors of the house very attractive although nothing elaborate was attempted in the way of decorations.

The groom is well known in Wall street where is prominently connected with the firm of Goodeck & Company, brokers.

There were about sixty guests present, many of whom were from Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Mount Vernon and this city. Among those present were Mrs. C. M. Taylor, Jr., Miss R. M. Eby, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. George C. Blank, Miss Alice Blank, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Carpenter, the Misses Lane and Miss Wakley, of Brooklyn, and Miss Grace Cooley, of Mount Vernon, N. Y.

CAN "WORK" VOTING MACHINE

ALLEGED THAT BALLOT COUNTERS CAN BE "MANIPULATED."

Defect Shown by Experiments in Indianapolis and Union Hill.

The voting machines sent here by the Standard Voting Machine Company and which have been set up for exhibition purposes in Robert Trewin's barber shop on Somerset street and in Cole's stable on West Second street, can be doctored, according to stories emanating from Indianapolis and Jersey City.

It is reported that it was shown in Indianapolis that the machine would be made to register for a certain candidate every time the lever was turned by a voter in casting a ballot, merely by putting a little clamp on the key inside of the machine, which could be done in a few minutes. The machine was "worked," it is said, before the eyes of the official representative of the company, and the only excuse, it is alleged he could offer, was with an "honest" election board it could not be done.

The Jersey City Journal states that the same defect was discovered by a sixteen-year-old boy in Union Hill, N. J. Willis Filon, son of Martin Filon, a political leader, was the first to discover that the new voting machine could be manipulated by voters, and what the lad pointed out as a defect has been seen during the past day or two by a number of other persons in Union Hill.

GOVERNOR ADVOCATES RADICAL CHANGES

Murphy Favors New Senatorial Lines on Basis of Population.

SPECIAL LEGISLATION

CHIEF EXECUTIVE WANTS A CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Undecided Whether to Embody His Views on Message Which Will be Read to the Legisture Tomorrow.

Gov. Murphy gave out yesterday an interview favoring the holding of a constitutional convention to devise a new State Constitution.

The Governor is in favor of new Senatorial lines on a basis of population. He says this should not interfere with the holding of a convention. He thinks representation to the convention should be had from each county, so that the smaller counties would not be in a position to be outvoted on the proposed change.

The Governor favors the establishment of Assembly districts, and he also favors the wiping out of the constitutional provision which prohibits special legislation. The Governor has not decided whether in his message to the special session tomorrow he will advocate action on any matters outside the school law.

The President and Speaker and House and Senate Committees on Education will have a meeting on the new school bill today, and the Republican Assemblymen and Senators will hold their caucuses tomorrow morning to determine on a line of action to be followed at the special session which will be convened on that day at noon.

Cooley, near Brookside Sanitarium. It is alleged that the dam is the cause of washing away $300 worth of top dressing on the Somerset street roadway which was recently put down by the Council. The dam, a low one, two feet in height, was built years ago to beautify Dr. Cooley's grounds.

LOCAL POLITICAL CIRCLES ALL AGOG

Charles L. Moffett Suppresses Excitement by Reconsidering His Withdrawal

POLITICIANS EXCITED

FOWLER PEOPLE HINTED THAT IT WAS A KEAN DEAL.

Moffett Will Stand for Nomination to Show That His Desire to Withdraw Was Not Prompted by Ulterior Motives.

For several hours yesterday there was some suppressed excitement in political circles in this city because Charles L. Moffett, the avowed candidate for the Democratic nomination for assemblyman, had withdrawn from the race. The announcement brought dismay in the ranks of the Fowlerites and Democrats, who read in the action a political move of considerable depth. All kinds of reasons were assigned for the act, most of those interested thinking that it was the result of Kean influence. And then after it had been brought home to Mr. Moffett that his reasons for withdrawal could not but be misunderstood, and that the misunderstanding would do him lasting injury, came the final statement from Mr. Moffett himself that he would reconsider his determination and accept the nomination if tendered him.

Mr. Moffett withdrew because he had decided to extend his law business by opening a New York office. He was acting from purely personal reasons. As a considerable self-sacrifice, Mr. Moffett announced at noon that he would stand by his original determination to become a candidate.

The effect of Mr. Moffett's withdrawal at this stage of the political game would have been startling. It would have altered the whole complexion of the Kean-Fowler fight. It would have been disastrous to the plans of the Republican element that opposes Kirk for the Assembly. What's the fact was proclaimed at last night's meeting of the Democratic County committee that Moffett had given up the fight, the members confessed themselves at sea in choosing his successor.

OPINIONS ON LOCAL BOLT

DON'T NEED PLAINFIELD SAYS ONE NEWSPAPER.

New York Editor Thinks Efforts Are Misdirected—Only Hot Air.

Misdirected.

If one-half the spirit engendered by factional strife in the Plainfield section of Union were concentrated in an on-slaught on the Democracy the local Republicans would be invincible. If they want to see Democratic candidates for the Assembly elected they simply have to carry out their threat of cutting the tickets nominated by the Republican convention.—New York Press.

Only Hot Air.

The New Brunswick Home News had this comment on the political situation in this county: "Union County Republicans are said to feel somewhat shaky over the prospects there. The troublesome Plainfielders are still sulking, and refuse to be cajoled. The trouble nowadays with political bolting is that the bolter has no place to go. The other side might use him for the time being, but that is all. Men are generally being made to adhere closer to party lines than they used to. Ten years ago no doubt the bolt of the Plainfielders would be an assured fact, while now it is only in the air."—Elizabeth Journal.

Don't Need Plainfield.

Since 1890 only once has the Republican majority in Plainfield been necessary to elect a candidate on the Republican ticket for a county office. That instance was the election of E. Frank Coriell to the office of sheriff. In 1890, when the county vote was solidly Democratic, George Kyte, Republican, was elected to the Assembly from the old Second district by the majority which Plainfield rolled up for him. Every election since the Republican candidates for the county offices have had votes enough to have left Plainfield out and still have had a comfortable majority. This statement is not made to detract from the honor due the Republicans of Plainfield, for

SUNDAY-SCHOOL PROSPERING

THE TEACHERS AT TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH GRATIFIED OVER CONDITION.

Facts and Figures From Reports Read at Session—Treasurer's Report.

The most largely attended of any of the regular fall meetings of the Sunday-school teachers of Trinity Reformed Church was that of Tuesday in the Sunday-school rooms. There was additional cause for gratification in the fact that the reports of officers indicated a growth in the numerical strength of the school and a most prosperous condition generally. Superintendent F. E. Smith presided at the meeting.

The report of the treasurer, H. E. Gayle, showed that beginning May 11 there was a balance on hand of $130.-94. With this included, the total receipts to date amounted to $302 20 and this, with $136.86 already disbursed, left a balance of $165.34. Subtracting from this the amount necessary to meet outstanding obligations, the net balance to date was announced as $82.50. There was a deficit of something more than $54 from the excursion to Asbury Park, but it was reported that the number of tickets still remaining unpaid for was sufficient to offset the greater part of this amount.

Mrs. George Sauns, treasurer for the home department, reported a membership of 140. She announced that the amount collected during the past quarter was $30.69, of which $29.34 had been turned over to the treasurer of the Sunday-school.

In the primary department, Mrs. J. M. Tier stated that there were 183 primary pupils and 54 infant pupils with a total of 237, the conditions in the department being very much crowded. On this account, the church auditorium had to be used for a portion of the infant department.

Mrs. L. R. Schofield, of the Junior department, announced that the membership had increased from 27 to 40. In the main school, the exact number of pupils was not known to the superintendent, but it was stated that from four to six new pupils were joining the school every Sunday.

ELECTION RETURNS.

Complete Official Result of Canvas of Vote.

The vote is compiled on a basis of eight amendments. All of these were defeated, the majority against the principal amendment, that for a separate Court of Errors and Appeals, being 3,709.

The amendment for a reorganization of the Court of Pardons was defeated by 1,665, and the one relating to the appointment and terms of judges to be appointed in case the amendments went through received an adverse vote of 2,213.

Placed in Soldiers' Home.

Adam Martine, of Somerset street, an old soldier, was taken to Kearney this morning by Constable William N. Pangborn, to the Old Soldiers' Home where he will spend the rest of his days. Mr. Martine is one of the best known residents of North Plainfield and until recently was a familiar figure on the city and borough streets.

Doubly Happy.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Greer Garrett, of 20 Washington avenue, are receiving the congratulations of their friends. Twins and both girls.

The record of the Alis Club on the baseball diamond for the season just passed is of interest and shows that the team has done good work throughout. The management had the trouble more or less of being obliged to change the personel of the team frequently and this did not always turn out satisfactory. However, the club has given good exhibitions in the twenty-two games played. This is the list of games and scores, the score of Alis Club being first:

LIFE SAVING SERVICE

Good Work Done by Uncle Sam's Coast Line Guard.

A Class of Brave, Fearless Men Who Are Inadequately Rewarded for Their Dangerous Service—To Help the Navy.

A feature of the naval maneuvers off the New England coast this month is to be the active cooperation of the life saving stations in patrolling the entire coast line from Cape Cod to Eastport, Me., on the lookout for the approach of an enemy's ship or ships. The conditions are to be as nearly as possible those which would prevail in case of a real war. The object of the purpose of drill, so that in case of conflict with a foreign foe the defenses of the nation would be as complete as possible against the approach of the enemy.

The life saving service is admirably adapted for this work, for, although it may not be generally known, the coast from Maine to Florida has an almost continuous line of life saving stations, and the shore between stations is patrolled four times between sunset and sunrise, and, should the weather be foggy, the patrol is continued through the day. This will enable the life saving service to render the navy the assistance which is desired without entailing any additional work upon it, save that of detecting vessels skirting the shore and making reports concerning the same. The treasury department, by which the life saving service is directed and controlled, has issued the necessary orders, and the life savers, who are already familiar with the idea, having rendered most valuable assistance during the late war, are ready to enter heartily into the plans.

The service which the life savers on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts are thus enabled to render the nation. In addition to their succoring of distressed and wrecked ships, the rescue of the drowning, etc., mark about the only difference there is between the work of the stations located upon the coast and those on the great lakes. The equipment of all the stations is almost identical and about the only difference which the crews experience is that those on the great lakes are only in active service eight months of the year, from April to November, or during the period of open navigation, while those on the coast serve the year round. The pay of the service is uniformly $65 a month, remuneration which is not commensurate with the work demanded or the class of brave, fearless men required. With the general advance in wages all all other directions, it is beginning to be difficult to secure enough men to fully man the stations. It is only by action of congress that better pay can be secured, and relief from that direction is rather uncertain.

Taking the record of last year of the life saving service, which is declared to be the most remarkable in its history, so far as disasters were concerned and aid extended, it is readily apparent how valuable and important the work is. During last year there were 385 vessels wrecked upon our shores. Of these 54 were over 1,000 tons. The total number of souls on board these wrecked vessels was 3,424, of whom only 19 were lost. The value of the ships lost was $12,125,000, and of cargoes, $2,289,000, while the cost of the life saving service, which has to vast a usefulness, is only a little over $1,500,000.

There are 270 stations divided up among the thirteen districts of the service. Sumner I. Kimball is the general superintendent, and it is largely due to his efforts that the service has been developed until to-day it is the best in the world. Three of the thirteen districts are around the great lakes, and include 59 stations. The Atlantic coast has eight of the districts, with 187 of the stations, while the gulf coast is comprised in the nine districts, including eight stations. In addition to the 187 life saving stations along the Atlantic coast, from Cape Fear southward to the end of the Florida peninsula, where there are no life saving stations, there are 14 life saving and houses of refuge, located about 15 miles apart, and in charge of a keeper, who, after every storm, patrols the beach to see if anyone has been cast up by the storm. If such unfortunate is found he is cared for as long as necessary.

Summer visitors to the coast and the lake resorts where life saving stations are located never fail to visit these, and never grow weary of looking at the boats and life saving equipment and asking questions of the bluff but good-natured and brave members of the crew.

LOUIS LONG.

A NEWLY-COINED WORD.

An Ugly One and the Thing It Stands For Has Very Ugly Legends.

Any familiarity with continental journalism and periodical literature brings the reader in these days face to face at every turn with the newly-coined word "arrivism," and with dissertations on the modern tendency which it represents. The word is a very ugly one, says Berliner's, and the thing which it stands for certainly has very ugly associations; but it is not whether we can dismiss, as insignificant, either the one or the other. Doubtful whether we can do so in our quality of Americans, especially. The conservative European, who is rasped and shrailed by the general rawness resulting from the doctrine that the most of the time spent in preparation for the achievement of the ends of life is time wasted, and that the wise course to pursue is simply to "get there," and to learn by doing or acquiring instead of learning to do or enjoy, does not hesitate to say that it is the American and his Americanism that are primarily responsible for the doctrine. And he is right.

We have, in effect, a new way of regarding human existence and the human career. In this particular. We are inclined to apologize for this new way at times, and at times to assert with unnecessary aggressiveness that it is the only right way. In reality, we probably ought to do neither. The matter is still on trial.

Whether "arrivism" be humanly possible when pushed to its logical limits, whether it will give us more out of life or less, is what we do do not yet know and cannot yet tell. But it is the contemporaneous problem, and one surely calling for meditation and experiment.

SIMPLE BOOKKEEPING.

Lead Pencil May Be Used Just as Well as Pen and Ink, Says One Who Knows.

The supervision of every store should extend to the books, says Victor Robertson, in Credit Men's Bulletin.

The simplest is always the best method of expression. Why use a pen, penholder, ink and erasers, when a pencil with a rubber on the end will supply all demands better, cheaper, and with less labor?

Is there any good reason why a retail merchant should not keep his books in lead pencil? One of Chicago's largest wholesale houses does.

If pencil is used, then the books used can be of cheaper paper and correspondingly less expensive. Therefore, I think a retail merchant's books should be kept with a hard lead or indelible pencil.

It is easier, cleaner, takes less time, and makes the correction of errors quicker and easier. Ink is no safeguard against errors or dishonesty. A man can falsify and steal as easily through ink as through pencil.

Bookkeeping is only memorandum work, anyhow. Make it as simple and easy as possible. Don't waste profit in ink. It is the little leaks that eat up the profits. Unnecessary labor is a leak. Expensive paper in books is wasteful. I believe in cheap paper and pencils, bright boys or girls who can add and subtract, and good common sense business judgment to tell them how to put the figures down so they will add up something to show the movement of the business.

UNLOADING WATERMELONS.

Work That Calls for Activity and Not a Little Skill in Tossing and Catching.

"Play ball!" said a stalwart looking young man standing on a big truckload of watermelons backed up to the curb in front of the store at which the melons were to be delivered, and a moment later he had tossed the first big and solid green globe to a man standing in the middle of the sidewalk, who tossed it to a man standing at the front of the store, where the watermelons were to be piled, says the New York Sun.

And then for three men kept the watermelons going through the air till the whole load had been transferred from the truck and stacked up in a pile at the store door. This is the common way in which watermelons are unloaded, and in which they can be shifted a good deal quicker than they could be by picking them up and carrying them in.

It is strenuous work, and work that calls for skill, too, tossing and catching watermelons; but the men that handle watermelons handle many loads thus and get well accustomed to the work in the course of the season, and they transfer load after load without mishap.

But even a very well accustomed catcher may muff a ball occasionally, and when he does they never stop to gather up the fragments. It is quite beyond repair.

Much-Directed Roads.

The Irish railways are said to have more directors in proportion to their size, importance and earning capacity than any similar corporation in the world. They average one director to every 20 miles of road. In 1872, when an effort was made to have the roads brought under the supervision of the state, they averaged one director to every 2½ miles of road. At that time there were 56 roads, averaging 48 miles in length. They had 430 directors, 56 solicitors, 56 secretaries and 70 engineers.

Dangerous Fishing.

Killing fish by the use of explosives ought not to be permitted anywhere. The fate which befell two men in British Columbia who were using dynamite in this way was an impressive instance of the engineer hoist by his own petard. They lost their lives by carelessness in handling the explosive and have good

CANNING INDUSTRY

The United States Leads All Other Countries in It.

More Than Two Million of Our People Interested in the Trade—California Furnishes the Greatest Output.

Back in 1795, the French government offered a prize for the best method of preserving foods, and this prize was won by one Appert, who used glass vessels in his process. Then an Englishman taught the world to use tin cans in place of the jars, and finally the Yankee put his wits at work and propelled the canning industry to its present improved form. To-day, as a consequence of the progress in this industry, foods of far countries are to us all as everyday matters, and one of surprising cheapness.

Now, the United States leads all other countries in the canning industry. More than 2,000,000 in this country are directly interested in the canning industry, and the cans of fish and vegetables sold every year are valued at close to $60,000,000. Figures that bespeak the vastness of the industry.

The state that furnishes the output of canned goods of greatest value (canned goods not including meats), is California. Maryland leads in the canning of vegetables, but California is ahead in fruit canning. The value of the canned product of California for 1902 was over $13,000,000; 1,750,000 cases of fruit were canned, and it was not considered a good year, either. Pears, apricots, peaches and cherries were the principal fruits of the California canneries; berries, grapes, plums, quinces, currants and other fruits, constituted the smaller quantities put up. Not more than 12 per cent. of the fruit grown in California is canned, so much fresh fruit being sent out, and a great deal preserved by burying. The tomato crop is becoming very important in California, and California canned tomatoes are fast gaining in fame. Great Britain has long been a large buyer of the California canned goods, but now demands are pouring into the Pacific state from nearer home; in China, Siberia, the Philippines, and all through the Pacific islands are scattered the bearing pictures of the gigantic fruit and vegetables grown and canned in California.

Yet the center of the canning industry is Baltimore, where more vegetables and fruits are put up than in any other city in the world. The season for both vegetables and fruit is longer in Maryland than in any of our states; and the canning producers create the vast round, the effects being favorable for both the raising products and packing the imported crops. The canneries put up oranges and pineapples in the spring, fruits and vegetables in the summer, peaches in autumn, clams, oysters and crabs in the winter. In Maryland as well as in California the canned tomato is an important output from the factories. In addition to the usual canned goods, factories in this state put up beets, greens in general, sweet potatoes, sauerkraut, and pretty nearly everything edible. The value of the canned product of Maryland is over $11,000,000 yearly.

The canning of vegetables is a comparatively recent industry. It began to come into prominence in 1856, in connection with Dr. Kane's Arctic expedition, when the experiment was made of preserving for the voyagers fish, meats and vegetables, as well as fruits. Those early methods seem very crude to-day.

Over $60,000,000 cans of vegetables and fruits are handled by the packers every year. The states having the largest number of establishments and furnishing the greater part of the output are California, Maryland, Illinois, Indiana, New Jersey, Ohio, Delaware, Iowa and Maine, the value of the yearly product ranging from something over $10,000,000 in California, to something over $1,000,000 in Maine.

AN INTELLIGENT MOUSE.

Mother Filled Up Hole in Wall to Keep Her Young from Being Trapped.

"When we think of mice it is usually of the trouble they cause us; we are not apt to credit the rodents with much intelligence," said a lady at the sewing circle, according to the New York Times, "but I really had an experience which shows that the little creatures possess a good bit of wisdom after all. I had been annoyed for some time by a family of mice which lived in the walls of the bedroom. They nibbled my clothes, disturbed my sleep, and when they grew particularly bold they left the pantry shelf and sat up its seed, my patience gave out and I determined to fix them. I bought a trap and set it by the hole in the wall. For five nights I caught a mouse, then several days passed without catching one, although they were still there, for they kept up their noises, although not coming into my room any more.

"I found that the trap was all right, but the hole in the wall had been closed from the inside. I pulled the filling out. It was not easy work, for it had been evidently put there to stay, and was made of bits of plaster and rubbish. I kept the hole open with the trap close to it, but next day it was filled again. I repeated this clearing out process five times and five times the filling was replaced. It was evidently the work of the mother mouse to prevent her little ones from passing through what had proved a fatal gate to so many. And I left the hole closed, for the mice did not come into my room again."

THE CHEAPEST TELEGRAMS.

Charges for Service Are Lower in Australia Than in Any Other Country.

The Australian commonwealth's telegraph service is the cheapest in the world. It is operated entirely by the government as part of the postal system, says the Review of Reviews. For city messages, which include a suburban area of a radius of ten miles beyond the city limits, the rate is 12 cents for messages of ten words and the address; for messages of the same length to any point within the same state—and the states are generally very much larger than any American state—the charge is 18 cents, while for similar messages to any station within the commonwealth—and from Rockhampton, to Queensland, to Perth, in West Australia, the distance of wire is more than 4,500 miles—the uniform charge is 24 cents.

It is calculated, on the basis of past experience, that these rates will return a revenue sufficient to pay operating expenses of every kind, including the cost of maintenance, and in addition interest on the original expense of construction, amounting to fully $18,000,000. Australians send more than twice as many messages over the lines at the lower rates as Americans do at the present charges.

SHOES FOR DEFORMED.

Specialty Made of Footgear for Persons with Crippled Feet and Short Legs.

"With all that is published about comfort for the feet and improvements made by men in the regular trade," said a shoe manufacturer in Brooklyn, "nothing has been said about men who make a specialty of putting shoes for cripples and deformed persons. It is not so long ago that it was almost an impossibility for a man with a deformed foot or a short leg to have his misfortune. We all remember the heavy, thick-soled blocks that were provided for such to feel almost as uncomfortable as though he had a wooden leg. You see very few of them now. Shoemakers have been prevailed on, the expression shoe, as it is called in the trade, by the use of springs and other contrivances, so they can make a deformed foot look very much like any other foot, unless it is a very bad case. A man with one leg two or three inches shorter than the other can have a pair of boots made so that nobody need know it but his shoemaker. Customers in our particular line have as many pairs of shoes as other men, in calf, tan and patent leather, and in all the fashionable shapes, too. They have to pay about three times as much for them as men with both feet alike do; that's all the difference."

Lived as an Ox.

Dr. Edward Stanton, a character of Kokomo, Ind., for 60 years, died recently, aged 80 years. Years ago Stanton lost his practice and fortune, and it affected his mind. Since then he had imagined himself an ox and grass and hay was his principal diet. He walked on all fours in the pasture of the county farm, grazing constantly with the cattle, horses and sheep. He almost lost his power of speech, and of late years his conversation consisted of guttural sounds, resembling those of an animal. He died suddenly, and his mouth and stomach filled with grass. It is thought poisonous herbs killed him.

Sheep Shearing in the West.

Sheep shearing is now done in the west by machinery, operated by steam power. It works by means of a flexible shaft. The knives or shears can be operated as rapidly as the gearing contained in the shaft can be moved. Electricity, team or a hand crank may be used. A trained shearer can shear a sheep every three minutes. The record is 2,650 pounds of wool from 360 sheep in 15 hours.

Good Climate.

A man 106 years old has started a popcorn business at Long Beach, Cal., and the California papers are making much of the incident, as an advertisement for the climate, which keeps a man in good health at that age.

THE PALMA TROPHY

Recently Taken from England by American Riflemen.

An International Shooting Prize That Has Been Won by This Country, Canada and England—Presented by America.

The Palma trophy, donated by the riflemen of the United States to the riflemen of the world, comes back to the United States by the prowess of our soldier sharpshooters. The crack shots of our army and national guard recently met the cracks of England, South Africa, Canada and Australia at the rifle range of the English army at Bisley, and have returned to this country the victors in one of the hardest fought contests of skill at rifle shooting ever witnessed.

While the Palma trophy has figured in several of these international rifle contests but little is known of it by the public, the contest being considered an army affair in which the civilian is but little interested.

The National Rifle Association of America was organized in 1873 by members of the army and the national guard. The following year a challenge was issued to teams from the military service of other countries, and the challenge was accepted by a team from Ireland. Both teams did some wonderful shooting, and it was not until the last shot was fired that the winner was known. That last shot was a bull's eye, and had it been a miss Ireland would have won, as it was the final score stood 934 points for America, and 931 for Ireland.

In 1876 the riflemen of the army and national guard in this country conceived the idea of an international shooting competition as a feature of the centennial celebration of that year. To encourage teams from other countries to come to America and participate in this memorable competition the Palma trophy was purchased. The American team won it and the trophy stayed in America. The challenge to the world remained upon to all comers, but it was not until 1901 that the trophy left the hands of the first winners and passed beyond our borders.

In that year the glove thrown down by the American riflemen was covered by the Canadians, whose champions proceeded to Ben Gort, N. J., on September 5, and won an exciting match by 29 points, the winning team scoring 1,522, and the trophy defenders 1,493.

As one of the conditions under which the trophy is competed for ten years it obligatory for the following year's competition to be shot in the country of the holders. In 1902 the challengers, a British team, under Maj. the Hon. T. F. Freemantle, and an American team, under Brig. Gen. Bird Spencer, proceeded to Ottawa, and on September 13 brought off a finely contested competition under not altogether ideal meteorological conditions.

On that occasion the British team won, and the trophy was carried to England. But the English Tommy was permitted to view the result of his prowess for but one year, for the American team, captained by Col. Leslie C. Bruce, of the old guard of Boston, crossed the water this year, and have brought the trophy to America again.

With respect to the trophy itself, which is fashioned "after the style of the battle flags of the Roman Legions," at the suggestion of Gen. Martin McMahon, chairman of the trophy committee in 1876, it is perhaps more remarkable than beautiful. Standing seven feet six inches in height, this unique banner is composed of gold, silver, copper, steel and iron. The eagle—that is my her Roman nor American, but a comb.nat on of bot— is one foot high, and is composed of burnished copper, while the bar upon which it perches is of solid iron, copper edged, the word "Pa ma" (alm st obliterated by a silver w eath) being written in raised rivets over the center, apart from the fringe, which is of gold, the inscription ver, and the gold fringe is made of solid iron, as, indeed, is the staff, which, however, boats copper all ta.

MAX O'Rell.

LANGUAGE USED BY TABBY.

The Speech of Cats as Translated by a Frenchman Who Has Studied It.

A French professor has become the Columbus of Catland. He has learned the language of cats, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The vocabulary is so small that it is a matter of wonder that the world waited so long for some one to put it among the things anyone may know. Here are some of the cat words he has learned:

"Aelio" is a request for food.

"Allioo" is a request for water.

"Lae" expresses a desire for milk.

"Eh!" is a demand for red meat.

"Bleeme-ly" means kitty wants cooked meat.

"Prlee-bl" is mouse meat and is applied to any food which kitty fondles before devouring.

"Meouw," uttered simply, is a greeting; uttered fiercely and with accent on the "Me," is an expression of hatred and defiance.

"Mieuow, yow, wow, yelwoyow, tiow, ys-ss-syow" is the yell of defiance in battle and is variously accented to tell of the progress of hostilities, "yss-ss-ss-yow" being the fury of battle madness.

"Yew" signifies that the cat is in distress and needs human aid. It is uttered very softly.

"Parriere" is a request to open a door.

"Purrieu" is the I-love-you of catland, and when uttered with rolling "r" and a rise on the last syllable is a call from a mother to its kitten.

CHARTERING SPECIAL TRAINS.

Can Be Done Nowadays Almost as Easily as Checking a Passenger's Baggage.

"Special trains are becoming so frequent now that they attract little attention, except they make record runs for long distances or unless there is some trouble collecting payment for them," said a veteran railroad man, to a New York Times reporter. "Ten years ago, when I was division superintendent on one of the big trunk lines running out of New York, a special train was an event that never failed to get mention in the newspapers. Stationmasters required ample notice to get one in readiness, and there was a great deal of fuss making arrangements along the line. At any of the big railroad terminals in any city now a man can get a special engine and car to chase a flier almost as easy as he can check his trunk. Only a few minutes' notice is required, and right of way is obtained for 100 or 200 miles along the line without noticeably disturbing schedule runs. A man who has to keep an important business engagement, or a woman hurrying to a sick husband, pays $100 or double that sum for a special with as little concern as paying a supper check in a swell hotel. We live in a rapid and extravagant age, and grow accustomed to such things."

ELOQUENT IRISH EYES.

They Tell of Great Love of Country and Devotion to Religion.

The eye is what the soul makes it, and, like a true indicator, it records the character of its possessor. The Irish eye most eloquently bespeaks the character of Ireland's people, says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Deep and blue as the great waves of the ocean, tender and sparkling as the lovelight of the stars, brave and fearless as the heart of steel-clad warrior, peerless eyes of blue! The undying patriotism of generations, the faith in their holy religion, and the matchless wit and humor, the bright spirit of the Irish, however dark the clouds may be, can always see the silver lining—all these are beautifully blended in the azure orbs of Erin's children—ideal eyes of blue.

The laughing eyes of France's daughters are charmingly beautiful, luminous are the midnight orbs of the sunny Italian maiden, mild and blue are those of the light-browed children of the Rhine, soft and sweet the eye of the golden-haired English lassie; but for beauty and depth of meaning there is none like the true, honest hazel eye of the Shamrock land, "sweet eyes of heaven's own hue."

MAN IS MOST ADMIRED.

Boy and Girl Readers in Most Cases Select Men as Their Heroes.

"Men consider themselves the superior to women, and women, even in their childhood, coincide in this view," said a high school teacher, according to the Chicago Tribune. "To a class of fifty girls and fifty boys, of the average of 15 years, I once put the question: 'Who is your ideal human being—the one you admire and love most?' The reply to this question about 95 per cent. of the boys gave me a male character and 75 per cent. of the girls did the same thing.

"Statistics, I understand, have been gathered on this matter, and these statistics are consistently the boys and girls alike prefer men to women. When girls are under 10, about 40 per cent. of them will, according to the statistics, name women as their best loved characters, but as they grow older this minority changes over to the men's side.

"The characters that are chosen are, as a rule, George Washington, William Tell, Napoleon and Shakespeare."

Vaccination in France.

Vaccination is now compulsory in France during the first year of life and revaccination during the eleventh and twenty-first years.

MISS CLARA BARTON.
Head of the Red Cross Society.

"Mother" Jones, with her little army of textile workers marching on to appeal to the president in behalf of her particular cause, brings up before us forms of other women leaders; leaders, however, whose efforts are regarded in quite a different light from those of Quixotic "Mother" Jones. Various names and movements deserve attention, but space allows a hurried glance at only a few.

As a child, Mrs. Stowe showed remarkable ability as a scholar, but the most widely-known work from her hand, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," speaks rather of deep feeling than of giant intellect. The strong anti-slavery feeling with which the book is permeated had its growth begun in early girlhood, when the little Harriet Beecher sat listening to the fiery denunciations uttered in the pulpit by her father. The Beechers all along were very outspoken on this question, even after removing from their New England home to Cincinnati, dangerously close to southern territory and southern prejudices. Whilst residing in Cincinnati, Mrs. Stowe frequently visited the south, and thus became familiar with the surroundings which later were to be so vividly pictured in her book. Her home sheltered many a fugitive slave, and she and her husband aided not a few runaways on their escape into Canada. After the return of the Stowes to New England, Mrs. Stowe, fearing the fugitive slave act might lead to the spreading of slavery even to the northern states, and feeling that people did not at all realize the horrors of slavery, set to work to attempt a book that would have some small influence. Neither she nor her family dreamed what that influence was to become, and when the story was published in serial form it did not attract much attention. But presently it grew into fame; within five years from publication, 500,000 copies were sold in the United States alone. To-day, critics pronounce "Uncle Tom's Cabin" by no means the best of Mrs. Stowe's productions, but it certainly is the book by which she is known to the world at large.

Susan B. Anthony, "leader of a cause," is a leader whose name is a household word at least in the United States. Miss Anthony has been interested in many reforms—temperance, educational and the great movement for the abolition of slavery — but she is best known as the champion of "Woman's Rights." Though born a Quaker, Miss Anthony has been known for aggressiveness rather than meekness of spirit. She has declaimed on public platforms, petitioned legislatures, edited a paper, and written a book, all for the furthering of equal civil rights for women. This indefatigable leader in "the emancipa-tion of women" is still living, having attained the ripe age of 84 years. That she has seen her cause considerably advanced none will deny.

During the Crimean war, Miss Florence Nightingale exerted her womanly energies to lessen the sufferings entailed by that war, and owing to her zeal and fearlessness great reforms were effected in the care of wounded soldiers. When a grateful host desired to present her a testimonial of $250,000, she refused to accept it, but suggested the fund be subscribed to an institution for the training of nurses. In our own country, reforms in the care of soldiers were established by Miss Clara Barton, whose talents came into active play during the civil war. Then when the Franco-German war called for nurses, she aided the Red Cross in its work abroad. For her services she was decorated with the golden cross of Baden and the iron cross of Germany. In 1881, she became president of the American Red Cross society.

IN THE FASHION WORLD.

A Great Deal of Velvet Is Worn. Color Combinations.

A good deal of velvet will be seen, especially in the form of short sack coats of coloring similar to the skirt. It is charming combined with medallions of lace and bands of fur.

Complete toilets of gray frieze are made in bolero fashion, with facings of moleskin or gray squirrel. Strappings are now wider and piped on each side with satin either of the same tint or of a light or dark contrasting color.

Modistes are still trying combinations of dark blue and green, which are certainly no longer new. Dark earth brown with emerald or empire green is a wonderfully effective combination, and black with green, deep apricot or greenish blue is to be the favored mixture of the coming season.

The new autumn materials are striking, and the friezes with splashes and dots of color present charming possibilities in the way of combinations and trimmings. A deep sear brown flecked with emerald and a slightly lighter brown with touches of old gold and turquoise are most effective.

Great attention is given to the yoke band skirt, astonishing varieties being worked on this scheme, the ubiquitous front panel now giving place to side strappings or perhaps a series of these intersecting the symmetry of the skirt all round. But out of the real wealth of choice that abounds in this navy serge fancy one stands out a conspicuous success in the shape of one of these yoke skirts, resolved into a strapping on either side of the front, finely piped with white. This skirt has a rather close little bolero, strapped to assume a square effect at the back, completed by full three-quarter length sleeves, beloved of Paquin, with deep kilted lawn ruffles, the whole worn over a fascinating shirt of white soft tucked lawn and Tenerife lace.

The illustration shows a gray tailor made trimmed with checked cloth.

SMART MILLINERY.

Hats Are Smaller and Fit Closely to the Head Behind.

In direct contrast to the three cornered hats which are so popular in Paris very narrow oblong hats are again making their appearance.

Toques are not so high as it was predicted they would be, although the jam pot crown is revived in the picture hats, which are of enormous dimensions. Some smart models are in two or three shades of brown velvet and satin mixed.

The most incongruous mixture is seen in black beaver hats with a trimming of fine silk tulle.

All hats fit closely to the head behind, and the small hat or toque may be said to be universally becoming.

Some of the close fitting hats show ruchings of velvet glace silk or panne.

VELVET SAILOR HAT.

The all white hat promises to be as popular as ever.

A pretty flowered silk muslin in a black, white and green mixture was trimmed with a heavy flounce of coarse guipure, which lace formed the entire upper part of the corsage. This had a smart band of black oriental satin, with two ends of the same inserted with lace motifs and a collar of guipure and black embroidery. This was very becoming with a big black hat.

The cut shows a velvet sailor hat having upturned sides. It is trimmed with a white band and two bunches of feathers.

EVENING DRESS.

Costly Wraps of Velvet—Handsome Long Coats.

A lovely pearl shade of velvet is much used in Paris for evening wraps. It is lined as a rule with ermine and shows a big pelerine collar of the same fur. Electric blue velvet is also worn with mink.

A beautiful evening wrap model seen recently was gauged in shawl-like fashion edged with a fifteen inch fringe of knotted silk of the same shade and finished with a collar of mink which fell in stoles down the front. This was lined with a thick creamy white satin.

Many of the cloth models—generally those of white or cream—are trimmed with a mixture of silk and chenille fringe of the same shade and ruchings of a slightly deeper tone of velvet. These ruchings are a sure sign of the return to the early Victorian styles. They have a smartness all their own, but look better on dresses than on mantles.

For some time past a return to the old round umbrella skirts has been noticeable. These should be worn with tiny pads at the back to give roundness to the waist. The tendency is still to shorten the waist at the back and to lengthen it in front, as is seen by the prominence of the 1830 corsets. This fulness at the back is almost universally becoming.

The picture shows a chiffon gown trimmed with Irish lace. The double skirt is gauged from the waist. The sleeves are of tulle.

FOR OUTDOOR WEAR.

Silk and Chenille Fringe the Fad. Long Shoulder Seams.

The silk knotted and chenille fringe seems to me to be an admirable trimming intermingled with beautiful furs, and lace is used as much as ever, the real for preference, although many of the imitations are quite beautiful.

The long shoulder seam is indispensable for outdoor garments. Sometimes it is arrived at by a big pelerine over-cape and ofttimes by the long shoulder piece and the sleeve being put in as one. There is something extremely graceful about these drooping shoulders except when they are accentuated to such an extent as to make them ludicrous. The clever tailor manages when necessary to square the shoulders of his clients before sloping them.

A very pretty pelerine or fichu effect is obtained in mantles by an insertion around the shoulders of heavy guipure lace edged on each side with narrow fur trimming.

Many beautiful fur mantles are made with a draped capuchin of contrasting lace, fur and chiffon.

Touches of orange are frequently introduced into a dark blue costume, and this combination is far newer than pale green and blue, which has become too common.

The illustration shows a tailor made of black cloth trimmed with narrow velvet piping.

FALL COSTUMES.

Plaids Are Being Revived—White Still Very Smart.

A great deal of plaid is seen abroad for traveling. The old black and white check known as shepherd's plaid is a great favorite. The best of these are made with an accordion plaited skirt, short and full, with a short tightly fitted bolero to match and a French sailor poised daintily on the head. Sometimes these skirts are cut plain to the knees and then have a deep flounce.

Green tartan is often made with plaits after the fashion of a kilt with a plain green highland cutaway coat.

Without doubt green is gaining a certain amount of favor.

From Paris comes the word that white cloth trimmed with mink and sable is the smart thing.

The feather stole and pelerine are no more. The fur pelerine will be a great feature of the winter modes. It is a return to the early Victorian period.

The cut shows a gown of blue veiling with a yoke and sleeves of Irish lace. Yellow panne is threaded here and there on the waist and skirt.

WHAT IS WORN.

Hats Are Extremely Simple—Shorter Skirts For Street Wear.

Although evening frocks are mostly composed of fabrics of the same color, contrast is introduced by the variety of shades employed.

There is no doubt that for practical purposes and for tailor made cloth costumes shorter skirts are coming into vogue. For dressy and indoor wear the skirt is long and very full around the feet.

The ordinary walking skirt of the moment is a distinct revival of the old umbrella shaped, much gored garment. Let us trust that with these shorter skirts women will pay more attention to their feet and wear only the neatest and smartest foot wear.

Petticoats will be very smart indeed and show a multiplicity of furbelows.

Hats are extremely simple, and the success of the milliner depends upon exquisite lines and curves and beautiful workmanship. The return to the Robespierre or improved boat shape is a very distinctive note of the autumn fashions in head gear.

There are too many of the handsome and desirable woolen goods to mention in detail, but I must speak a word for the very rough surfaced fabrics, as they will be so very stylish. The sebeline and cheviot and also the long haired camel's hair stuffs will be among the best of all, and these in the different grays, with a preference in the gray known as gun metal. Gun metal in panne and in velvet and velveteen will have a decided vogue. Many of these suits have a shirt waist to match the principal color in the skirt and coat of silk or light wool goods.

The picture shows a gown of green crepe de chine and gun metal panne

Wardrobe Hints—The New Light Weight Velvets.

A tea gown or tea jacket or two are delightful to slip on for an afternoon tea.

Some variety in simple evening toilets is desirable, and trimmings, collars and fichus whereby these may still further be varied may be made in odd hours out of remnants.

A really gorgeous evening cloak will probably last several seasons, but such a garment is not one that will do duty for outdoor as well as for indoor wear.

Velvet of a light make with a beautifully soft finish known as chiffon velvet will be without exception the favorite material for winter modes. Consequently no one can do better than use this lovely material for a wrap combining warmth, lightness and considerable beauty. The old stiff mantle velvets do not appeal to many of us. They are too harsh to drape in the classical folds demanded in the wrap of the moment.

Bell sleeves are very popular for long wraps, and many are gathered into a wide cuff which is amply loose to slip over the sleeve of the gown and still protect the wrists.

A complete frock in brown is perhaps the smartest costume. A recent model had a round skirt with about six rows of gaugings below the waist. The blouse bodice was also gauged and fastened on the side with acorn buttons. It showed an inner collar of wash muslin and a silk tie of pink and black spotted foulard.

The picture shows a gown of mousseline de soie trimmed with medallions of lace.

SMART MATERIALS.

The New Friezes and Hopsackings. Decided Colors.

The new friezes and hopsacks with bright coloring irregularly powdered over the surface are already being used for early autumn gowns, and when trimmed with velvet and small silk studs or buttons the effect is very elegant. The trimming must be of the lightest description, as too much colored velvet is a great mistake. Small tabs here and there, a belt, a collar and cuffs are all effective, but should be applied with discretion or the effect is patchy and amateurish.

In the new mixtures the colors are decided, but so deftly arranged that the effect is elegant and subdued. Green will undoubtedly be fashionable, but no great popularity for green materials is anticipated. It will be more generally used as a "relief" color and is sure to be a prominent feature of autumn and winter millinery.

A long straight effect is conspicuous in autumn skirts, and smart walking toilets are made with a skirt which just reaches the ground at the front and sides and is quite long at the back. Cloth visiting gowns and those intended for smart wear have insertions of lace and passementerie bands.

Very fine net (which is usually taken for tulle) is strewn with embroidered motifs or lavishly diamante, while bold applique scrolls of elaborate embroidery are used on satin gowns. Oriental embroideries are very chic on white or black gowns, and the tiny cup paillettes are used on net and lace robes, though in light, trailing designs instead of heavily massed as of yore.

The picture shows a white felt hat trimmed with ribbon rosettes and doves.

DRESSY TOILETS.

Velvets and Corduroys Are Becoming and Useful.

Flounces are much in vogue. A pretty puffy colored specimen of sartorial art showed three deep flounces with little piped ruches of taffeta fi between. This had a deep cape collar edged with the same ruching and finished with a taffeta belt of a deeper tone. With this there was a hat of plaited chenille in three shades of brown, with feathers to match. This was accompanied by a deep stole of mink.

Light cloth dresses trimmed with dark furs are ideal for the autumn and early winter, and this combination will be much in evidence.

There is a distinct fancy for old corduroy velvets, and in brown and deep ivory shades they are really lovely. Although light, they are warm, and they may be worn without a coat.

Velvet, plain and spotted, will be used as trimming on almost every costume.

The picture shows a gown of striped velveteen trimmed with Irish lace.

FRILLS OF FASHION.

Wine Color a Favorite in Paris. Birds on Millinery.

Leather and kid strappings are again used with tweed coats and skirts which are to be worn in the mountains. They are a necessity in a hunting costume across the shoulders of the Norfolk jacket. Leather around the skirt, except in a very narrow binding, is a mistake, as it adds greatly to the weight.

Paris has gone mad over wine color from the richest shade of burgundy to the most insipid shade of pink.

The prevalence of birds is the chief feature of autumn millinery. Wings of every possible color and description adorn nearly all the autumn toques.

Some of the smartest millinery models for ordinary wear are three cornered, made of beaver and trimmed with choux of gold braid, cords and tassels. The beaver is especially smart in claret color.

Some of the most elegant of the broadcloth skirts have very decided watteau plaits at the back. Six, seven and nine gores are seen on the skirts. Panne cheviot is a new fabric and is already being purchased rapidly by those who always like to be first in everything.

The cut shows a gown of black liberty silk shirred on the waist and hips. The skirt has three flounces.

THE NAGGING WOMAN.

She Does Her Irritating Work In a Variety of Ways.

Heaven save me from the woman who nags! There are several types of her, but all types resemble one another in this respect—none of them minds its own business.

Who has not seen, or, rather, heard, the querulous whine of the woman who perpetually asks you why you don't do this and why you did do that? She worries over you as well as over her own wretched self, is afraid you won't get here in time or that you'll get there too soon. She fears lest you may take cold; lest—oh, any number of things, and they fill her days. She can be most annoying, too, this well meaning woman. She can whisper, "Your turn now," and prod you in the ribs sharply when it isn't your turn at all. She can make you commit countless mistakes, and she never, never admits that she is wrong.

SHE SCENTS YOU THROUGH A PERPETUAL LONGNETTE.

Perhaps the most ordinary and annoying type is she who insists on asking you whether you won't have more of this and more of that at table, spoiling any attempt at conversation and driving you almost wild with her nagging politeness.

Then the woman who never says much, but from her attitude leaves you in no doubt that she is surveying you through a perpetual lorgnette and that not one of your failings will escape her eagle eye. She raises an eyebrow or shrugs a shoulder, and that is worse than a torrent of reproaches.

The worst tyranny is that of tears, and the woman who bursts into perpetual fits of weeping when things go wrong will soon have neither husband nor friends.

But it is the gentle "nagger" who irritates me most, so that at times I would cheerfully bump her gentle head against the hard, hard wall. She is always suggesting things in a manner a thousand times more irritating than if she spoke right up. "Wouldn't you rather do this?" "Hadn't you better do that?" These are her stock phrases, and, if you will excuse my saying so, people have been slain for less.

Why is it that we have comparatively few men "naggers?" Answer: Because men have too much of importance to occupy their time. When a man nags he is either retired from business or an invalid.

Women, if you have time to nag, then you have time for some useful employment.

WINTER MODES.

The Accordion Plaited Skirt—The New Soft Velvet.

The accordion plaited skirt is most popular. It is very effective in tea gowns of some soft fabric, chiffon, of course, for preference, though point d'esprit is also charmingly treated in this way. It forms inexpensive gowns and tea jackets too.

Although we shall always wear separate blouses, fashion distinctly favors the blouse and skirt which match.

The new soft light make of velvet will be the fabric in next month's fashions, and the favorite trimming will be an embroidered collar of the cape shape.

The peignoir, wrapper and all such garments of comfort are cut after the Japanese shape.

An evening dress recently seen was of ivory white velvet. The skirt, slightly full in the hips, was otherwise plain to the knees, where it seemed to have innumerable folds and plaits. To all appearances the bodice and skirt were cut as one, the former being very simple and outlined with a beautiful design in golden grapes.

Quite unexpected attributes will be found lurking in soft flowered foulards, colored striped silken canvases, chine patterned mousselines and lace incrusted gauzes for the scarfs which promise to be a feature on the seaside millinery. This decoration is especially used as a drapery and on the well known white straw panama hat when the style and chic are essentially shown by the dainty and deft way the scarf is twisted, draped or tied in a studied, careless bow. The same straw combines a new flat crowned, wide, slightly upturned brimmed hat, eminently practical for the country or seaside. Another simple garniture is embroidered lawn or linen stretched tightly over the entire form, which has the crown simply encircled by a band of colored leather or suede buckled in front. A plisse of lace or quilled ribbon adorning a barette at the back is an effective finish, and fills up the gap between the upturned brim and the hair.

The illustration shows a bride's dress with a collarless tucked yoke and a fichu.

NOVEL MATERIALS.

Sibelines Are Again Fashionable, and Corduroys Are Popular.

The new woolen materials show rather big designs. Stripes, checks and ribs are woven into a coarse sibeline surface, and long haired surfaces are the favorites. Tartans, too, will have a vogue.

Very smart skirts are made of fawn colored corduroy to be worn with a suede coat of the same shade. Suede will be a prominent note of autumn fashions. It offers unique opportunities to the tailor and is extremely becoming in black, in brown and in soft gray shades.

Tucks are tremendously in vogue on coats and skirts. The all around "trottemse" skirt is admirable when arranged with fine tucks of graduated widths with a short blouse bodice treated in the same way. It is always essential to have something at the hem of one of these skirts to give a certain amount of solidity.

Ribbon rockings in all sorts of fantastic designs are surely, if slowly, gaining popularity.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY,

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Forse, Ed... ...Superintendent

Strange how these doctors can stay up late and feast and yet not feel any bad results.

Send for the ambulance. Mr. W. J. Bryan is in New York and modestly refuses to talk politics. What a blow to the Cleveland boom!

Buoyed up in spirits by his success in the political game, Senator Platt is going to make another venture, in which he won't be "boss."

Judging from the recent additions to the North Plainfield High School library collection, there's a lot of little Carnegies "over the brook."

Thanks are due the W. C. T. U. for its successful fight against the granting of a license to a bottler in that borough where it was shown that the application should be refused in the interests of the community.

Jim Martine tells us that he doesn't care much who wins in New York, but he would like mighty much to know whether they are going to enforce the three minute rule for stump speakers about these diggings during the coming campaign. Jim is a regular union man when it comes to shorter hours of work but he draws the line when a political speechmaking time limit is brought into question.

According to the report of Superintendent Maxson the city is making a net profit in the shape of tuition received for allowing children from other municipalities the benefit of Plainfield's excellent school system. So long as their presence does not deprive any child in this city of the privilege of attending the schools, we believe it to be decidedly to the advantage of the taxpayers to continue the present plan.

Professor Walter D. Scott, of the Northwestern University, for years has been studying the leading advertising mediums, both periodicals and daily newspapers. He has made these deductions:

Successful advertising is a form of hypocrisy.

All men are naturally obedient.

Use the form of direct command.

Make the ad. contrast with its environment.

Place the ad. near what will give a pleasant impression.—Exchange.

The Newark Evening News says that "ball playing in a sufficiently retired spot, and without the influence of liquor, should be indulged in on Sunday without becoming a nuisance to the public." Without considering what hearing liquor may be deemed to have on the question, Sunday ball playing is a nuisance in the sense that it is detrimental to the preservation of the proper moral standing of a community. The Christian religion preaches a high standard of morals. It declares that the Sabbath day must be kept holy, which can not be done when boisterous pleasure is allowable. One of the greatest evils of Sunday ball playing, and it is entirely overlooked by the Newark News, is the harm done to immature youth in permitting games to be played on Sunday. It sets a bad example for young America and is but the forerunner of the European Sunday—something obnoxious to the people of this country.

In speaking editorially of the discussion over the proposition made at the North Plainfield Board of Education's meeting to consolidate borough and city so far as the public school system is concerned, the Newark Evening News, says: "This would seem to indicate that the consolidation sentiment is somewhat increasing, since at no previous time nor on any previous occasion, so far as is at present known, has any suggestion of a combination come so near being adopted in North Plainfield. Left to themselves the people of those two contiguous places will sooner or later unite their municipal interests, but so long as the politicians pull their cars and make them fight there will be little prospect of consolidation. Naturally and geographically the two are one, but politically they are separated by a narrow brook and still narrower antagonism." That's the idea in a nutshell. Had the Republican leaders in the State kept their hands off, they would have received the thanks of the North Plainfield Council, the Plainfield Common Council, the Plainfield-North Plainfield Board of Trade and the great majority of the well-meaning and thinking people of the two municipalities, particularly the property owners. Consolidation is bound to come. It is a progressive movement and for that reason alone many of those who at first disproved of it are beginning to realize their mistake. The longer the delay the greater the detriment to both city and borough.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL, HANDSOME STRUCTURE

Building for Which Appropriation of $125,000 Has Been Made.

STATELY APPEARANCE

DESCRIPTION OF INTERIOR ARRANGEMENTS OF NEW SCHOOLHOUSE

Modern in Appointments—To be Erected at Arlington Avenue and West Ninth Street—Work to Commence Soon.

As soon as a new school law is enacted to supplant the McKee act, preparations for the erection of one of the handsomest high school buildings in the State will be resumed here. It will cost no less than $100,000 and will be located at the corner of Arlington avenue and West Ninth street. It will be a building which will harmonize well with the excellent school system in this city. Herbert D. Drake and Henry G. Morse, Jr., of Boston, are the architects. At present the construction of the building is delayed on account of the unconstitutionality of the McKee statute. Some time ago the Common Council made an appropriation of $125,000 for the purpose and this week the design was selected.

The plans and specifications for the new structure which are on exhibition at the Stillman High School need a square of 140 feet frontage and a depth of 128 feet. A light court in the center thirty-two by sixty feet will light the gymnasium in the basement and the halls and lavoratories in the first and second stories. The main portion is about fifty-five feet high with a flat roof surrounded by heavy balustrades The scheme of lighting is that followed in Germany, and the best school authorities in this country. It places all the windows on one side of the room, the window surface of each class room being equal to one-fifth the floor area.

In the basement, in addition to the provision for heating and ventilation, there are two large rooms for manual training, each twenty-five by forty-eight feet square; a storeroom in which the entire supply of school books and supplies for the city may be kept; two large playrooms, one for the girls and the other for the boys each twenty-two by fifty-nine feet; with provision for a lunch counter between the two, so that simple lunches may be supplied to the pupils at cost, as is the custom in most cities; also a bicycle room and lavoratory for each sex and a large gymnasium. The later is placed in the center of the building, the floor being sunk below the rest of the basement, and is lighted overhead by a flood of light from an interior court.

The first floor is entered by three large entrances, one in front and two at the sides. There is also provision for two smaller entrances or exits at the rear for use in case of extra need At the left of the main entrance is the board room for the board of education, with the clerk's office adjoining. At the right are the offices of the superintendent and the principal of the school. On each side of the building are three large classrooms with cloakrooms or wardrobes between them. Each room is arranged to seat forty-two pupils, making a seating capacity of 252 on this floor.

Between the two wings of the building is situated the auditorium which is fifty by sixty feet running up two stories and having a gallery, entered from the second story, round three sides of the hall. The combined seating capacity of the floor and gallery is about 800. The stage has a semi-circular recess behind it with two large dressing rooms on each side. Both this floor and the second floor have lavoratories for each sex which are furnished with a flood of light from the interior court. Broad stairways run from each of the side entrances up to the third floor, and their situation makes it almost impossible for both of them to be cut off in case a fire should ever occur. The main corridors on this and the other two floors are splendidly lighted from the interior court.

On the second floor, over the main entrance and the offices, are the library and two recitation rooms, seating about forty-five pupils each, which will be supplied with sliding partitions so that the whole can be thrown into one large library room when the recitation rooms are not in use. Much of the work of the modern high school is done in the library, consulting references and studying up topics from various authorities

The plans as arranged will give the school a splendid equipment for the best work according to modern lines in such subjects. On this floor are also six classrooms with separate wardrobes like those on the first floor, seating 250 pupils, also a retiring room for the women teachers and a hospital or emergency room for the retirement and care of any pupils that are sick.

The third floor is devoted entirely to science and drawing, and contains a chemical laboratory and a physical laboratory with a lecture room between that will seat about 100 pupils and can be entered from either room. There are also rooms for supplies and instruments and a dark room for use in photography. A third room is intended for use in botany, zoology, geology and other sciences. A large room on the northeast side of the building will be devoted to the drawing and art work. Since the auditorium and the rear tier of classrooms on each side run up only two stories, there are but five class rooms on the third floor.

The plan is so made as the school grows it can be enlarged, first by raising the wings where they are now only two stories high, which would increase the capacity about 80, also by building successive tiers of schoolrooms on each wing; one tier would furnish three classrooms seating about 120 pupils.

Trinity Entertainment.

An entertainment under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed Church, will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening, October 20. The entertainment will consist of a dramatic reading by Miss Minnie Marshall Smith, who is well known here. She will be assisted by a male quartette.

Surprise Party.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hiscox were given a pleasant surprise at their home in West Sixth street, Saturday night, by about twenty-five of their friends from the Seventh-Day Baptist Church. The evening was spent in a social manner. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Crandall, of Alfred, N. Y., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Mosher, of West Fifth street.

THREATENED STRIKE COST P. S. C. $20,000

Professional Strike-Breaker Came in for Good Share of the Amount, It is Said.

JAMES FARLEY THE MAN

HOW HE DOES BUSINESS WHEN EMPLOYES ARE FIGHTING A CONCERN.

Account of the Methods He Would Have Adopted in All Likelihood Had There Been a Tie-Up on the Trolley Lines.

The threatened strike on the lines of the Public Service Corporation, which controls the Plainfield Street Railway Company, cost that company $20,000, says the Newark Evening News. One of the largest items in this amount, it is said, was paid to James Farley, the well known strike breaker.

Farley has gained prominence as a strike breaker and it is said he was employed as a last resort by the Public Service Corporation when that company was confronted by a tie up. During a strike he takes full charge of the lines.

He created the strike-breaking industry. He saw that the road must be operated, and on distinctly different lines from its ordinary service. The operators must be armed themselves and be protected by forces. Farley and martial law reign.

Had a strike occurred on the Public Service Corporation's system a few weeks ago and any attempt made to tie up traffic, Farley would have become president, general manager, superintendent — everything for the time being. President McCarter himself would need Farley's permission before he could run out a car. Farley would have arranged the schedule to suit himself, and directed all the time table experts.

When there is a particularly nasty job to perform this man does it himself. If a car is to be taken through a mob Farley becomes the motorman. In Richmond last summer, during the worst of the troubles there, he ran a car through volleys of bricks, rocks and bullets. He received a shot in the chest in that riot.

When a strike was threatened on the New York elevated lines, a few months ago, Farley had 2,200 men together inside of 30 hours, all railroad men, ready to take the places of strikers the moment the jobs were empty.

In the eight years he has been in the business he has dealt with the big strikes in Waterbury, Scranton, St. Louis, Providence, Boston and New Haven.

Farley lives in Plattsburg and owns a farm in the Adirondacks, which it is his pleasure to cultivate. He has made money breaking strikes, and his commissions have made him independent. He is described as a young man of mild address, not the sort of a fellow one would imagine in the thick of a fray. But he has an iron will and indomitable energy, and, it is said, a grudge against the labor unions.

GEN. O.O HOWARD TO PUPILS

FAMOUS CIVIL WAR VETERAN MAKES ADDRESS AT HIGH SCHOOL.

Major W. D. W. Miller a Member of His Staff—Sketch of the Man.

Gen. O. O. Howard addressed the pupils of the High School Monday morning and related to them incidents of his experience in the Civil War. chiefly connected with the battle of Fair Oaks on June 1, 1862. Though shot through the arm, he still led the advance of his troops, until, after two horses had been shot under him, a second shot shattered his arm that he was obliged to relinquish command. He also referred to his work in founding and supporting the Lincoln Memorial University at Cumberland Gap, Tenn. Gen. Howard spoke simply, often humorously, but always with deep feeling.

Among officers serving with Gen. Howard in the battle were Lieutenant, afterwards Major, W. D. W. Miller, of this city; Col. Brooke, now Major General, and Lieutenant Miles, recently retired as Lieutenant-General. Of the many generals who exercised command of armies in the Civil War, Gen. Howard and Gen. Slocum are the only survivors.

INDOOR RIFLE RANGE SCHEME OF CO. K

Plan to Permit Members to Practice During the Winter Months.

ACTION AT EARLY DATE

NEW FLOOR TO BE PLACED IN TEMPORARY ARMORY.

The Members Preparing to Hold Dances—The Disadvantages Under Which Company Has Labored.

There is a general discussion among the members of Company K about the advisability of installing an indoor range in their temporary armory in the Schepflin building on West Front street. Some dissatisfaction has been caused in the past by the fact that the company has not had the means for winter practice as have many of the other companies in the Second Regiment. In addition to this, until recently, the members have been obliged to use old rifles which have been a hindrance to the best possible work.

In spite of these disadvantages Company K has invariably won a high place in the regiment, its record last summer being the best in the regiment and very nearly the best in the State. With facilities for winter practice and the improved Krag rifles that were issued last Monday further honors would seem easy. The matter of installing a range will be formally considered at the next meeting of the company.

It is also announced that Company K is receiving bids for the contract of laying a new floor in the armory for purposes of dancing which will be a feature of the social life of the club during the coming winter.

HILLSIDE TENNIS CHAMPIONS

MISS MARRY K. WHITON AND H. D. BULKLEY WIN THE LAURELS.

The Final Matches for the Cups—The Results of the Play.

The final matches for both the men's and women's tennis championships were played Saturday afternoon, Miss Whiton and H. D. Bulkley being the winners. For the women's championship the winners of the four preliminary tournaments played during the summer were drawn against each other. Miss Mary K. Whiton beat Miss Sarah E. Schuyler by default. Miss Elsie Burke beat Miss Helen F. Bushnell, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2. In the final match Miss Whiton beat Miss Burke, 6-0, 6-4, thus winning the Gillies cup. The corresponding cup last year was won by Miss Schuyler.

For the men's championship, H. D. Bulkley won the club cup by beating Albert D. Beers, 6-2, 6-4, 11-9. The challenge cup played for during three previous seasons became last year the property of Kenneth Bulkley, who then won the championship.

WESTFIELD-ST. MARY'S SERIES NOW A TIE

Plainfield Champions Shut Out Their Opponents in Fast Game.

PLANK'S GOOD PITCHING

TWIRLER FOR THE PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS ALLOWED ONLY FOUR HITS.

Teams Have Each Won One Game of Series—Burke, of Westfield, Presented With Bouquet—Waller Was Not in His Usual Form.

Westfield was shut out by the champions of Plainfield, Saturday afternoon, on the Westfield grounds. The game was close and exciting.

The St. Mary rooters nearly went wild when Batch crossed the rubber in the third inning with the first tally. In the last of the second inning, Manager Denman sounded the gong for time and Jack Burke, Westfield's regular catcher, who was injured seriously in a ball game last week, was called on the field and presented with a handsome bouquet of flowers from the Knights of Columbus, of Plainfield. Garret Kiely made the presentation speech. Burke was loudly cheered by all present, and responded with a few fitting remarks.

In the seventh inning with two men on bases, Hoffman smashed out a two-base hit, scoring the third run, saving Plank and McCormick, again the visiting rooters went wild with delight.

Plank, of the Philadelphia Athletics, did the twirling for the Plainfield champions. He pitched a great game, allowing but four scattering hits and striking out nine men.

"Red" Waller had poor control the first run of the visitors resulting from his wild throw. Eight hits were made off his delivery and only two men fanned. Smithson, center fielder for Westfield, made several sensational catches.

LEARN THE BIBLE.

General Lack of Knowledge of Scripture Subject of Sermon by Rev. John MacMurray.

The lamentable lack of knowledge of Bible history that prevails generally among the people of the present day was the theme of an eloquent discourse by Rev. John MacMurray in the pulpit of the Monroe Avenue M. E. Church Sunday morning. This ignorance of even the most salient facts of Bible history, Mr. MacMurray declared, is a most astonishing indication of present day tendencies. Many young people, he said, are less conversant with the Bible than with their Shakespeare. The pastor announced that he is an advocate of the study of the Bible as literature in the schools and colleges of today. At the evening services, Mr. MacMurray discussed narrowness as a vice, stating that many men are like lobsters with a hard shell of narrowness, separating them from progressiveness and breadth of view.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL RALLY.

Special Music and Address by Superintendent at the Monroe Avenue M. E. Church.

Special singing and an address by Superintendent Walter M. McGee marked the formal opening of the year's Sunday-school work in the Monroe Avenue M. E. Church Sunday afternoon. The Rally Day exercises opened with prayer by Rev. John MacMurray. Mr. McGee, in his superintendent's address, reviewed the work of the past year, stating that the school was never in so strong and prosperous a condition as now, with the ages all pointing to a bright future. There was singing by a special quartette, David W. Jones, Walter M. McGee, John P. Thompson and J. W. Daub.

Imperial's Dance.

The attendance at the dance of the Imperial Social Club Saturday evening was large. The music was provided by Charles Suhr. At a late hour refreshments were served.

Mrs. G. M. Holden, of Hackettstown, is spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. John S. Johnston, of Summit avenue.

COLORED REPUBLICANS GETTING IN LINE

Auxiliary Committee Discussed Political Canvas of City and County.

DATE OF MASS-MEETINGS

COUNTY COMMITTEE ASSURED THAT THEY WILL NOT OPPOSE MACHINE.

Mass-Meeting in This City Will be Held Thursday, October 29—Chas. Hawkins and Wm. Reed to Conduct Elizabeth Meeting.

The third weekly meeting of the Colored Auxiliary Republican Committee was held Sunday afternoon in the Babcock building. Business relating to the canvassing of the city and county was discussed and dates set for mass meetings in this city and other towns. A meeting will be held at Rahway, Wednesday, October 28; and in this city, Thursday evening, October 29. The meeting at Elizabeth will be held on a date to be announced later. The committee on arrangements for this meeting consists of Charles Hawkins and William Reed, of Elizabeth.

A communication has been addressed to the County Republican committee assuring that body that the colored Republican organization is not in any way in opposition to the machine and asks to be recognized as an auxiliary.

A canvass is to be made of Cranford and Westfield and the committee in charge of this matter is R. D. Wood, chairman; Charles Hawkins, Walter Hammond, of Rahway, and Dr. J. C. Anderson, of this city. Mass meetings will be held probably on Tuesday or Wednesday of this week.

William H. Kline presided at yesterday's meeting and Charles Van Dyke was the secretary pro tem. The meeting was attended by eight members of the committee and immediately after the session a dinner was held at Walker's hotel on West Second street. Another meeting will be held in Elizabeth next Sunday.

OVERHEAD WIRES DISFIGURE STREETS

Dangerous Increase Particularly in the Business Section of the Community.

TIME TO TAKE ACTION

UNDERGROUND CONDUCTS FOR ELECTRIC LIGHT AND TELEPHONE WIRES.

What the Ordinance Demands—Places Where Insulation is Poor—Particular Points Where Danger Lurks.

The increasing use of telephones and electric lighting in this city is fast placing the business community in the condition it was before the ordinance went into effect compelling the telephone, telegraph and electric light companies to place their wires underground. Front street, both east and west, is today made unsightly by these wires. The same is true of Park avenue, North avenue and Somerset street.

The ordinance prescribes that all wires for the transmission of electric currents be placed in conduits underground in a certain section. The telephone company covers a large part of the business district with its underground conduits but on account of the location of the distributing poles, important business corners are overhung by scores of wires. This condition prevails on such corners as Park avenue and Front street, North and Park avenues, Front and Somerset streets, Front street and Madison avenue. Where this condition occurs tall buildings are located and in case of a fire on the middle floors the firemen would find much difficulty in erecting ladders and valuable time would be lost. Other cities have ignored these conditions until some terrible calamity resulted when it was too late to take action. The fire at Atlantic City and the Windsor Hotel fire are examples.

In time of a severe blow or heavy snow or sleet storm in this city, people's lives are actually endangered by falling electric light wires which are strung on rotten poles in some cases. A recent case is cited where a life was lost in this manner. Electric light wires carrying a potential of 3,000 volts are carried on poles through some of the main streets of the city. These should be placed underground. The insulation, becoming worn off, allows the electricity to escape to the trees, damaging them and in case the wires should fall at any time through the breaking of a pole or during a storm they would be particularly dangerous.

An example of the condition of some of the poles on which the electric wires are carried was shown during a recent storm when a pole in front of H. G. Runkle's home, West Eighth street, fell to the ground, carrying with it some wires charged with high voltages of electricity. The pole proved to be rotten at the base and unfit for use. At a recent meeting of the Common Council, it was reported that the insulation on some of the wires in the City Park was worn off and the electricity escaped during rain storms, making it dangerous for persons to pass in that locality. It is probable that the insulation is bad on the wires in different parts of the city and in some places the worn coverings hang down in large pieces, making an unsightly appearance.

All these wires in the business districts, it is claimed, should be placed underground and the sooner the better. The distributing poles, instead of being on the corners of prominent streets, it is said, should be in the center of squares and the wires brought into the houses through the rear. It is said that this could be done very cheaply by both the telephone and the electric light companies. In many of the squares in the business blocks it would not even be necessary for the company to purchase a right-of-way because public alleys run from street to street and through these, underground conduits wires could be layed to the distributing poles.

At present the wires of the fire alarm service and the police alarm system are overhead. When the Gamewell system for the police department was put in, the wires were strung underground in some places, but in other places they were run overhead. The constant trouble with the wiring of the fire alarm system through "short circuiting" and "grounds," caused by the wires in contact with the trees in wet weather is an argument in favor of underground conduits for this important system.

Underground wiring is the cheapest and best plan and the constant expense of keeping a large force of men at work repairing the insulation and repair gangs which are necessary after each storm to repair the broken and disabled lines, would be practically done away with.

REPUBLICANS TO MEET IN THE REFORM HALL

City Convention Scheduled to be Held There on Tuesday Night.

DEMOCRATS TO MEET

AT THE SAME TIME AT DEMOCRATIC HEADQUARTERS ON SECOND STREET.

Much Discussion Provoked by Ernest R. Ackerman's Resolution—Judge Runyon the Man He Aimed At.

The Republican city convention scheduled for Tuesday night will take place in the basement of the Reform Club building in West Second street, it having been selected by Assemblyman Newcorn who was appointed to choose the location. It is expected that the Democrats will hold their convention, which takes place the same time, in the Democratic Club's headquarters on East Second street.

Much comment has been caused by the disposal made of the resolution introduced by Ernest Ackerman, of the Third ward, at the last meeting of the local Republican committee. This is the resolution offered by him and tabled after some discussion:

"Whereas, One of the members of this committee, acting as a delegate, together with other Republicans from this city at the last county convention, refused by his vote to adopt the platform presented at said convention, and later withdrew from participating in the nominations made at that convention, and whereas, such action caused an uncertainty as to the position that this committee will take in the coming election; therefore, be it resolved, that this committee does hereby heartily endorse the nominations made for assemblymen and coroner at the said County convention, and does hereby call upon all Republicans as well as any independent voters in this city to loyally support and vote for the nominees of said convention, and we do further pledge the active support of this committee to the nominees made at said time."

It is generally believed that City Judge William N. Runyon, a loyal supporter of Congressman Fowler and a close friend of City Clerk James T. MacMurray, is the man who refused to vote for the platform. Runyon and James Morrison are both members of the city committee and were also delegates to the county convention. Both bolted.

AS TO THE FRIDAY NIGHT CLUB

REORGANIZATION OF POPULAR ASSOCIATION MAY BE EFFECTED.

No Definite Steps Yet Taken—Leading Spirit Last Season Has Removed.

With the approach of winter a movement is on foot among some of the society folk to reorganize the popular Friday Nights Club which constituted one of the leading social affairs at the Casino last season. Up to the present time nothing has been done as far as meetings are concerned but a few of the committee on organization, who did much to make the club a success last season, are endeavoring to revive interest in the association for the present season.

G. Herbert Taylor, who introduced the plan in this city last season, has removed to Philadelphia. Thomas R. VanBoskerck said last evening that it is very probable that a reorganization would be effected. He said that no committee had been appointed so far and that no meetings had been held but that there was some talk of reorganizing for this winter. The committee which organized the club last season was composed of Mrs. Daniel Ginna, Miss Huntington, Miss Edith Gilbert, Miss Maud VanBoskerck, Thomas R. VanBoskerck, Evarts Tracy and G. Herbert Taylor, treasurer. It is possible that some of those on last season's committee will be named on the committee of reorganization this year.

Every meeting last season was enjoyable and the Casino was filled to its capacity. The organization met each Friday night at the Casino when such games as ping pong, badminton, bowling, cards, billiards and pool were played. The membership, it is said, will be limited to 100 and only Plainfield people will be eligible.

FORMER TAX COLLECTOR JOHN JOHNSON DEAD

Eighty-Three Years Old Resident Passes Away at His Daughter's Home.

STORY OF HIS CAREER

FOR A LONG TIME WAS PROMINENT IN POLITICS IN THIS CITY.

Funeral Services Private—To be Held at Home of Andrew Love, Jr.—Interment in the North Plainfield Cemetery.

John Johnson, who for sixteen years was tax collector of this city, died last Monday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Andrew Love, Jr., on Lincoln place. His death was due to bladder trouble which had weakened him considerably for some time. He had passed the three score years, he having celebrated his eighty-third birthday last month. He was very well known in this city as a prominent Republican.

Surviving Mr. Johnson are two children, Mrs. Andrew Love and Charles Johnson. His wife, Phoebe Hankinson Johnson, died several years ago. He was one of the oldest residents in this city and located here when the town was little more than a village. Born in Hunterdon County, he received his early education in the country schools there and when he graduated taught school there for some time. Later he married and when he was about thirty years of age moved to this city.

The dead man was in charge of the Spicer & Hubbard saw mills, one of the oldest concerns in this city and also of the Pettibone planing mills. He held these positions for years and later was elected city tax collector. This position he held for sixteen years. His successors are James Martin, Postmaster Elias Bird and Frank Smith, respectively. He resigned his position about six years ago.

The funeral services will be private. They will be held at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Love, on Lincoln place, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. The interment will be in the North Plainfield Cemetery where the family plot is located.

TALK OF SECESSION IN A.O.U.W.

ONLY ONE SECTION OF NEW LAW IN EFFECT IN NEW JERSEY.

Grand Lodge of the State Must Adopt New Rates Before Any Change Can be Effected.

"Members of the Ancient Order of United Workmen," says the Newark Evening News, "continue to discuss the action of the supreme lodge of the order in adopting optional assessment rates for the insurance given to its members. At first the majority of members supposed that they would be compelled to pay according to the new rates as soon as the law was adopted. They now understand, however, that the grand lodge of the State in which they hold membership must first adopt the new rates before any one will be asked to pay amounts different from those of the present time.

"The only part of the new law which goes into effect October 1, 1903, is that section relating to the amount to be paid by members each month on account of the guaranty fund. It is said that the total amount to be guaranty fund is $2,500. So far this year only eight assessments have been levied, and the officers have figured that with an assessment for November and one for December, there will be left after all death claims have been paid a balance sufficiently large to take care of the yearly fund contributions for these two months. This will but increase the cost to the membership.

"It is also figured that the average monthly contribution to the guaranty fund would be thirty-five cents per member in this State. With the present assessment rate continued in this State, and twelve assessments levied per year, it is thought by many that the surplus will be sufficient each month to take care of the State's share of the guaranty fund.

"As in the case of every fraternity when a radical change is attempted or made, some of the members commence to talk about leaving the order. This frequently followed by a threat to organize a new order. The A. O. U. W. in this State is now confronted with this same condition of affairs. A few of the members are talking strongly of starting a new order to compete with the parent organization. It is said that they are endeavoring to have a special session of the grand lodge called."

Mrs. G. H. Babcock and her son, George Babcock, of West Eighth street, have returned from a four months' stay in Welch Hill, R. I.

BALDWIN WILL CASE SETTLED

Hugh Baldwin, of This City, Defeated in Attempt to be Made Sole Beneficiary.

$100,000 WAS INVOLVED

FIVE OF THE RELATIVES BENEFITTED BY INTERPRETATION OF COURT.

Estate in Question Was Located on Park Avenue—Alterations in the Will Grounds for Contest—Counsel From This City.

The Mary F. Baldwin $100,000 will case is ended and the Supreme Court has sustained the will as it stood before attempted alterations. Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh represented the will. Former Judge Joseph Cross, of Elizabeth, and William M. Stillman, of this city, the opposing counsel, represented Hugh J. Baldwin, of this city, the son of the testatrix, who wished the will so interpreted that he should be sole beneficiary. Under the court's decree, the beneficiaries are, in addition to the son, Hugh Baldwin, five of Mrs. Baldwin's own relatives, including her sister and her aunt who had lived with her for many years. The court directed that letters testamentary be issued to Henry C. Niles and William R. Wadsworth, the executors. Mrs. Baldwin lived on Park avenue.

The only grounds of contest were concerning the effect of some alterations appearing in the will, which the evidence showed were all in the handwriting of Mrs. Baldwin and made after the will had been regularly executed. The decree of the court establishes the will as originally executed. In a case of this sort it is said in explanation that the law allows a testator to cancel a legacy or to cancel a whole will, but alterations can be made only by a codicil or a new will, witnessed as the law required the original will to be witnessed.

OPINIONS ON LOCAL BOLT

they always do splendidly, and the 400 or 500 Republican majority they add to the county ticket is something we are all proud of. When the count of loyal Republicans is made this fall the total will not be much short of the usual figures.—Elizabeth Daily Journal.

Easy for Kean.

There is still much talk heard of a deep-laid plot to retire United States Senator John Kean to private life upon the expiration of his present term. In all the more or less wild stories of political intriguing now going on Congressman Fowler and his faction figure conspicuously, notwithstanding that in the recent unpleasantness in Union County Dr. Kean forsoo won nearly everything in sight, clearly showing that in their home county Senator Kean holds the whip hand over the Congressman from the Fifth district. Essex with becoming, humility also has a candidate, according to current rumor, but then it would not be Essex if that county did not have a candidate no matter what the office to become vacant. It is a little early to predict the result, but it can safely be said that Senator Kean will start off with a very comfortable lead over any other aspirant who may enter the race, yet many a long lead has been overcome in fifteen months' time.—From the Mt. Holly Mirror.

MRS. E. A. PARSE CHOSEN DELEGATE

To Represent Union County W. C. T. U. at National Convention of Organization.

UNIFORM DIVORCE LAW

TEMPERANCE WORKERS FAVOR ADOPTION OF ACT NATIONAL IN SCOPE.

Medal Competition at Evening Session of Body—Several Addresses Were Made—Plainfielders Participating.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse, president of the local W. C. T. U., was chosen a delegate to the National convention to be held at Cincinnati, at the annual meeting of the Union County Union held in Elizabeth, Thursday. Despite the severe storm there was a large representation from the various Unions in the county and the convention was considered to be one of the best held in years.

Possibly one of the most important acts of the convention was the adoption of a resolution offered by Mrs. Sarah D. Mahood, asking Congress to pass a National divorce law. This resolution caused considerable discussion, in which all of the women favored the provisions of it.

Last night a large part of the session was devoted to a medal competition, in which several members from different parts of the county gave recitations. There was also a programme of music and several stirring addresses along the line of temperance.

The Plainfield delegates did not return home last night, but were entertained by members of the Elizabeth Union.

PLAINFIELD FIREMEN SEE BIG PARADE

City and Borough Laddies Attend Firemen's Parade at Allentown, Pa.

RAIN MARS THE AFFAIR

PLAINFIELD'S OLD HAND ENGINE AN OBJECT OF CURIOSITY.

One Hundred and Forty-three Bands of Music and Sixty-four Drum Corps in Line—New Brunswick Steamer There.

The Plainfield delegation in attendance at the firemen's parade in Allentown, Pa. returned last week in an unpleasantly moist condition. Preparations had been made for the biggest firemen's parade in history but the weather man interfered. There were 263 companies, of from fifty to three hundred members each, 143 bands and 64 drum corps ready for the march but only 113 companies paraded. Much of the apparatus was not unloaded from the cars.

Plainfield's old hand engine was in the charge of Chief Elizabeth exhibits and was one of the most admired of the exhibits of old time fire fighting machines. The new steamer of the New Brunswick department also caused favorable comment. The night electrical display in the town was said by the Plainfield delegates to be the most remarkable they had ever seen.

Representatives from this city at the parade were Sidney Frazee, from the headquarters; George Fehring, from Engine Company No. 1; David Rogers from the local Exempt Association, and Jacob Blimm, who marched with the New York Exempts. Delegates from North Plainfield were Augustus Fehring and Louis Bimble, from the West End Hose Company; Foreman L. B. Bodine, George H. Hansen and Albert De-Camp, from the Warren Engine Company and Chief Julius J. Stahl. Next year's parade will be held in Erie, Pa.

With that end in view, he has directed John G. Ward, inspector of factories and workshops, to cooperate with the Governor's private secretary, John L. Swayze, in seeing that the law is carried out in all its provisions.

CO. K'S CRACK SHOTS WIN A LOVING CUP

Elston M. French Offered the Trophy Prior to Sea Girt Range Work.

CUP NOT YET SELECTED

BY CAPTURING FIRST PLACE, LOCAL SOLDIER BOYS WIN IT.

Mr. French Offered to Present Trophy Provided Co. K Would Retain Its Position as Leader in Marksmanship.

Several months ago Elston M. French, of Somerset street, offered a handsome silver loving cup to Co. K, of this city, providing the members should win the regimental honors this summer on the range at Sea Girt. It was a doubtful question as to whether the Company would win out as the conditions for rifle shooting this year were changed considerably, making it much more difficult to attain high scores.

In spite of the adverse conditions, Co. K did win the shooting honors for the Second Regiment and finished in the lead of the other companies, thereby winning the silver cup offered by Mr. French. It is the general opinion that the local company is entitled to much praise for this work as the members did not have their captain, W. B. Martin, with them during the time to coach them as he was in England with the Palma cup team. However, the boys showed the result of good training and careful preparation.

The cup which Co. K will receive has not been selected as yet, but Mr. French will no doubt make the gift one worthy of the honors won and the members will view with much pride this trophy won in competition against so many crack marksmen.

It Was Ever Thus.

Silas D. Drake is happy over the fact that the Middlesex Board of Freeholders is building a $1,200 bridge over Ambrose creek, on Lincoln boulevard, and that thoroughfare will soon be opened from Lincoln to Bound Brook. As this road parallels the Central Railroad it will be the shortest highway from Lincoln to that borough, and in time is likely to prove a very important route of travel.

TROLLEY EXPRESS SERVICE ARRANGED

Through Cars Between Jersey City and Camden the Plan.

OFFICIALS VISIT CITY

IN A PRIVATE CAR THE PROMOTERS PASSED THROUGH YESTERDAY.

Preparing a Time-Table—Edward H. Radel Explains the Scheme—It Is Only a Temporary Arrangement.

Edward H. Radel's private car, "Annie R," passed through this city Thursday afternoon on its way across New Jersey on the first trial trip of a new cross State trolley service from Camden to Jersey City. The motorman was Mr. Radel himself, and as his guests were officials of the various trolley lines which the projected route covers.

It is planned to operate a daily service between Camden and Jersey City. The Camden and Trenton Railway Company, the Trenton and New Brunswick "fast line," the Middlesex and Somerset Street Railway Company and the Public Service Corporation will be the lines over which the trolley expresses will run The heavy traffic between Jersey City and Camden during the summer has led the officials of the various lines to arrange for the operation of a through car service across the State and the trial run of the "Annie R." yesterday was for the purpose of forming a basis for the arrangement of a time table.

Mr. Radel, who is the vice president and secretary of the Middlesex and Somerset lines, was seen by a Daily Press reporter and he declared that he believed that the scheme could be made to pay well. He said that the trial trip had been completed to this city from Camden in a little less than four hours, which was much better than had been anticipated. This time was taken on continuous travel and good connections. He would not say whether the system would be put in operation this winter or not but he did say that unless something unforeseen happens the new scheme would be in working order by next spring.

Another official said that the Trenton and New Brunswick line had been quietly securing options on property on almost a straight line from New Brunswick to Jersey City, with the intention of operating a through line between Trenton and New York. He declared that as a temporary arrangement, cars would be operated over the lines of the New Brunswick and Plainfield systems.

TROLLEY COMPANY AT WORK

RENOVATING SOME OLD CRRS AND ABANDONING OTHERS.

Improvements Specially Noticeable on Main Line—Repairs on Local Line.

Since the last Council meeting when resolutions were adopted to take summary action against the trolley company if the cars which are operated in this city are not changed for new ones or the old ones repaired, it has been noticed that the company is at last taking some action to better the condition of the local rolling stock, not only in this city but on the main line between here and Elizabeth.

The cars have been repaired and renovated throughout. Some of the vehicles which have passed their days of usefulness have been consigned to the junk heap and in their places new cars appear. Instead of the old red cars on the main line the company has in operation some of the new ones recently ordered. They are painted yellow and are upholstered in rattan.

Smokers have noticed that the apartment set aside for them in the old cars on the main line is missing in the new cars. This is because of the fact that men and boys at night time get in that apartment and being separated from the rest of the car where the women are seated, become disorderly and give the trolley men much trouble. The cars on the local line are being repaired and fitted up in most approved fashion as rapidly as possible.

GIFT TO BOROUGH SCHOOL

COLLECTION OF BOOKS PRESENTED BY UNKNOWN FRIEND.

Volumes Placed in Auditorium of Somerset Street School.

Homer J. Wightman, superintendent of the North Plainfield High School, stated that a person, whose name he could not announce, has generously presented a large collection to the library of the school. The addition is a valuable one and consists of works of fiction and general literature by standard authors.

The State of New Jersey has for several years duplicated in cash all donations to school libraries and this recent gift will enable the school to secure many more books which are much needed. MELTED AWAY LIKE SNOW.

Rapid Disappearance of the Pawnees Who Were Once a Powerful Tribe.

That the red man is passing from the face of the world has long been a matter of common remark. The truth of the saying never received more striking proof than in the case of the Pawnees, who were removed to Oklahoma from Nebraska in 1876, says the Chicago Chronicle. At the time of their removal from Nebraska the tribe numbered 2,500 souls. To-day there are less than 500. The Pawnees were given exceptionally good allotments in Oklahoma. The climate is practically the same as that of their former home, and, in fact, everything has been done by the government to promote their welfare and happiness.

For some unaccountable reason they have sickened and died until the day is not far distant when the Pawnee tribe will be extinct. The mortality among them has been progressing steadily year by year. In 1892, six years after their removal to Oklahoma, the tribe had shrunk to 940, and the census of 1900 showed but 650 living Pawnees.

It is a curious thing that the children of these Indians appear most rugged, but after passing their twenty-fifth birthday a peculiar and unaccountable malady attacks them, and they apparently lose interest in life, and gradually waste away, death overtaking them in their prime. Scientists and professional men generally of the Indian office have been attracted by this peculiar condition of things, but have not as yet been able to ascertain the cause. Yesterday the rugged Pawnee after his twenty-fifth birthday.

DIDN'T WANT EDUCATION.

President of the French Republic Resisted Attempts to Send Him to School When a Boy.

In the days of his youth President Emile Loubet, of the republic of France, was of a somewhat strenuous type. He was, then living with his parents at Marsanne, and he was so fond of his rambling out-of-door life that he used to declare that nothing would ever induce him to go to a college. His parents, however, had their own ideas as to what was good for him. So his father made arrangements when Emile was about nine years of age that he should go to the college of Crest. The day of entry to the school came, but n Emile could be found. At last, toward evening, the poor little chap was found hiding in a neighboring wood. His prayers and his supplications to be left his freedom were of no use. His father was obdurate. To the school at Crest Emile should go. Then Emile tried resistance. Useless! The grownups were stronger than he. Still the struggle must have been a lengthened one, and Emile may almost be declared victor, for it was only by binding his feet and hands that he could be brought to the carriage that was in waiting. And bound hand and foot, was the future president of France delivered over like a parcel to the director of the school of Crest. M. Loubet has never ceased to have the tastes of a man of the open air and the fields. He has recently bought a small estate near his native place, and his mother remains a true peasant proprietor.

WHY VACATIONS ARE GIVEN.

Mind and Body Are Benefited by Change and Relaxation of Summer Outings.

In this age of tension every boy should be taught some form of recreation that he will cling to in after life. When the thing by which he has made his fame or money threatens his very existence, he can turn to this safeguard, and, while his mind is pleasurably occupied, regain his physical poise. It may be rowing, canoeing on little rivers, mountain climbing, traveling, horseback riding or hunting. Whatever it may be, the thought and the love for it is better engendered in the boy's heart when there is a full understanding that it is to act as a running mate to the greater work in life, and is properly and necessarily part of a boy's education.

For those who work under modern stress there are, of course, exceptions, always a time when the strain becomes greater than the endurance, and an enforced change is imperative. The summer vacation is the expression of a physical necessity. It has come into existence in America in the last 25 years, and it satisfies the needs of many, especially the young, who have not forgotten how to play, or those, the strong among us, who learned something as boys that they still like to do as men. There are others, however, who are not so fortunately placed, and still others growing up who do not realize this need.

Sun's Chemical Rays.

The actinic, or "chemical," rays of the sun, are the blue, violet and ultra-violet rays, and are the only ones in the cure of diseases, the other rays having no physiological action on animal life. The value of these rays in destroying the bacteria of disease was first shown by Filson, of Denmark, who applied them very successfully to the treatment of lupus, a tuberculosis of the skin. Its use has not been made effective in cancer, because the rays do not penetrate deeply enough.

BEAR GOES TO SCHOOL.

Attracted by Lunches of Pupils He Becomes a Regular and Welcomed Visitor.

Constant contact with humanity has so tamed the Adirondack bear that his western brother would not recognize him. One, whose habitation the New York Sun has placed at Sander's Mill, on the Mad river, actually goes to school. He may still be uncertain in literature and vague in spelling, but he is rapidly learning gentle manners.

He came slouching out of the woods one day and advanced directly on the district schoolhouse. Some of the children had eaten their luncheon on the grass in front of the building. The bear stopped and licked up the crumbs and scattered remnants of the repast, and then stuck his head in at the schoolhouse door.

The children and the school-teacher screamed, and the big fellow was so frightened that he took to his lumbering heels. The next day, however, he came to the schoolhouse the same hour, and ate the crumbs and crusts as before. He looked at the schoolhouse door, but did not venture there. After he had eaten every morsel he went slowly back to the woods.

His visits soon became of daily regularity, and as it was evident that he came with no evil intent, the teacher, and now and then a pupil, took to tossing him an apple or a bit of luncheon. From that to feeding him out of hands, but have not as yet been able to hands was but a single step, until now the bear has almost quartered himself in that school district, and lunches regularly with the Sander's Mill school children and their teacher

GIRLS BLOW THEIR HAIR.

New Fad from Which Young Women of America Are Growing Strong Chinned.

A prevalent fashion of the day is endangering the small chinned facial type of the American woman, and possibly also the peace of American men of to-morrow if there is any truth in the belief that appearance and character are independent. The peril lies in the habit the girls have of constantly blowing the sunburst locks of their pompadours up off their foreheads, says the Chicago Tribune.

There is a rumor that the mannerism started in the young women's seminaries, where no man was by to register his protest. In support of this it has been declared by one eye witness of a dining-room scene at a Philadelphia boarding school that undoubtedly the trick, at once so airy and so dissipating, sprang into breath first in the Quaker city.

This person declares that in the early springtime she saw a hundred girls protruding their lower lips several times during dinner, rolling their eyes upward—pettishly, daintily, coquettishly, carelessly, according to the temperament of the individual—taking aim at the offending fringe which overhung their eyebrows, and blowing at the same with skill that varied with their respective avoirdupois. Since then these hundred girls have scattered over the states of the union, carrying with them this practice.

SKILL IN NEEDLECRAFT.

Beautiful Pictures in Embroidery Worked by a Gifted French Woman.

A marvelous example of what the needle of one woman may accomplish in embroidery has lately been exhibited in London. It consists of a series of panels, 12 in number, 11 by 3 feet, embroidered on cream satin.

In this work some 120 different shades of silk and chenille have been employed, all being exquisitely blended to produce the soft subdued tones peculiar to the Louis XIV. period. The design, known as the "Grand Monarque," is borrowed from a celebrated Gobelin tapestry. On each panel is represented the figure of some mythological deity, such as Venus, Juno, Mars and others, surrounded by its respective attributes and symbols, amidst a wealth of flowers.

In this beautiful needle painting an almost incredible variety and number of stitches have been employed; on the face of the Venus alone 2,000 stitches are said to have been lavished.

The embroiderer is the work of Mme. Leroudier, an artist in needlecraft from France, no longer living, specimens of whose work have for some years formed part of many important arts and crafts exhibitions in London.

Insurance Policy as Pass.

A story has reached the state department at Washington of a novel use to which a life insurance policy was recently put by an American traveling in Russia. The citizen in question had neglected to provide himself with a passport and when he arrived at the borders of the czar's domains he was held up by an official with a demand for his passport. For an instant the American was stumped, but he quickly rose to the emergency. Diving into his inside pocket he pulled out his life insurance policy and handed it to the Russian. The latter gravely looked the paper over, carefully scrutinizing the impressive-looking seal and the array of signatures. With a satisfied air he handed back the paper and the American passed on.

Only American Exhibit.

The only American exhibit at the Osaka (Japan) exposition is that of Oregon, whose legislature voted $4,000 for the purpose. Canada voted $70,000 and Austria $40,000 to aid exhibitors, and Germany is very well represented in all lines. A syndicate of Japanese incorporated with a cash capital of $150,000 has purchased the Oregon exhibit.

PLAINFIELDERS AT WILLIAMS.

Six Young Men Pursuing Courses of Study There.

Alden E. Moore, '03, of the City High School, is now a freshman in Williams' College, Williamstown, Mass. The freshman class this year is 156 strong, enough keep the terrible "soph" at a respectful distance. Leland, Harold A. Nomer and Brockholt K. Miller.

ALL-CITY VS. ALL-BOROUGH

GAME BETWEEN BALL TOSSERS OF TWO COMMUNITIES.

Proposition for Contest on the Diamond—Plenty of Good Material.

As an appropriate climax to the baseball season there is no doubt that a game between an All-Plainfield team and an All-North Plainfield nine would be of unusual interest. There is plenty of material in both the city and borough to make up two aggregations and undoubtedly such a contest would attract the largest crowd of the season.

In the borough there are such players as George Beisteri, "Warry" Mac Laughlin, John MacLaughlin, George Cathcart, Charles Dupee, George Dupee, Bert Moore. And in this city there are any number of good players who could be depended upon to give a good account of themselves. The game could be played on Crescent Oval, where the best accommodations are now to be had.

Plainfield Officers.

The New Jersey Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers has chosen H. A. Moulton, of this city, third vice president and C. W. Munday, also of this city, recording secretary.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 19—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic—Great men of the Bible—What Moses teaches us—Ex. xxxiv, 33-35; Matt. xvii, 1, 4; Heb. iii, 1-4.

The life of Moses is the most easily remembered of all the Old Testament characters. It is divided into three equal periods of forty years each. He was born in Egypt and spent his first forty years there, being trained in the home and afterward in the palace, where he learned all the wisdom of the Egyptians for the work which God had in store for him. His second period was spent in Midian, whither God sent him after a serious exhibition of impulsiveness that He might teach him the lesson of patience. The third period of his life was spent in leading the Israelites from Egypt to Canaan, and, this accomplished, God called him up higher. Alone with God on Mount Nebo he "fell in sleep" and was not seen on earth again until he appeared with Moses upon the Mount of Transfiguration.

The life of Moses is rich in practical lessons, and the difficulty is not what to say, but what to leave unsaid in the limited space before us. Yet some lessons in the life of Moses ought most prominently before us, and these may be mentioned.

1. Moses teaches the importance of education for a successful life work. Many decry education, but it cannot be done without in the right kind of life. God educated him in the home, in the learning of the schools of Egypt and in the great school of experience before he had him ready for his life work. He spent eighty years in preparing him. It cannot be compared with. And it paid. His life stands out in great prominence as the deliverer of his nation and, under God, its founder and lawgiver. Too much time and study cannot be spent in preparing for a life work if it is to be a great and successful one.

2. Moses teaches a lesson on Christ. In many respects he was a type of the Christ who was to come to Israel and to the world. But, with all his greatness, he cannot be compared to Christ. Moses served God as a servant, Christ served Him as a son, and if we honor and try to imitate the life of God's great servant how much more we should honor and love and imitate the life of the Son of God! Christ was far superior to Moses, and should therefore have a far more superior place in our hearts and lives.

3. Moses teaches a lesson in faithfulness to God. With but one exception, an act of disobedience that cost him an entrance into Canaan, Moses was most faithful to God. He carried out his instructions in relation to Pharaoh, he followed his guidance in the wilderness and organized the nation and the national church upon the lines laid down by God, and God rewarded his faithfulness. He took him to Himself and honored him beside Elijah in that most interesting scene in the life of Christ upon the Mount of Transfiguration. Like Moses, let us be faithful and there will be laid up for us "a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will give us in that day."

Maryland Song.

The Maryland Endeavorers make the welkin ring with their state song, which they sing to the tune of "Maryland, My Maryland." The song in its entirety is as follows:

Fife into rank for Christ today,
Oh, Maryland, dear Maryland.
Free to the breeze His banners play,
Maryland, dear Maryland.
Your noblest work for Him be done
From early dawn to setting sun,
Nor cease till last victory's won,
Maryland, my Maryland.

CHORUS.

Shout, shout for joy the glad refrain,
Maryland, my Maryland.
Our King shall claim His own again,
Maryland, my Maryland.

"Christ and His church" your watchword be,
Maryland, dear Maryland.
Till time becomes eternity,
Maryland, dear Maryland.
His gospel spread through all the land,
His heralds each Endeavor band,
And may they make a gallant stand
For Maryland, dear Maryland.

Oh, sound the call both loud and well,
In Maryland, dear Maryland.
For all who would His legions swell,
Maryland, my Maryland.
From mountain, hill and plain
Ring out the loud, resounding strain
And bid the whole world sing again
In Maryland, my Maryland.

Additions to the Church.

During the past year 175,000 have come from the ranks of Christian Endeavor into the membership of the churches, and thousands more would have come if more pastors had appreciated what a magnificent field for evangelistic effort God has given into their hand.—William Shaw in General Secretary's Report at Denver Convention.

Not "Shall," but "How."

The question for us to consider this year is not "Shall we expand?" but "How can we best expand?"—Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark.

Quiz Box.

[Any question may be asked that pertains to any phase of Christian Endeavor work. Address Lock Box 676, Binghamton, N. Y.]

100. B. M. N., Selma, Ala.—Several states are now employing field secretaries who largely give their time to working inaccessible parts of the state.

107. P. B. C., Woodbourne, N. Y.—New York state C. E. union has a superintendent of fresh air work in the person of Rev. J. Foster Wilcox of Syracuse. A great deal of aggressive work was done along this line the past season.

AMUSEMENTS.

David Warfield is at his best in "The Auctioneer," which is running at the Montauk. He is always a drawing card and this is one reason why the popular playhouse is enjoying great patronage at present.

"Pretty Peggy," with Grace George as the chief attraction, was splendidly received at the Madison Square Theatre last night. It is one of the best things to be seen this fall and is bound to prove a big success.

At the Harlem Opera House, Maria Cahill made her appearance last night before a "standing room only" audience. "Nancy Brown" is the piece in which are interspersed eleven new whistleable songs. It is a top notcher among the list of attractions.

Long runs are the ambition of a theatrical manager's life. "Two hundred nights" is a sign one often sees on three sheets. What kind of a poster would they use if they could say "Five hundred Weeks?" When the Union Square Theatre is thrown open on next Monday it will be the mark of the beginning of the five hundreth week that it has been devoted to "continuous vaudeville" under the management of B. F. Keith.

Ke-n wit and sharp repartee abound in The Earl of Pawtucket, one of the most amusing plays on the boards. It continues to enjoy the great patronage at the Princess theatre which characterized its long and successful run at the Manhattan. Plainfield commuters will find in it the opportunity to relieve themselves of hearty laughs.

Orrin Johnson and his play, "Hearts Courageous," have achieved a veritable triumph at the Broadway Theatre, New York, and could doubtless be continued there indefinitely, were it not that previous bookings at the Broadway Theatre will compel its withdrawal on Saturday, Oct. 24. This is the first time that an American dramatist has been able to successfully treat the stirring incidents that immediately precded and followed the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Paul Nicholson, of the "Peggy From Paris" company, was kicked by a brewery horse last week. He was very much aggrieved, but too much of a gentleman to kick back. For a couple of nights he danced chiefly on one foot, but is now able to sit up and take a little nourishment if anybody should ask.

LITERARY.

The issue of Collier's Weekly of October 25, in a new form, is a brilliant number. It has a sea story by Kipling and a character sketch of Joseph Chamberlain by Frederick Palmer. Horace Hapgood's Cannon is as witty as ever. A new department of "Seven Days," illustrated by striking photographs, clearly and authoritatively written, gives the main facts and the real significance of all important events.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 18, "The Law of the Harvest." Text, John xii, 23-26.

"Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth by itself alone; but if it die, it beareth much fruit."

Every one knows that who knows anything of planting and harvesting. Who first learned it, among men, we are not certain. Perhaps it was that first son of man, Cain. It was a great discovery to find the secret of vegetable life. What wealth of possibilities is in the grasp of that discovery! Calculate what harvests can be had from this single seed in the world fields now wilderness in the ages to come! What accumulation, what distribution, what feeding of multitudes, what industries! Measure the volume of the world's agriculture and all the commerce and industries related to it, and you may then estimate the worth of this discovery of the first man who penetrated the secret of nature and learned how to make the earth yield him harvests from his own seed sowing.

Is that all he learned? That is all. He learned about wheat and its growing—seed and earth and increase of wheat—nothing more. That is why "in the process of time" it came to pass that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto Jehovah. He could plant and he could gather, but he could not make seed reproduce itself. Jehovah must do that. Jehovah, he is favorable and gives greater harvests." Jehovah is the reproducer of wheat. We want wheat, and so worship the wheat god with the offerings of wheat. We give little and expect much. That is the law of harvest. It is the business to plant and gather, build barns and hoard wheat. It is God's business to give us all the wheat we want. That is what Cain learned. It is all His children have yet learned in harvest field and granary. Wheat is known, but God is unknown.

Is that the secret of nature? Far from it. That is only the parable. The law of harvest is a spirit given and spirit discovered law.

The Son of man discovered the law of wheat harvest and taught it to His brethren. There must be planting and gathering. This is the work of men. The increase must come from God. He says, "Whosoever would save his life shall lose it." Keep the seed unplanted and you shall reap no harvest.

"Whosoever shall lose his life for My sake and the gospel's shall save it."

You have powers and all the equipments of human life. What will you do with yourself? To cast yourself into the midst of the world's darkness and the damp of its misery and sin, to realize the decay of all outward advantage, to deliberately shut yourself from the sunshine of worldly gayety and gain, to die to its honors and praises and blaming—this is sowing. But to feel your inner nature expand as the outer decays, to realize the steady impulse and expansion, the elevation and bursting of the germ, the husk of bodily appetites and earthly lusts—this is the growing power of God transforming seed into blade and ear and full grain in the ear. What marvels of grace and wisdom and beauty! We know the results of earthly planting In order to know ourselves as we become blade and ear and mature wheat. But the single seed has now become thirty. Planted in the manner of Jesus, we rise in His likeness.

And now comes the secret of the law of harvest? Not that any of us has yet mastered it. Only the Christ has yet been offered up as a kind of first fruits. We grow on until the angel reapers shall sing "harvest home." Then shall the Son of Man bring of the fruits of earth unto Jehovah and shall not be ashamed, because the Lord shall have respect unto the offering and the offerer. Are you growing into an acceptable offering which Christ shall be able to present to the Father with joy at that day?

A Morning Prayer.

Blessed be God, through whom I laid me down and slept and rose up again, because He sustained me. Give me, O Heavenly Father, a spirit of modest and cheerful thankfulness; with love to all my kindred, neighbors and fellow creatures, who are brother pensioners with me from Thy bounty and members of one body, the household of souls. Continue to me, and all whom I ought to pray for. Thy compassions every morning so long as may be Thy holy will and for the good of our weakness, or whenever Thy sendest bereavement among us strengthen us to intrust our beloved into Thy hands. Amen.—From "Psalms and Litanies," by Rowland Williams, D. D.

Trust God For Tomorrow.

Tomorrow is not for us to rejoice in or to fear. It may never come to us, and if it comes in its brightness may be very different from our thought. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof and the good thereof. However trying today may be, it can be endured for today, and tomorrow may be without trials. However joyous today may be, tomorrow may be far better. Therefore let us have heart and hope today and trust God for tomorrow.—Sunday School Times.

Choosing the Wrong Road.

In morals, when a man reaches a place where the road diverges to the right and left, he must take one or the other. He never can be justified in stupidity to assume that he need not take either. When he reaches that conclusion he has already entered upon the wrong path.—Philadelphia Methodist.

A Power For Good.

There is always power for good in the smile that God puts on the face.—American Friend.

TRINITY ENDEAVORERS' ONE YEAR'S WORK

Annual Report of Reformed Church's Y. P. S. C. E. Encouraging.

WORK AS ACCOMPLISHED

GOOD DEEDS CONSPICUOUS DURING TWELVE MONTHS' SERVICE.

List of Those Leading Aid—The Donations Made—The Hard Tasks of the Various Committees.

The helpful work accomplished by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Trinity Reformed Church during the eighteen years since its founding, the anniversary of which was celebrated Monday night, is indicated by the report of the secretary, Miss Harriet C. Randall, submitted at that time. Some of the meetings of the past year, which have been of particular interest, were those in charge of the missionary and temperance committees and three led by honorary members. Many persons were assisted in many of their meetings during the year by E. E. Anthony, F. H. Andrews, Rev. N. J. Sproul, of Dunellen, Judge William N. Runyon, E. H. Taylor, Robert Love, Francis E. Whiteside, F. M. Martin, Robert Clark, Jr., Mr. Van-Emburg, Miss Sara Currie and Mrs. F. E. Woodruff.

In addition to the regular meetings, a watch night service and an Easter sunrise prayer meeting were held, to which the other societies of the city were invited. These services were well attended. The lookout committee did good work in increasing the attendance during the year.

The missionary committee conducted several meetings which proved highly entertaining and instructive, stimulating the interest in both foreign and domestic missions. They also dressed eighteen dolls and provided 156 bags for Miss Currie's birthday party.

The members of the music committee have been especially active during the year. Under their direction a chorus choir was formed from members of the society. The choir has sung at the Y. M. C. A., and twice at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home. The song service at the Muhlenberg Hospital on the first Sunday in each month has also been continued under the direction of the society.

Two socials have been held by the society thus far this year and both have proved successful. Bouquets sent by the flower committee to the members of the society and church who have been sick have been greatly appreciated. The flower committee has also provided flowers for the church and decorated at the socials.

Donations were made during the year to Miss Currie's Day Nursery, the Netherwood and Westfield Fresh Air Camps and the King's Daughters' Fresh Air camp, and meetings were held at the Fresh Air camp and the East Third Street Mission. Systematic Bible study was taken up during the year.

SORENSEN CLAIMED IN PERTH AMBOY

Borough Police Gave Clever Thief Into the Custody of Authorities of That Place.

WANTED IN MANY CITIES

PRISONER IS A SLICK OPERATOR CAPTURED BY MAYOR SMALLEY.

Convinced Many Borough Citizens of His Innocence — Identified by a Boy Who Saw Him Steal a Watch.

Peter Christian Sorenson, alias "Kid" Nelson, the smooth-appearing Swede who was held on suspicion in the North Plainfield lock-up under a technical charge of disorderly conduct, for entering the house of Thomas U. Dudley, Jr., on Park place, Thursday, has been taken to Perth Amboy by Chief of Police Burke, of that city, to answer charges of daylight burglary. He is wanted in Bayonne and, it is believed in other cities. He has stoutly protested his innocence but has been positively identified by a six-year-old boy, who saw the fellow steal a watch from the front rooms of his parent's house in Perth Amboy recently.

So clever is the prisoner that he convinced Councilman Charles Lee and other citizens that he was a much persecuted man and a victim of circumstances. He made everybody who talked with him believed he was innocent, and one citizen, in particular, was positive that he had met the fellow in Brooklyn and was entirely satisfied that he had no intention of wrong doing.

Chief Burke visited the jail Friday and again on Saturday afternoon. When he returned Saturday he brought with him a man and woman and the latter's six-year-old son, from Perth Amboy. When the prisoner was placed beside a dozen borough citizens the three Perth Amboy people were brought in to identify the man. The little fellow said: "That's the man, mama," pointing to the cringing burglar. "You're the man who stole my watch," cried the woman, stepping up to the accused and pointing her finger at him. The foreigner shrank back and said below his breath: "It's all up, I guess."

Convinced that the prisoner, captured by Mayor Smalley, was a clever "second story man," the borough police turned the fellow over to the Perth Amboy authorities. Chief Burke said that the prisoner had been operating in Perth Amboy for over a year and had plied his trade on exactly the same lines as those used here.

It is probable that Sorenson will receive a heavy sentence as he has a number of serious charges against him. It was at first thought that the fellow was the same second story thief who robbed the home of Charles Matthews last spring. It was said that the fellow who entered the home of Charles Matthews wore a number eight shoe. This was discovered by measuring the footprints in the soft mud about the front porch. It developed that the prisoner of last week wore a number seven shoe, thus seemingly clearing him of the charge of entering the house in Grove street.

The reason the prisoner was given up by the authorities in North Plainfield was that the police of Perth Amboy had more damaging evidence against him, the evidence held by the board of police being sufficient to warrant giving him the sentence it was apparent he deserved.

To Be Bridesmaid.

Miss Adele H. Kirby, of Grandview avenue, will be one of six bridesmaids at the wedding of Miss Edith Aiken Dorrance, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Dorrance, of New York, to Herbert Bradley Sexton, also of New York, which will take place at the West End Collegiate Church, New York, on Tuesday evening, October 27.

Plainfield Authors.

Two Plainfield writers, whose first book, "The Frolicsome Four," will doubtless be numbered among the successful "juveniles" of the season, are Miss Edith L. Gilbert and Miss Ariadne Gilbert. The story is brightly told and will please the young folks.

NEW MARKET STRAWBERRIES

BEING CULTIVATED ON ELSTON S. ELLIOTT'S FARM.

Phenomenon at the Garden Patch —Picking Berries by the Quart.

Close to the dreamy village of New Market, Elston S. Elliott owns a seven-acre farm which he has divided off for the cultivation of vegetables and fruit. One section of the plot he has long devoted to the culture of strawberries.

The bushes have invariably yielded him a generous crop, and the past season was no exception to the rule. When, several weeks ago, the last of the season's crop had been plucked and shipped away to market, Mr. Elston abandoned the farm to the ravages of the coming winter and thought no more of his plants. About two weeks ago he had occasion to pass through the field wherein the berries had grown, and, to his great astonishment, every bush was bending under the weight of additional fruit.

Mr. Elston had never seen the like before, although he has been farming all his life. The berries were then red and tempting, and they were promptly picked and taken to market. In another few days he again visited the field, and had no trouble in gathering another few quarts. Altogether he has gathered more than twenty quarts during the last two weeks, and again the other morning he picked six quarts, every berry being blood-red and more than ordinarily palatable.

"The phenomenon is all the more surprising to me," Mr. Elston said the other day, while he proudly displayed his collection, "because I had a full crop from the same bushes in the spring and early summer. I have been farming for so many years that I don't like to remember so long, but I never before saw strawberries growing at this time of the year. It is the most unusual thing I have ever heard of. It is odd, too, that while owners of neighboring farms all had full crops this season none of them is now getting any benefit of their dying bushes. I seem to be especially benefited by nature and I don't know why. I made no effort to try and force a second crop. It just came unassisted."

Damages for Mrs. Cannon.

Mrs. Anna M. Cannon has recovered damages from the Central Railroad of New Jersey for a fire in her residence on West Front street on April 26 of last year, caused by a spark from a passing locomotive. The building was totally destroyed. The action was brought for the present term of the Supreme Court, but the case was settled out of court before the date set for the trial. William Newcorn, Esq., represented the plaintiff. Mr. Cannon was the only one of the sufferers from the Eight Row fire to receive recompense.

Miss Evelyn Herrman, of Milltown, N. J., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ryan, of Richmond street.

Mrs. Stanton Clark, of Westerly, R. I., who has been visiting Plainfield friends, has returned home.

MR. BUCKELEW ALIVE AND WELL

REMAINS OF MAN KILLED AT JERSEY CITY NOT IDENTIFIED.

Family Communicates With Plainfield Man—Story of the Commutation Ticket.

Charles W. Buckelew, of West Fifth street, who was believed to have been found dead in the Jersey City yards of the New Jersey Central last Friday night, is alive and well. Saturday night Mr. Buckelew's father succeeded in locating the son at Perth Amboy. As previously stated, he had been off on a cruise on a boat jointly owned by A. M. Griffin and Allen B. Laing, of this city. Saturday morning he left Hyack, where he had been stopping for a day or so, and he reached Perth Amboy on Saturday afternoon. He knew nothing of the finding the body in the Jersey City yards until informed of the fact Saturday night over the telephone by his father.

The commutation ticket found near the body was for the month of September and it was merely a co-incidence that it should have been found near the dead body. Mr. Buckelew discarded the ticket when the last ride was punched and it was probably swept out of the train in which he was riding. As yet the body has not been identified. The supposition is that the dead man was a boatman and that he was struck by a train while wandering about the railroad yards Friday night during the storm.

As soon as Francis M. Bacon, of this city, examined the body on Saturday, he at once declarded that it was not C. W. Buckelew, and he could not identify him in any particular.

WORLD'S CHAMPIONS

Boston Americans Hold the Coveted Baseball Pennant.

PITTSBURG'S PLAYERS SHUT OUT

The Championship Series of Seven Games Has Resulted In Victory For the Great Team From the Bay State Capital.

BOSTON, Oct. 14.—The Boston Americans shut out the Pittsburg Nationals in a great game here and won the world's baseball championship, to the almost frenzied delight of 7,000 enthusiasts.

The demonstration which followed Dineen's striking out of Hans Wagner in the ninth equaled any college football game.

The world's champions were borne to their dressing rooms on the shoulders of thousands, and the cheering lasted many minutes.

Phillippe, who was such an enigma to the Bostons in the first few games, resayed to pitch for the visitors for the sixth time. This was not only battled hard, but he saw his rival, Dineen, carry off the honors by holding the Nationals down to four scattered hits, which, backed by perfect fielding, prevented a single Pittsburg man getting farther than third base. Dineen struck out seven men, and his support by Criger contributed materially to the success of the game. The latter's bluff throw to second in the fourth inning, followed by a quick snap to Collins, catching Leach off the bag, was the best piece of work in the game.

Other features were mainly contributed by the visitors, and Boston's score would undoubtedly have been larger but for the great running catches of Beaumont and Clark, Wagner's work at short and Leach's at third. For the home team Parent's hauling down of a liner from Clarke's bat roused the greatest enthusiasm.

Though the home team had men on bases in the first and second innings, they did not succeed in getting a man across the plate until the fourth, when Freeman's long three bagger and Parent's first base on error, followed by Lachance's sacrifice and Ferris' sharp single to center, sent in two runs. One more was added in the sixth by Lachance's three base hit to right field crowd and Ferris' second hit. The visitors looked dangerous in the fourth, when, after two hands were out, Leach received a free pass, followed by Wagner's single, which advanced him to third. He was caught a moment later by Criger's throw described above. In the sixth Phillippe singled, but was caught off first in a quick double play, Criger to Lachance, Beaumont striking out. The Pittsburgs also had men on bases in the fifth and seventh, but they got no farther than first. Score —Boston, 3; Pittsburg, 0. Summary:

Earned runs—Boston, 2. Three base hits—Freeman, Lachance, Sebring. Sacrifice hit—Lachance. Stolen base—Wagner. Umpires—O'Day and Connolly.

Hermis Made a New Record.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—A perfect day for racing greeted the patrons of the sport at Brighton Beach. In the fourth race Hermis ran a fast one and won handily, though Major Daingerfield made an expiring effort at the end and got to within a length and a half of Hermis. The latter took the track from flagfall and simply played with the big black, several times allowing him to get almost up and then drawing away. Igniter was not up to a hard race and was badly beaten. Hicks went on and worked him up to cup distance before pulling up. The time, 2:32 1-5, is a new track record, breaking the old one of 2:33 3-5.

Racing at Lexington.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 14.—The racing was marked by close and exciting finishes. With two or three exceptions every heat was won by a neck or less. Cotillion, the favorite in the 2:17 class, pacing, was forced to travel six miles to win the race. The first three heats of the race were won in succession by Dutch Mowery. Cotillion, Irish Jack and Reaver. Cotillon took the fifth and sixth heats, the fifth heat by a nose from Money Musk, which, with C. O. D., was ruled out in the sixth heat.

Lady Jocelyn Beat Six Shooter.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Six Shooter, the public favorite in the mile and a sixteenth handicap at Worth, was given a decided beating by Lady Jocelyn. The three-year-old filly ran one of the best races of her career and tied the track record of 1:46 for the mile and a sixteenth. Had she been extended she could have beaten the mark by a good margin. Six Shooter was eight lengths in front of Fingal for the place, with Lendin a like distance back.

"Dr." White Helped.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—"Dr." White helped the Nationals win their seventh game of the series, one of his gifts turning into a run, a very wide throw and a wild pitch scoring two more. Wicker held the Americans down to one hit an inning, a base on balls, a sacrifice and an out alone preventing a shutout. Score—Nationals, 5; Americans, 1.

Brances Won at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 14.—In the card at the fair grounds Brances, an odds on favorite, won the third race by a length, making the best time of the meeting. Miss Crawford was second and Ben Adkins third. In the second race Harry Griffith broke his leg and was shot.

POST OFFICE TRIALS

Daniel V. Miller and Joseph M. Johns Defendants.

CONSPIRACY TO OBTAIN A BRIBE

Have Been Indicted on Six Counts—J. J. Ryan, the Star Witness For the Government, Tells of His Company's Dealings.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 14.—The first trial under about two dozen indictments against post office officials secured in different parts of the country by the government recently has been begun here. The defendants are Daniel Voorhees Miller of Terre Haute, Ind., formerly assistant attorney general for the post office department at Washington, and his friend, Joseph M. Johns, an attorney at Rockville, Ind.

The government charged a conspiracy between these defendants for the purpose of obtaining money from John J. Ryan, a turf commissioner, with offices in Cincinnati and St. Louis, for protecting him from post office officials in the use of the mails for his schemes.

Miller claims absolute ignorance of any transaction that may have occurred between Ryan and Johns.

Johns claims that he made an ordinary contract with Ryan as attorney to assist in securing a decision from the postal department upon presentation of the case.

Both defendants emphatically deny any understanding between themselves or with Ryan or any conspiracy. The most eminent counsel are engaged on both sides. Miller and Johns are old friends, having lived in adjoining counties in Indiana for years, where both have been prominent politically, professionally and otherwise.

The defendants have been indicted jointly on six counts of conspiring to obtain a bribe from John J. Ryan & Co. of Cincinnati and St. Louis. The government has called a dozen witnesses and the defense three times that many. It is not expected that the arguments will be reached until the latter part of the week. The witnesses were Richard M. Webster, a clerk in the legal department of the postmaster general at Washington; J. M. Morrow, telegraph operator at Rockville, Ind., and John J. Ryan.

When court convened Webster was examined. He stated that he was in charge of what were known as lottery cases, while Miller was in charge of fraud cases. He testified that when it had been decided that cases were not put on the fraud list that such decision by the assistant attorney general for the post office department had heretofore been final.

J. M. Morrow testified at length regarding the work of the inspectors at Rockville and produced about two dozen copies of telegrams that passed between Johns and Ryan and one that passed between Johns and Miller.

John J. Ryan, the star witness of the government, was on the witness stand from 3 o'clock until court adjourned. He gave a history and an explanation of his co-operative investment company, telling how he advertised in the papers and received answers with money by mail. Last November he was called on by post office inspectors and soon afterward received a notice from D. V. Miller as assistant attorney general of the post office department that his turf commissioner's operations were fraudulent. Later he had a hearing before Attorneys Christiancy and Miller. He continued, however, to have trouble, and soon after his return from Washington he received a letter from Joseph M. Johns, in which the latter said he could be of service to him. After considerable correspondence by mail and wire they met in Terre Haute, where Ryan stayed he registered under the name of Rose.

Ryan described in detail how they mingled about the hotel in Terre Haute and finally retired from others to his room, where Johns opened the conversation on the troubles with the post office department.

Ryan was proceeding to repeat the conversation that took place when the two were alone in a room at Terre Haute when he was interrupted by an objection from Rulison to the witness testifying as to what Johns recited about Miller. Ryan was testifying that Johns claimed to be close to Miller and able to advise Ryan what Miller had said could or would be done in the premises. The objection objected to connecting Miller in a conspiracy before any conspiracy had been established.

After both sides argued the question of allowing Ryan to proceed with what Johns had stated that Miller had said regarding the case court took the objection under advisement.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—A Vienna correspondent asserts that King Leopold is going to that city to ask Emperor Francis Joseph to become arbitrator of the Anglo-Belgian differences concerning the Kongo and that the emperor will accept. Both Germany and England have intimated that they will be content with his arbitration.

ALIS WON FIRST FOOTBALL GAME

Opened the Season Saturday With 6 to 0 Victory Over the Columbia Field Club.

EVENLY MATCHED WORK

THE VISITORS FROM JERSEY CITY MADE HARD FIGHT.

Alis Scored on Tackles Back Formation—Columbia Would Have Tallied But for Fumble Near Goal Line.

In the presence of one hundred onlookers the Alis Club opened its football season Saturday on Crescent Oval with a victory over the Columbia Field Club eleven. The game was played on a muddy field, which made snappy work impossible and was the cause of many fumbles on the part of both teams. Creditable work was done by Cumming and Wilson for Alis, and Munford for the Columbia team. The score at the end of the first half was 0 to 0, but the ball was in the hands of the Jersey City team continually throughout the half. H. Pattberg, who played quarter back for the visitors, showed good generalship and ran with the ball time after time for gains of from twenty to thirty yards. But for a fumble within fifteen yards of the Alis goal the Columbia eleven would have scored a touchdown. Alis scored on tackles back, Pond being pushed over the line for a touchdown, after long runs had been made by Cumming and Woltman. The goal was kicked by Capt. Phillips. The teams were evenly matched as to weight. Line up:

PLAINFIELD BRIDE; NEWARK GROOM

Miss Clara Florence Moore ecomes Wife of Dr. Edgar Holden, Jr.

AT THE BRIDE'S HOME

DR. RICHARDS, FORMERLY OF CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH, OFFICIATES.

House Handsomely Decorated — Groom Well-Known in Medical Profession in New Jersey—The Guests From Four States.

A charming home wedding of last Tuesday was that of Miss Clara Florence Moore, daughter of Mrs. Emma E. Moore and of the late David M. Moore, Esq., to Dr. Edgar Holden, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Holden, of Newark, N. J.

It was celebrated at "Stonecrook," the beautiful home of the bride's mother on Central avenue. Rev. Dr. William R. Richards, pastor of the Brick Church, of New York City, performed the ceremony, and it was witnessed by many of the residents of this city and by a large number of guests from New York, Newark, Boston, Philadelphia and Trenton.

The house was magnificently decorated for the occasion; each room with a different flower. The white music room where the ceremony took place was decorated with white roses, and the arches and pillars under which the bridal party stood were wreathed in smilax and white roses. The parlor was decorated with American beauty roses; the library in yellow chrysanthemums, and the spacious dining room, where the supper was served, in pink roses. The great Colonial hall, in white and mahogany, was trimmed with green, with autumn leaves and brilliant autumn flowers. The huge fireplace in the rear of the hall was banked with a profusion of palms and potted plants. Behind the screen of green was stationed the orchestra which rendered an elaborate musical programme before the ceremony.

The bride was given away by her brother, Walter Jefferson Moore, Esq., and was attended by her sister, Miss Lillie E. Moore, as maid-of-honor. The bride's gown was a robe of duchesse lace and pearls over messaline, with a veil of tulle held by diamond pins, a bridal gift, and by a diamond crescent, the bridegroom's gift. She carried a bouquet of lillies of the valley. The maid-of-honor wore a gown of white satin crepe de chine trimmed with Irish lace and carried Carnot roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth W. Holden and Miss Anna L. Holden, of Newark, N. J., and Miss Grace L. Day, of White Plains. The bridesmaids wore gowns of white silk mulle trimmed with lace and carried bouquets of American beauty roses.

The bridegroom is the son of Dr. Edgar Holden, the head of the medical department of the Mutual Benefit Insurance Company, of Newark, and like his father is a well-known physician and one of the most prominent members of the medical profession in New Jersey. He is a Princeton man, a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, of New York City, and the surgeon of the Essex Troop. His best man was his brother, John Holden, and his ushers were James B. Burnett, Jr., of Newark, N. J.; Edward M. Hunt, of Trenton, N. J.; Dr. Homer T. Joy, of New York City; Horace E. Moore, of Plainfield; Henry M. Post, of Brooklyn and Dr. John K. Train, of Savanah, Georgia.

After the reception there was a dance during which the couple left on a wedding trip. Upon their return, Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Holden, Jr., will reside at No. 70 Broad street, Newark, and the doctor will continue the practice of his profession at his present office at No. 13 Central avenue, Newark.

REV. G. M. SHOTT ADDRESSES BAPTISTS

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

C. E. VINCENT, VICE PRESIDENT, AND REV. FRANK FLETCHER, TREASURER.

N. C. Dobbins Member of Nominating Committee—G. H. Batchelor on a Standing Committee—Mr. Robbie Makes An Address.

The fifty-third annual meeting of the East New Jersey Baptist Sunday-school Association held in the First Baptist Church, Newark, Tuesday, was considered the best in recent years. There were nearly two hundred delegates present, those from Plainfield being Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, Mrs. Charles Conover, Mrs. Charles Steiner and Miss May E. Howlett.

An unusual feature of the convention was the presence of and a talk by Rev. Solomon Foster, assistant rabbi of the Temple B'nai Jeshurun, of Newark. His address was one of the principal ones of the day. There was also an address by Rev. G. M. Shott, of Scotch Plains.

These officers were chosen for the ensuing year: President, Wm. Moore, of Elizabeth; vice president, Charles R. Vincent, of Scotch Plains; secretary and treasurer, Rev. Frank Fletcher, of New Market. M. C. Dobbins, of this city, was chosen a member of the nominating committee and in the selection of standing committees, G. H. PRAISE FOR MR. MOFFETT

ASSEMBLYMAN S. S. SWACKHAMER ADDRESSES ELIZABETH DEMOCRATS.

C. L. Moffett Attends Meeting at County Seat—Swackhamer's Speech.

A ratification meeting under the auspices of the Elizabeth Democratic Club was held last Tuesday at Elizabeth at which a number of Plainfielders, including Charles L. Moffett, candidate for Assembly, was present. President Robert H. McAdams presided at the meeting and made a short speech introducing Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, of Somerset.

Mr. Swackhamer spoke in high terms of Mr. Moffett. He declared that he is thoroughly competent, with an unblemished reputation and high moral character and a man who had been before the people in a public and business capacity before and is favorable known throughout Union County. If he is elected, Mr. Swackhamer declared, he would be true to his obligations as a private servant and would seek to promote the best interests of the county. The candidates on the ticket, he declared, were selected on account of their personal fitness and worth.

"I believe that the man who would yield much influence in the county," said the speaker, "is the man who is broad minded enough to acknowledge merit in the opposition party. It is righ to show a spirit of fairness even in political contests. We must acknowledge that the rank and file of the Republican party is composed of sincere and patriotic men. An appeal should be made to this element for the general good of the community at large."

Mothers to Congregate.

The third annual meeting of the New Jersey Congress of Mothers is to be held in the Haddonfield Opera House at Haddonfield, N. J., Friday and Saturday, October 23 and 24. Much interest centers in the Congress among the people in this city because of the fact that Mrs. Horace G. Phillips, of Park avenue, is recording secretary and Charles J. Baxter, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who resides in this city, is on the advisory board. Mrs. Emma Bourne, president of the State W. C. T. U., will make an address. It is probable that many members of the W. C. T. U. will attend the meetings from this city.

Permit Granted.

Boice, Runyon & Company have received a permit from Building Inspector T. O. Doane for the erection of an addition to their store and stable on Park avenue.

TRINITY'S MISSION BAND ENTERTAINMENT

Mrs. Minnie Marshall Smith Delights Large Audience at the Y. M. C. A.

MISS FROST, VIOLINIST

AHDSOME PROFIT MADE BY YOUNG WOMEN'S MISSION BAND.

Elmer E. Cutting, Harry Drake, M. C. VanArsdale and Fred Cutter Please the Audience With Selections—Those in Charge.

Mrs. Minnie Marshall Smith, the noted reciter, entertained over two hundred people at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last Tuesday in a number of dramatic readings and recitations, all of which were of unusual excellence. Mrs. Smith was supported by exceptionally fine musical talent, which assisted greatly in making the evening a most enjoyable one. The recital was given under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed Church, for the benefit of the treasury of that flourishing organization. The band realized a handsome profit from the proceeds of the entertainment.

The programme opened with a selection by a male quartette of which Elmer E. Cutting, Harry B. Drake, M. C. VanArsdale and Fred S. Cutter are members.

Just before the quartette rendered the second part of number five, a large bouquet was appropriately handed to Harry B. Drake, of the quartette. The presentation was followed by prolonged applause.

Bjornstjerne Bjornson's "Bergliot," with musical accompaniment by Edward Grieg, was delightfully rendered by Mrs. Smith. Her attitude and expression, both facial and vocal, were so correct that the true lines of the story could be carried by the audience as though they were reading it. "A Midnight Courtship," a humorous sketch, and the "Marriage of the Flowers" were the selections which won much favor. Both were sketched in words the remarkable ability of the artist was displayed to advantage. A Canadian selection closed the programme. Like the first rendition it gave the reciter an excellent opportunity of portraying her ability as a reciter.

Assisting Mrs. Smith was Miss Zella Frost, violinist, who rendered several selections during the evening, accompanied by Miss Lillian A. Force. She proved herself a thorough master of the violin. She played a selection from "Il Travatore" with great skill.

The people were seated by an efficient corps of ushers, who were H. S. Potter, Theodore Mants, H. W. Marshall, Harry VanEmburgh, H. B. McDonald, William C. Startup and David J. Krymer, assisted by H. F. Crawford in the box office.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Miss Lillian A. Force, chairman: Mrs. H. S. Potter, Mrs. H. E. VanEmburgh, and Mrs. David J. Krymer, assisted by the decorating committee composed of Mrs. Leonard Smith, Mrs. William Olmsted and Miss May VanFleet.

There was a full attendance of the Clinic and all appreciated the genuine hospitality of Dr. Probasco.

NOT A CANDIDATE, SAYS MR. BUCKLE

President of Common Council Nails False Reports in His Characteristic Way.

PLACES RESPONSIBILITY

DECLARES HIS POLITICAL ENEMIES IN PARTY ORIGINATED STORIES.

Declares That Mr. MacMurray Voiced His Sentiments in City Convention — Mr. Buckle Desired Mr. Bullock's Nomination.

This self-explanatory statement was made this afternoon by President of Common Council James F. Buckle, who has faithfully and gratituously served the city for seven years:

"My attention having been called to the fact that a great deal of comment is being caused, not only in the City of Plainfield but throughout Union County, regarding my candidacy for re-election to the Common Council, I wish to state emphatically that I was, not one of the candidates, but that I personally used my utmost endeavors to induce Mr. William Starr Bullock to stand for the nomination.

"My friends have understood thoroughly from the beginning my attitude in this matter, and their apparent unwillingness to nominate me was a matter concerning which there was not the slightest misunderstanding. I myself told Mr. MacMurray on the night of the convention that, under no circumstances would I be a candidate; and his statement made before the convention voiced my sentiments exactly.

"I understand a rumor is being widely circulated that my recent candidacy for the Assembly was only undertaken by my friends for the purpose of eventually shelving me for a re-nomination to the Common Council: Not only do I myself emphatically disbelieve this, but I do believe that any such story as this emanates from those who proved before the County convention to be everything but friends of mine, for the sole purpose of misguiding voters of Union County in the coming election.

After next Monday, the Armour and Swift Companies will cease delivering goods to dealers in meats and provisions throughout the country. This report was confirmed in this city this morning by Herbert S. Taylor, Swift's representative, and Manager R. I. Tolles, representative of Armour. The issuing of the order was caused by numerous strikes of employes of the companies ordered by their unions.

Quietly Married.

Miss Florence F. Squiers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Squiers, and Robert Gilchrist, also of this city, were married at the home of the bride's parents, 924 Prospect avenue, Tuesday. Rev. W. O. Snodgrass, pastor of the First M. E. Church, officiated. There were no attendants. At a late hour Mr. and Mrs. Gilchrist left for a wedding tour.

William Tier, of Rahway, was a visitor in this city yesterday.

Miss May Squier, of Astor place, is the guest of friends in Newark.

WARREN ENGINE CO. IN FIREMEN'S PARADE

North Plainfield Laddies Plot to Capture Prize for Drilling in Somerville.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE

MAYOR SMALLEY AND COUNCIL TO ACCOMPANY BOROUGH FIREMEN.

Chief Marshal to Take Fire Engine to Somerset's County Seat To-Night—Somerville Gaily Decorated—Line of Formation.

North Plainfield is to be represented at Somerville this afternoon by the members of Warren Engine Company in a way in which the borough has never been represented before. The Warren Engine Company is out for a prize and for the past nine weeks Captain William C. Smith has been acting as drill master.

Chief Marshal William Campbell leaves this evening with the fire engine of Warren Engine Company and will drive to Somerville. In the parade at Somerville the engine will be drawn by two heavy dapple gray horses. It is expected that there will be no less than seventy-five men in line representing Warren Engine Company.

The North Plainfielders will be the guests of the Central Hook and Ladder Company. In line Warren's members will be headed by the Liberty Fife and Drum Corps, of Elizabeth, with fifteen men. Mayor Smalley and nearly all the members of the North Plainfield Common Council will attend the festivities at Somerville.

Somerville is being decorated very elaborately. Flags are waving across the streets and the buildings have been dressed in gay colored bunting. It is estimated that there will be at least 1,000 men in line. The line of formation will be as follows:

Chief and assistants, former chiefs and visiting chiefs, invited guests in carriages, veteran firemen, Good Will Band, New Brunswick, Bound Brook department, Crescent Military Band, Raritan, Raritan department, Citizens' Band, Dover, Vigilant Engine Co., Dover, Somerset Cornet Band, Lincoln Chemical Engine Co., Liberty Drum Corps, Elizabeth, Warren Engine Co., North Plainfield, Independent Fife and Drum Corps, Central Hook and Ladder Co., Voss' Band, Newark, Independent Hose Co., Morristown, Flemington Band, Somerville Engine Co., Acolian Band, Union Hose Co., Cranford, Liberty Band, New Brunswick, West End Hose Co.

HAYES SENTENCED.

North Plainfielder, Who Broke Jail, Sentenced to Two Months Imprisonment.

In the Somerset County Courts at Somerville yesterday Harry F. Hayes, of North Plainfield, who was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of jail breaking, retracted his plea of not guilty and pleaded non guilt. Judge Schenck sentenced him to two months in the county jail. It is understood that Hayes gave State's evidence, which is the reason his sentence is so light. Charles C. Kemp, indicted for forgery and embezzlement, retracted his plea of not guilty and pleaded non vult. He was given six months, less one day in the county jail.

DIDN'T LET HIM KNOW.

Friends of J. H. Freeman Celebrated His Birthday Unexpectedly.

A pleasant surprise party was given to J. Herbert Freeman, of Park avenue, Monday night, in honor of his birthday anniversary. The affair was attended by about forty friends and relatives from this city, Westfield and Oak Tree. It was arranged by Mrs. Freeman and proved a complete surprise. Mr. Freeman received a number of handsome presents. The evening was spent in games, music and dancing, after which supper was served. The party broke up at midnight, when all extended their wishes to Mr. Freeman for many happy returns of the day.

Small Blaze.

Two alarms, from boxes 47 and 53, were pulled in last night for an unimportant blaze in a building located near the Pond Machine Tool Company's plant on South Second street. The building was owned by Mrs. Burke and used as a variety store and dwelling. The blaze was caused by children upsetting a lamp and igniting a curtain. It was extinguished without any considerable damage resulting.

HOPE Y. M. A. PLANS MINSTREL SHOW

Another Amateur Production Arranged for Performance This Winter.

GLEE CLUB ORGANIZED

THOMAS M. MUIR'S RESIGNATION AS TREASURER ACCEPTED.

Entertainment Follows Business Session—Rev. L. E. Heward Gives a Short Talk—William Jeffrey Sang Some Solos.

There will be another Hope minstrel show next winter to delight the hearts of young and old. This was voted by the members of the Hope Y. M. A. last night at their business and social meeting, which was called to order by Judge William N. Runyon. Rehearsals for the show will begin early in November.

The association has also decided to form a glee club on the advice of Robert Snyder, a New York musician of prominence. Mr. Snyder will coach the club which will meet for the first time next Monday.

The resignation from the office of treasurer of the association of T. M. Muir was accepted. The girls in the sewing class requested the use of the gymnasium for Wednesday afternoons and their request was granted. The meeting was then adjourned to Tuesday, November 10.

After the business of the meeting was concluded, the enjoyment of a smoker and collation was considered. Features of the entertainment were songs by Charles Haggerty; buck and wing dancing by Bowers and Lusardi; songs by William Jeffery; phonograph selection by Harry Lister; and a bear dance, the laughing hit of the evening, by Alfred Berry Marsh. Judge Runyon also played and sang, and Rev. L. E. Heward gave a short talk.

MR. DENMAN'S STATEMENNT

EXPLANATION AS TO REASONS FOR CANCELLATION OF TODAY'S GAME.

Declares That He Has Been Acting Fairly With Opposing Managers During the Season.

In refutation of certain statements regarding his alleged "hedging" methods, Manager Charles Denman, of the Westfield baseball team, disclaims that he has acted in any but a fair way with the management of the St. Mary team. As to the third of the series of games arranged between Westfield and the Saints, he says that last Saturday night he did say he would play that game today on Crescent Oval, but it was with the understanding that his captain, George Mallen, would play.

Denman subsequently learned that Mallen, who is a traveling salesman for a New York house, would be in Lancaster, Pa., this week and that it would be a matter of much inconvenience to him to return for the game. In addition to this Mr. Denman says that the concern in which he is employed holds a Board of Directors' meeting today and he has to be present.

Mr. Denman says that he makes no claim to the county championship; neither has he been striving for it. He declares that he could not claim the championship unless he had met and defeated in a majority of games all the teams in the county that wanted to play him. He claims that as matters now stands the series of games between the Saints and his team stand two apiece, the same as in the Alis Saints' games, and if the Saints should win the next game it would mean little or nothing.

As for the Alis Club, he says that he promised Manager MacLaughlin that he would play no other Plainfield team but Alis while the latter's team was playing ball, that the arrangement of the games between Westfield and Alis was with the full consent of Manager MacLaughlin. Furthermore, Mr. Denman states that the Alis, Saints and Scotch Plains' teams have each received as much money out of the games played as he has.

Eleventh Regiment Reunion.

The annual reunion of the Eleventh Regiment, N. J. Vet. Association, will be held at Rockaway, N. J., near Dover, on Tuesday, October 27, 1903. The business meeting will be held at noon, after which a banquet will be given by the citizens who have extended to veterans the hospitalities of the town.

JURY DISAGREES IN STEVENS' CASE

Another Trial to be Held in Suit Against North Jersey Trolley Company.

ACTION FOR DAMAGES

BRIBERY ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN RESORTED TO IN CASE.

Said That Jurymen Stood Eleven to One in Favor of Verdict for Defendant Company—Long Drawn Out Trial.

In the case of John H. Stevens, of this city, against the North Jersey Street Railway Company, which has been before the Supreme Court since Thursday last, closing Tuesday morning, the jury disagreed. It is understood that one juryman stood out against the eleven who wished to return a verdict in favor of the defendant. A juror who voted in favor of the trolley company said that he did so because he thought that Mr. Stevens was guilty of contributory negligence. None of the jury doubted that Stevens' broken shoulder was caused by collison with the trolley car, but most of them thought it was his own fault. The case will be tried over again and Mr. Stevens' counsel will move for a special struck jury.

In his charge to the jury, Judge Vail occupied twenty minutes. The charge was impartial, as appears since counsel for neither side attempted to interrupt or take any exceptions.

The judge said Stevens had a perfect right to ride his bicycle on the street, even though he was deaf. In doing so, however, it was his duty to use every precaution to avoid injury. The trolley company, he said, likewise, should use every precaution in order not to inflict injuries on others. The only evidence introduced that the plaintiff had been run down by one of the defendant company's cars, he said, was that given by the plaintiff himself. No witnesses to the accident had been brought forward.

Certain testimony had been introduced to show that the plaintiff, in order to procure witnesses to testify in his behalf, had resorted to bribery. If such testimony was believed, then the jury, he said, would be justified, in the absence of any witnesses to the accident, to take for granted that the plaintiff was falsifying regarding the manner in which he received his injury.

By the uncontradicted evidence of physicians it had been shown that the plaintiff had in some manner received severe injury. That his arm had been broken, and further that he would never fully recover. Craig A. Marsh, Esq., was counsel for the plaintiff.

A Surprise.

A surprise party was tendered Monday evening to Miss Mamie Kieley at her home on West Sixth street. The programme consisted of the playing of games and dancing, with vocal selections by James Stott, and instrumental solos by Frank O'Neil, of New Market. Among those in attendance were Miss Retta Donley, Dominick Muldowney, Miss Lizzie Crosby, Miss Mamie Flatley, Miss Agnes Huff, William O'Brien, John O'Brien, Miss Molly O'Neil, Miss Mamie Whalen, Miss Annie Kiely, Miss Margaret Mahoney, Michael and Patrick Kiely, and Richard and Lawrence O'Neil.

Pay Your Taxes.

All the tax bills have been sent out by City Tax Collector Frank Smith. Some of those which have been sent out to property owners and voters have been returned to the office because it was impossible for the post-office employes to locate those to whom the bills were addressed. Simply because no bills have been received affords no excuse for not paying his taxes. The Commissioners of Appeal will meet Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at which time all property owners who have a complaint to make about their taxes should be present.

Miss Scribner's Entertainment.

Miss Mabel Scribner, of West Front street, entertained a number of friends at her home, last night. Music was the feature of the evening, there being vocal solos by the Misses Florence and Emily Bennett, piano duets by the Misses Scribner and piano selections by Miss Clara Stam. Games were also played, after which refreshments were served.

Arthur E. Smith, of Grandview avenue, who has been staying at Roosburg, Pa., has gone to South Bend, of the same State.

BEAR WAS TOO GREEDY.

Unique Animal Story Which Has Its Origin in the Strawberry Famine in Maine.

The failure of the wild strawberry crop this year has brought trouble to many homes in eastern Maine—to the city families who expected to buy the fruit brought in from the country, for making their winter preserves; to the country boys and girls who hoped to secure their circus money from selling what they gathered in the fields and to the berry, which lay on the first rolling of fat for the year by foraging among the rocky pastures and gorging themselves upon the ripe berries.

Early in July while Mrs. Martha Jordan, of Aurora, Me., was picking some strawberries in her garden, a bear climbed the stone wall at the boundary line and smiled close up to her side, picking the fruit from two adjoining rows, apparently unconscious of her presence. As soon as she realized the character of the visitor she dropped her large tin pan, which was about half full of fruit, and ran to the house and locked the door.

Finding about four quarts of ripe berries, all picked and ready to eat, the bear mused about the pail for a moment, and, inserting her head under the wire bail, began to fill herself at leisure. No sooner was the last berry gone than the bear discovered that she had made a mistake. The wire bail had gone over her head and her neck with great ease, but when she tried to remove it she met with trouble. She scratched and clawed at the pail and tore the hair from her neck in trying to get released, and, finding that the pail remained in its place as firmly as ever, she staggered over the wall and groped her way toward the west branch of Union river, into which she fell and swam across, in the hope of washing the pail away.

Meanwhile Mrs. Jordan had escaped from her house by the front door and called the neighbors to her aid. They pursued the bear with shotguns and dogs. They crossed the branch of the river on a bridge below the village, and, putting hounds on the track of the beast, soon overtook her. She was lying dead among a bunch of ferns, having been drowned in about two gallons of water which remained in the pail after her swim across the stream. The tank wire fitted so closely over her neck that her nose was forced to the bottom of the pail, and the water did the rest.

WHIPPED INTO LINE.

Two Girls Lash a Preacher Until He Gives Consent to His Daughter's Marriage.

The Toledo (O.) correspondent of the New York World is authority for the statement that Rev. Martin Harris, a Baptist preacher in the Matamora district, refused to let his daughter Minnie marry Harvey Carter. The young man is the chief of the two elder sisters. The other evening the girls intercepted Mr. Harris just as he was entering his own yard. He still refused to give his consent to the match and, drawing a long mule whip from beneath the folds of her dress, the eldest Carter girl brought it with terrific force across the neck and shoulders of the divine.

SWISH! WENT THE WHIP

Before he could recover his astonishment the other sister struck him about the legs with another whip, and for a moment the blows rained thick and fast upon the dominie, until he fairly howled for mercy. The sisters renewed their request for consent to his daughter's marriage, and this attempted to argue the question. Swish! went the whip in the younger girl's hands about the preacher's thinly-clad nether extremities. Again and again she cut him with the whip. Finally he begged and pleaded so hard that they desisted the punishment, but continued their demands until he promised anything they asked. The wedding is to take place in August.

THE INFLUENCE OF LAND.

Highest Type of Manhood Comes from the Country Where There Is Room for Action.

The causes which control the ebb and flow of humanity between city and country are among the most sensible and obscure of social phenomena, says the San Francisco Chronicle. The characteristic of the people of all new countries is vigor. It is due to the abundance of land for all the people, and the motion and exercise between hand and man. The life of new countries is rude, but the nourishment is abundant, and the pure air sends pure blood coursing through the veins. The result is a race of strong men. When class distinctions are marked the country gain culture without losing strength. That is the highest type of manhood. It was seen in the pre-Augustan age of Rome, in the chivalry of medieval western Europe, in the planters of our own southern states in the first half of the nineteenth century. The development of the highest type of manhood involves the condemnation of the majority to a rude and laborious life. But such men can be propagated from generation to generation only so long as they remain in their rural environment. In the cities degeneration occurs. Here and there vigor is transmitted through several generations of city bred men, at least in individuals, who maintain the family name and standing. They tended in the next generation, and the mass yields to the tendency. The result is seen in the slums and the potter's field. The new men who dominate the cities—at least in America—are country bred.

TRIP TO THE DENTIST'S.

Western Woman Rode Her Pony Sixty Miles to Have Her Teeth Fixed.

"The experiences of a city bred girl on a western ranch are positively thrilling to me," remarked the woman who was reading a letter from a friend of her youth, to the Philadelphia Record. "Now this friend of mine, so she writes, found herself in need of the attention of a dentist. Did she call a cab or hail a trolley car? She did not. Rather, she had her pony saddled early in the morning and rode 25 miles to the nearest doctor of dentistry—only it was 20 miles, because she had to go five miles out of her way on account of the treacherous bog, existing at her destination she barely had time to eat a bite when she resigned herself to the filing, scraping, buzz-sawing and hammering which is the lot of the victim of ailing molars. A few hours of this torture, and the journey home she was again in the saddle, with the refreshed pony setting out gallantly to complete his 60 miles. Equines have a way of being light-footed when their heads are turned homeward. As for the rider, a hunted and three babies anxiously awaited her in the cool, mysterious moonlight."

THIRTY-TWO-WHEEL CAR.

Has Sixteen Steel Trucks and Is the Largest One Ever Constructed.

A perfect car has recently been built by the Bethlehem Steel company for its own use. The company is supplying some very large castings for a 12,000 ton forging press for the Carnegie Steel company, and this car is for their transportation, says the Engineering Record. Both iron and steel castings are being supplied, some of the latter being of extraordinary size. One of them requires a single casting for a 12,000 to 60 40-ton open-hearth furnaces are employed to provide the metal for it.

The car has 16-wheel trucks, connected by bridge trusses, 66 feet 10 inches long and 6 feet deep at the center. The length over the end sills is 65 feet 6 64 feet. The car is 103 feet 10½ inches long, over the couplers, 10 feet 2¼ inches high, and 9 feet 9 inches wide. It weighs 196,420 pounds, and has a rated capacity of 300,000 pounds. The largest car before built by this company is probably that used by the Pennsylvania railroad for transporting a Krupp gun to the Columbian exposition. It also had 32 wheels, but its rated capacity was somewhat less than that of the new car.

SAD FOR SPINDLESHANKS.

Fashion Set by King Edward Brings Woe to Gentlemen with Small Calves.

Now that King Edward has set the fashion for knee breeches in full dress affairs, and is being followed by many of his subjects, it is likely that they will be received ere long on this side of the water. The mass of course, will be made of black silk satin, and the effects resulting from such a dress will, to say at least, be somewhat curious, says the American Wool and Cotton Reporter. Those who favor the innovation will be in clover, but the majority, while those who cry out most loudly against it—that they will not adopt such a ridiculous fashion — will have, no doubt, some personal reasons for not appearing in public in knee breeches. It will not be the first fashion adopted that has made men look ridiculous, nor will it probably be the last. King Edward is still the criterion of fashion in London. There is little question as to the style there, at least.

An Immense Opal.

An opal has been found in Australia, on the White Cliff fields, which, with good fortune to the cutting, will make a gem eight inches long by five wide, or larger than any of the crown jewels of Belgium, weighs nearly a pound and is valued at $50,000.

Sardines and People.

A Nebraska family has been poisoned by sardines. Sardines are like people, says the Chicago Record-Herald. Those are some bad ones.

Honeysuckle and Gallium.

It would be a disappointment if yellow ladies' bedstraw, or galium, came not in its season, year by year, among the stones around our sun dial. The peculiar perfume of it refreshes greatly, more especially if mixed with honeysuckle. It is only in Scotland, I believe, where wild honeysuckle blooms late, deep within woods and shade, while yellow galium, with flower stalks rising a foot or more, makes gay the sunny banks outside, that one can breathe this mixed sweetness. Galium is far less vigorous of growth here in the south, where, according to Darwin, "evil weeds hither and thither upon the ground, supporting its yellow spikes upon the herbage or stones near at hand." Red lamium, always rather coarse-looking, is inclined to be a tiresome weed; though now and then it is impossible not to enjoy the dash of red given suddenly by a cluster of it at the edge of a border, in the grass or somewhere else where it ought not to be; a short-lived triumph, to be too quickly ended as soon as the gardens "come round."—Cornhill Magazine.

Dogs Having Their Day.

The twentieth century dog is a much pampered animal, and it seems now, but the London dog would seem to be a special object of attention, according to the following announcement in a London weekly: "There are sun bonnets to wear on the heads of dogs, sheets for their beds and shoes for their feet. Now we have a new and improved collar made for the special delight and gratification of the animal's mistress. It may, we understand, be had of leather of almost any kind, made narrow at each end, the width being in the center. It is ornamented with silver studs, in the recesses of which are perfumes, wherein lies the novelty. Of course, these sweetly ornate collars are only suitable for terriers and toy dogs generally, as it would be somewhat expensive to provide daily scents which would annihilate the somewhat strong canine aroma which usually lingers around a St. Bernard or a Newfoundland, or even a deerhound or Borzoi."—N. Y. Tribune.

Cure for Talking Habit.

Formula: One part horse sense, two parts manly determination to keep still; mix well, with an unlimited amount of the best quality of thought. It is impossible for a woman to talk all the time without saying a lot of things that she shouldn't or without proving a jolly bore to everybody about her. This tattling habit is not confined to women, though some men have the affliction terribly. Sometimes it's May wheat, sometimes it's Roosevelt, sometimes it's chess, sometimes it's baseball. A steady diet of one-third conversation is always tiresome. Take a nibble of this and a nibble of that, and your chatter will be more interesting—particularly if there are plenty of rests between nibbles. Talking improves when there's silence by way of contrast.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Where He Drew the Line.

The following notice was posted on the bulletin board of a famous London club:

"Will the nobleman who purloined Captain ——'s umbrella kindly deliver it to the hall porter?"

A well-known peer, taking umbrage at this slight on his order, accosted Captain —— and demanded an explanation.

"Well, you see," was the reply, "the rules state that this is a club for noblemen and gentlemen. I am certain no gentleman took my umbrella; hence there was no other conclusion to come to."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Fashion Spreads.

"Oh, doctor!" moaned the suffering young woman, "I have such an excruciating pain in my side."

"Um—yes. What seems to be the nature of the pain?" asked the physician. "Does it cover the side, or is it confined to one spot?"

"It seems to be scattered all over," explained the patient; "just as if it were a hundred little spots at once."

"Ah!" mused the physician. "This corroborates my theory of the influence of current fashions upon the human system. You have what we would colloquially term a drop-stitch in the side."—Judge.

Pigeon's Milk.

The joke about pigeon's milk has a foundation in fact. After the incubation of the young has been completed the crops of the parent bird become thicker and secret a sort of curd, with which the young are fed. This description of nourishment is necessary for them, for if the young pigeons are deprived of it during the first week or two after hatching they are sure to die.

"No, sir; I wrote 'robber' very distinctly."—Stray Stories.

China's Population.

We have heard so much of what is popularly termed the "teeming millions" of China, that the official census recently published by the imperial treasury department of China is of no little interest, since it furnishes a method of determining just how many "teeming millions" there are. It appears that the celestial empire contains 426,000,000 inhabitants, and that China proper—the 18 provinces—contains 407,000,000. The table is given in the Mouvement Geographique, of Brussels, to which readers are referred for details. The number of inhabitants per square kilometer varies from 201, in Ho-Nan, to 32, in Kan-Sou, and is, on the average, 103 in the 18 provinces. In Mongolia, the number is 0.7; in Manchuria, 9; in Yibet, 5, and in Turkestan, 0.8. For comparison, we may recall that Germany has 105 inhabitants per square kilometer; Belgium, 220, and the United Kingdom, 130.—Scientific American.

Room Papered with Envelopes.

A most quaint and novel way of papering a room has lately been invented by a young lady of more originality than taste. She has adorned the walls of her special sanctum with the envelopes of all the letters she has received for the last few years. These are, of course, of every conceivable shape, color and size, and also bear all kinds of stamps and handwritings, so the effect is most odd. She has pursued no plan in regard to them, but has pasted them on the walls in all kinds of positions as soon as she has received them. The effect is startling, but it cannot be said to be in any way artistic.

Fontiffs Once Were Red.

There are many people who will doubtless be interested to know that it is only since the thirteenth century that the popes have been accustomed to wear white. Until that time they were always arrayed in the red robes now affected by the cardinals. Boniface VIII., in 1294, however, realizing that the red was no longer a distinctive color of the high priests, the professors had accorded to their legates abroad the right to wear it, issued a decree granting to all the members of the sacred college the red robes which they now wear, and decided that white should henceforth be the hue of the raiment of himself and of his successors. The popes, however, still retain from these ancient days the red hat which they wear out of doors, and the red mantle as well as the red shoes.—Detroit Free Press.

House on the Rocks.

Once upon a time there was an ambitious man who desired to found a great and prosperous business, so he worked and worked, and then worked more, and after that continued to work.

While he worked and accumulated wealth to his desire, he saved and invested and reinvested over and over again, while his family was growing up under his roof.

Finally he and his children found themselves firmly grounded in the Four Hundred, and had no fear of any social winds or floods that might beat against their home.

Moral: A house to stand must be founded on "rocks."—N. Y. Herald.

Remarkable Record of a Village.

Until last week eight months had elapsed since a death was recorded in the village of Stanwick, Northamptonshire, England. Its 800 inhabitants include 13 whose collective ages number 1,098 years. One of them, John Neal, aged 97, gets about easily; another, George Morris, 91, still works his trowel as a stonemason; two brothers, Thomas and William Ward, are aged 85 and 82 respectively, and the ages of the others range from 85 to 79, one of the latter, Mr. George Tailby, being the overseer of the parish. Twelve of the residents are 70 and 75 years of age, but they are not considered old men at Stanwick.—London News.

Sex in Industry.

The special report of the Massachusetts bureau of statistics of labor on "sex in industry" shows that women no longer need to depend on men for a living. According to the figures, woman's emancipation is about complete. More than 48 per cent. of the women workers of Massachusetts are unmarried. They prefer freedom, work and income of their own and care nothing for romance. Divorces, too, have increased, being about one to every 18 marriages.

Why the Cook Left It.

The happy-faced man swung onto a College avenue car, and this was the story he had to tell as an explanation for his good humor:

"I have a good joke on my wife. We have a new girl, a German, just over from the Fatherland. She is heavy and willing worker, but is greatly in need of judgment and common sense. Yesterday my wife ordered fish and instructed the girl to serve it for dinner. As soon as I tasted it I knew there would be something interesting when my wife discovered it was not as fresh as it should be. Her first mouthful caused her to ring for the girl.

"'Mary, is this the fish that came to-day?'

"'Yes, ma'am.'

"'Didn't you know it was not good when you cooked it?'

"'Yes, ma'am.'

"'Then, why did you cook it?'

"'Well, you bought it, and I thought you knew it, too.'" — Indianapolis News.

Famous Moated Houses.

The moat which so often surrounded halls and castles in the old days is now generally dry and filled up, but some remarkable specimens still remain. Perhaps the finest example of a moated house is Helmingham Hall, the seat of Lord Tollemache, in Suffolk, about eight miles from Ipswich. The drawbridge still remains, and it has been raised every night for more than 300 years, the ancient precaution being observed even though the need for it has long passed by. The moat which surrounds Leeds Castle, near Maidstone, is so wide that it may almost be called a lake. The ancient episcopal palace at Wells is surrounded by walls which incluse nearly seven acres of ground, and by a moat which is supplied with water from St. Andrew's well. A venerable bridge spans the moat, giving access through a tower newly to the outer court.—London Tit-Bits.

Chinese Homespun.

The Chinese of Ningpo are successfully introducing their hand-woven cotton goods in Manchuria. The cloth is made from yarn spun in Chinese mills and from imported yarns. The yarns are colored before being woven and the colors are fast and durable. The cloth is made in pieces 20 yards long and 25 inches wide. The price of these goods at Ningpo is three dollars Mexican ($1.85 United States) per piece. The company furnishes the yarn to the villagers and pays them by the foot for weaving. The work is done on looms in the homes of the women and children, whose earnings are only a few cents per day.

Cycling Backwards.

A novel cycling feat was accomplished recently by Albert Hunter, a Skipton youth. Starting from Robinson's bridge, in Skipton, at half-past two in the afternoon, he rode with his back to the front wheel of his machine to Keighley Station, arriving there at 20 minutes past three, having accomplished the nine miles in 50 minutes. He passed through the villages of Kildwick, Eastburn and Steeton, and through the busy traffic in Keighley streets. There was a strong wind against the rider, and he had to avoid 45 traps and carts, 26 cyclists, one motor car, and two road engines repairing the highway.—London.

Gen. Napoleon's Decoration.

The cross of St. Andrew, which the czar has just presented to Gen. Prince Louis Napoleon, has a very remarkable peculiarity attaching to it. All those who are decorated with this order have the right once in their lives to demand a pardon for a Russian subject who has been condemned to death. The ungracious part of this privilege is that it by no means follows that the condemned man will be reprieved; but, at any rate, the poor wretch has a chance, for his case is thus brought directly to the notice of the czar, without the intervention of any officials, and, unless there is some living political crime, the probability is that he will escape with his life.—London Sketch.

Leo Lacked Commercial Best.

While Pope Leo was bent on making as much money as possible for the church he was not commercially inclined. True, he sold the products of the vatican vintage to the highest bidder, but the proposals of a stock company to market the wine under the vatican label and with papal authority were indignantly declined. Even an offer of $1,000,000 cash for the monopoly failed to tempt Leo.—N. Y. World.

"She's very studious," said one woman.

"Yes," answered the other.

"And doesn't seem to care for gossiping in the least."

"Oh, I don't know about that," answered the other, with a sniff, "she merely prefers to talk about Helen of Troy and Romeo and Juliet to paying attention to what is going on in her own neighborhood."—Washington Star.

DO THEIR OWN COOKING.

There Is an Increasing Demand for Attractive Appliances for the Kitchen.

Very attractive and handy appliances are now brought out for the amateur cook. They are of bronze, copper and silver plate, and each may be mounted on its own spirit lamp or electrical fitting, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Epicureanism is on the increase, and many more people are particular as to the preparation of their food than formerly," said a household goods dealer. "Fastidious people who buy the handsome markets afford in food supplies have awakened to the fact that much of their care in this regard is wasted if the cooking be unintelligently done, so we are selling more and more of these individual cooking appliances.

"Many people, particularly, amuse themselves by amateur cooking. The health culture propaganda has also been a stimulus to the amateur cook. Food eaten under proper conditions will obviate the need of medicines or curatives and add to physical exhilaration, good looks, etc. These theories are getting strongly impressed on the public mind, and particularly on those folks who are able to indulge themselves, to experiment in the matter and make permanent progress.

"They secure food supplies of the best grade and then seek for appliances by which they can supervise the cooking with least inconvenience, and so get the full profit of the investment. The cooking schools have tended also to make people recognize the value of delicate cookery applied to a good grade of food. Slowly but surely their maxims are being exemplified."

USE AMERICAN IDEAS.

French Crooks Copy the Tricks of Swindlers in This Country.

French swindlers, about whose methods a good deal has been written of late, are for the most part copiers of American crooks, says the New York Sun. The trick of following a woman into a store, and just as she goes to make a purchase assuming the role of an indignant husband, taking her money away from her and getting away before she has a chance to recover from her surprise, was worked for some time in the west. It wasn't successful long here, because American women are harder-headed than their French sisters and, unlike the latter, do not assist the crooks by promptly going into hysterics or fainting when robbed.

A simple little swindle that was successful in this city for years was worked by a man and a boy. The boy would walk up the street swinging a pitcher around his head. The man standing on an opposite corner would call attention to the boy's recklessness and offer to bet $5 or some larger amount that the boy would break the pitcher before he reached the corner. The crook rarely failed to hook a victim. Of course, just as the boy reached the corner he would break the pitcher and the crook would win the bet.

THE POPES AND TOBACCO.

Heads of the Catholic Church Who Proscribed the Weed and Those Who Used It.

It is well known that Pope Leo was for years an inveterate snuff taker. The times have changed since Urban VIII. and Innocent V. vigorously proscribed tobacco, the former pope going so far as to threaten to excommunicate anyone who might take a pinch of snuff within the precincts of the vatican. The brief issued by Innocent X. on the 1st of February, 1650, against the use of tobacco was abrogated on the 16th of January, 175, by Benedict XIII. for very good and sufficient reasons. For, like Leo XIII., Benedict XIII. took snuff in large quantities, and he could not give his sanction to an act which was violated daily by his own example. From that time until the present day the popes have remained silent on the subject of tobacco, but their personal habits seem to favor the use of the fragrant Virginia weed. In addition to the snuff-taking popes, it is well known that Pius IX. used to smoke in his private study and in the more secluded parts of the vatican gardens.

German City Regulation.

The Leipzig, Germany, city council has passed an ordinance compelling city employes to take up their residence within the city limits. As the waterworks, lighting plants, storage warehouses, markets, pawnshops, hospitals, etc., are municipal, a large number of people will be affected. It is said that the action was taken in order to foster Leipzig's growth, to increase the city's income and to concentrate the conservative votes.

Scarecrows on Roofs.

Scarecrows are now placed upon slate roofs in Germany. It is the crows which swarm the beach and dig for clams fly over the buildings and drop the clams on the roofs, by this means breaking the shells and leaving the meat free to be eaten. In many cases when the clams were dropped, the slate would be broken.

Action of Poisons.

Nature seems to have provided that no poison which acts externally shall have any effect internally, and vice versa. Thus the most deadly snake venom can be swallowed with impunity, the juice of the stomach presumably decomposing it and rendering it harmless.

FAILINGS OF CORRESPONDENTS

Letters Folded Wrong and Otherwise Made Troublesome to Business Recipients.

"Not one person in ten folds a letter and puts it in the envelope right side up," said the correspondence clerk of a large New York publishing house, according to the Times. "This firm receives upward of 1,000 letters a day, and it is my duty to sort them and send them to the various heads of departments. Each letter has to be opened and flat, with the envelope attached by a clip. In almost every instance the letter is folded and put in the envelope so that I have to turn it around before I can read it. I have talked with friends in similar positions to mine, and they tell me they have the same experience. It seems a trifling matter to a person who opens only five or six letters a day, but to me this loss of time caused by either the ignorance or carelessness of letter writers is considerable.

"Fully two-thirds of the letters received by a business house are filed. Cabinets for this purpose are arranged so that one must refer to the beginning of the letter, on the right-hand side, to find the date. One-half the persons who write on matters of business, particularly women, put the date at the end of the latter and on the left-hand side, so that we have to lift the whole bunch to get at it. These failings of correspondents are worse than illegible writing and incorrect spelling."

GOOD IN CHANGE OF AIR.

Too Close Confinement to Any Atmosphere Is Injurious to the Health.

The quasi-miraculous benefits which are associated with change of air in the popular belief are in reality derived when they accrue from change of environments, habits, or daily habits of life, says the Medical Review. In a great many instances the measure of benefit obtainable would be as effectually secured and at much less expense by mere change of habits, without the discomfort and inconvenience of change of domicile. The overwrought city clerk might advantageously take to driving a cab, while the cabman would find it a relief to discharge for a time the functions of caretaker of a deserted house. In another worked physician would experience a distinct improvement were he to qualify as chauffeur, with no other object in view than to cover space, and there are few domestic servants whose health would not be materially modified by a brief experience as milkmaid or gleaner, should the season lend itself to that pursuit. The literary gent, whose brain is sterile of new ideas, might recuperate his energies by usurping the role of a sick man and remaining in bed for a week or two.

LOWER ANIMALS HAVE SENSES

This Has Now Come to Be Admitted by Nearly All the Scientists.

Many scientists, until quite recently, have been reluctant to admit that a number of the lower animals possibly possess other senses than the five. So much new and undeniably affirmatory evidence is, however, now being offered on this point that there can be no longer any substantial reason for doubting that the five senses man imperfectly exercises are by no means all that are possible to sentient creatures.

One such sense not possessed by the human beings, but to a greater or less degree almost universally present in mammals, birds, reptiles, fish and insects, is what is, perhaps, may be called the sense of localization. It enables its possessor, apparently by its sole use, to find a desired spot. It is evidently closely connected with an instinctive and perfect memory of distance and direction. That the homing pigeon exercises it to some extent though undoubtedly aided by the landmarks it recognizes, is indisputable; that the honeybee has it in its fullness and perfection cannot, after the careful experiments of Albrecht Bethe, in Germany, be doubted.

TOLD BY DOGS' TAILS.

Most Striking and Infallible Index to Their Descent from Wolf or Jackal.

A writer, in tracing the ancestry of the dog to the wolf and jackal, notices typical differences in the case of their eyes, their body colors and markings, the habit of turning around before lying down, and other interesting peculiarities; but he omits to mention the most striking and infallible way of distinguishing them, namely, by the curious and distinct fashion in which they carry their tails.

Wolves have a sneaking way of carrying their tails low, almost dragging on the ground, while jackals carry their tails up, and the farther removed they are from the wolf type the higher they carry them. Shepherd dogs and collies, which retain many of their racial characteristics, carry their tails lowest of all; setters and pointers a degree or two higher, stiffening out straight when drawing on game; terriers and hounds elevate their tails to the spinal line; St. Bernards and Newfoundlands affect a curve over the back; while pugs actually come to a full twist.

THE BUSY WOMAN

Why She Seldom Accomplishes Much

"THERE are two kinds of busy women—the woman who never has time to do anything and the woman who does a lot," remarked the wise woman.

"H'm!" here put in the old bachelor. "I reckon I have met quite a few of the first kind!"

"Yes, I know. They are always late for everything, fluttering around in a perpetual state of confusion and rush. They don't have time to attend to their children. They don't have time to put anything in order. They don't even have time to eat their meals or to say their prayers, and yet if you were to pin them down to the schedule of their week's work you would be surprised to find how little of importance it really contains. It is all trifles and fuss, and yet they flatter themselves that they are most overworked and indispensable; that without them the whole of their little world would come to a standstill. And when such a woman falls ill or is temporarily incapacitated she is simply lost in surprise, while the machinery runs as smoothly as otherwise—more so, in fact, half the time."

"It is all a lack of management, of course."

"Naturally. It is simply wonderful the amount of work one can do when one has system. You learn, too, to save yourself on comparatively unimportant things in order that you may have time for the more important ones. When a woman is capable of earning with her brain a large amount of money it is foolish of her to waste moments which might be made profitable doing petty or menial work which she can hire others to do for her while she makes four and five times the amount spent. What would be thought of the head of a great concern if he persisted in doing all the work, including that of the office boy? Yet this is the principle on which some women work. Take the woman who works hard at some business and in her spare moments wastes her strength making finery for herself. I have no sympathy with her if she breaks down. She should reserve her strength for her more important work and be content with fewer clothes, which she can purchase ready to put on without any fuss or bother."

A DISORDERLY BUREAU DRAWER.

"And the woman who never can lay her hand on anything when she wants it?"

"Oh, she is the worst type of them all. She never can be a good business woman, for owing to her unfortunate habit she never is on time for anything. She is always tearing madly through a disorderly bureau drawer or rummaging along the tables, floor and even the mantelpiece in her wild search for something she just threw down because she was too much in a hurry to put it away. And if at the end of the year the minutes she wasted in this manner were to be counted the total would appalling."

"What about lack of concentration?"

"Yes. Thank you for reminding me of it. That is another pitfall in the way of the business woman. She has not been taught to focus her energies upon the subject in hand. She writes or she draws or she clicks the typewriter with her mind but half fixed on what is before her."

"One of the chief quarrels with the business girl is that she does not dress the part."

"That is without doubt another evidence of her lack of concentration. If she thought it all out she would see how she was playing into the progress and wasting her strength by wearing top heavy and expensive hats, trailing skirts and neckwear that needs constant fussing and renewing. It is far better to see an alert, healthy looking girl in a plain shirt waist and stock than to see a jaded one stupid from lack of sleep who parades around in chiffon fripperies which hardly last the day. A neat walking suit, a smart plain hat with coming curves on the brim and shirt waists which will launder on all occasions, these are necessary to the comfort of every business woman, and she would recognize that they make her look nine times more attractive than, if she only had a sense of the fitness of things."

HELEN CLIFTON.

COUNTESS DE MONTAIGU.

A Famous American Newspaper Woman Turns to a French Name.

From a petted girl on a quiet, dream-like Mississippi cotton plantation, amusing herself doing something or nothing, as her own sweet fancy prompted, to a newspaper woman hustling for her bread in the largest city of the western world, where the competition is fiercest and the changes are most dangerous, is a change the girl herself could never have imagined in her furthest flights of fancy, yet it was entered on the destiny book of the girl Anna Kershaw. Her father was Colonel Thomas Kershaw of the old South Carolina Kershaw family.

As little as they themselves did Colonel Thomas dream his daughters would ever need to earn their living. They were sent to Europe to be educated as ladies should be in the judgment of southern cotton plantation owners. They spent considerable time in Italy. When they returned to the plantation a French governess came with them and lived in the Kershaw family twelve years. The proper ladylike accomplishments were drilled into the Kershaw girls.

MME. DE MONTAIGU.

Meantime Anna got considerable lively enjoyment as she went along. She was the best shot and best horseback rider among women in that part of the south. If she aimed at a squirrel or game bird it had to come down. There was no horse she feared to ride. Sometimes she varied the amusement by canoeing in the magnolia fringed bayous with others as young and lively as herself. Water lilies stirred as they paddled past, hanging gray cypress garlands touched their faces, and now and then a great alligator made at them with open mouth, snapping as though he would swallow them, canoe and all.

Some years passed and the old happy life was destroyed. Those who lived it had to face working for their bread, that, too, with no more real preparation than a child of ten years has. Anna's older sister, Mrs. R. K. Walker, a widow, became society editor of a St. Louis paper and filled the place twenty years.

Meantime Anna married a titled Frenchman, Count de Montaigu. Once Mrs. Walker took a vacation and went to Europe for three months. Anna occupied her chair and was society editor till her return, and thus Countess Anna de Montaigu entered the field of news paper labor. Events whirled on, and the countess, too, found it necessary to work. She knew something of journalistic writing by this time and began in that path the steep, uphill road to success. She worked awhile on St. Louis newspapers, then was a Washington correspondent, later still tried her luck in New York, managing always to sustain herself, and also by her sweet temper and gentle, gracious manners to gain the warm good will of those she met.

In her profession Mme. de Montaigu is indefatigably industrious and energetic, likewise painstaking and sincere, as the conscientious woman always is. Of late years she has lived much in Paris. Her command of the French language and her living interest in the woman movement and in all human progress enable her to gain a knowledge of the real life of Paris such as probably no other American woman journalist at present possesses. In this respect she resembles the late Lucy Hamilton Hooper. Mme. de Montaigu is now in the United States visiting her sister in St. Louis.

France is not like America, says the countess. There everything changes slowly, though new French women are waking up, really trying to get out from the iron bondage of the cruel old Code Napoleon. They have won some concessions, formerly a married woman could not without her husband's written consent draw out of the bank in which she had deposited it even the money she had earned. She may now do so. The woman's daily paper, La Fronde, still moves on. It has become a co-operative enterprise, the employees being its stockholders. Mme. Margaret Durand, its leader and inspiration during its first years, has returned to the stage. La Fronde's parliamentary reporter has a permit from the Paris legal authorities to wear male attire, because it is safer for her as she moves about in performance of her tasks. Her hair is cut short.

DAME FASHION'S DECREES.

The Growing Importance of Neatness in Women's Costumes.

Time was when a body's collar was but an adjunct to her costume, but now it has assumed far greater proportions and has become a most important factor, adding, as it does, the last touch of elegance and dainty grace. A wisp of lace, a linen band or a flat collar which left the entire throat bare was once considered fine enough, but today the daintiest, the prettiest and most delicate of the things belonging by right to the fair sex are put into the new neckwear, and as if the materials alone were not good enough ingenuity has been taxed to find something better.

Neckwear has never been so fine as now, and handwork has taken the place of machine stitching, so that it is doubly delicate. The beautiful Mexican drawnwork is made especially for collars and cuffs, and all who know how durable and desirable this is are aware of its exceeding value. First, it requires the greatest patience, the best sight and the neatest hands. The threads of the pure sheer linen are carefully drawn out from the body of the material, and the design is then worked in with needle and thread, forming exquisite patterns in the lace which it becomes. Now it is adopted for the new neckwear in forms easily understood by a glance at the illustration.

There are so many different designs that one could not mention them in a day. Those in the upper part of the picture have the stock of velvet or black silk, with the sheer lawn fastened over. Points overlap all around in some cases. In others there are what we might call tabs down the center of the front. Some are straight and in one piece, and others are in two pieces, but the prettiest of all are those where four triangular pieces are laid so that they lap over one another. In these all the drawnwork is seen in some one of its variations. The triangles seem to display the design best.

There are stocks of white and pale blue and other colors in soft, lustrous silk overlaid with the dainty lace work. Some few are plain. These are set in many cases wide girdles of the material to match, but these are only of the silk, with a handsome buckle in front. They are planned in folds which narrow to a point in front. The cuffs match the girdle.

The mingling of black and white has resulted in the production of some most effective neckwear. Velvet, crepe de chine and black silk are employed for foundations, on which lace is superposed in some cases, while in others applique of a little white is made. When this is done only the most striking part of the design is employed. Then wheels of white crocheted work are set on in different ways to enhance the effect. On the lower line is illustrated the manner in which these are utilized. The silk itself has a rich design of raised hand embroidery defining the edges and marking a beautiful tracery in which black and white mingle. Sometimes the foundation is white and the ornamentation black.

One very stylish and novel tie was attached to a black silk stock, which had a border of white linen over, with scalloped edges daintily hemstitched in three lines. The tie bow, about five inches wide, is of black taffeta hemstitched all around. At each end is a graduated arrangement made of narrow flat folds of the silk, crossed in latticework and held with tiny silk buttons. This end is pointed. The other is finished square with the same narrow folds, but these have lace tabors carried in black sewing silk.

There are many dainty stocks entirely of the hand wrought lace, all light and airy and all having some novel arrangement in front—tabs, diamond shaped pieces, curved and scalloped, single, double and triple and all lovely.

Most of the dark silk collars have cuffs and belts to match. Some are several inches wide in the back, but the majority are not over two. All are beautifully made, with a little exceedingly tasteful trimming in folds, stitching and embroidery in raised outline and in clusters of small crocheted flowers. Sometimes all of these are in the different trimmings that one wonders where they all came from, for they are necessarily made by hand.

Very many of the stock collars show much fagot stitching, black on white and vice versa.

These stocks and collars will be worn extensively, so much so that no woman will be considered well dressed without one. Ribbon stocks are relegated to the scrap trunk, and the wash-able stocks are disappearing from the face of the earth. So if any lady knows how to make this tedious but exquisitely beautiful drawn lace she can have a stock. It is to be feared that the few remaining pieces of table decoration in this work will be suddenly put to a new use.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

THE NEW WOMAN

She Is Doing Things

YESTERDAY I met a dear old lady, seventy-eight years of age. She belongs to a political club of women, and a day or two before I saw her she had been at a meeting to help decide what action her organization should take in the coming municipal campaign in New York city. Before that she had been with her daughter down at Coney Island for a little lark, and a few weeks ago she went up Long Island sound on a steamer excursion, an all day trip, from which she returned somewhat tired, but full of life and red blooded interest in up to date things. Until yesterday I had not seen this new woman of seventy-eight for months. The last time we met she seemed to me to look aged and sallow. She was not then in good health. This time she was better and stronger, but the improved health did not sufficiently account for her improved looks. She seemed now fifteen years younger. Her complexion was fair; her clear, pretty blue eyes were girlish in their brightness. Then I noticed her dress. Yesterday she wore a light colored skirt and a white shirt waist with neat up to date neckwear. The last time I had seen her she was dressed in the dull black so much affected by old ladies. The difference in her looks was caused by the difference in her dress. If old women deliberately tried to disfigure themselves and add a decade or two to their appearance they could not do it more effectually than by rigging themselves out in the rusty black togs which most of them, rich or poor, wear habitually. The duller and more wrinkled a woman's complexion becomes the more she should shun black clothing, which exaggerates every defect of the skin—that is, unless she has arrived at that hopeless, thoroughly wo manly stage where she does not care how she looks.

Here is a good story of a gifted young new woman: Alice Beach McComas, the pianiste, was playing at a concert in Blue Earth, Minn., when in the midst of the music a terrific thunderstorm suddenly broke over the place. The storm area covered the whole section of country and was accompanied by a tornado that in some localities knocked down buildings, killing several persons. Wind, thunder, lightning and rain burst upon the hall where Miss McComas was at the piano, but she played on. Crash after crash of thunder shook the building, the electric lights went out, but the girl played calmly on in the darkness that was only illuminated by the lightning flashes. Persons in the audience were badly frightened, but not Miss McComas. In the darkness, without being able to see a note, the storm raging like a thousand demons, she played on and calmed and held the excited audience till the tempest ceased. It was a splendid exhibition of womanly nerve and cool headedness.

Many people's idea of a friend is some one who will listen to them while they talk about themselves.

Blessed be the woman who does things and makes no fuss about it.

The pretty, healthful and comfortable fashion of going about without hats has prevailed among women more extensively than ever the past summer, to the great benefit of their hair. In the country recently I noted some young ladies who gave their heads a rest by braiding their hair and letting it hang down the back all day. The injunction of Paul against uncovered heads among oriental women has no application fortunately to Christian women of western nations. Women in our time do not go to church to "prophesy." They go to hear sermons, and they listen to these all the more devoutly for having their heads cool and comfortable. May the bareheaded habit become permanently established among our sex!

Say to yourself continually, All mankind are my friends and I am their friend.

The only person who ever did go over Niagara falls and live to tell the tale is a woman, and she did the feat in a barrel of her own devising.

Oh, that women cared more for beauty and less for clothes!

All the women's hotels conducted on the liberal new woman plan are filled to overflowing, with many applicants on the waiting list.

The highest praise old timey people could bestow on a little boy or girl was that he or she was a "biddable child." That may be a credit to a child, but it is by no means so to a woman. In general woman is too much "biddable" even to this day. They are in bondage to husbands, doctor or minister, sometimes to all three, but always to the masculine sex. Not one woman in a thousand has the courage of original thought her own will or the resistless, splendid power of it when she does exercise it.

For your comfort in discouraged hours know this: Nothing is more certain than that you will win out at last if you keep on working and willing toward a given end. Know this too: No friendship will ever be put upon you that is greater than you can bear.

DON'TS FOR WOMEN.

Little Things the Wise Ones Know and the Unwise Ought to Know.

Don't talk about other people's promises to you and your future plans.

Don't be good in a superior manner and don't be perpetually potating out the fact that you are doing things in the right way. It is an excellent method of getting yourself hated.

Don't bluff and don't boast. You may have a more intelligent audience than you think, and anyway there are always enough clever people to see through you.

Don't talk all the time. Give others a chance.

Don't forget that all really good conversation is impersonal.

DON'T TALK ALL THE TIME.

Don't tell what you could do if you had the chance. Either do it or don't talk about it.

Don't be afraid to acknowledge when you are in the wrong, but when you are in the right stand firm.

Don't run after other women, and they will run after you.

Don't, when a woman tells you her troubles, immediately cheapen her tale of woe by hatching up a more doleful one of your own.

Don't tell your women friends' secrets. Remember that their friendship may some day be dissolved, and, while some women do keep secrets, no woman ever allowed a secret to last any longer than her friendship.

Don't tell everybody if you make your own clothes.

Don't be a slave to your house or your furniture.

Don't doubt your own success, and others must believe in you.

Don't forget that personality counts for more than beauty.

Don't do twice as much for people as they do for you.

Girl Harvest Hands.

The girls of Pawnee county, Kan., thelligent, pretty girls, too, in the harvest field this season beat out of sight the trained athletes of eastern college students when it came to shocking wheat. Two sisters named Swenson did more work than four of the men students. The girls' muscles were stronger and more nimble than the men's. Is not the new woman here?

ITALIAN WAY OF WORKING.

Lends an American Woman to Give Genoa the Preference as a Residence.

An American woman married the captain of a steamship trading to Mediterranean ports and was straightway lost to her American friends, for she went to live at Genoa, one of the ports visited by her husband's ship, reports the New York Sun.

She recently paid a visit to friends in this country and many asked her why she did not make her home in New York. In each case she gave as her reason her desire to see as much as possible of her husband.

Then the inquiries were pressed further. If the steamer sailed from both ports at regular intervals, why was not one as good for her purposes as the other. The explanation was simple enough to anyone who knows the difference between methods at New York and Genoa.

The ship consumes five days in unloading and reloading at New York, and the captain could have only three or five days with his family, and a good deal of each day would be taken up at the wharf, perhaps several miles from his home.

At Genoa the processes of loading and unloading, by reason of old-fashioned methods and fewer workmen, occupy nearly two weeks, and the distance from the ship's wharf to the captain's home is not great. So American business methods work to expatriate one American woman.

PRIMITIVE BRITONS.

Inhabitants of St. Kilda in the Outer Hebrides Have Little Use for Money.

The most primitive community in the British isles is that which inhabits St. Kilda, in the Outer Hebrides. The people, who number 76, have no telegraphic communication, and no mails from September until May, says Stray Stories.

They have hardly any use for money, such traffic as exists being carried on by barter. Their rents are paid to the landlord's factor in sea-birds' feathers; while other produce is consigned through the same channel, and goods are sent in exchange for it.

In a recent address to the king, the inhabitants pointed out that it was six months before they had heard of the accession of George IV., while news of the death of Queen Victoria did not reach them for more than a month, and then only by chance.

They have a minister, but no doctor, and recently, when a medical man was sent to vaccinate them, they would not have the operation performed unless the steamer which took him waited with him to see whether it was to be successful.

The women spin and dye sheep's wool, which is woven by the men.

Another primitive community is that on Fair Isle, between Orkney and Shetland.

JOHN BROWN AS LOUIS XVI.

Amusing Errors in a French Encyclopedia About Some American Celebrities.

The new Illustrated Larousse, the great French encyclopedic authority upon men and things, contains some curious errors about American affairs, says the New York Journal.

In the article on Lincoln, for instance, the president is killed by a "sectarian," one J. Wilkes.

John Brown is represented pictorially as an individual who could easily pass for Louis XVI., wig and all.

The United States mint is situated in New York and the Hudson river bridge is an accomplished fact.

Mme. Patti's eldest sister is killed off in her youth, despite the fact that she is the most concert-going lady in Paris.

Mme. Melba is described as nee Porter, although her maiden name is Mitchell.

Elizabeth Barrett Browning, we are gravely informed in a ponderous volume, was an English poetess, better known by the name of Miss Barrett.

Obviously there are other people in a hurry beside Americans. Unlike the latter, those have not the faculty of accurate achievement when they make haste.

The Only English Pope.

Adrian IV. was the only Englishman ever elected pope. He had a most singular name—Nicholas Brakespeare. He is said to have left England as a beggar, and to have become a servant or lay brother in a monastery near Avignon, in France, where he studied with such diligence that in 1137, at the age of 37, he was elected abbot. Pope Eugenius III., that brilliant ascetic, soon discovered his merits and made him a cardinal bishop. In 1154 he was elected pope against his own inclination, and received the formal congratulations of Henry II. It was Adrian IV. who forced Frederick I. of Germany to hold the stirrup while he mounted his horse, though it took two days to make the emperor yield the desired homage. It is said that Frederick prostrated himself before the pope, kissed his foot, held his stirrup and led the white palfrey on which he rode.

Meat Inspection in Germany.

An illustration of hardship resulting from the new German meat inspection law is given by the consul at Bremen. The charges on 20 barrels of boiled pig liver were: Examination, $18; chemical examination, $14.40; examination for trichinae, $60.85; duty, $122.54; total, $234.47. The livers were worth $714. The case being appealed, the secretary of the interior held that these livers weighed less than 12 pounds each, and the new law prohibited their importation absolutely.

GIRLS' BASKET BALL

An Up to Date Game

YOUNG women athletes are now greatly devoted to basket ball. It is one of the most energetic of all the games participated in by feminine college students. These say that girls' basket ball is not so rough as boys', but that it is more scientific. At any rate, the girl who at school learns to throw a basket ball ever afterward knows how to throw a stone and thus, so far as she at least is concerned, refutes one of the traditional charges against her sex.

In point of strenuosity basket ball for girls is what football is to boys' schools. There is hardly anything equal to it for physical development and eye training. It is the favorite game of the strongest and most athletic girls or those determined to become such. And since accidents of any kind have been very rarely reported in the girls' basket ball field there seems every reason to encourage this vigorous game.

The plan of it is not elaborate. There are five players on a side. Four stand in the form of a rectangle, with the fifth girl some distance in front and between the two at the head of the rectangle. These two are called "forwards." The fifth girl in front of them is called the "center," and she must be one of the tallest, sprightest of the whole team. The two players composing the rear of the rectangle are called "backs" or "guards."

The apparatus required is simple, consisting of two baskets and a ball of considerable size. Each side has a basket, and it is fixed upon a board above the heads and back of the two rear guards of the team. The framework back of board is to keep the ball from flying away, likewise to make it rebound when it fails to drop in the basket.

The game consists in hurling the ball into your enemy's basket. That is called "making a goal." Exactly half way between the two center girls stands the referee, so called, and the game begins by the referee throwing the ball straight up into the air. Each center instantly tries to catch the ball and hurl it into the enemy's basket, but the enemy is taking every precaution to prevent this, and the ball comes near the basket the backs who understand their business know how to prevent its dropping in. An expert basket ball player says the tallest girl is usually chosen for the center, the fastest girls are selected for the forwards, while the strongest defensive players and stayers constitute the backs or guards. All the fine fighting and staying qualities of human nature are thus called into play and developed.

Running, dodging, turning, thinking and acting at the same instant and, lastly, correct throwing are the requisites for good basket ball and the accomplishments aimed at in the training. First a team to be in part through running exercises. The girls must also practice catching a ball and holding fast to it, as well as hurling it. The mental qualities the girls develop are, if possible, even more desirable than their physical gain. Of course they are tanned, robust, bright eyed and merry faced and good to look upon, but at the same time they become courageous, resourceful and self dependent in habit of thought. The basket ball girl never has hysterics, and morbid, diseased sentiment has no place in her healthy mind. This is a tremendous acquisition for a member of the feminine sex.

The costume worn in this brave game is the ordinary gymnasium dress, modified slightly. It consists of bloomer trousers and blouse, all entirely loose and unrestricting, the trousers bottoms gathered in by elastics just below the knees. "Done up" hair would have a poor showing in basket ball, so the playbraids her tresses into one plait and usually lets it hang down her back.

The difference between girls' education today and that of fifty years ago can in no way be better appreciated than by a consideration of the present basket ball college girl with the "liver old maiden aunt" of Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes' poem, where—

They pinched her up, they starved her sore,
To make her light and small.

Nearly every natural movement of a girl's body or natural intellectual aspiration was condemned as "unladylike." Now only bad temper, bad manners and bad morals are unladylike.

The Silly Women.

Women sometimes act silly and ecstatic because they think it looks womanly to do so. It does not. It is boyish, the action of a fat, overgrown old baby.

Here is a Jersey version of the problem "How old is Ann:" It Kean has twice as much money as Fowler had when Kean had as much as Fowler has now, will the Republican assembly ticket be elected.

Those who have the ambition to achieve big things in Wall street would do well to study the career of John Alexander Pocksniff Dowie. In his ability to practise upon the credulity of his fellows and make profit of it, the "restorer" is probably without a rival.

They do fanny things over in Jersey City, but the limit has been reached in the present campaign. The managers of one party are giving away fans, while those of the other are distributing lozengers. Why not clinch the vote by giving hubby's better half trading stamps.

In order to facilitate the work of the election officers, it would be well for the voters in the First districts of the Second and Third wards to inspect the voting machine in operating this week at the City Clerk's office in the Smalley building. The machine is on exhibition every evening this week from 8 until 10 o'clock.

The attempt of the Somerset Democrats to drag the annexation question into politics is an unwise one. The proposition has nothing to do with party politics as every one having the least knowledge of the situation well knows. Some of the leading members of the two parties in North Plainfield favor the proposed change while others oppose it.

GOLF AT HILLSIDE IN DRIVING RAIN

Contestants for Golf Committee Cup Made Round of Course on Saturday.

PETERSON LOSES LEAD

J. REEVE STOCKTON WON FIRST HONORS AND NOW RANKS FIRST.

Erickson, Reinhart, Baker, Peterson and Stockton Played the Game in Pouring Rain—Low Scores Made—Standing for Cup.

The only golf in this vicinity on Saturday was at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, where five players braved the elements and competed for honors in the weekly play for the Golf Committee cup. The driving rain had no terrors for the contestants who made the round of the course and succeeded in turning in low scores. As a result of the play Walter Peterson lost his lead for the trophy and he is now in second place with only a half point's difference between his standing and that of H. R. Stockton, who won first honors in Saturday's play.

J. E. Erickson won second honors, with a net score of 79, giving him a total of nine points. The one remaining point was divided between Frank O. Reinhart and J. Whitney Baker, each making a net score of 81, while Mr. Peterson finished last with a net score of 86.

AMUSEMENTS.

"The Best of Friends," one of the greatest melodramas ever written, will be presented by Charles Frohman at the Academy of Music, New York City, on Thursday evening, Oct. 30. It is from the pen of Cecil Raleigh, the most skillful writer of melodrama connected with the modern stage, and it has achieved the distinction of being the biggest scenic as well as dramatic achievement that ever materialized at the Drury Lane Theatre, London, a house famous for its tremendous productions and sensational triumphs in this respect.

Julius Williams, of Plainfield avenue, will return home this week from an extended Western business trip.

William Sebring, Jr., of Boston, Mass., spent Saturday and Sunday in Plainfield with relatives and friends.

THE FIRST BRICK BUILDING

ALBERTI, WHO BUILT IT, NOW OLDEST ACTIVE MAN IN THE STATE.

Lives in New Brunswick—Formerly a Resident of Philadelphia—Interested Here.

Thomas Shipley Alberti, who erected the first brick building in this city, now occupied by A. M. Griffen and others on West Front street, almost opposite Park avenue, is said to be the oldest active man in the State. At a service given especially for old people in the Second M. E. Church in New Brunswick a few weeks ago, Rev. Dr. Shaw, declared that the oldest man present was Mr. Alberti.

Mr. Alberti was a former resident of this city and is very well known here. He makes his home with his son-in-law, Prof. Alfred A. Titsworth, of Rutgers College, New Brunswick, and although 92 years old, visits this city frequently. He was born in Philadelphia and was named after Thomas Shipley, the great abolitionist, who was the brother of Mr. Alberti's mother. He readily recalls his boyhood days, the days when there were no railroads, no coal, no gas, no big buildings, no matches, no other conveniences of today.

The streets of Philadelphia were lighted with oil in those days and a big oil tank occupied the site where the big public building is located today. The slumbers of the night were interrupted at intervals by the town crier, who rapped on the houses or the walks and called out things about the time and the weather.

Mr. Alberti left Philadelphia in 1832 and settled in West Jersey. From there he went to New Market. His only sister was married to Rev. William B. Maxson, who was the pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist Church there. Mr. Alberti taught school in New Market.

Mr. Alberti spent some time in this city, where he was fortunate in real estate transactions and later lived on a farm near that place. He has been retired from active business for some time and has been devoting himself to religious work.

MINISTER SCORES YOUNG GAMBLERS

Rev. John McMurray, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. Church, Speaks on Vice in This City.

GAMBLING IN SOCIETY

CONDEMNS THE PRACTICE OF PLAYING CARDS FOR PRIZES.

Reminds Chief Justice Gummere of Law Against Sunday Baseball Playing — Pastor See Danger Ahead If Vice is Not Checked.

A gambling mania has reached this city and even the fourteen-year-old school boy gambles his spending money away throwing dice, declared Rev. John McMurray in his sermon at the Monroe Avenue M. E. Church last Sunday evening.

Rev. McMurray said that betting is illegal in this country, and in all the kingdoms of Europe with one or two exceptions. In referring to the decision recently handed down by Chief Justice Gummere, wherein he declared that Sunday baseball playing was legal the minister said that the jurist evidently overlooked a recently revised statute wherein it distinctly says that baseball playing, football playing or throwing quoits are unlawful on the Sabbath.

Mr. McMurray declared that in this city it is not a difficult matter to find places where gambling is going on openly. It is not an uncommon thing to find women of society going from house to house playing whist and euchre for prizes and very often for money. The small boy in the school has the gambling fever and from the youngster who carries papers on the street to the sixteen-year-old boy in the lower grades of the high school, all have the gambling fever. They play dice and bet on baseball games and horse races. The police cannot stop this gambling mania, they are too few in number. If it is allowed to continue, unchecked, it will bring about an incipient sort of anarchy which may increase to greater magnitude. Mr. McMurray said that the most effective method of combatting against the gambling habit was to create a public sentiment against it.

LITERARY.

Among the noteworthy books of the autumn is one which will have a special interest for New Jersey people. It is "Laura Bridgman, Dr. Howe's Famous Pupil, and What He Taught Her." It is written by two of Dr. Howe's daughters, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Plainfield, and Mrs. Maud Howe Elliot, and is on the point of being issued by Little, Brown & Co., of Boston. This will be the first recountal of the story of Dr. Howe's labors with Laura Bridgman, the girl with but one sense, that of touch. The doctor's valuable records have been drawn upon for material, and much has been found in Laura Bridgman's own journal and in the accounts of certain of her teachers. Dr. Howe's pioneer experiments have been of the greatest service in the training of deaf mutes, and the book containing a complete record of them is awaited with keen anticipation. It has been said with truth that the way in which Laura Bridgman's "shut in" mind approached the various problems concerning God and immortality will have a profound significance for all thoughtful people.

These transfers of real estate have been recorded in the County Clerk's office at Somerville:

FRELINGHUYSEN RE-ELECTED

SOMERSET COUNTY REPUBLICAN EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE ELECT OFFICERS.

Committeemen Enthusiastic and Already Claim Victory—Dolliver as Youngest Assemblyman.

Joseph Frelinghuysen was chosen chairman of the Somerset County Republican Executive Committee at a meeting held in Somerville Saturday afternoon; A. V. D. VanDyke was elected as vice chairman, Fred Pope, secretary and Daniel Hastings, treasurer. The reports from different parts of the county showed that the Republicans are confident of a victory and were well satisfied with the ticket named. Charles M. Dolliver's chances for election to the Assembly are considered exceptionally good. While Swackhamer has made many friends throughout the county and his vote is considered strong especially among the farmers, Republicans claim that Dolliver has many friends in North Plainfield and about the county.

If Dolliver is elected to office he will be the youngest Assemblyman in the State. New Brunswick and Middlesex County, it is said, had the honor of being represented in the House by the youngest member in the person of "Young Hickory," William H. C. Jackson. If Dolliver is successful North Plainfield will wrest the honor from Middlesex.

ANNEXATION, PARTY SCHEME?

SOMERSET'S DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM SO CHARGES.

Republicans Denounced Generally and Specifically—Trusts Attacked.

Assembled in convention Saturday the Democrats of Somerset County adopted a set of resolutions condemning the Republicans for trying to push through the annexation bill, for providing for two additional township committeemen in counties having a population of 4,500 or more and for the appointment of a road supervisor, and they place at the door of the Republican party the responsibility for making laws of benefit to the Trusts. The resolutions follow:

The Democratic party of Somerset County, in convention assembled, do resolve:

That we commend the action of our representatives in the State Legislature at the last session respecting the attempt of the Republican party to dismember our County, and if reelected, we pledge their hearty opposition to all future attempts of the Republican party in that direction:

We believe in a rigid enforcement of the laws of the State designed to regulate its financial institutions and in the adoption of such measures as will ensure the protection of the depositors and investors therein:

In order that the taxpayers burden shall be confined to municipal necessities and progress and not for the filling of the pockets of unscrupulous and high salaried office holders, we urge the observance of the Democratic doctrine of economy in the management of public affairs.

We lay at the door of the Republican party the responsibility for laws which have made possible the existance of trusts and combinations of capital to such an extent as to prevent competition by persons of moderate means, and which force the laboring man to yield to the imperious will of the corporate powers.

We especially condemn the action of the Republican Legislature at the last session in railroading through laws especially designed to benefit corporations, in burying in committee measure beneficial to taxpayers and their bungling and careless manner of transacting the important business for which elected, thus necessitating the calling of two extra sessions within the year at great expense to the taxpayers.

We denounce the Republican party for acts passed providing for the appointment of road supervisors and for two additional township committeemen in townships having a population of over 4,500 and for road supervisors instead of three township committeemen, thus creating additional offices and extra expense and depriving the farmers of the immemorial custom of working out their taxes on the roads.

We pledge our hearty support and that of our party to the candidates nominated at the convention.

Hallowe'en Parties.

Hallowe'en will be properly celebrated in Plainfield, Saturday night, Oct. 31. Already plans are being formed for several parties in the city and borough.

O. F. C. Defeated.

REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS MAKE MUNICIPAL TICKETS

Bullock, Higham and Murphy, Republicans, and Atterbury, Timpson and Homan, Democrats, Named for Councilmen-At-Large.

SOME EXTRAVAGANCE IS CHARGED

REPUBLICANS RENOMINATE FRANK H. SMITH, FOR TAX COLLECTOR, AND E. N. CAVE, FOR MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

There was a family jar in the Republican city convention held in Reform Hall Monday for the purpose of making nominations to complete the city ticket. The difference of opinion arose over the nomination of one of the councilmen-at-large and it was up to one of the Third ward delegates, Councilman W. S. Tyler, to take the unusual step of nominating a candidate out of his ward.

When nominations for councilmen-at-large were called for H. S. Taylor nominated William Starr Bullock as the representative for the First ward, J. Hervey Doane, from the Second ward, seconded the nomination, and then Mr. Tyler in a somewhat lengthy speech named James F. Buckle as the second nominee. In doing this Mr. Tyler dwelt at some length upon Mr. Buckle's six years of faithful service in the Council and stated that the city could not afford to lose such a servant. He added that he had just seen Mr. Buckle and received from him his assurance that he would accept the nomination with pleasure providing he should receive the unanimous vote of the convention.

"Of all the faithful men who have served the city in the Council," continued Mr. Tyler, "no one has been more faithful than Mr. Buckle. He has had the courage of his convictions and has always stood by them. I don't care who the man may be, there is none better fitted to serve the city's best interest than he. If a public office in the city is a prize to be sought after as such, then I am greatly mistaken in my ideas. A public office is for the city and not the man and it is a confounded shame if it is otherwise."

George J. Tobin, from the same ward, presented the name of J. S. Higham as a candidate. Councilman Robert L. Lee seconded the nomination of J. S. Higham and in return George J. Tobin seconded the nomination of Clarence L. Murphy, the Fourth ward's candidate.

Although not a delegate to the convention, City Clerk J. T. MacMurray took occasion to make a few remarks in which he said that Mr. Buckle is formed him that he did not want another term. He did not doubt but what Mr. Buckle had told Mr. Tyler that he would accept the nomination if it was made unanimous, but when he did he knew full well that he would not get the unanimous vote. He added that he would like to have Mr. Tyler withdraw Mr. Buckle's name, believing that it was too much to ask Mr. Buckle to stand for a second defeat as soon after a first one.

Mr. Tyler then declared he could not believe that Mr. Buckle would be defeated in the convention. "I do not know any of the tricks of politics, I am no politician," said Mr. Tyler, "I only know that I am not pledged. There are certain things that I want to carry out next year and I want Mr. Buckle's assistance."

Then for the purpose of testing the sentiment of the convention he declared, "Is there anyone in this convention who would vote against Mr. Buckle if he receives the nomination?"

Mr. MacMurray took exception to this procedure, stating that it was not a fair test. "There is no such thing as making up your mind beforehand," declared Mr. Tyler, "if it has been practiced here it is an outrage on decency." Mr. MacMurray suggested that Mr. Buckle be brought to the convention to be heard. To this Mr. Tyler objected stating that he wanted him in the Council instead of the convention."

There were nineteen votes cast and this is the result of the ballot: William Starr Bullock, 18; J. S. Higham,

DEMOCRATS SELECT J. V. F. DILTS, FOR TAX COLLECTOR, AND REV. E. N. RODMAN, FOR MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

For councilmen at large, Albert A. Atterbury, Lewis G. Timpson, James P. Homan.

For tax collector, J. V. F. Dilts.

For member of the Board of Education, Rev. Erskine M. Rodman.

This was the ticket chosen, each man by acclamation, by the Democrats in their city convention last Monday at Democratic Hall. Those attending were few in number but determined in spirit. In their resolutions making an appeal for votes, municipal ownership of a water system was advocated and the present Board of Education was attacked for its "extravagance" in proposing to build a new High School at a cost of $135,000. These were the resolutions as drawn up by the committee, J. F. Casey, Daniel Dugan and Sylvester Sharkey:

"The Democrats of the City of Plainfield in convention assembled hereby affirm their devotion to the principles of Thomas Jefferson and pledge their support to the nominees of the Democratic party in this county and city campaigns.

"We hold that rotation in office is both wise in policy and best in results; we believe that long and uninterrupted possession of power by one party is dangerous to the interests of the people; with these thoughts in mind we ask the votes of the citizens of Plainfield for our ticket, pledging our candidates to the economical and honest administration of both State and city government.

"We demand that economy shall be exercised in the expenditure of the people's money; we insist that every boy and girl shall have the benefit of free education, but we oppose and condemn the extravagance of the present school board in many directions and particularly in the proposed construction of a High School at a cost of $135,000. We believe that the sum of $80,000 would be ample for the needs of our city at the present time.

"We favor the municipal ownership of a water system for our city, believing that it would largely reduce our water bills and ultimately prove a large source of revenue to our city.

"We favor competition in all such public utilities as we may not control in order that out citizens may have the benefit of the world's progress at a minimum."

The convention was called to order at 8:30 o'clock by J. V. F. Dilts. Vincent L. France was elected chairman, with Frank Shattis secretary. Andrew Nolan, Joseph Harrigan and Patrick Ravelle were named for the committee on credentials. To the committee on vacancies, A. J. Nolan, Clinton Shannon and Sylvester Sharkey were elected. About the only enthusiasm aroused by the nomination of candidates was when the names of Mr. Dilts and Mr. Atterbury were presented. The Democratic ward candidates for the Common Council named at the primaries are Fred S. Cutter, First ward; Francis L. Montgomery, Second ward; Walter F. Manning, Third ward, and James L. Stryker, Fourth ward.

After the business of the convention was concluded, Chairman France called upon Mr. Atterbury, Mr. Dilts and James E. Martine for remarks. Mr. Atterbury said that the tide of public sentiment was certain to turn sooner or later in favor of the Democrats and that it was the duty of every true Democrat to stand for office when called upon, without regard to the fact that the immediate outlook might be unpromising. Mr. Dilts advised that no concessions be made to any factions of the Republican party and announced his personal determination of going in to win. He said that the Democrats need not depend upon any faction of the opposing party to help them to victory.

James E. Martine, without whom no Democratic convention in Plainfield would be complete and who was warmly greeted, spoke briefly and encouragingly. He stated the wisdom of the principles embodied in the resolutions adopted, urged opposition to the domination of John Kean and stigmatized as corrupt his use of money to attain his ends. He also paid his compliments to Roosevelt in his dealings with Former Senator Addicks, of Delaware.

BASKET BALL BEGINS.

Local Y. M. C. A. to Play the National Champions Friday Night.

The opening game of the basket ball season on Friday night of this week will be one of the big games of the year. The local Y. M. C. A. team will have for opponents the National champion five, the Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A., of New York. It has been made possible to secure this game by the fact that the New York team will not enter upon its regular season until Nov. 1. Manager Heywood has been especially favored because he was formerly connected with the Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A. The New York team has held the National championship for the past six years. The local association team will hold practice Tuesday and Thursday nights of this week at 7:30 o'clock.

Changes Almost Completed.

The changes at police headquarters are almost completed. A partition extending to the ceiling has been built between the court room and the cells which are now all in place. The court room has been made larger by the removal of the gateway to a position nearer the door and the judge's desk and platform has been moved to the side of the building on the left of the entrance. Small lockers, six to correspond with the number of cells, have been placed opposite the cells, their purpose being to contain the belongings of the prisoners.

Church Concert.

Preparations are being made for a concert to be given at the Congregational Church, early in December, under the direction of the organist, Mrs. B. T. Barnes. Lezox Barnes, of New York, who sang at the special service held at the church last Sunday, will be the baritone soloist.

Judge Collins on Temperance.

Judge E. R. Collins, of Westfield, delivered an excellent temperance address at Monday's rally of the Reform Club. At tonight's meeting the speaker will be John F. Brown, superintendent of the 146th street mission, of New York, and a worker in the Doyer street mission.

ONLY THIRTY-FIVE CENTS AND A PIECE OF PAPER IN MAN'S POCKET.

Described as an Irishman About Forty Years of Age—Gray-Mixed Hair, Cut Short, and Dark Mustache—Black Trousers.

An unknown man having in his clothes a piece of paper torn from a note book bearing the words, "Frank Rowan in care of Thomas O'Donald," was struck by an East bound fast freight Tuesday a. m. at 2:20 o'clock at the Broad street crossing in Westfield. The man was apparently struck in the head. He was discovered dead by a night watchman. Dr. Weston't, county physician, took charge of the body and delivered it over to George W. Cole, to be placed in the morgue of this city.

The man was about forty years old, with gray mixed hair cut short, and a dark moustache. He wore black trousers, a blue checked coat, black outing shirt, white undergarments and black socks. Thirty-five cents in money was found on his person, besides the paper with the names. A tattoo mark on his left wrist was prominent. The man's clothes were in fairly good condition and were evidently those of a laborer or machinist. He was an Irishman.

The Plainfield and Westfield directories contain the names of neither Rowan nor O'Donald.

SEVERAL BURGLARIES REPORTED TO POLICE

Small Amount of Booty Obtained by Thieves in This City and in Dunellen.

NO CLUES TO WORK ON

SUPPOSED THAT BURGLARIES WERE COMMITED BY LOCAL MEN.

The Residences of Daniel Manning, L. B. Morgan and Geo. VanNess Entered—In Dunellen They Worked at Homes of Dineen and Bodine.

There were several burglaries in the western end of the city and Dunellen on Saturday night, but in a majority of cases, the thieves obtained little for their trouble. Owing to the nature of the operations it is believed that local people are guilty of the invasion, although the police have no clue.

The thieves entered the homes of Daniel Manning and L. B. Morgan, but before they could get anything were frightened away. Mr. Morgan's son have the intruders a lively chase, but could not catch them. At this house as well as at the one of Mr. Manning, entrance was effected by lifting a window with a stout stick.

The next place entered was the home of George VanNess on Clinton avenue. Here the thieves were more successful. They bagged a silver dollar and a silver watch and made their escape without being detected. It is also reported that they entered the house of Daniel S. Pound, of West Fifth street.

From VanNess's home the thieves went to Dunellen, where they effected an entrance to the houses of Charles H. Dineen and Thomas C. Bodine. They got nothing at Mr. Dineen's home, where they were frightened away, but from Mr. Bodine's house they stole a gold watch and a considerable sum of money. In each case where things were stolen the fact was not discovered until Sunday morning.

MELLICK TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

A Wealthy Farmer, at Oak Tree, Ended His Career While Insane.

BULLET IN HIS HEART

Body Found on Frazee Farm—Searching Parties Scour Woods —Dead Man Suffered From Carbuncle on Wrist—Was Thirty-One Years Old.

Dayton Mellick, a wealthy farmer living near Oak Tree, ended his life by shooting himself through the heart early Thursday morning, while suffering from temporary insanity from the intense pain caused by a carbuncle on the wrist. Searching parties scoured the woods all day for the man when it became known that he had disappeared. His body was found at 5:30.

He arose at 5 o'clock in the morning and went out to the barns to supervise the milking of the cows and the shipment of the milk to this city. His wife and children were in the house when he re-entered. He went to his room and brought down his pistol, which he always carried when he went to the fields. A little while afterwards several neighbors came in and said they had seen Mr. Mellick going towards Frazee's farm.

Fearing that something was wrong, Mrs. Mellick organized searching parties and all day yesterday the woods were scoured. The entire country in that locality was searched but it was not until 3 o'clock that the body was found in a marsh with a bullet wound in the chest. The pistol, still clenched in the dead man's hand, told the story only too plainly.

There was every indication that the dead man planned his death with much care. He had dug a small grave for himself and then wiped the mud from his hands on some grass. His coat and underclothing had been pushed aside and the black powder marks about the wound showed that the muzzle of the gun had been placed close to his chest. That death was instantaneous was shown by the fact that there were no signs about the secluded spot to prove that he had died in agony.

Mr. Mellick was the wealthiest farmer living in that locality. At one time his relatives owned the property now within the limits of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club are now located. He owned several fine properties in Jersey City which brought him in a handsome income monthly.

He is survived by his wife, Carrie VanNess and two children, Grace and Howard, who live at Oak Tree. He is the son of William Mellick, of Mt. Pleasant.

The funeral was held at his late residence Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The dead man was thirty-one years of age.

MISS ALIDA MOONEY MARRIED MR. DEAN

Scotch Plains Young Woman Wedded at Home of Her Sister, Mrs. Walker.

EPISCOPAL CEREMONY

REV. GEORGE ANGLENAN, OF PIERMONT, N. Y., OFFICIATES.

One Hundred and Fifty Guests Present — Couple to Reside in Summit — The Bridal Party —Pretty Affair.

One of the prettiest of October home weddings was celebrated Thursday, at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Ira O. Walker, Scotch Plains, when Alida Henrietta Mooney, daughter of Mrs. Charles M. Mooney, became the wife of William Searle Dean, of Summit. The event united two of the oldest families in this section of the State. The bride is a descendant of one of the pioneer families of Scotch Plains, and the groom is a lineal descendant of one of the early families of Summit. His father is the oldest original resident of Summit and still occupies the house which has been the family homestead for the past 150 years.

The home was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers. Promptly at 6 o'clock, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, Miss Laura E. Batchelor, a niece of the groom, presiding at the organ, the bride's party marched through the reception room and library to the parlor. Here they were met by the groom and his best man, Otis D. Batchelor. Preceding the bridal party were the ushers, Messrs. Edmond and Herbert Mooney, brothers of the bride, Hillis Eldridge Walker, her niece, as flower girl and her sister, Mrs. Walker, maid-of-honor. In the parlor the happy party was met by Rev. George Angleman, of Piermont, N. Y., an old friend of the bride's family and formerly pastor of the Methodist Church.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, John Mooney, was gowned in white lansdowne and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses, the bridal veil being looped back with lillies-of-the-valley. The matron-of-honor was gowned in blue and wore and carried pink roses. Little Ethelwyn was also gowned in blue, and carried a basket of the bride's favorite flowers.

At the close of the Episcopal ceremony, the bride and groom received congratulations and best wishes from about 150 guests at the wedding supper, which was served by Newbrugger, of Elizabeth. During the enjoyment, Mr. and Dean left amid a shower of old shoes and rice for their honeymoon. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Dean will reside at 121 Morris avenue, Summit, where a furnished house awaits them. Many handsome gifts were received by the bride who has long been a member and prominent worker in the Methodist Church and Sunday-school.

TRINITY COMMANDERY AT HEAD OF LINE

Plainfield Knights Receive Great Ovation at Templars' Field Day Festivities.

GALLA TIME AT SHORE

FIELD DAY MAY BE HELD HERE TWO YEARS HENCE.

Grand Generalissimo Jacob Kirkner Escorted With Grand Commander D. C. Adams by the Local Sir Knights.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., of this city, carried off the honors at the annual field day of the New Jersey jurisdiction of Knights Templar, held at Atlantic City, Oct. 14, much to the gratification of the local Sir Knights, and especially to Grand Commander Daniel C. Adams, of North Plainfield.

The trip to Atlantic City and return was made in a special train composed of four new vestibuled coaches of the latest pattern, drawn by the fastest engine on the New Jersey Central. The Plainfield party was made up of 157 people, of which number forty-three were members of Trinity Commandery. The others were wives and friends of the Sir Knights, and the Crescent Military Band, of Raritan. Nelson Y. Dungan, as captain general, had charge of Trinity Commandery in the parade, although Samuel Bingaman, as eminent commander, commanded the Sir Knights. It was 11:20 when the special train arrived at Atlantic City. Grand Commander Daniel C. Adams and Grand Generalissimo Jacob Kirkner were escorted to the Hotel Rudolf, where the Grand Commander had its headquarters, while Trinity Commandery and its friend went to the Hotel Beaumont, where dinner was served.

After dinner there was the parade, and by reason of the fact that the grand commander is a Plainfielder Hugh Payne Commandery, of Jersey City, gracefully gave way and allowed Trinity Commandery to take the right of line. The Sir Knights from this city received one grand ovation from the beginning to end.

It is estimated that there were about 1,000 Sir Knights in line and those who have witnessed other similar affairs consider it to be the most successful. It is quite likely that two years from now the field day will be celebrated in Plainfield, when it is probable that Jacob Kirkner will occupy the position now held by Dr. Adams.

The Plainfield delegation left Atlantic City at 7:30 and arrived home at 11:40. There was a little delay on the return journey occasioned by a hot box due to the fact that the coaches were brand new. However, the New Jersey Central was complimented for the very efficient manner in which it provided for the trip of the Plainfield people.

"Prof." Ernest Austin, of this city, accompanied the delegation and looked after the baggage of the Sir Knights.

AMUSEMENTS.

E. H. Sothern opens the new Empire Theatre, Broadway and Fortieth street, tonight, in "The Proud Prince." The fame of the piece reached New York ahead of the company and a great reception is expected to be given it as the remodeled play house tonight. The interior arrangements and decorations of the theatre are the subject of much favorable comment.

"Babes in Toyland" opens tonight at the Majestic Theatre. It is a new musical extravaganza by Hamlin & Mitchell with William Norris and his company of fifteen in the roles. Victor Herbert is the composer of the catchy music.

Richard Mansfield in "Old Heidelberg" is the attraction at the Lyric this week. The name of Mansfield, the dean of American actors, is sufficient guarantee that the play will be witnessed by crowded houses and it would be well for Plainfielders to order seats in advance.

Frances Wilson is coming to town with "Erminie," which means genuine enjoyment for Casino theatregoers, who are sure to take advantage of this opportunity to witness a performance of the classic comic opera by the most famous light opera artists now before the public. Mr. Wilson and his big organization of 100 people are announced for an engagement positively limited to four weeks. Although Francis Wilson has a great number of successes to his credit during his career as a star, the first and foremost of these is acknowledged to be his matchless characterization of the part of Cadeaux in "Erminie."

George Bird, of West Second street, who has been visiting Somerville friends, has returned home.

DAVID WIKOFF WEDS MISS M. ERMA GREENE

Ceremony Takes Place at the Home of Bride's Mother, Mrs. Eva W. Greene.

REFORMED CEREMONY

REV. A. F. TODD, OF DUNELLEN, OFFICIATES—THIRTY GUESTS PRESENT.

Miss M. Catharine Jones Bridesmaid—A Philadelphian as Best Man—The Couple to Reside in Quaker City—On Honeymoon.

The marriage of Miss M. Erma Greene, daughter of Mrs. Eva W. Greene, of Lee place, and David Cole Wikoff, of Philadelphia, was celebrated October 14, at 7 o'clock at the bride's home. Rev. A. F. Todd, of Dunellen, officiated, using the brief service of the Reformed church. The groom was a life-long resident of Plainfield up to six months ago, when he left a position with the Fond Machine Tool Company for one with the William Cramp & Son Ship and Engine Building Company, of Philadelphia.

The bride was gowned in pink satin with Irish point lace and medallions and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. She was attended by Miss M. Catharine Jones, of this city, the bridesmaid, who was dressed in blue silk mulle with Irish point lace and with a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums. The flower girl, Miss Marguerite Leonard, of Tar City, Pa., wore a white silk gown and carried a basket of white chrysanthemums.

W. A. Riggs, Jr., secretary of the Kensington branch of the Y. M. C. A., of Philadelphia, was best man, and Frank Throne and Irving DeHart, of this city, were ushers. Mrs. Irving DeHart played the usual wedding marches.

The house decorations were appropriate to an autumn wedding. The parlor, where the ceremony was performed, was decorated in green and white with white chrysanthemums predominating. In the dining room, where an elaborate marriage feast followed the ceremony, the color scheme was green and red, with beautiful fall foliage prominent.

The bride received many handsome gifts, among them the gift from her brother of a deed to a valuable piece of property in one of the pretty suburbs of Philadelphia. A brooch set with pearls and diamonds was the groom's gift to the bride. The groom presented his best man with a handsome stick pin and the bridesmaid with a moonstone ring.

About thirty members of the immediate families and near friends witnessed the ceremony, most of them coming from Plainfield and Pennsylvania. Mr. and Mrs. Wikoff will reside in Philadelphia following a wedding trip which will include Washington.

Rev. Dr. W. O. Nelson, of Nutley, who has been visiting friends in Plainfield and the borough for several days, has returned home.

INTELLIGENCE OF PLANTS.

They Are Endowed with Sort of Sense by Which Their Movements Are Guided.

Prof. Shaler, of Harvard university, is of the opinion that plants are possessed of intelligence that serves the purpose of self-protection and self-gratification to a very considerable degree. Recently after discussing the automata observed in growing things he said:

"We may accept the statement that our higher intelligence is but the illuminated summit of man's nature as true, and extend it by the observation that intelligence is normally unconscious, and appears as conscious only after infancy, in our waking hours, and not always then." In summing up the professor uses the following sentences: "Looking toward the organic world in the manner above suggested, seeing that an unprejudiced view of life affords no warrant for the notion that automata anywhere exist, tracing as we may down the lowest grade of the animal series what is fair evidence of actions which we have to believe to be guided by some form of intelligence, seeing that there is reason to conclude that plants are derived from the same primitive stock as animals, we are in no condition to say that intelligence is not exist among them. In fact, all that we can discern supports the view that throughout the organic realm the intelligence that finds its fullest expression in man is everywhere at work."

EYES ACT INDEPENDENTLY.

The Optics of Some Animals Are Remarkable for Their Singular Power.

The eyes of an animal can only work together when they can be brought to bear upon an object at the same time; so that, as a rule, the eyes of a fish must work more or less independently, says Nature. This is sometimes also the case when the eyes can cooperate, as anyone who watches a plaice or other flat-fish in an aquarium will soon discover.

This is true, too, of the curious bulging optics of a chameleon, which roll round, swivelwise, in a somewhat aimless manner. When they do converge it is bad for the insect upon which they fix themselves.

Many animals possess more than three eyes, which do not all act together. A leech, for example, has ten eyes on the top of its head, which do not work in concert, and a kind of nautilus worm has two eyes on the head and a row down each side of the body. Some lizards have an extra eye on the top of the head, which does not act with the other two. A bee or wasp has two large compound eyes, which possibly help each other, and are used for near vision, and also three little simple eyes on the top of the head, which are employed for seeing things a long way off.

THE BOX CATCHER.

Like the Ball Player Wears Gloves, But of a Different Design and Finish.

Ball players are not the only men who wear gloves for the protection of their hands in catching. The men who receive from the box factory the empty packing boxes are very likely to wear gloves, too, in catching the boxes as they are thrown to them, says the New York Sun.

A truckload of such boxes is backed up to the curve and unloaded by throwing the boxes from the truck to the building across the sidewalk.

In catching a load of small wooden boxes the catcher may have hundreds to catch, one after another, right along in a stretch—the mere catching of so many is quite a feat—and gloves are a good thing to wear in the work. But as the boxes are tossed at him, easily, not violently thrown, the box catcher does not, like the ball player, wear padded gloves to protect himself from impact and shock, but just good, stout buckskin gloves to protect his hands from being cut by box corners or torn by nail heads and by slivers.

Cellar Dairies in New York.

"There are a large number of cellar dairies in New York," said an inspector in the health department, reports the Times, "and it is our duty to see that they are kept clean and wholesome. Much of the butter marked 'Finetock Farm,' or something of that sort, never was off Manhattan island. It is churned in the cellars right under the shops where, in glass refrigerators, it is temptingly displayed in pats, looking as though they had been wrapped up by a plump and pretty dairymaid. A large proportion of the buttermilk sold in dairy restaurants is made right on the premises, and as much of it from milk that has been allowed to become a little too old as from milk that has been churned."

Perpetual Electric Light.

A Chicago inventor has discovered a process of manufacturing a 36-candle power light that will never go out. While experimenting with photographic chemicals four years ago, his attention was attracted by a dim glow in a small globe. The glow was caused by a chemical which the inventor keeps secret. He enlarged the glow and perfected the light by placing it in an air-tight glass. He says there is no reason why the light will not remain brilliant forever, if it is not broken. A company has been formed to manufacture the lights in numerous sizes. A patent hood fits over the globe, and covers it completely when the light is not needed.

Garments of Corosse.

The Corean government has ordered that all Coreans, without regard to rank or class, should not wear clothes except of a blue or dark color.

BEER BOTTLE HOUSE.

Unique Residence Built by a Resourceful Miner in a Treeless Nevada Town.

Tonopah, Nev., aside from being famed on account of its vast mineral resources, also occupies the unique distinction of numbering among its inhabitants a man who is able to live in a glass house and throw unlimited quantities of stones at the same time without suffering any of the serious inconveniences popularly supposed to surround such an association.

Not a tree grows within 60 miles of the great mining camp, and very naturally building material and fuel bring all sorts of fancy prices, the commonest kind of lumber selling for $65 per thousand feet, while inferior grades of scrub cedar command $22 a cord. Consequent upon this condition, various subterfuges are resorted to in the architectural makeup of Tonopah. There are houses made of straw, of burlap sacks trimmed with blue jean overalls, of tin from five-gallon oil cans; of dry goods and cracker box lumber; of mud, stones, tents, cloth—in fact, almost every sort of contrivance is resorted to as a makeshift for a place of habitation; but it has remained for William F. Peck, a miner, to devise a house in a class by itself.

He has constructed of empty beer bottles a house 16 by 20 feet in the clear, with ceilings eight feet high, and containing two rooms. It was built in October of last year by Mr. Peck entirely unaided, at such odd moments as he could spare from his regular duties in the mine. Water was then selling at $1.50 a barrel, hence the principal element of expense centered in the supply of mud that was employed as a mortar between the bottles comprising the edifice.

Ten thousand empty beer bottles were incorporated in the structure. The inside walls are plastered with mortar which is spread to a depth sufficient to cover the protruding bottle necks, thus making a smooth surface.

Mr. Peck lived all last winter in his peculiar abode with his wife and two children, a girl of seven and a boy of three years, and says that while the water in many residences of Tonopah reached the freezing point quite often, his family found their glass house exceedingly comfortable at all times. He has sufficient bottles on hand for another room, and it is his intention to utilize them at his leisure in building an addition to his premises.

Mr. Peck removed with his family from Prescott, Ariz., to Tonopah, last winter, and it is quite evident he will get along all right wherever his lot may be cast.

BISHOP SCHWEBACH.

Head of La Crosse (Wis.) Diocese Will Probably Be Chosen Archbishop of Milwaukee.

the Roman Catholic church. He is a native of the duchy of Luxemburg, 56 years old and a graduate of the seminary of St. Francis. He was ordained a deacon by the late Archbishop Heiss, and under Bishop Flasch was for several years the vicar general of the diocese. Bishop Schwebach is quite well known and greatly liked by the Protestant denominations in that part of the state. The probability of his being chosen as the successor of Archbishop Katzer is a matter of self-congratulation for the people of the diocese.

Understands His Business.

A photographer in Berlin has won the title of "darling" from the middle-aged ladies of that city. When taking a picture of a lady of advanced age, he places thin sheets of celluloid between the negative and the printing paper, thus producing a very softening effect, which hides the ravages of time.

PLAINFIELD GROOM FOR RAHWAY BRIDE

Geoege Mantz Marries Miss Elizabeth Harris at Home of Bride's Parents.

JOHN MANTZ BEST MAN

BERTHOLD J. SCHREINER AND J. HENRY CRANE AS USHERS.

One Hundred Guests Present — Honeymoon in Washington, D. C.—Mr. and Mrs. Mantz to Reside in This City.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Harris, of Rahway, and George Mantz, of East Fifth street, took place October 14, at 7 o'clock at the bride's home on Grand street, Rahway. It was a home affair at which there were about a hundred guests, including many from this city, New Brunswick and Rahway.

The ceremony took place in the front parlors of the house where, beneath a large bank of palms and ferns, they plighted their troth. The maid-of-honor was Miss Ida Harris, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaid was Miss Belle Harris, of New Brunswick, a niece of the bride. The Misses Clara Neuman and Nina Du Four were flower girls and Miss Ethel Neuman and Miss Agnes Mantz were ribbon girls. The best man was John Mantz, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Berthold J. Schreiner and J. Henry Crane, both of this city.

The entrance to the parlor was effected through a ribboned aisle leading from the back parlor and hallway. The bridal couple were preceded by the flower girls and other attendants to the front room where they halted beneath the palms. The bride wore a gown of white Liberty satin over white taffeta trimmed with Escurial lace. A tulle veil fell over her shoulders and formed a train. The bridesmaid was gowned in the same material.

A reception was held after the ceremony and shortly after 10 o'clock the bride and groom left for a wedding trip to Washington, where they will spend a short honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside in this city on East Fifth street.

The groom was president of the Bachelor's Club and is the first member to sever his connection with the organization through marriage. A large part of the club's membership attended the wedding in a body.

PLAINFIELD PASTOR OFFICIATES.

Rev. Dr. Schenck Performs Wedding Ceremony at Bound Brook.

Miss Christina Weber, daughter of George Weber, of Bound Brook, and Clark Weiss, of Bloomfield, were married October 14, at the home of the bride in the presence of a number of relatives and friends. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed Church, officiated. The home was decorated with flowers and autumnal foliage. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served, when the couple left to enjoy a honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside at Bloomfield, where the groom is engaged in business as an electrical engineer.

VOTING MACHINES O. K.

Secretary Davis Says They Cannot be Tampered With.

Secretary Seward Davis, of the New Jersey Voting Machine Commission, does not take any stock in the story which comes from Indianapolis to the effect that the new voting machines can be made to "repeat." He thinks the story was inspired by some rival voting machine company.

"The Standard machines," said Secretary Davis, "have been in use sixteen years and have stood every test successfully. They cannot be tampered with unless an entire election board were in collusion with voters, and in such a case no machine ever built could withstand a conspiracy to defraud. But it would be morally impossible for such conditions to arise anywhere at an election.

"Edward L. Phillips, who is president of the New Jersey Voting Machine Commission, is an engineer of thirty years' experience and a graduate of Cornell. He personally put the Standard voting machine to every test possible, and not the slightest defect was discovered. The machines are as perfect as human ingenuity can make them, and mistakes in the casting or counting of votes are impossible."

Miss Annie Cooper, of this city, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Galvin, of Raritan.

F. C. Langhorne and family, of Putnam avenue, have taken up their residence at "Troell Court."

Miss Geneva Miner, of Freeport, L. I., is a guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Morse, of Franklin place.

C. L. MOFFETT NOMINATED

Plainfield Delegates Protest at Elizabeth's Action in Naming Him for Assembly.

EXCITING CONVENTION

Joseph Gunn and Joseph Hague Are Moffett's Colleagues on Democratic Assembly Ticket in Union County — Chairman Moody Scores Mr. Hall.

Declaring that the action did "great injustice to Plainfield" and was "very undemocratic," Andrew Nolan, chairman of the local delegation, protested against the nomination of Charles L. Moffett, at the Union County Democratic convention at the Lyceum theatre in Elizabeth Thursday. As a reason for his surprising position, Mr. Nolan said that Mr. Moffett declined to be a candidate. Robert H. McAdams, of the Eleventh ward of Elizabeth, placed Mr. Moffett in nomination in a ringing speech before Plainfield was called. Replying to Nolan's vigorious objection, an Elizabeth delegate shouted "It looks very strange that Plainfield should make such a statement." Moffett was nominated unanimously, however, and his name was greeted with much applause by the county Democrats. When the vote was being cast, Mr. Nolan said: "While I know that Mr. Moffett will not stand for that nomination as sure as I am standing here, yet we cast the entire vote of Plainfield for him. We do protest against the way he was put in nomination." The candidate, upon whom the Fowler people here count to defeat W. T. Kirk, the Republican nominee, did not appear at the convention.

Joseph G. Gunn, of Springfield township, nominated by County Chairman John Moody in an able speech, and Joseph T. Hague, of Elizabeth, a member of the board of education, were unanimously named as Mr. Moffett's colleagues on the assembly ticket. Dr. Alfred E. Linden, Jr., of Elizabeth, was selected as the candidate for coroner. County Chairman Moody called the convention to order and announced John L. Crowell, of Rahway, as temporary chairman, the selection subsequently being made permanent. In the makeup of the committees these Plainfielders were selected: Credentials, J. F. Dilts; resolutions, F. J. Shattle; and Andrew Nolan on vacancies. A. H. Atterbury and James E. Martine were among those selected as vice presidents. In nominating Gunn, Mr. Moody scored a certain Republican assemblyman saying that the Democratic candidate would not need to be taken home on a shutter and would represent moral decency. After the nominations were all made the Plainfield delegation, under Nolan, started in again to protest and the chair shut Vincent W. Frazee off by giving others the floor and finally an Elizabeth delegate made a motion that the old standby, James E. Martine, make his customary convention speech.

Mr. Martine attacked the Republican administration in the State for its recent blunders and finally paid his respects to Assemblyman Hall. The farmer-orator declared that "the only thing that Hall has ever done was to do 'Ham' Kane." He declared that the "captains of industry," Morgan and Schwab, are captains of piracy. When he had concluded, Mr. Hague made a neat speech thanking the convention for the honor done him.

The platform decries the violation of the laws by great corporations and moneyed interests and points to the dominent influence of these bodies controlling public utilities in political affairs. It charges that the Republican party is subservient to these interests and that it assists them in violating the laws. Public ownership of public utilities is strongly advocated as is the enactment of an eight-hour day law and the equalization of taxes. It condemns State interference in municipal affairs.

Grace George, whose engagement in "Pretty Peggy" was one of the big successes of last season, is now presenting that play with great eclat at the Madison Square, New York. The house is crowded at every performance and there seems to be every prospect of business continuing as large as it was before the interruption of the run. Mr. Brady is said to have outdone himself in making what the New York Herald called "a scholarly and lavish presentment." The four settings utilized were painted by Moses & Hamilton. Miss George, always charming and pretty, does the best work of her life in the title role, while her supporting company includes Robert Loraine, the young English actor who created the part of Rudolph Rassendyll in London, and 200 others.

REORGANIZATION OF LEAGUE

BOWLING CLUBS TO CONTINUE CONTEST FOR THE DAILY PRESS CUP

A Meeting to be Held October 30—Some Changes Planned.

The Daily Press Bowling League will be re-organized at a meeting called for Friday, October 30, by President S. C. Greaves, of Roselle. The place of meeting will be The Daily Press office. A schedule will be drawn up and officer elected. The question will be brought up of the advisability of doubling the number of games usually on the schedule.

Roselle Casino and Westfield have each won The Daily Press trophy twice and this, together with the fact that the team winning the championship three times secures permanent possession of the cup, makes the interest this year high. Practice has already begun at Roselle. Westfield will have the same five that won the championship for her last year and should make another strong bid for leading honors.

The game promises to be more popular than ever at the Park Club, where it is expected that F. O Ball, one of the cleverest bowlers in the city, will captain the team. Practise at the Park Club will begin as soon as the alleys are ready, probably early in November.

Rev. and Mrs. George Angleman, of Piermont, N. Y., have returned home after a visit of several days with Plainfield relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, of Canada, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. David Ryno, of East Second street, have returned home.

Miss Minnie Williams, of Sandford avenue, who sustained injuries a few weeks ago through a fall down stairs, continues to improve.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 28. "Civic Righteousness"—Text, Deut. i, 17; II Sam. xxiii, 3; Ps. ii, 10.

"He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God."

Stable government can find no other basis than this. Whatever its form, whether monarchy, aristocracy or democracy, security and permanence can be obtained only as those who rule, discover and put in operation the eternal principles of justice, truth and righteousness. Napoleon Bonaparte may declare that God is on the side of the strongest battalions. He may even be confident that he has the strongest and is invincible. St. Helena will give him time for reflection on the causes of Waterloo. He may even frame eight or nine different theories to account for his defeat. Men may think it was the illegibility of his writing, causing his officers to mistake his orders, and, after all, the only sufficient explanation of his defeat lies in the fact that he relied on the genius and destiny of Napoleon Bonaparte and had greater regard for him than for Almighty God. That he has yet discovered his error who can declare? Others have recognized it. We have and thank God.

Well did Alexander Hamilton say, "The love and fear of God are indeed the keystone of the political arch." No state can long stand which is rotten within. This truth is of more vital importance to our own nation possibly than to most others at the present time. We are attempting government by the people as a whole. But government is both a science and an art built upon the science. Intelligence and integrity are indispensable requisites in those who rule. Omit either and that state or nation is doomed. Riches and strength may postpone its fall for a time, but its doom is sealed, its overthrow is inevitable.

REV. DR. WYCKOFF AT TRINITY CHURCH

Minister Speaks of Missionary Work in India Before Reformed Congregration.

PEOPLE AND CUSTOMS

GOOD RESULTS BROUGHT ABOUT BY EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS.

Population More Than Six Times Denser Than That of the United States—600,000 Converts Made in the Last Ten Years.

From his experience of twenty years in the mission service in India, and from his natural gifts as a speaker, Rev. Dr. John Wyckoff was enabled to hold closely the attention of two large congregations at the Trinity Reformed Church Sunday. He had a vastly interesting subject upon which to speak and he treated it in a vastly interesting manner.

Dr. Wyckoff referred to the wide extent of territory covered by the Christian missions in India and said that the population was more than six times denser than that of the United States. His own mission is as large as Somerset and Hunterdon Counties combined.

The educational work in India was the theme of the greater part of Dr. Wyckoff's discourse, there having taken place in that land during the last seventy years, according to him, the grandest educational efforts that the world has ever seen. This educational work has resulted in the adoption of English instead of Sanskrit as the official language; and has greatly relaxed the restrictions and harshness of the terrible system of caste. It has brought about the founding of colleges and schools for the native Hindus who, once brought under the spell of the Christian religion, have been eager in the study of the lessons of the Bible.

In connection with his remarks about the schools as levellers of caste, the speaker alluded to the fact that there are 200 distinct castes in India; that members of one caste cannot eat, drink or intermarry with members of another caste; and that natives of one of the lower castes are made abjectly subservient to those of a higher caste.

The results of this vicious system have been greatly mitigated by the missionaries with their schools and churches. Dr. Wyckoff read a hymn, couched in beautiful and devout language and written by a native Hindu. He quoted statistics of the schools and said that the number of native Christians had been increased by 600,000 souls in the last decade.

In the afternoon at the Sunday-school exercises, Dr. Wyckoff exhibited many interesting souvenirs of his mission work including specimens of the dress of the women and children of India.

At the evening's service, Dr. Wyckoff's subject was "India: Its People and Their Customs."

REPUBLICAN SMOKER.

Much Enthusiasm Among the Members of the Plainfield Republican Club.

While the disagreeable weather of Saturday night affected to some degree the attendance at the smoker of the Republican Club, in the Babcock building, there was plenty of enthusiasm. There were about twenty-five members out and the chances of the G. O. P. ticket at the coming election was discussed at some length. Everyone promised to give his undivided support to the entire ticket. The club decided to keep the rooms open every night until after election, and a cordial invitation is extended to all persons interested in the success of the Republican ticket to visit the place.

Successful Cake Sale.

A successful cake sale was held Saturday afternoon in the parish house of the Church of the Holy Cross for the benefit of the Missionary Society of the church. About $25 was realized and the patronage was good considering the inclemency of the weather. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Mrs. W. Montgomery Downey, Mrs. William Westphal and Mrs. A. S. Faber.

Carpenters Want Raise.

After thanking his constituents for placing him in nomination, he said the welcome with which he was received was a strong indorsement of his services. Also the representation of Somerset County in the last Legislature.

"If I should be re-elected," he said, "I shall pursue the same course in the Legislature as heretofore. I will endeavor by every possible means to guard the rights of the people of Somerset County and prevent such legislation as I should consider injurious to their interests.

"That is the only pledge a representative of the people should be called upon to make and I believe it is the duty of a public servant to stand independent and unpledged except to a faithful performance of those high and sacred duties which are imposed by a public trust."

EMPIRE WILL PROFIT

Joseph Chamberlain Again Advocated His Fiscal Policy.

A NATIONAL, NOT A PARTY QUESTION

Commercial Preference Was the Only Method of Binding the Outlying Colonies to the Mother Country.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Joseph Chamberlain addressed an enthusiastic meeting of 4,000 persons at Newcastle, it being his first public appearance since his recent illness.

The former colonial secretary devoted considerable attention to ridiculing Lord Rosebery, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and Earl Spencer. Speaking seriously, Mr. Chamberlain said he had not raised a party, but rather a national question. He was willing to answer seriously the points raised by man like Lord Goschen and H. H. Asquith. He had not proclaimed that his system could be instituted without costing anything at the start, but he did urge that taxation be transferred from points where it benefited nobody to points where the empire would profit. If the country had done well in the past it was not because of free trade. Mr. Chamberlain said he was not standing before his hearers because he had had the gout, but in spite of it.

Replying to the charge that he had based his whole system on the boom year of 1872, Mr. Chamberlain said his opponents would find if they took the five year periods working back from 1875 that these would show better still for his side of the case, and he went at length into statistics with the view of proving this contention. He said he did not claim that the empire would break up immediately if his system was not adopted, but there was already a certain tendency toward cleavage, and commercial preference was the only method of binding the colonies to the mother country.

The colonies contained 11,000,000 whites who had offered to make sacrifices if necessary in order to build up an empire such as the world has not yet seen. The United Kingdom should not turn a deaf ear to such an offer and thereby lose a chance which, if now neglected, never would recur.

CONGRESS CALLED.

President Issues Proclamation Naming Nov. 9 For Session.

"Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States of America, by virtue of the powers vested in me by the constitution, do hereby proclaim and declare that an extraordinary occasion requires the convening of both houses of the congress of the United States at their respective chambers in the city of Washington on the 9th day of November next at 12 o'clock noon, to the end that they may consider and determine whether the approval of the congress shall be given to the said convention."

Raid on Whisky and Gamblers.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Oct. 21.—All saloons and gambling houses in Kansas City, Kan., were closed tight by Chief of Police Murray on an order from Mayor T. B. Gilbert. A week ago a citizens' committee threatened to oust Mayor Gilbert and other city officials from office for failure to enforce the prohibition law and to close the gambling houses. This is the first time the gambling places here have been disturbed for years, and saloons have been permitted to run with but slight interruptions.

Military Prisoner Escaped.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Oct. 21.—David Hammons, a prisoner confined in the guardhouse at Plattsburg barracks, has escaped. Steamer South Portland Lost on Oregon Coast.

FOURTEEN WENT DOWN WITH SHIP

Lifeboat Capsized, and Only Seven Rescued It—It is Hoped Some Succeeded in Escaping on the Life Raft.

MARSHFIELD, Ore., Oct. 21.—In a blinding fog the steamer South Portland, bound for San Francisco from Portland with a cargo of wheat and carrying a crew of twenty-three men and fourteen passengers, struck Cape Blanco reef bow on.

She was lifted high out of the water; then she settled aft and later slid off the rocks and immediately began to fill with water.

The captain, seeing that all hope of saving his ship was gone, gave orders to man the life raft with all possible haste.

Two boats and the life raft were lowered. One boat, containing the captain and seventeen souls, capsized as they were getting away from the sinking steamer, and only seven of the eighteen were able to get into the boat again.

The other boat also capsized and was seen drifting away in the thick fog without a person in sight.

The survivors of the ill fated steamer reached Port Cranford in a pitiable condition from exposure to the cold wind and waves. They have little hope for the remainder of the passengers and crew. The survivors are Captain J. McIntyre, John Reamer, sailor, San Francisco; Emmanuel Phomonis, chief cook, and William L. Wilson, Jr., of Baltimore; L. Baker, Alameda, Cal.; Guy Bent, aged twelve years, of Nova Scotia; Al Bailey of North Dakota, passengers.

A heavy fog is hanging over the coast here, and weather indications are most unfavorable for rescue work.

A life raft was seen in the breakers with several persons on it, and the life saving crew has gone to the rescue.

The beach at that point is abrupt, and a landing cannot be effected without great difficulty.

Charles Hixon, the first engineer, has died of exposure. Fourteen persons are yet missing and are probably lost.

The South Portland struck going at a speed of about seven knots.

Mr. Stone is on his way to this city from the west, as is Grand Chief Hanahan of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, with which order many of the guards who were once firemen on the "L" locomotives are connected.

Raine Raiders Arrested.

NORTH ANSON, Me., Oct. 21.—After a most exciting and tedious hunt several deputy sheriffs and a posse succeeded in capturing the remaining two of the four men who after robbing two stores in Norridgewock escaped from the clutches of 200 or more armed citizens of Norridgewock, Mercer and adjacent towns. The men were taken at a remote point in the wilds of northwestern Maine.

George Lunger in Plainfield.

George Lunger, retired-policeman, visited his old comrades on the local force last week, having come in behind a wagon from Whitehouse, Friday. Although he declined to be interviewed on what he thinks of the marvellous changes in this city since he departed nine weeks ago, he intimated that Plainfield could well afford to copy the Hunterdon County village which he honors by residing there. He says that the telephone rate is only $12 a year and declares that there are at least three 'phones in the place. East Whitehouse has a population of nearly 200 including exactly twenty-seven eligible widows. "Plainfield can't boast of such a proportion, is there," exclaimed the former policeman as he started down the pike for home.

After Franchises.

The Central Jersey Telephone Company is making an effort to get a franchise at Cranford. A hearing was granted last week to representatives and the matter is now under consideration by the officials of the town. It is also said that a similar effort is being made at Westfield by the same company. This is the company that has been trying to get into Plainfield.

MRS. ROGERS WINS THE CHAMPIONSHIP

Plainfield's Popular Golf Woman Victorious at Baltustrol Club.

MUCH COVETED HONOR

IN THE FINALS OF THE MATCH WINS BY 5 UP AND 3 TO PLAY.

Mrs. Manice Vanquished—Mrs. Rogers Defeats Mrs. Kenney and Mrs. Morgan—Six Players in the Competition—The Results.

For the first time in its history as a club, the championship of the Baltustrol Golf Club is now held by a Plainfield woman. This coveted honor was won Friday by Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, of East Front street, whose work on the various golf courses throughout the East has attracted widespread attention from enthusiastic players. Last year Mrs. Manice, one of the best golfers in the East, was champion at Baltustrol and when Mrs. Rogers wrested the honors from her yesterday afternoon, it was with no little pride that she received the highest ambition of the club.

There were six women entered in the championship play which began on Wednesday. On the first day Miss Willis and Mrs. Kenney drew byes and were not compelled to play. In the opening play Mrs. Morgan beat Mrs. Manice, 2 up and 1 to play and then Mrs. Rogers had her most difficult match with Miss Harrison, beating her 1 up in 20 holes. The match was very close from beginning to end, but Mrs. Rogers played her steady game throughout and this won for her a great victory. Mrs. Morgan beat Miss Willis, by 8 up and 7 to play and Mrs. Rogers beat Mrs. Kenney by 2 up. Yesterday afternoon the final match was played between Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Morgan, when the former won by 5 up and 3 to play.

Upon the conclusion of the match the victor was congratulated by the other contestants and the best wishes of all were extended to her. Mrs. Rogers will do her best to retain the championship against next year's players.

WANT THE DAM REMOVED

BOROUGH COUNCIL HOLDS SPECIAL SESSION TO TAKE ACTION.

Dam on Dr. Cooley's Property Cause of All the Trouble—Conference to be Held.

With a view of devising some scheme for preventing the upper part of Somerset street being washed out by water from Stony brook during a freshet, a meeting of the street committee of the North Plainfield Common Council was called last Friday at which time Dr. Justus H. Cooley was present and was consulted as to what could be done. He favors making some changes to abate the nuisance and a meeting of the committee, the roads committee of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders and Dr. Cooley will be arranged in the near future.

The meeting was the outcome of the washing away of 800 worth of top dressing from the surface of Somerset street above Codington avenue, during the recent storm. It was alleged that the water was backed up in the stream by a dam which was erected by Dr. Cooley a dozen years ago. The dam is maintained for the purpose of keeping an ice pond full on Dr. Cooley's property.

It was shown that the level of the brook was not heightened by the erection of the dam which is not over two feet high. The water, blocked in its course by a fallen tree which lodged against the low dam, seeking an outlet, rushed into the roadway and damaged property of citizens and the borough to a considerable extent. The same thing occurred last year and on several occasions before.

Dr. Cooley declared that he was perfectly willing to erect a stone wall along the Somerset street side of the brook which would be sufficiently high to keep the water within the confines of the water course. The committee seemed desirous of having the dam removed and the water course deepened. No conclusion was arrived at and it was left to the committee and Dr. Cooley to confer with the Board of Freeholders and to report back at another meeting.

Present at the meeting were, Mayor Smalley, chairman of the committee, James K. Arnold; Counsellman Robert Clark, Jr.; Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, and W. J. Titus, Louis Wiskoff, C. T. Bilyeu, and Edward Olson, all property owners residing in that part of the borough.

Bertram C. Firethrock, of West Fifth street, has returned from a visit with Newark friends.

XRAISE XPOSITION A GREAT SUCCESS

Large Crowds Attend Unique Affair Given Under Auspices of Local W. C. T. U.

EVERYTHING XCELLENT

THOSE IN CHARGE OF THE VARIOUS BOOTHS IN THE GRAND XPOSITION.

To Close Tonight After Two Days Run—Fan Cakes a Feature—The Fair being Held in Vacant Store at Babcock Building.

An "Xraise Xposition," is the unique title of a fair which was opened Tuesday afternoon in the vacant store in the Babcock building under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of Plainfield. For some time past the members have been planning the event and its successful culmination will be a source of great satisfaction.

The chief idea has been to give prominence to the letter "X" and this has been done through novel names given to each booth in which this letter plays an important part. On either side of the large store there are arranged attractive booths, where everything from handkerchiefs and useful articles to candy and old-fashioned pancakes are sold, and at reasonable prices. There was a good attendance yesterday afternoon and last night and liberal patronage was accorded.

The handkerchief booth under the name "exquisite," was in charge of Mrs. George H. Babcock, chairman; Mrs. Ella Ellsworth, Mrs. I. N. West, Mrs. W. T. Maxson and Miss Myra Clark. "Examine" was the name given to the bag table and those in charge were Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse, chairman; Mrs. H. B. Paul, Mrs. A. B. Darby and Mrs. Charles A. Lee. "Exceptional" is applied to the apron booth, and Mrs. Stephen Caboone, as chairman, is assisted by Mrs. L. L. Manning, Mrs. B. M. Stevens, Mrs. Joseph Phillips, Miss Elizabeth Caboone, Miss Florence Caboone and Miss Nora Rockwell.

At the lemonade booth there was an "inexhaustible" W. C. T. U. well. Mrs. Irving C. Corbett is the chairman, assisted by Mrs. John Manley, Mrs. Gilbert VanNest, Mrs. Wm. Rule, Mrs. E. B. Smith and Miss Hess. One corner is made attractive by a grab bag, which is termed "excavate," and by delving into this Klondyke one is liable to get a valuable article. Mrs. G. T. Rhoads and Mrs. E. M. Laing are in charge.

A considerable space is devoted to the sale of ice cream which is termed "exhilarating." Mrs. Newton Honeyman is in charge of the feature. In another corner there is a New England kitchen, where old-fashioned pancakes are served hot off the grid dle accompanied by maple syrup. The name given to this booth is "extrafine." Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, is the chairman, and she is assisted by Mrs. Charles B. Stephens, Mrs. David C. Smalley, Mrs. Andrew Cox and Mrs. William C. Smith.

"Expend" is the appropriate name used for the peanut booth. Those in charge are Miss Helen Adams, Miss Mildred Berry, Miss Edna Swain and Miss Marguerite Lee. Adjoining the above booth is one devoted to the sale of cakes under the name of "excellent." Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux is the chairman, and her assistants are Mrs. A. A. Taft, Miss Susie Jackson and Miss A. Claypool. "Extensive" is the name applied to the miscellaneous booth, where a variety of useful articles are sold. Miss Mary French, as chairman, is assisted by Mrs. Walter Manning, Mrs. P. B. Cregar and Miss Mary Fritts.

Unlike the other booths, "inexpensive" is the name given to the grocery booth, where everything to be found in a grocery store is on sale. Mrs. P. H. Bennett is the chairman and her assistants are Mrs. Frank Rowley, Mrs. S. H. Brattons, Mrs. W. Kempton Browning, Miss VanFleet, Miss Mary E. Howlett and Miss Voorhees. "Excelsior," appropriately describes the candy booth, where Miss Jessie Pruden as chairman, is assisted by Miss Bessie DeForest, Miss Alice Conant, Miss Beatrice Miner, Mrs. Charlotte M. Hoss, Miss Elizabeth Stackhouse, Mrs. N. W. Currie and Miss Beary Fitz Randolph.

An Indian teepee under the name of "expert" is the name given to the palmistry booth and Miss Edith Cairns, assisted by Mrs. P. B. Cregar and Miss Eva Dubois Benton are very successful in telling one's fortune.

One of the most attractive booths is one devoted to the display of the Ladies' Home Journal and the Saturday Evening Post. This is located in the centre of the store and is termed "exhibit." Mrs. Charles Smith is the chairman, and her assistants are Miss Stella Swain, Miss Alice Teeple and Miss Elfleda Dunham.

The general committee having the affair in charge consists of Mrs. John H. French, chairman; Mrs. Stephen Caboone and Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse, while Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson is the bureau of general information. Those who did the decorating were Mrs. Clinton Randolph and John H. French. One very important part not to be overlooked is the cashier at the door, where under the name of "extortion" Mrs. Clarence Holman, formerly of this city, but now of Pittsfield, Mass., gathered in the shekels, yesterday. The proceeds from the affair will be used to carry on the temperance work of the W. C. T. U. and liberal patronage is asked from all friends.

Last night the Ladies' Orchestra, of Dunellen, discoursed an attractive programme of music. This music will be a feature tonight, and there will be phonographic selections by Mr. Weaver.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH TO REOPEN SUNDAY

Officers of the Church Arrange to Meet Cost of Improvements at the Service.

ADDRESS TO MEMBERS

INTERIOR DECORATION AND REPAIRS COST $3,200.

Twenty Years Since Last Improvements Were Made—What Has Been Done to Beautify Edifice—Members Asked to be Liberal.

In connection with the re-opening of the First M. E. Church, following general improvements, the officers of the church, Samuel Bingaman, Nelson A. Miller, John Cory, George H. Burgess, Arthur E. Crone and James B. Joy, have issued a circular letter in which this statement is made:

"The work of repair and renovation in our church is now so far completed that the auditorium will be opened for public worship next Sunday. We sincerely hope that you will be present to take part in all the exercises on that happy occasion.

"For the first time in twenty years the church has been put in a state of thorough repair. The building has been painted inside and out; the interior has been redecorated under the supervision of Oscar S. Teale. The pews have been upholstered—back and seat—in green velour; new mattings have been laid in the vestibule, and new shades hung at the windows. These improvements, together with the new carpet and the changes shortly to be made in the choir-loft, make our auditorium one of the most attractive in the city.

"The cost of these improvements will be $3,200, of which the Ladies' Aid Society will pay about one-third from funds in their treasury. About $2,300 remains to be raised by subscription, which will be taken at the close of public service next Sunday. The burden will be easily lifted if we all take hold of it together. If everyone gives according to his means success is sure.

"If for any reason you are liable to be absent from the services, will you kindly notify the amount of your subscription to any of the committee in charge, before next Sunday."

Borough Voting Machine.

All voters of the First district, in North Plainfield, should inspect the new voting machine in Robert Trewin's barber shop, 38 Somerset street, for the purpose of familiarizing themselves with the manner in which it is worked. Failure to understand its workings will deprive a citizen of his vote and it is therefore necessary to understand how to cast one's ballot on a twentieth century plan.

HALLOWE'EN NEAR.

The Eve of All Hallows to be Observed Saturday Night in the Same Old Fashion.

Hallowe'en, or the eve of All Hallows, will be celebrated Saturday night with the usual tooting of horns and street display of grotesque costumes. From year to year the observance of this unique carnival, if it may be so called, has been gaining a stronger hold on the popular favor, and it is likely the event this year will be a record breaker in point of noise and display.

Hallowe'en is the occasion of all occasions when supernatural influences are supposed to prevail, when goblin, bobgoblin, spook, fibbertigibbet, ghost, banshee, sprite, elf, fay, fairy, gnome and what not are at liberty to roam where they please and follow their own sweet will, and it is likely they will all be in evidence on the streets of Plainfield, impersonated by the little small boy, the big small boy, the Smart Aleck and others.

Judge William N. Runyon entertained a large number of Republicans of the Second ward Tuesday at his residence, 126 East Ninth street. The meeting was for the purpose of explaining to the voters the truth of the situation in the Assembly fight in this city. The work of presenting Plainfield's side of the campaign was mapped out and a thorough canvass of the ward will be made in the interests of the faction.

The sentiment of those at the meeting was unanimous against the part that Elizabeth has played in the present campaign in presuming to dictate to Plainfield. Loyalty to the principles of true Republicanism was affirmed.

Prominent among those present were Henry E. Bowen, W. D. W. Miller and George P. Mellick. Letters were received from several prominent citizens of the ward who were unable to be present.

MILLER SCHOOL LAW VETOED

GOVERNOR MURPHY REFUSES TO SIGN BILL COVERING SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

He Says It is An Unconstitutional Measure—Court Has Already Acted on Similar Law.

The Miller bill passed by the recent special session of the Legislature, which validates school districts composed of different municipalities under the McKee school law, which was declared unconstitutional by the Court of Errors and Appeals, was vetoed yesterday by Gov. Murphy. He indorsed it:

"Approval withheld. This act is directly within the condemnation of the Court of Errors and Appeals in their recent decision setting aside the school law of 1903 as unconstitutional."

The Governor's decision was reached after a careful consideration of the Miller bill by the Attorney General, and was based upon the opinion of the latter that it would not stand fire in the courts. It was also feared that it might endanger the Colby bill, of which it is a supplement.

FLAW DISCOVERED IN SCHOOL LAW?

Provision for Elective or Appointee Boards of Education the Puzzle.

THE SECTIONS INVOLVED

THE ALLEGED DEFECT IS SAID TO BE A SERIOUS ONE.

Prophecy Made in Legislature That Law Would Go Into the Courts Before Any School District Could Give It a Trial May Come True.

Although the ink with which the Governor signed the new Colby school law is scarcely dry, some persons are already at work tearing the act to pieces. When the bill was pending in the special session it was freely predicted that it would find its way into the courts before any district could have an opportunity to give it a fair trial. There are indications that that prediction may be verified.

What is claimed to be a mystification has been discovered in the plan prescribed for the determination by the people of the various districts whether they will have an elective or an appointive Board of Education.

Section 38 of the law provides that in each city the Mayor or other chief executive officer of such city shall, during the month of December next after the acceptance of the provisions of the act as thereinafter provided, appoint nine persons to be members of the Board of Education of such city school district. In then provides for the qualifications for the members, the term of their service and the manner of filling any vacancies which may arise in the board.

Section 39 provides that in each city there shall be elected, at the first municipal election held in such city next after the acceptance of the provisions of the section, thereinafter provided, nine persons to be members of the Board of Education of such city. Then, like the preceding section, it provides similar qualifications for the members so elected, the term of their service and the manner of filling vacancies.

The next section (40) reads:

"The acceptance of the provisions of sections 38 or 39 shall be submitted to the qualified voters of any city at a general or municipal election to be held therein; provided that such submission shall be had and such vote taken whenever the Common Council, Board of Aldermen or other legislative body, or the Board of Education of any school district situate in such city shall have, by resolution, determined that such a question shall be submitted, or whenever at least five percentum of the legal voters of such city shall by their petition duly signed have requested that such question shall be so submitted; provided, further, that after the question of accepting the provision of sections 38 or 39 shall have been submitted to the legal voters of any city, the question shall not be submitted again until [at a less] five years shall have elapsed."

The same section then goes on to provide that in any school district until the organization of a Board of Education under the provisions of either section, the administration of the schools and the management of the school property shall remain in and shall be exercised by the Board of Education or other body theretofore having control of the public schools therein.

The question raised in regard to these sections is what body would control school affairs in a district where the people had voted, for example, on the proposition to have an elective board, and it had been defeated; would the old board in existence at the time the proposition was submitted continue to administer the school affairs of the district for the next five years or would the district have an appointive board?

Those who have raised this question profess to believe that it will prove an embarrassing defect in the law to its friends.

THE NEW WOMAN

What She Is About

"A WOMAN, a cow and a hen are all alike," said the automobilist, "I never know what to do when I meet one in the road, for I never can tell what she is going to do. This morning, with a friend, I was out in my machine upon a country road. A cow loomed up ahead of us. She was in the middle of the road, and she showed no disposition to get off the track. I slowed up and attempted to pass on one side of her. Just as we reached her she made up her stupid cow mind to move. She whisked to the side where we were and ran bump into the auto. Now, the owner of that cow would swear we ran into her when the clear fact is she ran into us, and it was only good luck that she did not overturn the machine. A girl got badly injured the other day by an automobile through running into it the same way. She ran into it, not it into her, mind again. A rapidly approaching auto tooted its whistle as the girl crossed the road. She hurried to the roadside and reached it in safety, but instead of standing still when she got there she darted right into the middle of the road again, and of course she got knocked down. A hen acts the same way. I don't know what possesses the creatures. If they would only do one thing or the other, no matter which, a man would know how to dodge them." Well, a few mornings ago I myself was out on my bicycle. A fat woman was crossing the street diagonally, wabbling along from side to side. She saw me distinctly. Besides that I rang the bicycle gong. The street was at least fifty feet wide. But that woman just came straight toward me like a blooming old idiot. I dodged this way, then that with the bicycle, but she seemed dead bent on mooning it head on. It was with considerable difficulty that I at length escaped her. Did you ever see a woman advance in front of a coming carriage, then when she had nearly crossed the street start and run back?

It is the long, steady pull that counts. Many women can do things brilliantly and quickly and continue a short time. But when it comes to working on year after year, half a century, if need be, toward the same object, as all have to do who succeed, women are apt to fall by the wayside. Only those who discipline themselves to sustained, enduring effort succeed.

Two women in Paris have a legal permit to wear men's clothing. One is the lady who reported the French legislative proceedings for the now defunct La Fronde, the woman's newspaper. She wears her hair short and rooms at pleasure all over Paris in her convenient male disguise. The other woman licensed to wear trousers is Mme. Dieulafoy, the gifted, fearless wife of that famous explorer. With him she journeyed on expeditions in savage countries and found masculine attire so convenient and safe that when she returned to civilization it was a real hardship to go back into skirts. Consequently the municipal authorities of Paris permitted her to continue in trousers. She wears masculine attire always, even at evening receptions, where she appears in the swellest of swallowtail suits.

Mrs. Ada Landon Hand has gained an enviable reputation as an orchestra leader for both male and female musicians. During the past summer she at the head of an orchestra of fine young women, made music at one of the leading Long Branch hotels. No sooner had this orchestra, the Landon ladies' quartet, completed the summer engagement than it was employed to play afternoons in a great department store, according to the pleasing new American fashion of furnishing music to the customers of the large places of merchandise. Mrs. Hand herself is the pianiste and leader of the orchestra. She deserves all success for her pluck and perseverance as well as her ability.

People who talk constantly of themselves are usually called conceited. They are not really so always. They are persons who know they are nothing uncommon, but are wild to make others think them so. The individual who is really "it" and knows it does not say anything about it. "It" speaks for itself.

Will red bananas grow in the United States? If they will some woman gardener in the south can make a fortune cultivating them. They are delicious and at present quite expensive.

Once more at the beginning of this autumn the toesin of politics has sounded. Once more the women of our cities have the privilege of raising money for men to use in the political campaign. Women in politics are always warmly welcomed to that extent.

Is there any more unpleasant sight than to see a pretty girl manicuring her neglected finger nails in a street car?

The women of Vernon county, Mo., have a club called the Ladies' Good Roads society. Recently two young ladies belonging to it, Misses Tramble and Hannon, took plow, scraper and a pair of horses and made passable a piece of very bad road the men would not take care of.

ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

HATS FOR FALL WEAR.

Dame Fashion Demands Large Head Gear This Autumn.

Milliners certainly cannot be accused of parsimony in the new head wear, for it is simply enormous in size and, incidentally, in price. Some of the hats actually measure more than two feet in diameter, which means six feet around. The puzzle is how the wearers keep them on their heads in stormy weather. A few of the new felts have no semblance of a crown and must be held on the head by means of hatpins. A narrow band is sometimes sewed around the inside of the brim to give a little hold.

Among the new fall hats apparently the best liked so far are the beaver felt, with the soft and silky fuzz over the surface. These are left flat and garnished, as suits the wearer's face, or are bent into all sorts of curves and dents, aiding which are laid flatly plumes of the despoiled ostrich or the fricasseed rooster, so that they hang gracefully to one side or the other. Small birds of marvelous plumage are set coquettishly on the sides of other hats—birds such as never flew and never will, for they are made up from dyed and sometimes gilded and burnished feathers. The wings are blue or red or green or yellow and put on the body in absolute defiance of all ornithological laws. But they are pretty, and, though we may recognize some of the wings or other parts of the bird as belonging to some well known domestic fowl, they are becoming and do not conflict with the dictates of the Audubon society.

Wings of rich coloring are set so as to hang stiffly downward, intermingled with bows of ribbon or velvet. Buckles of really fine and artistic work are employed to trim many of these beaver felts. They come in black, white, cream, gray and castor, besides many other colors, but the best and most elegant of the hats are in the colors mentioned. Some dark brown ones are handsome and will be worn to match suits of wool and velutina. When velutina is used for the suit a bias piece is generally put on the hat where it will look best.

Plaid sibeline finished woods are frequently employed to face some of the plain felts, and they make striking hats for ordinary wear. There is little trimming on the crown of such hats, as they turn back very sharply from the face. These are especially pretty for young ladies. Many hats turn upward from the face, and many have brims bent into so many convolutions that one can scarcely describe them adequately. The majority of these have the brim faced about halfway up with velvet or with some of the dress material. One that I saw recently has a velvet foundation faced with rich white lace, and on the left is a handsome rosette bow of black satin ribbon with a straw button in the middle of the bow. In the back is a beautiful white ostrich plume hanging down to the neck.

Plateau hats seem to be made of anything that comes handiest, and they have but little trimming on the top, but at the left side under the brim is a bunch of the most beautiful roses. Another immense plateau hat is of shirred black silk muslin, the edge of the brim on the under side being bound with a bias band of black velvet, which in turn is overlaid with some lace band, and whereas of pale blue matines. On the top is a full draping of the mallees, through which the stems of two short but fine ostrich plumes are passed so that they curl under the edge at the back.

Some of the more dressy hats are simply covered with roses—pink, white, dark red, almost black, in fact, and from them through the gamut of flowers from violets to skunk cabbage and orchids. Violets are very often seen and are exquisitely fine and beautiful. It seems that no flower is entirely neglected, but there is no doubt that roses are the favorites. Many soft and silky hats have no trimming but frosty green leaves spread all over crown and

AUTOMOBILE STYLES.

They Are Now More Becoming—Suits of Pony Skin.

Automobile costumes are being made in nine different styles, which is a good thing alike for the wearer and those who have to look at the wearer.

Entire suits made of pony skin are perhaps the smartest, and they are certainly expensive enough to keep them from becoming common.

For winter wear there are auto coats of shaggy inexpensive fur which shed the rain and dust. These are made double breasted, with inside pockets and high storm collars.

The auto cap made of leather to match the coat have chiffon veils gathered around the brim in such a fashion that they can be thrown back or down at a moment's notice.

Wine color is a prime favorite for auto veils and the silk waterproof coats which are used for short trips.

Jet and pailletted net are revived in all their glory. Sometimes the sequins are of various sizes, some large and some small. All forms of the sequined dress must be plain and tight fitting as far as the knees, but the flounces at the feet may be as voluminous as you please. A beautiful robe seen recently was a mass of jet and silver, cut en princesse, with the bodice and sleeves composed of a trellis-work mixture of black silk and chenille fringe. From the knees were numbers of pinked out silk flounces, edged with chenille bobs. The wearer of this very sumptuous frock eschewed all forms of jewelry and merely wore in her extremely pretty fair hair two large bows of velvet, one in front and the other at the back, the coiffure being very high on the top of the head. This individual woman showed her sense of fitness of things by wearing no jewels, for that glittering mass of jet and silver required no lightening effect, being in itself a most gorgeous garment.

The cut shows a Russian blouse auto costume made of light weight leather, with a cap to match.

FASHION WITH COMFORT.

Present Day Dresses Are Light Weight and Fit Easily.

Never has the fashionable woman been so comfortable even in her gala attire. She wears corsets so lightly constructed that she has ample room to breathe, and though she wears a high collar it is not a stiff one. Her skirts even are of soft light weight materials, and there are no tight linings and ungainly stiffenings.

Coats of suede are among the smart novelties. These are made short length and are trimmed with handsome fancy buttons.

ed. Cream panne velvet and Irish crochet lace formed the trimming of a handsome white gown of this material.

Cape effects, with stole ends and the long silk tassels, are still to be seen on many dresses.

A great deal of fringe is used on handsome cloth gowns.

An evening gown of fine white net over white silk is made with a very full skirt quaintly adorned with rosettes of white soft silk ribbon, arranged together with appliques of white lace, in a kind of scroll work design all over the lower part of the skirt. The bodice has a deep cape collar of white lace applique on net, and white cloth, with a hemstitch border.

THE SMART SKIRT.

Kilted Pattern Is Useful For a Walking Costume.

The kilted skirt is certainly having a vogue. It is carried out in both plain and figured goods. The lighter the weight of course the better. It is becoming to almost every figure, and it makes an ideal short skirt because the weight is evenly distributed.

For a walking suit navy blue cheviot is an ideal material, as it looks well at all seasons of the year. Brown mixed goods are, however, much used in Paris and are combined with touches of green or red. The woman with red or chestnut hair looks very smart in a walking suit of iron gray mixed goods, and if she is tall she will have a three-quarter length coat held in by a suede belt.

Some of the new skirts are made with three folds finishing the lower edge and the hips slightly eased in with tucks. This is a pretty style for these materials.

Coats to wear with the separate skirts are made of covert, with strapped or inverted seams, and lined with fine taffeta or satin in the exact shade of the outside. These are forty-two inches long and handsome and desirable from every point of view. Mountain coats are made with strap trimming stitched on, and, as this is too difficult to handle, kersey is used for the strappings.

The cut shows an autumn dress of fawn cloth, with a wide stitched cape yoke. It is trimmed with brown and green plaid and silk buttons.

SIMPLE STYLES.

The Full Waists and Skirts Are Easy to Make.

White is always pretty for house frocks when the material is soft. It is not so expensive as it may seem, for it cleans far better than colors. Some of the homespuns in particular come out as good as new and combine warmth with light effects.

Corduroy cloths and velvets are very smart and much used abroad, especially in champagne shades. They are used for dressy gowns, but are simply made, with fronts and lapels of gold embroidery softened with a jabot of old lace.

Some house gowns are made after the fashion of a housemaid's skirt, with a blouse bodice finished by a smart wide belt and a pelerine effect of lace or embroidery.

OLD ROSE FRIEZE GOWN.

Although elaborate gowns and fashions are the rule, many a simple little gown can be made at home. The simple blouse waists and the full gauged skirts can be easily contrived from a pattern, and nothing looks prettier on a youthful figure.

There are some novel things for shirt waists in the new velutinas, some being embossed, some ribbed and many in rich Persian designs. Naturally these are only intended for velvets, or they are not so heavy and are also used as that intended for full suits.

The illustration shows an old rose frieze gown trimmed with yellow galloons and beads of white.

NOVELTY IN MILLINERY.

Turbans Are All the Mode—Hats of Rough Felt.

The fall tailor made hats are very smart. Cocks' feathers are very largely used in white, green and shaded red.

The shapes are much smaller, and turbans prevail. These are of two kinds. There is the square edged turban made of shirred velvet, with two tabs in the back and a pointed front, and the draped affair which turns up coquettishly in front. The latter is more universally becoming.

Hats of rough felt are used for everyday wear with walking suits, and one of these in white trimmed with foliage and a black velvet bow is pretty to go with the heavy white shirt waists which are worn even in midwinter.

Some of these small hat shapes turn up abruptly on the side in such a fashion that they show a good deal of the hair.

Fur hats this season will be in the shape of turbans trimmed with delicately shaded ostrich tips.

Picture hats show a very long drooping feather, the plume in itself being a thing of beauty and invariably placed on the hat in the manner that was beloved by the old masters.

The cut shows a tailor made hat of crimson felt trimmed with shaded ribbon and a quill.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

LONG AND SHORT COATS.

Three-quarter Length Preferred. Narrow Fur Trimmings.

Three-quarter coats will be more popular than long coats this winter, and they will be made very fancy.

In nearly every case the fancy coat, be it long or short, has its wide cape collar. This in the plainer garments is stitched heavily or edged with strappings and in the more ornate is appliqued with lace or embroidery.

Narrow bands of fur, principally of mink and sable, are again used in trimming coats, suits and even elaborate gowns.

A smart cloak model was of smooth cloth, with a double breasted effect, buttoning over a wide cape collar edged with stitched strapping. The sleeves were full and trimmed with two stitched bands close to the narrow cuff. The lower part of the coat was trimmed with three stitched bands at regular intervals.

Such a coat made by a good tailor is always smart and useful.

I saw some very fine new silks for waists and dresses, though there are fewer dresses made all in the same material than ever before for fine wear. There are pastel brocades, peau de cygne, crepe de chine, peau de crepe, illuminated china crape, lonisine, Scotch plaid silks and pinhead checks in the prettiest colors and no end of velours chiffons. For dresses taffeta still holds its own, and there is a new quality which, while having all the luster of taffeta, is soft and flexible as India silk. This makes it all that the heart of woman could desire.

A feature in the world of fashion is the thick ribbon ruche in satin or silk, while fringes of every sort will be used.

The picture shows a costume of sage green cloth. The hat which goes with it is of shirred green panne, with a shaded green feather.

BEGINNING RIGHT.

A Wife Who Trained Her Husband, and the Result.

"I was brought up in Germany," said Mrs. Harman. "In our part of the country workingmen usually gave all their wages to their wives so soon as they received them. The wife kept the family purse, bought food, clothing and paid the other expenses of the household, giving the husband such sums as he desired for his own personal use. The plan worked very well. I naturally expected if I ever married to do as my mother and grandmother before me had done—keep the family purse.

"I was married soon after coming to America. I realized beforehand that if my husband and I were to get ahead in the world I must look after the outlay in our family. I resolved to begin right at the start, when my husband was still soft and loving and would do anything for his bride.

"NO, YOU GIVE IT ALL TO ME."

"You can hardly believe it, but my husband was earning only $10 a week when we were married. We had two rooms rented and furnished, and we went into them and set up housekeeping at once. Our modest wedding festivities were quickly over, and my husband went back to business. The morning he did so he laid a one dollar bill upon the mantelpiece.

"'What is that for?' I asked him.

"'Why, it's for you to pay out for house expenses, of course.'

"'No, no, sweetheart,' I said. 'You give all your money to me, and I will take care of it. Here is this little cabinet that I have. There are two keys to it. I will keep one, you keep the other. You give me your wages every week, dear, and I will put them in the cabinet. When you need money unlock it and get what you want. I will do the same. That's the best way, isn't it, for us both to be suited?'

"A man who has only been married three days cannot deny his wife anything, and of course my lover-husband said yes, and there never was any trouble between us about money from that day on. I tell you a bride must start right with a man in the very beginning."

Mrs. Harman was too modest to continue and tell the result of her financial management, but here it is:

As time went on the young wife found she could save a little even on $10 a week. She saved it, and as the sum swelled she invested it, wisely keeping matters of this sort mostly to herself. Children came—dear, bright little sons and daughters; the husband's pay increased; still this model wife woman of King Solomon looked well to the ways of her household and went on laying by such small sums as she could. By and by with the money she had saved her husband was able to go into business for himself.

Then their day of prosperity began, the wife still having charge of the purse. That fact gave her a dignity and consideration from her husband and sons nothing else could have done. This is quite true. Money does talk.

Still better days came. This household economist at length purchased an apartment building and kept it in her own name for herself. A branch of the husband's business was established in Havana, and one of the sons was sent there to take charge of it. He married and lives in Havana, the Cuban venture meantime having grown to be a large commercial house. The husband has retired and has nothing to do except be happy and wax fat and wonder how he will put in his time.

Whether he ever speculates on what would have happened if his bride had allowed him to keep all the money and dole it out to her a dollar at a time one does not know. It is doubtful if he ever would have accumulated much. Like many men, he was in the habit of buying whatever hit his fancy, whether he needed it or not. His wife bought only what he, she and their children needed, saving the rest and investing it. Woman is the natural economist and conservator of the human race, only in our back foremost stage of evolution the natural order has become reversed. We shall get back to it again.

This is a true story. Along with all the financiering on her own account and being the household banker for half a century, Mrs. Harman has remained from first to last the gentle, lovable, most loving of women, adored by her family, looked up to by her husband and sons.

MARY EDITH DAY.

A SUMMER VACATION

Mrs. Teller Learns Things

EARLY this October Mrs. Teller returned from her summer outing. She spent it variously—now at a seaside hotel, now at a farmhouse, again visiting a friend in a high style suburban village.

Wherever she went she was thrown mostly among women. This hen party phase of human existence interested her. In two or three days at the seaside hotel she had a sort of "good morning" and "good evening" acquaintance with a coterie of ladies who seemed to have nothing to do but sit upon the veranda, knit eternally and talk. Mrs. Teller is a student of the higher culture among women, that which lifts them above the petty, the spiteful and the shallow. She desired to see how far this higher culture had struck in on womankind in general, and she began investigating among those who haunted the veranda. She hoped soon there were not many like them. The ladies possessed what seemed to be an uncanny intuition for divining facts in people's lives that were not to their credit. Once Mrs. Teller commented to a veranda lady on the beauty of a sunset. The lady said:

"That girl down there seems to be enjoying it, flirting with the hotel keeper's son. She's engaged to a rich old man whom her mother is going to make her marry, and here she is carrying on with young Crabs-on-Toast in a way that's perfectly awful."

Half a dozen of the veranda ladies echoed, "Perfectly awful!" Mrs. Teller concluded Miss Moneylove could not be a girl whose acquaintance was desirable. But half an hour after she had been pronounced "perfectly awful" by the veranda coterie she came in, and very likely a woman of them greeted her as if she had been their dearest friend.

"Dear me!" exclaimed Mrs. Teller to herself. "How unlucky I was in the selection of a summer hotel! I must get out of this and find a place where there are nice women."

She went to a rural neighborhood and had lodgings in a farmhouse. It was a beautiful spot; the farm people were up to date in respect to household conveniences. All seemed to breathe of peace, purity and good will.

"Here I shall be happy," said Mrs. Teller to herself after a few days. "There is evidently more of the higher culture among farm women than among those of the cities. When these good women meet one another they manifest a sisterly kindness and cordiality that is beautiful and most encouraging to a believer in race perfection. These are nice women."

Mrs. Teller went driving in the idyllic neighborhood. She had the homes of the farm people pointed out to her. One was especially neat and inviting, surrounded by flower beds and grass. Appearances hinted of prosperity and thrift. Mrs. Teller was told that Sarah Keturah Barkis lived there, and she was so stuck up that she thought herself better than anybody else, though her great-grandfather had been charged with horse stealing. Susan Jane Perks had run away from home once, and her husband went after her and brought her back. Mary Ellen Hannah had been divorced; therefore Mary Ellen was off color. Lizy Ann Spouter was the long tonguedest woman in the state. Another woman had helped cheat a widowed sister out of all her property. With every family there was something wrong, now and then dating back a hundred years. Day after day went by, and Mrs. Teller in all her stay in the neighborhood did not once hear any women's graces and virtues enlarged on, but the contrary.

She left that place and spent the remaining few days of vacation with a friend in the high style suburb. The morning after her arrival she looked across the lawn and saw a lady standing in the next yard.

"What a pretty woman that is!" she remarked to her friend.

"That? I can tell you things about her."

Mrs. Teller is starting on a quest. She will travel around the world in search of a locality where women do not talk evil of one another. When she finds it she is going to stay there.

KATE SEARP.

VIRGINIA HOSPITALITY.

It Is Manifested in a Singular Way Towards Non-Resident Sportsmen.

The proverbial Virginia hospitality is again in evidence. That state has a new game law this year, of which one feature is a non-resident license exaction. As at first adopted, all non-residents other than non-resident children of resident landowners, were required to take out a license, but the spirit of hospitality which is linked with the name of Virginia recoiled from this. From a time beyond which the mind of man runneth not to the contrary, it has been a fashion with Virginians to invite their friends from other states to visit them for shooting, and it was perceived that the new law would put an end to this pleasant custom. A modification was thereupon demanded and granted, says Forest and Stream. As it now stands, the non-resident law expressly exempts the visitor, the text reading that the non-resident guest of a resident landowner shall be allowed to hunt on the lands of his host. The host, be it noted, is a resident of the state, when accompanied by the host or a member of his family, and provided that the host receives no compensation from the guest. This is excellent in so far as Virginia hospitality is concerned, but we fail to appreciate the logic which finds it reasonable to tax one sportsman who is obliged to pay board in Virginia, while exempting him who is so fortunate as to have friends there who may entertain him.

HEROIC SELF-SACRIFICE.

Conspicuous Instance That Came Under the Observation of a Navy Officer.

"Speaking of heroism," said a navy officer at his club a few evenings ago, reports the New York Tribune, "it is rare that such an example is seen as that of an old associate at the naval academy, Hynson, who was a passed midshipman at Vera Cruz, in 1846. It was really more than a bit of heroism; it was fortitude, passive courage, that confronted a danger and made a self-sacrifice that was most conspicuous.

"Our fleet was off the harbor on blockade duty when one day a Spanish merchant vessel managed to slip in without being discovered. Hynson conceived the idea of cutting her out during a night attack, and he succeeded in doing so. But as he could not take the vessel out of the harbor, for the reason that she was under the close range of the enemy's guns and forts, Hynson set fire to the vessel. In doing so he burned both his arms so badly that he carried them in slings for several days. While in this disabled condition a terrific squall came up and played havoc with several of our little vessels, but the one on which Hynson was serving was capsized. Hynson and one of the other officers managed to get hold on a floating spar, but as it was not sufficient to keep them both afloat, Hynson let go his hold, and in a few moments sank to his death."

BREECH-LOADERS ARE OLD.

Bronze Cannon of That Make Were in Use in Spain Some Centuries Ago.

That there is very little new under the sun has once more been proved at Tobermory, Mull, says a London paper, where Capt. Burns, of Glasgow, has, with the permission of the duke of Argyll, been searching for the relics of the Admiral of Florence, one of the vessels of the Spanish Armada known to have been lost in the 1588 in that far-away water. With the aid of an old chart the diver went down into 12 fathoms and came across a bronze breech-loading cannon four and one-half feet long, eight inches in diameter at the breech and bearing the date 1563. The divers also discovered a pistol heavily incrusted with lime, a sword blade and a hedge anchor.

Breech loading in artillery and small arms is popularly supposed to be an invention of the middle of last century, but such is by no means the case. In a Dublin gunsmith's shop at Cork Hill is a breech-loading rifle, which was offered to the British war office at the close of the eighteenth century and rejected, as it was considered to need too much ammunition.

Unfeeling French Reporter.

Immediately after the assassination of King Alexander of Servia—in fact, on the very next day—a French reporter went to the residence of the dead king's mother, Queen Natalie, and asked to interview her. An attendant was sure that she could not be seen, but out of courtesy took the insistent message to the bereaved woman. In a moment the answer was brought back: "The queen pities anyone who could try to force his presence upon her at a moment such as this."

The Pope's Titles.

The official designation of the head of the hierarchy of the Catholic church is as follows: His holiness, the pope, bishop of Rome and vicar of Jesus Christ, successor of St. Peter, prince of the apostles; supreme pontiff of the universal church, patriarch of the west, primate of Italy, archbishop and metropolitan of the Roman province, sovereign of the temporal dominions of the holy Roman church.

Heated Clothing.

Clothing heated by electricity will be worn by the duke of Abruzzi during his next polar excursion. The wire will pass through a network of asbestos-covered wire arranged in the lining of his apparel. His bedding will be warmed in the same way.

Sensitive Instrument.

The electrometer is so acutely sensitive that it will detect in one minute an amount of electricity which would accumulate for 2,000,000 years before there is enough of it to affect the most sensitive chemical balances.

AUSTRIAN TRAMP'S SCHEME.

Asserted by Sympathetic Persons He Resorts to Trickery to Obtain Transportation.

Bohemia possesses a specimen of the genus tramp which it is doubtful if even America, its native habitat, can duplicate. He is a young man quite well known in the neighborhood of Kolin, and who had a record for pedestrianism that gained him much admiration and a fairly full stomach most of the time, reports the New York Journal.

Through being overfed by sympathetic farmers and village people the man recently began a scheme to undertake not to put one foot before the other. Patience having ceased to become a virtue with the people of Kolin, the youth found it necessary to move on. Being too tired to walk, he conceived the audacious idea of getting a free railroad ride—audacious because it is only in America that railway employes wink at the schemes of tramps.

Having decided to go to Vienna the young man calmly went to the police station in Kolin and gave himself up as the murderer of a young woman in the Austrian capital. He was promptly seized and transported in comfort to his destination, where it was soon discovered that no such murder had occurred.

A short term in prison for the technical offense of contempt of court was all that the tramp had to pay for his ride. He showed his appreciation by smiling broadly when sentenced.

WORSE THAN THE PAIN.

Thought of Having Her Beauty Marred Caused Woman Scores of Spartan Endurance to Faint.

A well-known society woman, living in Central Park West, has always prided herself on her Spartan indifference to pain. Never does she murmur when headache or rheumatism or a bruise of any sort happens to be her portion. But she had a new experience a day or two ago, and now admits the truth of the saying that a woman's tenderest point is her vanity, relates the New York Mail and Express.

She had been visiting at a friend's house in Rye, and while watching two young men of the family practicing with the rifle, she was hit quite nicely in the eye by a ball, which was missed by the man to whom it was thrown. "It hurt me awfully for a few moments," said she in telling the story, "but I bore it without flinching. Everyone praised me for it, and water and various medicaments, and then suddenly some one said: 'I do hope, Mrs Blank, that your nose isn't injured.'

"I gave one scream," said the lady, "and then fainted. The thought of my personal appearance suffering was too much. I didn't mind the pain, although it was intense, but the mere suggestion that my nose might be made permanently crooked was too much. And I believe any other woman would have felt the same way about it."

JAPANESE ARE WILY.

Said to Be Adepts at Perpetrating Frauds on Insurance Companies.

We have been spouting these ten years about the cleverness of the Japanese. Our smart Alecks went into hysterics over them, says the New York Press. Our merchants have gone to extremes in cowtowing Japanese trade, and our great insurance companies have sent agents broadcast over the islands of the land of the rising sun to write policies. In no other country on the globe is the work of the insurance solicitor so easy. In one month $10,000,000 of life insurance has been placed by one New York company. Every measly little dwarf of a Jap wants to insure. An agent has just discovered that in medical examinations he has been badly duped, one healthy Jap standing the test for many hundreds of his fellow countrymen. As all Japs look alike, the doctors did not detect the fraud until about $5,000,000 in policies had been written. Local insurance men are exercised about it.

Black Stone of Mecca.

Set into a corner of the Kaaba (the temple or shrine) of Mecca is what is known as the "black stone." It is an irregular, oval boulder, about seven inches in diameter, three inches broad, and deep reddish brown in color. It is encircled by a silver band, studded with silver nails. It has been split by heat, carried away by Karmathians and broken by a blow, but the band and nails hold it together. Some have declared it a fragment of lava, others a piece of meteoric basalt. Millions of pilgrims have worn its rough surface somewhat smooth. The Mohammedans believe it was a hyacinth brought from heaven by Gabriel to Abraham, and that contact with the human race has changed its properties.

Contempt for the Lion.

Men who have shot nearly all of the dark-colored animals have, as a rule, nothing but contempt for the so-called "king of beasts," the lion. To the hunter he is a cowardly, skulking brute, far more dangerous to the horses and oxen at night than to the human part of the expedition, always ready to slink off and escape a fight if given a chance. There is nothing kingly about him, and a single man can usually put half a dozen lions to flight.

Watch Repairers Work Overtime.

All the watch repairers in New York work overtime hot days. They account for this peculiar business phenomenon by saying that when men discard their vests they do not properly secure their watches in the trousers fob. The result is an epidemic of dropped timepieces.

Belong to Same Race.

Proof that people of Wales and the people of Brittany, in France, come from the same parent stock is given every autumn, when Breton boys go over to England to sell onions from their home fields. In Cornwall and Wales their native speech is readily understood. Armorican, the old language of Brittany, the ancient Cornish and Welsh—and for that matter Erse and Gaelic—are all closely allied languages, members of the Celtic group. Breton and Welsh are very much alike.

Wants Equal Opportunity.

Dr. Helene Friedericke Stoltzer expresses her disapproval, in the Medizinische Wochenschrift, of Moebius' and Prof Stieda's proposal that there should be separate medical colleges for women. She believes that in such a case the women students would have to put up with inferior teachers, collections and opportunities for clinical study and practice, with the result that people would refuse to engage women doctors.

In the Cause of Science.

With the object of obtaining specimens of the Spanish dialect spoken in the United States, Prof Scripture of Yale university is touring the country in a special railway carriage fitted with phonograph apparatus. He is visiting the Indian tribes first, and afterwards the negroes, finishing up among white people of the southern and foreign-born population.

A Present from the East.

Queen Wilhelmina of Holland has recently received a most remarkable Persian carpet from the shah as a memento of the latter's visit to Holland. This carpet, containing 68 square yards, took three years to make and has an enormous number of "points" to the square yard, the total number being 16,500,000.

In Lapland.

"Lapland is a strange and remarkable country," said an eminent explorer. "The customs of the people are so odd, especially during the season of courtship."

"How is that?" she asked.

"At that time every girl sits upon her own Lapp."—London Tit-Bits.

Plucky Woman.

Mrs. Rose Dale of Pittsburg, threw a water pitcher at a thief who was dragging off articles belonging to a Chinese laundryman causing him to drop the plunder. The trunk served as a bank for the clothes cleaner and contained over $700 in money.

Concerning Watches.

No watch keeps absolutely correct time and even the most trustworthy chronometers used in observatories and on board ship must be regulated according to tables that are kept to the declinations to which all timepieces are liable.

Russia's Gigantic Bridge.

The Russian government has sanctioned the building, at a cost of nearly $4,000,000, a gigantic bridge over the Straits of Jenikale. It will be 2,400 metres long, and will connect the Crimean peninsula with the Caucasus.

Curious Ground for Divorce.

A B Selzer, of San Francisco, has brought suit for divorce against his wife on the ground that the spirits told him she no longer loved him. Singular as it may sound this testimony was considered in court.

Found They Had Lost It.

"Something happened down at the bank, Marie."

"Is that so, Hiram?"

"Yes, they've discovered a defalcation."

"Indeed! And they didn't know they had it before?"

"No, they just found it this morning."

"Then didn't know they'd lost anything until they found it, eh?"

"No."

"How did they come to find it, Hiram?"

"Why, the cashier went away and left it."

"Didn't the cashier know it was there?"

"Of course he did. That's why he left it."

"Oh, he thought the bank people needed it more than he did, perhaps."

"What on earth are you talking about, anyway?"

"Why, the thing they found at the bank."

"Don't you understand? They've lost a lot of money."

"Yes, but they found the defalcation, you say?"

"Oh, say! Just go and chase the scarecrower in to supper, will you?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Bit of Wall Street Life.

Life is not all stocks and bonds and margins even in Wall street. The other day a reporter opened the door of a prominent broker's office, and was startled to behold three brokers and two clerks on their knees on the floor around a small but self-possessed kitten. The kitten was sitting with her tail coiled around her front feet, paying not the slightest attention to any of them, while two of the brokers purred ingratiatingly, the clerks meowed, and the third broker fixed her with a saucer of milk. As the reporter paused in the doorway and gazed in amazement, the kitten rose languidly and made her way between two of the brokers over to the waste basket, where she began playing with a bundle of papers. Then the brokers and not noisy. "We found her outside," one of the brokers volunteered, "and got her some milk and brought her in here. We were betting on whom she would go to. The conditions were that we could make any noise we wanted to, but we were not allowed to move or to call her. The bets are off," he added, regretfully.—N. Y. Sun.

Lightning's Queer Prank.

In the state of Maine lightning has been playing pranks in a way to startle the inhabitants. Two miles above Norridgewock, in a clearing on the north bank of the river, stood a tall pine, from a limb of which some years ago a student of the Eaton school hanged himself. When the woodsmen came that way afterward they cut down all the pine, but spared the suicide tree, as it has been known. One night a bolt of lightning stripped from the tree every branch except that from which the student hanged himself, and which is identified by a notch cut where the limb resembles a noose. A little way off the lightning cut a deep and narrow channel through the center of a great flat rock on the river bank, as neatly as stone cutters could have done it.

Hard to Forgive.

Cassidy—The Belviderses don't seem to be so fond of each other as they did?

Horton—No. They get along well enough, but there is no feeling of respect between them. She likes Fred, she says, but can't forgive him for taking such an ordinary person as herself and him a genius, but she says she was a little better than the angels; and on the other hand, Fred can't forgive Mary for marrying such a fool as she did.—Boston Transcript.

Mistake in a Street Car.

Said a man on a street car who had already given up his seat as he nudged a fashionable lady who still kept his:

"Why don't you get up and give the woman a seat?"

She, who was standing, glared at him.

"Sir!" she said, "I will have you know I am a lady!"

"Ah! Beg your pardon, madam," he replied politely, "I took you for a woman!"—Portland Oregonian.

An Even Break.

They were seated at the tea table when a small domestic storm gathered and broke loose.

"You seem to forget," snapped the angry freight-payer of the combine, "that I earn your bread."

"Well, what if you do?" rejoined the patient wife, "I urn your tea, don't I?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Matrimonial Dyspepsia.

Well, how do you like married life?" inquired the friend.

Noted Ship Surgeon.

Surgeon Brize, who sails on a transatlantic liner plying to New York, has crossed the ocean as ship's surgeon 894 times, traveling 2,500,000 miles by sea, and hopes to make 900 trips before he retires. Dr. Brize is 75 years old, but stout and hearty. "I can't understand the feeling people have against burial at sea," said the old surgeon. "For me that is the only burial I desire." A weight at my feet, then overboard into the sea, down among the fishes—that is good enough for me. May my last voyage be the one on which I die. I don't want my old body to rest on shore."

Automatic in Action.

The arrangement of the fire pails in a certain factory is distinctly good. They are hung on spring hooks, each hook powerful enough to lift the pail when nearly empty, while it is depressed by a full pail. If the water in the bucket becomes evaporated (as water in buckets of this kind has a tendency to do rapidly during) or if any one of the pails be removed the hook rises, closes a circuit and rings a bell in the foreman's office.

Not Very Encouraging.

Angry Father—I thought you promised me you wouldn't even encourage this disreputable scamp you have just married!

Eloping Daughter—Well, knowing my extravagant tastes and his small income, do you think he has reason to feel very much encouraged?—Baltimore American.

To Clean Black Silk.

Clean black silk by sponging it well on the right side, with hot coffee, which must have been strained through muslin to free it from grounds. The coffee removes grease and restores the brilliancy of the silk without making it stiff and shiny. Press with a warm iron on the wrong side while still damp.

Cheaper Transit.

The results of the change from steam to electrical power on New York's elevated railways are a reduction of cost per passenger from 2.24 cents under steam to 1.98 cents, an increase in gross earnings of $400,000 accompanied by a decrease in expenses of $89,000.

BIT OF CHICAGO HISTORY.

Although Only Seventy Years Old, as an Incorporated Town, It Is a Century Old.

Most Americans will have been surprised at the announcement of a Chicago centennial celebration to be held in September of the present year, says the Review of Reviews. Chicago was still a very minute village when, in 1833, it became incorporated, and the Pottawattomie Indians of the vicinity sold out their lands in the settlement, but Fort Dearborn dates from the year 1804, and it seems that John Kinzie, the original pioneer, had settled on the site of Chicago in the previous year, with several associates, as Indian traders. Thus, the permanent settlement of Chicago dates properly from the year 1803, and a centennial observance in the present year is appropriate. The celebration is to be merely a local affair, with pageants and tournaments, rowing regattas, yacht races, Indian battles, and the like. What will be most instructive, however, to the school children of Chicago will be the reproduction on the lake front of old Fort Dearborn, with an Indian village inhabited by several hundred Ojibways, Pottawattomies, and Winnebagoes, all of whom it is proposed to bring to Chicago from Canada for the occasion. The Chicago committee would do well to take some hints also from the recent celebrations in New York.

MAN IS NO GOOD.

Club Woman Classes Him Below Cat, Dog or Monkey as a Domestic Pet.

A leading club woman of the east, who has had considerable experience with men—for, not satisfied with one trial, she has had three husbands—has a very poor opinion of the sterner sex. "I weigh man's moral carat on the scale of his personal habits," she says. "A man, when he is perfectly nice and clean, tactful, thoughtful and not noisy is bad enough, but a man who wears his hair in his eyes and over his collar, manicures outside his own room, leans around, sits with his feet higher than his head and all that is unbearable. If I married one of the beasts inadvertently, I'd break him to decency or I'd kill him with indigestion. What's the good of a husband, anyway? He has never been more or less than a pet or provider. By his own admission, female competition has driven him to gentleness as a provider. That is all right; it simply makes him twice a pet. Now, having reduced him to his lowest terms, since it was only a question of a pet, why not be satisfied with a bird, a cat, a dog, a monkey? Any of these many? Such pets do not smoke, get drunk, nor bring mud into the house. They never talk back. They come when they are called, and they do not try to run things."

TAUGHT AMERICAN MANNERS.

Male Immigrants Receive a Forcible Lesson as Soon as They Reach Our Gates.

The first lesson in American manners learned by the male immigrants is usually imparted at the gates of Ellis island. Having passed inspection, proved his fitness to become an American citizen and received his discharge from guardianship, he marshals his family and starts for the boat landing, says the New York Post. He leads the group himself, conducting the youngest walking member of the family, and carrying a bag or small parcel in his hand. He bind him trot the children, all laden, then the wife, bending beneath a huge bundle of household goods or even a heavy trunk. Last of all staggers the grandmother, literally bent double under the load she carries.

Suddenly the head of the family is rudely accosted in an unknown tongue by one of the officials of the island. There is nothing unintelligible in the manner in which the said officer relieves the mother and grandmother of their burdens and the immigrant, to his amazement, finds himself finishing his journey to the boat carrying the heaviest of the load on his own unaccustomed shoulders, while the oldest boys shoulder the rest. This is an everyday occurrence at Ellis island.

Radium and Musk.

Radium was the subject matter under discussion, and a lawyer said, according to the Philadelphia Record: "I don't see anything so very wonderful in radium. Admit that it does throw off light and heat in a kind of perpetual motion, without any loss of weight or energy—well, won't a grain of musk do the same thing? One single grain of musk (this has been demonstrated) will scent for several years a room 12 feet square, and in the end the grain will still remain entire. Consider what this infinitesimal piece of musk fragments for years, and still will remain whole. Can radium beat that?"

Monkeys in South America.

Monkeys are very numerous along the northwest coast of South America, but are not found west of the Andes from northern Peru to the south end of the continent. Their home in South America is chiefly in the forests of Venezuela throughout the great Amazon basin and along the tributaries of the upper half of the Paraguay and the Parana rivers.

Production of Kerosene.

Last year 60,000,000 barrels of kerosene were produced in the United States, and it is reckoned that the proceeds from the sale of this and the various by-products obtained from crude petroleum aggregated nearly $500,000,000.

JUSTICE QUEERLY DISPENSED.

English Magistrate Encourages the Belief That Malefactors Would Better Be Drunk.

Being under the influence of drink is usually considered no excuse for having committed a crime, but it would seem that one magistrate is inclined to be an exception to his brothers on the bench. In this direction, says Cassell's Journal.

Recently a justice of the peace had two young men brought him on a charge of theft. They pleaded guilty, and as this obviated the necessity for evidence being given, the magistrate was somewhat in the dark as to their culpability.

"Well, sir," he said, addressing one of the prisoners, "have you anything to say in extenuation of your offense?"

The prisoner hung his head, and replied meekly:

"If your worship, I was drunk when I did it."

"Drunk!" exclaimed the magistrate; "that makes the offense all the worse. You will go to prison for three months. And you, sir," he continued, addressing the other prisoner, "what have you to say for yourself?"

"Nothing, your honor!" was the reply.

"Were you drunk?" pursued the justice.

"No, your honor; I was never drunk in my life."

"Indeed!" exclaimed the magistrate, raising his eyebrows in affected astonishment; "then you are not even that excuse? Then you will go to prison for six months!"

MASQUERADING FRUITS.

Nuts and Seeds That Resemble in Form Certain Animals and Insects.

Of fruits that resemble animals, the buffalo-headed nut, trapa bicornis of China, is perhaps the most astonishing. Nothing is more curious than its resemblance to a buffalo—head, horns, eyes and nose.

It is an aquatic plant, with dissected submerged leaves and a tuft of aerial broad leaves. The nut contains a sweet edible kernel, and a species in Cashmere is a staple food. One species has been naturalized in our Concord river.

These nuts are also known as water caltrops, in allusion to the spiked balls, formerly used to impede cavalry. The imitative shape has no supposable use, except as the resemblance may hinder animals from swallowing it.

Some seeds resemble insects. Thus, the husk of biserrula pelecinus suggests a caterpillar or a centipede; the seed of the castor-oil plant a beetle, and, still more, a tick; and the seed is often mistaken for a beetle, showing thorax and two elytra with their lines of ornamentation.

A low leguminous plant of the Mediterranean region, scorpiurus subvillosa, has the pod so curved like a worm or a serpent more than a scorpion's tail, which is the meaning of the generic name; but in scorpiurus vermiculata the likeness to a caterpillar is so striking that the pods are sometimes laid upon salads to test the nerves of guests; the latter is called the caterpillar plant.

POTATOES A GREAT CROP.

Value of the Tubers Exceeds That of Any Other Single Product of the Farm.

The opinion generally prevails that wheat or corn—in some regions one and in others the other—constitute the crop of greatest value to the world. Such is not the fact. The potato leads all with one single crop produced at the rate of 4,000,000,000 bushels a year, while the wheat yield is only 2,500,000,000, Europe produces seven-eighths of the world's potatoes, but it is little Ireland which eats most of them, averaging four pounds of potatoes a day per capita. The United States is on record as the greatest neat-eating country in the world, 11,000,000,000 pounds yearly being consumed here. There are physiologists who ascribe to the potato power on land and sea. Johnny Bull has the sweetest tooth among the world's children, heading the list of sugar consumers at a yearly rate of 3,000,000,000 pounds of sugar. Of tobacco, however, the average in Belgium is 110 ounces per capita, to the United States only 43 ounces. But in the matter of beer the United States again takes the lead, showing a record of 20 gallons a year for each inhabitant, distancing even Germany herself.

MESSAGE ROUND THE WORLD.

Time Spent and Cost of Telegraphing Two Words Forty Thousand Miles.

A Paris correspondent of Nature writes: "July 3 the Temps resolved to send a message round the world by telegraphy, using the Anglo-French system of transoceanic cables. The message was sent from Paris at 11 a. m. and consisted of the two words 'Temps, Paris,' with the indication of the route, via Malta, Aden, Singapore, Brisbane, Vancouver and French Atlantic cable. As the indication of the route is not paid for, the cost of the experiment was only $1.25. No previous explanation or preliminary notice had been served to the several companies, but the organization of the Anglo-French system is so perfect that the message arrived at the Temps office at 5:50 p. m. The time spent had been six hours for traveling about 40,000 miles, a measure of the commercial speed of electricity on the occasion of the inauguration of the American, Sandwich, Philippine and Hong-Kong system."

Signs for Cows.

A certain justice of the peace in Maryland evidently imagines that cows can read his print. He recently gave a verdict against a railroad company for killing a cow near a road crossing for the reason that "the defendant had no sign up at the crossing."

Cold weather is predicted—except in local political circles.

Dowie's son is twenty-seven years old and has never been stoned. How he must envy Captain—what's his name. Oh, Hobson.

A Newark barber says that many cases of blindness are traceable to the use of lay rum in barber shops. The ordinary brand of rum produces just plain staggers.

The Elizabeth Journal needs Charlie McBride.

Strong impressions usually result from the use of strong expressions to one's advertising.—Printers' Ink.

So the Colby school act is unconstitutional. Well now, as some one has remarked "what's the Constitution among friends?"

The knives in the North Plainfield Republican camps are fast becoming rusty, but it is beginning to look as if the supply will not meet the demand in this city on election day.

The Grafters, a one act play, with Sam Parks, John A. Dowie, W. S. Devery, Charles Murphy and Charles Schwab as a cast, ought to score a hit before the like-to-be-fooled public

Rev. Dr. Richards' arrangement of Tammany should have weight with his congregation at least. The pastor of the Brick Church is ah ve a things temperant in his utterances

Won't some one endow an institution for the instruction of New Jersey assemblymen. These unconstitutional laws are getting to be too frequent a occurrence to be a laughing matter

William Jennings Bryan will come into an estate amounting to $50,000 under the will of Philo S. Bennett, no whether it is payable in gold or silver will make no difference to the fun orator of the Platte.

Judging from the way he went in spare while running for Governor office, we were led to believe that person would have to get up extra the morning to get ahead of Gov. H. Frank Cortell. Under such circ that 5 o'clock was early enough to the trick.

AMUSEMENTS.

Francis Wilson tumbled down stairs in a most unique way some years ago. At the same time he tumbled into fame. The little stunt took place in "Erminie," a comedy, of which the public will never tire. He's up to his old tricks again. See him at the Casino.

The big musical comedy success in New York is, of course, "Peggy From Paris" at Wallack's Theatre written by George Ade of "Fables in Slang" fame and produced by Henry W. Savage. Like Mr. Savage's earlier productions, "King Dodo," "The Prince of Pilsen" and "The Sultan of Sulu," the new musical play has captured New York and is in for a long run. One of the features of "Peggy From Paris" is that its fun is always clean

"Merry of the Lowlands," the Spanish play now running at the Manhattan Theater, New York, can be seen but a short time, as its engagement of this home will end on Oct. 31, and it will be succeeded on Nov. 2 by James K. Hackett in his new play, "John Ermine," which is one of the most successful that Mr. Hackett has yet appeared in. "Merry of the Lowlands" was originally intended for but three weeks at the Manhattan, but being the only available time between the engagement of Mrs. Fiske and that of Mr. Hackett.

William Collier in A Fool and His Money is to be seen at the Bijou. Personal accord a great hit, but the great star is more adapted to the present play which affords unbounded humor Matinee on Saturdays.

BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARIES.

Celebration in Honor of Mrs. Butt's Birthday to be Followed by That of Her Nephew.

Passaic, Oct. 26—Mrs. Ann Butts, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is the great aunt her nephew, Alfred Speer, of this city, whose extensive vineyards are in the suburbs of Passaic, celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of her birth, on Oct. 6. Mrs Butts was the twin sister of Mr Speer's mother who died twelve years ago at the age of eighty-eight. Mrs. Butts is in good health, and made the journey from Brooklyn without showing any sign of fatigue.

"Many younger persons would have been groaning and complaining and feeling tired if they had made the journey I did the other day," said Mrs Butts, "but I didn't mind it at all I'm not a bit tired."

Mr. Speer is almost eighty years old. He owns and manages personally a vineyard over fifty acres in the outskirts of Passaic and is actively interested in many other enterprises

Mrs. Butts was sick some thirty five years ago and under the care of a physician in New York, who recommended that she take daily a little of Speers Burgundy or port wine. She has been supplied regularly since that time with the product of Mr. Speer's vineyard, and declares that the wine is responsible for her great age [illegible] health.

Mrs Butts will hold a reception at Speer's chateau during the afternoon and evening of November 2, the birthday of her nephew, Alfred Speer, the fortune making genius of Passaic, whose oil stocks and wine cellars are here. He will be eighty years old on that day, forty years of which has been devoted to the grape vineyards and wine making. Aunt Ann is a descendant of the Van Emburgh, the Kingsland and the Terrance families, many of whom live in Paterson, Newark, Pinebrook, Orange and Arlington. FRANK O. REINHART WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Plainfielder Wearing Princeton's Colors Defeats W. C. Chick, of Harvard.

BY 4 UP AND 2 TO PLAY

REINHART'S EXCELLENT GOLF RECORD FOR THE SEASON.

Beaten by Travis for National Amateur Championship—Won Cup on Shinnecock Links—Defeated the Englishman.

Frank O. Reinhart, a Princeton undergraduate, who lives on Belvidere avenue, won the intercollegiate golf championship at Garden City on Saturday, by defeating W. C. Chick, of Harvard, in the final round by 4 up and 2 to play. The contest was at thirty-six holes, eighteen in the forenoon and eighteen in the afternoon. Reinhart led by 4 up at the end of the morning half, and the result was never afterward in doubt.

This victory adds considerably to Reinhart's reputation as one of the leading match players of the season. He was a semi-finalist in the National amateur championship, being beaten by Travis, 5 up and 4 to play. Previous to that he had beaten Travis twice—once at Garden City in May, when he won the Garden City cup, and again at Morris County in June. In the all-collegiate team match against the Oxford-Cambridge team, Reinhart beat his man, J. A. T. Brandish, 1 up. In the Shinnecock tournament in August he won the cup for the lowest score.

FAREWELL TO MR. MARSHALL

MARCONNIER SUNDAY-SCHOOL PRESENTS A TOKEN OF REGARD.

Pleasant Words of Rev. Dr. Scheeck and A. C. Beckstein—A Baptism.

The faithful and efficient services of H. W. Marshall, as superintendent of Marconnier Chapel during the past fourteen and half years, were pleasantly recognized at the chapel Sunday afternoon, when Mr. Marshall acted as superintendent for the last time. Totally as a surprise to him, A. C. Beckstein, in the name of the Sunday-school, presented a handsome silk umbrella, at the same time making a few remarks in which he spoke of the earnest efforts put forth by Mr. Marshall and his devotion to the service of the chapel.

In response Mr. Marshall expressed his grateful appreciation for the useful and handsome gift, and he thanked the members of the chapel and Sunday-school for the way in which they had assisted him in the work. The growth of the school was referred to with considerable satisfaction.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck, of Trinity Reformed Church, who was present at the Sunday-school session, also made a few remarks relative to Mr. Marshall's retirement

Another pleasant feature of the afternoon was the baptism of Anna Katherine, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. VanCourt, by Rev. Dr. Scheeck, pastor of Trinity Reformed Church. This is the first baptism at the chapel and it was attended with more than ordinary interest.

The service at the chapel last night was in charge of Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield. There was a good attendance and much interest manifested in the meeting.

COUNCILMEN INSPECT INDUSTRIAL HOME

Alms Committee Pleased Over Conditions at Municipal Institution for the Poor.

DESCRIPTION OF HOME

LUNCHEON FOR OFFICIALS AFTER EXAMINATION OF THE PLACE.

Some of the Improvements—City Purchased House Six Years Ago —Those in Charge of the Institution.

While this city has been growing rapidly the proper care of the poor has not been overlooked. An efficient overseer and a sympathetic alms committee in the Common Council has made of the Blats house on West Front street and Rock avenue a model industrial home. What was once a half way house has been transformed into one of the most homelike and comfortable retreats for the aged to be found in this section of the State.

An inspection of the home was made Saturday afternoon by the alms committee which has taken personal pride in the home, and accompanied by some of the city officials, noted the wonderful transformations which have been wrought through the appropriations made by the Council recently. Changes have been made which make the place warm in winter and cool in summer. Modern conveniences have been added and the whole interior has been painted and thoroughly renovated. The home is a credit to every tax payer in the city.

The house was purchased of Joseph Blatz by the city six years ago for the purpose of making of it an alms house.

The house and grounds were purchased at the time the sewer beds were installed on Rock avenue. I. D. TenEyck, was appointed superintendent and Mrs. TenEyck, matron of the home. There were only a few inmates when the home was started but today there are sixteen, five of whom are women and nine are men. They are housed in two different parts of the building according to sex. Separate dining rooms and bath rooms are provided for both sexes. The women's department, over which Mrs. TenEyck is in charge, is a model of order and cleanliness. The rooms are light and airy and are well kept while those of the men in charge of Mr. TenEyck, are large roomy and well ventilated. Cleanliness in all departments is insisted upon and as a consequence everything is bright and cheerful and the inmates seem content. The inmates are under the care of the city physician and a King's Daughter's nurse.

The improvements recently installed have done much to add to the cheerfulness of the place. The alms committee has added a steam heating plant, electric light system, telephone service, an enlarged laundry, a barn and shed and last but not least a miniature sewerage disposal plant where all the sewage from the house is treated on exactly the same principal as the larger beds a half mile away where all the city's sewage is treated. It is said that there is not another institution in the State which has such a complete system for the disposal of sewage. Like the city system the smaller one works perfectly.

In the party who inspected the home Saturday were Chairman of the committee, William L. Gloak, and his associates, W. A. Garrigues, and E. E Pray, President of the Council James F. Buckle, Mayor Olin L. Jenkins, Chief of Police Patrick J. Kiely, Chief of the Fire Department Thaddeous O. Doane and Overseer of the Poor Alexander Ayres. They were driven to the home in the new police patrol which attracted much attention as it sped through West Front street crowded with Saturday afternoon shoppers.

The committee and visitors were especially interested in the workings of the little sewer disposal plant. The reason it was installed at the home was explained by the fact that the home is below the level of the city beds. Some method of taking care of the sewage had to be provided for and as a result the miniature plant was installed. It is complete with septic tanks, filters and filtration apartment and the waste liquids are led off into five different channels and are absorbed by the earth.

After the inspection a luncheon was *served to the visitors by the superin*tendent and matron which proved to be a pleasing event as well as a surprise. The home is always open for inspection and its neatly kept yards and buildings makes it one of the show places of the city.

DR S. S. WILLIS MOURNED BY MANY

Plainfielder's Son Made a Rapid Rise in Appleton, Wis., Where He Located.

SKETCH OF HIS CAREER

HE WAS CHIEF OF STAFF OF A LARGE HOSPITAL THERE.

Prominent as a Mason, Pythian and Elk—Only Thirty-Five Years of Age—Scenes at His Funeral—Newspapers Eulogized Him.

Recent issues of the daily newspapers published at Appleton, Wis., indicate the great loss which that city sustains in the death of Dr. Sidney S. Willis, son of J. V. N. Willis, of this city. All the publications in Appleton and the nearby towns give columns of space in describing him and his untimely death.

While Dr. Willis was a Jerseyman, the last nine years of his professional career were spent in the Western city where he died. His popularity extended practically to every walk of life in that community, and his death consequently cast a gloom which was everywhere apparent. The Appleton papers tell of the sorrowing crowds which viewed Dr. Willis' body as it laid in state, and say that it was one of the most remarkable scenes ever witnessed in that city.

His popularity and prestige as a physician, though of the highest order, were completely overshadowed by the intense personal regard in which he was held. He was prominent in many fraternal orders, and being one of the most noted Masons in the State, his funeral was conducted by Waverly Lodge, A. and A. M. The Knights of Pythias and Elks lodges also attended in a body, and lodges of the various fraternities from all the nearby cities and towns were present. These lodges appointed guards to convey the body East to his burial place at Marlborough, Monmouth County, N. J., where it was met by Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, of this city.

Dr. Willis was but 35 years old. The large hospital at Appleton is one of the lasting monuments to his memory, for it was by his fostering care and industry that it was built. He did not labor in vain, for the people of Wisconsin will never forget him any more than his sorrowing family and friends in Plainfield will.

HANDSOMELY EQUIPPED

A SHORT HISTORY OF MASONRY IN PLAINFIELD.

First Warrant for Blue Lodge Received Eighty-Six Years Ago—Chapter Instituted in 1870 and Commandery in 1889.

When the Babcock building was destroyed in Plainfield's most destructive fire on Thursday morning, March 6, 1902, the Masons in this city lost their home, and not until this week did they re-enter their own place. It was a severe blow to the fraternity when its home was completely destroyed by fire and water, but since that time the work of rebuilding the "sky-scraper" has been going on, and at last the Masons are again housed in what is said to be the most elaborate, as well as the best appointed, Masonic headquarters in New Jersey.

The entire fifth floor and the better part of the fourth floor of the structure compose the Masonic home. On the fifth floor is a large room in which the communications of the blue lodges, the meetings of the chapter and the convocations of the commandery are held. Surrounding it are various ante-rooms, retiring rooms and locker-rooms, as well as halls, and in front of all, facing on West Front street, are the reception rooms. All are finished in fine taste. Fine grades of hard wood have been used throughout. The lodge room, however, is finished in white enamel so far as the woodwork is concerned. The dome in the ceiling is decorated, and in it is a multitude of small incandescent lights. On the fourth floor are the banquet hall, the drillroom, the kitchens and the retiring rooms. In all parts of the home every up-to-date improvement has been made.

As far as the masonic paraphernalia are concerned no expense has been spared in the work of restoration. All the furniture is of solid oak, and the individual chairs are models of workmanship. The chairs of the officers and the other paraphernalia in wood are of a high order in design, as is also the brass work. The carpets on the fifth floor cost $1,000. As yet the lodge room is incomplete. A large pipe organ will be installed there before November 15.

Masonry made its entry in Plainfield almost eighty-six years ago. Jerusalem Lodge No. 40, Free and Accepted Masons, received its warrant, dated November 11, 1817, in December, 1817, and on December 17, of the same year, the first communication ever held in Plainfield, which was then a township of Essex County, took place. It was held in a building at the corner of Front and Somerset streets. The charter members were John Allen, Elias Runyon, William D Sherwood, Jacob Lazalere, William Williamson, Simeon Gnage and William Stuart. Mr. Allen was chosen worshipful master, and Mr. Runyon was then made senior warden, while Mr Sherwood was elected junior warden. Mr. Williamson was made treasurer and Mr. Norcott secretary. The first tyler was Mr. Lazalere. In 1853 the lodge number was changed to 26, the name remaining the same. At the present time there are 191 members.

On January 2, 1879, a number of members of Jerusalem Lodge No. 26 and other Masons obtained permission from the grand lodge of the State to form a new blue lodge. It became known as Anchor Lodge No. 149, and among its charter members were some of the most influential men in the city. Its history like that of the older organization has been one of continued success. At present the sister blue lodges meet alternately on Tuesday nights, and frequent visits are exchanged. Receptions are also given.

Until thirty-three years ago, there *was no chapter here, but on Septem*ber 14, 1870, a warrant was drawn for the institution of Jerusalem Chapter No. 30, Royal Arch Masons. This organization drew its membership not only from Plainfield and North Plainfield, but from the surrounding towns and country districts. Trinity Commandery No. 17, Knights Templar, was formed in the fall of 1889, with William H. Sebring as its first eminent commander. Since then Mr. Sebring has been a grand commander of the templars in New Jersey. He is known throughout the State among members of the fraternity.

Jerusalem Lodge, the parent organization, has a membership of 191, and on its rolls are the names of some distinguished officers of the grand lodge in the past. Dr. Daniel C. Adams, a past master of the lodge, is at present grand commander of the Knights Templar of New Jersey, and Jacob Kirkner, another past master, is grand generalissimo of the order in this State.—Newark Sunday News.

CONSOLIDATED HIGH SCHOOL SUGGESTED

North Plainfield Board of Education Addresses Plainfield's Authorities.

VIGOROUS OPPOSITION

RESOLUTION PASSED BY VOTE OF FIVE TO FOUR.

A. V. D. Honeyman and Dr. J. R. Cooley Object to Measure and Fought for Amendment—Action Monday Night.

Another phase of the school consolidation project developed at the meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education at its regular meeting last Monday when the resolution, which was defeated at the last session, was passed by a vote of five to four. A. V. D. Honeyman made two attempts to amend the resolution but *both were defeated. A heated discus*sion preceded its passage.

This is the resolution as presented last evening by John Valiant, who voted against the proposition at the last meeting: "Your preparations to enlarge the facilities for High School instruction in Plainfield prompt us to address you in a matter of common concern.

"The policy of duplicating accommodations, efforts and expense by maintaining a separate High School organization in North Plainfield has frequently been questioned, but up to the present time no other course has been open to us. We would now, however, respectfully invite you to make a proposition offering a practicable basis for a union of the two High Schools. Inasmuch as such an arrangement, if consummated, would relieve our pressing needs for a new primary building, we would raise an early reply."

Mr. Honeyman suggested as amend*ments to which it provided that* before submitting the proposition to the Plainfield Board a public meeting be held so that the taxpayers could have an opportunity of voicing their opinions as to whether or not the communication be sent. This was defeated by a vote of four to three, Mr. Joy and Mr. Overton not voting.

A second resolution which was defeated by a vote of five nays to four ayes was:

"In making a proposition to us concerning the foregoing, it should be borne in mind that any contract made to us should be binding for a term of years." The original resolution was finally passed.

The standing of the members of the Board upon this question was seen in the argument which was advanced throughout the discussion. Mr. Townsend, who is in favor of the plan, held that before the Board went ahead with the matter of giving out a contract for a new school building more light should be thrown on the idea of what could be done by the Board to relieve the present school needs so that instead of erecting a school building now, which would meet the demands for the next two years, the temporary needs could be supplied by consolidating the two High Schools, temporarily, at least.

Mr. Honeyman, who has opposed the project from the first, declared that he did not come to the meeting for the purpose of turning down the resolution and he did not offer his amendments for that purpose, because he was opposed to it and would vote against it any way. Mr. Hortis asked if, by making such a proposition to the Plainfield Board, it would delay making preparations for the new borough school building which was answered by President Joy who said that it seemed to him that it would be necessary to have more school accommodations whatever the reply. He said he had gone over the reports for *the past fifteen years and was con*fident that by such an arrangement with Plainfield the conditions could be relieved for two years and by the end of that time arrangements could be made to erect a six room school building where it is now planned to erect one of four rooms. By erecting one of six rooms the needs of the borough would be supplied for at least six years.

Dr. Cooley, who has stood solidly for home schools throughout the discussions at both meetings, said it was impossible and impracticable to make such a proposition. Mr. Joy replied that it was a question with the Board whether to erect a four room school building now or by an arrangement with the Plainfield Board wait several years and erect a six or twelve room school building.

Mr. Honeyman finally declared that the whole matter before the taxpayers was whether to abandon the High School to the borough or provide the proper facilities for North Plainfield children in No th Plainfield and not in Plainfield.

What further action may be taken by the Board will depend upon the reply received from the Plainfield Board, which meets Monday evening

Cummings, Wilson and Phillips deserve special mention for the manner in which they advanced the ball for Alis, while Voorhees and Cremings were all over the gridiron for West-field. Cummings, for Alis, and Carey, for Westfield, had to retire from the game in the second half because of badly sprained ankles.

Fascinating Xmas Story by Plainfield Author to Appear in the Metropolitan.

The Metropolitan Magazine's Christmas number will be especially interesting to Plainfielders since it has been announced that George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, an artist and author of international note, contributes a short story. His is a typical Christmas tale of the laughing, humorous kind, dealing with Holland and filled with outdoor freshness and healthy gayety of the Dutch at the time when "Saint Nic'laas" holds sway. Color drawings by the author, himself, illustrating the story will be a special feature of the number. A case of medals received at expositions and exhibitions in this country and abroad give some idea of Mr. Edwards' real ability with the brush and it is quite unnecessary to add that the color drawings for his Christmas story are particularly striking.

Miss Brouthers, of Wappinger's Falls, N. Y., has returned home after a visit with Plainfield friends.

Miss May Gulick, of this city, has been visiting her brother, John Gulick, of Round Valley, Hunterdon County.

Mr. and Mrs. *G. H. Frost, of Wat*chung avenue, have returned from Chicago, where they went to attend the marriage of their son.

JOHN A. DOWIE A FALSE PROPHET

Rev. Dr. Schenck Takes the Zion Impostor as Subject for a Sermon.

DENOUNCES THE ZIONIST

ELIJAH III A PRESUMING AND ASSUMING MONEY GETTER.

Man Exposed by the Pulpit and Press Merely a Mountebank—His Career and Teachings—The True and False Prophets Compared.

"John Alexander Dowie, "Elijah III," his teachings and beliefs were thoroughly exposed by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck at the morning service on Sunday in Trinity Reformed Church. By passages in the Scriptures and by tracing the modern alleged "restorer's" career from his graduation in the Edinburgh University down to his last meeting in Madison Square Garden, New York, it was plainly seen that the man who has been exposed in the press of the Metropolis was nothing more than a charlatan, a mountebank and fakir.

Malachai, IV:5, was the passage from which the pastor took his text. He described Elijah, the real prophet, and John the Baptist, who was the second Elijah, and then compared them both to the false prophet and maligner. Elijah, he said, received his commission from God's hand and when his work was finished he returned the commission to the Lord while the present day Elijah, with his long flowing robes and almost profane language, received his commission from none other than his own hands.

Dr. Schenck declared that the first Elijah was a reformer and that the second Elijah came as the promised forerunner of Christ and that therefore the people need not look for an Elijah the third.

The minister said that when the present day Elijah came to New York he advised the ministers of the Gospel to take down their commentaries and make an investigation of the Scriptures. This he said the ministers had done and in their Bibles they found passages which would convince that no one need to look for another Elijah. "What then of this man's claim?" asked the minister. "There is nothing whatever to rest his assertions on, and it is a vain assumption and presumption for him to call himself Elijah III."

The pastor sketched the man's career, telling how he became to imagine himself to be a prophet. According to the story while he was in Australia a man stepped up to him and said to him that he was no doubt the great Elijah. Later when he had opened his city of Zion in the West this same man saw him and again declared that the preacher must be the great prophet. Dowie then began to expound this as doctrine. He found that people believed in him and he began to gain strength and wealth. Many people were ready to follow him, give one-tenth of their income to him and will over to him their property. He waxed rich.

Looking carefully into the characteristics of the man, Mr. Schenck pointed out that he is a moneymaker. To keep employed his converts he started a lace works in Zion city. Being protected by the high tariff on laces imported, it proved a paying investment from the start. According to his own utterances, said Mr. Schenck, Dowie is not by nature a preacher. He is credited with saying "By nature I am a business man but by instinct and inclination I am a great preacher."

Comparing the Elijah of almost three thousand years ago and the so-called Elijah of today Mr. Schenck said that the modern alleged prophet did not look like an Elijah; his ac*tions were different and his* makeup dissimilar.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL TEACHERS MEET

Eighth Annual Institute of Primary and Junior Sunday-School Teachers' Union.

AFTERNOON AND NIGHT

SESSIONS HELD IN THE SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST CHURCH PARLORS.

Miss Beeching Presided — Address by Miss Baldwin, of Newark—Vocal Music and Talks—The Programme.

The eighth anniversary of the Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union was observed Monday, together with the annual Institute, the meeting being held in the parlors of the Seventh-Day Baptist Church. There was a large attendance of members and visiting friends, the affair being one of the most pleasant in the history of the Union. Miss Nettie J. Beeching, as president of the Union, had charge of the Institute and the general programme. There were two sessions, one in the afternoon at 3 o'clock and the other in the evening at 7:45, besides two conferences were held between the hour of supper and the evening session.

The afternoon session was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. Baker, of the local Union, and following a Primary song, Mrs. Alonzo Pettit, of Elizabeth, president of the State Primary Council, gave a talk on beginners' work and teachers' training work and also taught the Sunday-school lesson for November 1. This talk proved very helpful to the many teachers present.

Mrs. J. A. Powlison, who was to have taught the Primary song, was unavoidably detained and this was omitted, and the next part on the programme was the teaching of the Primary lesson, "David and Abealom," by Mrs. Skillman, president of the New Brunswick Union. In the teaching of this lesson Mrs. Skillman used the blackboard and illustrated her teaching in an interesting manner.

Following a piano solo by Miss Voorhees, the afternoon programme closed with an illustrated talk by Miss J. L. Baldwin, of Newark, on "Duties of Assistant Junior Teachers." She told of the very many helpful rules to be adopted by the junior teacher in her work with the children in her department and following her talk she answered many questions asked by the different teachers.

At 6 o'clock supper was served in the church parlors to the members and their friends and the social features, as well as the excellent things provided, were greatly enjoyed by all. These young women had charge of serving the supper: Miss Edith Cairns, Miss Ada Fountain, Miss Elizabeth Wilson, Miss Florence Serrell, Miss Deborah Winn.

After the supper there were two conferences, one led by Mrs. Alonzo Pettit, of Elizabeth, for Primary workers and the discussion of the Lord's Prayer, and the other for Junior workers, led by Miss J. L. Baldwin. At the latter conference the Shepherd's Psalm was the topic for discussion.

The attendance was much larger at the evening session, there being present many pastors, Sunday-school superintendents, as well as other workers in this field of the church work. *George F. Brown, first assist*ant superintendent of the First Baptist Sunday-school, opened the session with a praise service, after which Mrs. Alonzo Pettit taught the doxology. Miss Baldwin, of Newark, who taught the Primary lesson in the afternoon, taught the Junior lesson from the same topic, "David and Absalom," using the blackboard effectively in her talk.

Preceding a piano solo by Miss Edith Cairns, Mrs. R. W. Barnes, secretary and treasurer of the Union, gave a brief history of the organization during the past year and there was a roll call of members. The Union was organized on September 13, 1895, with thirteen members, at a meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. building. Since that time there has been a steady increase until now the membership of the Union is fifty. Meetings have been held weekly and everyone has been attended with much interest. The finances are in excellent condition, all bills being paid and there being a surplus in the treasury.

After the reading of the reports the address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Mr Thomson, of Bound Brook, who gave a most excellent talk on the subject of "Boys." He spoke of the great importance of the Sunday-school teacher devoting her time to the teaching of boys and he gave much encouragement as to the results. He also dwelt upon the discouragements, citing many of the annoying features attending the instruction of a class of boys in Sunday-school. Mr. Thomson's talk was exceedingly practical and offered many valuable suggestions to those present in the work of teaching in a Sunday-school.

Following the talk, the benediction was pronounced by Rev. George B. Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist Church.

AS TO SKIN DISEASES AMONG THE PUPILS

Borough Board Discusses Plans to Cope With the Present Trouble.

MR. TOWNSEND'S IDEAS

WISHES TO HAVE PARENTS INSTRUCTED IN PROPER TREATMENT.

As to the Vaccination Blanks—The Drawing Instruments—Warrants Drawn—The Business at the Session.

Whether or not to appoint a trained nurse or some competent person to visit the homes of children sent restricted from attending the North Plainfield schools on account of contagious skin diseases, and to instruct parents in the proper administering of medicines for the cure of these ailments, was one of the questions brought up before the members of the North Plainfield Board of Education at the meeting held Monday evening.

Chairman Samuel Townsend, of the truancy committee, in the course of his investigations has found that some pupils have been sent home because they are afflicted with a contagious skin disease. Because of neglect in applying the proper remedies, they return to school in some cases, before they are thoroughly cured and the disease is liable to spread among other children. He said that in some cases, where pupils have been in the habit of playing truant, they would encourage such diseases in order to escape the truant officer. Mr. Townsend suggested that a nurse, or competent person be employed by the Board of Education to visit the homes of children who are sent from school for this reason and instruct the parents in the proper administering of the medicines. The Board thought it was the work of the health physician and it was left with Mr. Town*send to see who was the person or* persons who should attend to that matter, believing that it might be part of the Board of Health's work.

It was also reported by Mr. Townsend that parents did not thoroughly understand the wording of the vaccination blanks sent out by the school physician and that upon receiving them they took their children from school rather than have them vaccinated again. It was explained that the vaccination blanks were sent to those parents whose children had not been successfully vaccinated, and they should therefore be vaccinated again. The matter was referred to the president of the Board with power.

Dr. Cooley reported that some supplies were needed which were ordered secured. Mr. Townsend reported for his committee that the habitual truants in the borough had been reduced to two or three and these were well in hand.

Mr. Hortis reported that in the mechanical drawing department many boys whose parents could not afford to purchase drawing instruments for them were unable to take the course because it was made compulsory for each child to provide his own tools. It was shown that that course is a most valuable one and that it was necessary for each pupil who desired to take it up should have the same privilege, whether rich or poor. It was referred to a committee to purchase drawing sets as they are needed.

Warrants were ordered to be drawn for $3,157 95; $2,919.18 being for general school purposes and $238.77 for the manual training department. Mr. Valiant suggested that the bills be paid from the cash on hand but it was shown that there was still some funds in the hands of the Common Council, from back taxes which had not been paid over yet and it was decided that the warrants be drawn as usual.

BROOKLYN POLICEMAN'S TEMPERANCE TALK

John Edward Brown, of New York, Interests Audience at Reform Club Meeting.

HARRY WHITE, OF JERSEY CITY, TO MAKE AN ADDRESS.

An Open Air Meeting Arranged—Special Music at All Sessions—Mr. and Mrs. Brown to Give Talks.

One of the oldest of the speakers who have addressed the revival meetings of the Reform Club at Reform Hall was last Friday's speaker, John Edward Brown, vice president of the 160th Street Mission of New York and a worker in the John and Doyer streets missions. Mr. Brown described conditions in New York as he had seen them, relating many interesting experiences of his own as a policeman in Brooklyn. Testimonials to the value of temperance work were given by George Belcher, B. C. Smith, J. W. A. Rasmussche and Eden Boice.

Sunday afternoon's meeting at Reform Hall was conducted by Harry White, superintendent of a mission in Jersey City, assisted by Mrs. White. Both Mr. and Mrs. White are powerful workers in the cause of prohibition. Mr. and Mrs. John E. Brown also addressed this meeting which was held at 4 o'clock. An open air meeting was held by the Reform Club in the field on the corner of Watchung avenue and Second street Mr. Brown was the speaker. The 8 o'clock's service at Reform Hall was led by Mr. and Mrs. Brown. The meetings will continue through this week and indefinitely thereafter. Special music will be included at all the exercises.

BOARDER WAS NO GENTLEMAN

KICKED OPEN THE FRONT DOOR WHEN HE CAME HOME DRUNK.

George Moncton Accused by His Landlady—Judge Runyon Gave Him Thirty Days.

George Moncton was arraigned this morning before City Judge William H. Runyon on complaint of his boarding house keeper who charged him with being drunk and disorderly about the house and not behaving as a gentleman should. Moncton had nothing to say. All that there was to say was said explicitly by the complaining proprietress of the boarding house.

Her story to the court was to the effect that the accused frequently came home in an intoxicated condition, and when he knocked for admittance, kicked the door in if it was not opened as soon as it should be This, she declared was not the proper conduct for gentlemen boarders and she desired to have him put away. Said the Judge, "thirty days," and the prisoner straightway disappeared behind the newly erected partition, and was placed in a gilded cage.

Peter Ritter, of Dunellen, pleaded guilty to coming to town last evening and getting drunk on the money he brought to do some shopping with. He was penitent, but Judge Runyon fined him $5 or twenty days.

BADLY BURNED AT A FIRE

FRANK RUCKMAN'S CLOTHING IGNITED AS RESULT OF GASOLENE EXPLOSION.

He Rides Home Despite Injuries—Believed That Horse Will Not Prove Fatal.

While vulcanizing a large automobile tire in his shop on West Front street, adjoining the First M. E Church, this morning, Frank Ruckman had a narrow escape from being burned to death. A small gasolene tank, becoming overcharged, exploded and set fire to Ruckman's clothing. Ruckman escaped from his shop into the piano store in front. He was crazed with fright and did not know what to do. Harry C. Hadley, and a friend named Hicks, who were nearby, threw Ruckman on the floor and then wrapped him up in several blankets. This extinguished the flames, but not until nearly all of the man's clothes were burned from his body.

With apparent superhuman strength, Ruckman rushed out of the building and jumping on his bicycle rode to his home in Craig place, where Dr. Fred Hughes was summoned. An examination disclosed the fact that from the waist down the body was frightfully burned, as were also the hands. The face was burned but little, and the upper part of the body was only slightly scorched. As yet Dr. Hughes is unable to tell how seriously the man is injured, but it is not believed the burns will prove fatal.

The damage to the repair shop was slight. An alarm sent in from box 42 brought the fire department quickly to the scene of the explosion and in a few minutes all fire was extinguished.

KING'S DAUGHTERS' SALE.

Successful Affair at Mrs. Slauson's Home.

Under the auspices of the Charity Circle, King's Daughters, a successful tea and sale was held yesterday afternoon from 2 to 6, at the home of Mrs. A. T. Slauson, on East Ninth street.

Mrs. William M. Stillman was chairman of the committee having in charge the sale of useful articles and Miss Blanche Randolph was chairman of the committee at the candy table. Mrs. James R. Joy had charge of the tea room, which was attractively decorated in pink and white, and she was assisted by a number of young women.

Those receiving were Mrs. A. T. Slauson, Miss Florence March, president of the Circle, and Mrs. William C. Kinney, while other members assisted in various ways in making the affair very successful. The exact amount realized will not be known for a few days, but a satisfactory sum is assured the ways and means of carrying on the work of the Circle.

Collecting Fares in Canada.

"There are all kinds of ways for collecting fares on the street cars, but one that I saw recently in Canada was certainly unique if not particularly up to date," says G. M. P. Holt. "I was taking a ride on the four mile trolley road running between Sherbrook and Lennoxille, in Canada. The first thing that met my eyeon entering the car was the sign, 'Nothing changed over $2.' I don't see exactly why they were so particular about the matter, as it didn't strike me that the class of passengers makes a practice of carrying ten dollar and twenty dollar bills only But what tickled me the most was the fare taking that occured soon after. The conductor came down the aisle carrying in his hand a curious-looking arrangement that resembled a large, square dark lantern. It had a handle attached which the conductor grasped, and when he shoved it toward my face and said 'fare' I perceived that it had a glass front and a slit in the top where you dropped your nickel or ticket, and then could see it slide on down to the bottom."—Springfield, (Mass.) Dance and Germans.

The character and temperament of the population of the Polish Fellowship are very quiet and peaceable. As an official Prussian record of criminal cases states, there is in the whole German empire no single province in which so many sentences are passed by the criminal judges as in north Schleswig. There were only half the Prussian average of these cases and cases of robbery with murder and murderous assault. These favorable crime statistics are due principally to the good temper and intelligence of the middle and lower classes as well as the cordial and harmonious family life of the Danish population. Among the individual members of the family there always exists a consistently affectionate and friendly tone in their intercourse with each other. I visited many theaters, restaurants and inns, which were principally frequented by the Danish inhabitants, but nowhere saw an improper action nor an ill-mannered offense. The intercourse between master and servant is also always friendly and polite.—Nineteenth Century.

Invading Armies in Plant Life.

Several years ago attention was called to the fact that the eastern plants of America were marching westward across the continent, keeping step with the advance of human settlements, and conquering the native plants as they proceeded. It was predicted that in time there would be a return of the western plants sweeping eastward and overcoming their conquerors, and, Science Siftings says, it is said that that return seems already to have begun. At present Australia presents perhaps the best example of this great spreading and conquering tendency of those plants that follow the advance of men.—Philadelphia Record.

Swearing in Excess.

A cricket club in the south of Scotland which has evidently found that the use of lurid language doesn't add to the amenities of play, has passed the following bylaw:

"Any member swearing to excess may be expelled."

I have not heard whether the club committee have yet arrived at a definition of "moderate swearing." The attempt to find one to meet all cases is likely to result in language both "painful and free."—Glasgow Times.

"I wished to ask your consent, sir."

"Have you got the girl's?"

"Oh, no, sir; I thought I would get yours before saying anything to her."

"That's right," that shows where you are short. The chap who got her asked her first. Then he came to me, and I hadn't a word to say against it. See?"—Comfort.

Milkstone Products.

A number of articles made from galalith, or milk stone, were shown at Hamburg. The casein from skimmed milk hardened by formaldehyde and variously colored was used for table tops, combs, knife handles, cigar holders, balls, rings, chessmen and dominoes. MONROE AVENUE Y. M. C. A.

NEW ORGANIZATION FOR BOYS FORMED BY MR. ROBBIE AND THE PASTOR.

For Lads Between Ten and Sixteen Years of Age—Objects of Organization.

What promises to be a very successful work for boys was started last night in the Epworth House of the Monroe Avenue Church, under the direction of the pastor, Rev. John Wesley Murray and Kenneth Robbie, boys' secretary at the Y. M. C. A.

At the first meeting held last week there were fifteen boys present and the movement was given a good start. Mr. Robbie outlined the plans of the scheme. The idea is to give each boy a ticket which gives him certain privileges at the Y. M. C. A. for a nominal fee. In addition to the spiritual side of the work, there will be the athletic features to interest the boys. They will have their own officers, a nominating committee being appointed last night from among the older boys, who will recommend a set of officers to be elected at the meeting to be held Thursday night, October 29, at the same place. The plan is to have a meeting each Thursday night and after the organization is perfected a line of work will be planned for the winter.

The organization will be known as the Monroe Avenue Branch of the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. The age limit was fixed last night between 10 and 16, this being considered just and wise.

SUIT AGAINST FAIR ESTATE

COLLATERAL HEIR CLAIMS $1,041.66 FROM ESTATE OF C. L. FAIR.

Written Agreement Basis of Action Which Has Been Commenced in SanFrancisco.

A dispatch from San Francisco says that James Fair, son of Andrew Fair and a nephew of James G. Fair, has filed suit against Herman Oelrichs, as administrator of the estate of Charles L. Fair, for $1,041.66, alleged to be due in settlement of his claim against the James G. Fair estate.

A written agreement was made by Charles L. Fair, Mrs. Oelrichs and Miss Virginia Fair, now Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., children of James G. Fair, to pay to the collateral heirs of their father $11,000 in settlement of their claim of interest in certain trust funds. James Fair declares that his share was $2,125, one-third of which was due from Mr. Fair at the time of his death. He now seeks this amount from the estate.

Her Style.

The case with which certain abbreviations lend themselves to the tongue was illustrated at a girls' college not long ago.

A group of girls had gathered in one of the rooms one day in early autumn, and they were good-naturedly discussing the differences in speech and pronunciation between the girls from different sections of the country.

"I can tell a girl from Ohio or one from California or one from Alabama the minute she speaks," announced a fair-haired young person with great decision.

"Now that's right entertaining," drawled a pretty southerner. "And where were you born, please?"

"In Springfield, Mass.," was the prompt reply.

"Mass.?" echoed the girl from Alabama. "Is that one of the new states? I'm right poor at geography."—Youth's Companion.

Against Woolenwear.

"I have myself become convinced by personal experience that wool next the skin is a great mistake. I have woolen linen underclothing for three years, with the result that I have not had a cold (except a slight one lasting three days), whereas previously I have always expected three good colds a winter," says Dr. Lahmann, "and a couple of attacks of grip thrown in.

"One of the directions in which we have not improved is in the dressing of children. They are nowadays sadly overclothed, particularly as to the legs and feet. Nor are adults wiser in wearing air-tight patent leather shoes, which wholly exclude the air from the feet, which particularly need ventilation. Nothing is more sure than that the future hygienic footwear will in summer at least, be of a sandal-like form."—Capt. F. E. Chadwick, of United States Navy.

Menelik's Irony.

A Swedish missionary who was endeavoring to gain a foothold in Abyssinia was brought before King Menelik, who asked him why he had left his home in Scandinavia in order to come to Abyssinia. The missionary replied that he had come to convert the Abyssinian Jews. "Are there no Jews in your country?" asked Menelik. The missionary admitted that there were a few. "And in all the countries that you have passed through did you find no Jews or heathens?" the king continued. Jews and heathens, the missionary admitted, were plentiful. "Then," said Menelik to his guards, "carry this man beyond the frontier, and let him not return until he has converted all the Jews and heathen which lie between his country and mine."

On the Installment Plan.

"Do you do business on the installment plan?" he asked of the tailor.

The tailor looked dubious, for he knew something of the man. However, he finally admitted that he did business that way.

"In that case," said the customer, "I would like to get a suit of clothes on the installment plan."

"All right," said the tailor, "but, of course, you understand what our installment plan is."

"Isn't it like all others?"

"Not at all. You see, we deliver the clothes by installments, and your first payment will just about cover the vest. When you make the next payment you will get the trousers, and when the bill is paid we will deliver the coat."—Chicago Post.

The Minister Won.

A minister was one day walking along a road, and to his astonishment he saw a crowd of boys sitting in front of a ring in a small piece of a center. When he came up to them, he put the following question: "What are you doing to the dog?" One little boy said, "Whoever tells the biggest lie wins it." "Oh," said the minister, "I am surprised at you little boys, for when I was like you I never told a lie." There was silence for awhile, until one of the boys shouted, "Hand him up the dog."—Labor Leader.

A Bargain.

It was in the raspberry season, and a freckled, barefooted little girl in a torn blue calico gown came to the door of a country boarding house to sell some berries she had gathered.

"How much are your berries?" asked the mistress of the house.

"They are 15 cents a quart, ma'am. But," she added in the same breath, "if you don't want them, you can have them for ten."

"I don't want them, so you may give me three quarts," replied the lady, merrily.—Woman's Home Companion.

WARREN ENGINE CO. RECEIVES APPLAUSE

North Plainfield's Crack Drilling Fire Boys Much Admired at Somerville.

CARRY OFF THE HONORS

INDEPENDENT FIFE AND DRUM CORPS FINEST IN THE PARADE.

Great Entertainment Afforded by Somerville Department—Dinner a Feature—Assemblyman Swackhamer Speaks.

Warren Engine Company No. 1. of North Plainfield, captured all the honors for being the best drilled company represented by the largest number of men in the firemen's day parade at Somerville Thursday afternoon. All along the line of march the company, in neat uniforms won unstinted applause from the throngs which lined the curbs along the route. Led by Captain William G. Smith, the company went through intricate evolutions. Such a hit did the local firemen make that the judges without hesitation awarded them honorable mention.

It was a great day in the history of the County seat. Fully 5,000 visitors were in the town. The houses were artistically decorated with bunting, flags and streamers and across the streets huge banners were strung welcoming the fire fighters to the town.

The North Plainfield company was represented by seventy-five men, all in uniform. They were headed by the Liberty Fife and Drum Corps, of Elizabeth and in the rear was the engine, which formerly belonged to the city department. The Independent Fife and Drum Corps was cheered all along the line and deservedly so for it eclipsed all others in the parade.

At the head of the parade was Chief of the Somerville Department William D. Quick. Next came carriages containing county and municipal officials and in the carriages following were Mayor N. B. Smalley, Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., James K. Arnold, Tax Collector George F. Brown, Recorder Thomas Doody, Charles M. Dolliver, Republican candidate for Assembly, Chief Thadeous O. Doane, of the Plainfield Fire Department, and Borough Clerk Rowley. Among the chiefs of the various fire companies in line was Chief of the North Plainfield Fire Department Julius J. Stahl.

There were ten bands and a fife and drum corps in line. At the head of the parade was the old hand engine which was used when the first fire brigade was organized in Somerville in 1850.

The North Plainfield fire laddies were the guests of the Central Hook and Ladder Company and the reports from the members show that the Central firemen are lavish entertainers. In the evening the local firemen were entertained by the Somerville fire department at a dinner in Woollen's mill where 800 sat down to a bountiful repast, four ministers being among the guests. Among those who responded to toasts were Chief Stahl, Captain Smith and many others. No intoxicating liquors were served. The day was a red letter one for the parade and the North Plainfield fire fighters proved themselves an honor to the borough.

Among those who made addresses was Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer. He paid a tribute to the firemen of Somerset County and declared that they were well deserving of the honors which were being showered upon them yesterday.

Special mention is due the members of the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, of this city, who paraded for the first time in their new uniforms yesterday. All along the line they were cheered for their neat appearance in line and the catchy airs which they played.

The meet will consist of five events, and each association will be represented by a five man team. A shield will be presented for the team securing the greatest number of points and the man securing the greatest number of points in any one event will receive a silver medal.

G. H. FROST'S SON WEDS CHICAGO GIRL

Miss Evelyn Newton Lynas Bride of George Harwood Frost, of London, Eng.

SOCIETY FOLK THERE

MARRIAGE CEREMONY BRILLIANT AFFAIR AT HOME OF BRIDE'S PARENTS.

Francis W. Frost, of This City, Best Man—Handsome Gifts—The Bride Charmingly Gowned—To Live in England.

Miss Evelyn Newton Lynas, of Chicago, Ill., and George Harwood Frost, of London, England, a son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Frost, of Watchung avenue, this city, were married at a brilliant ceremony in the home of the bride's parents in Vernon street, Chicago, Thursday, 4 P. M. There was a great outpouring of society folk to attend the nuptial event, both the bride and the groom being members of exclusive sets.

Mrs. Saltinstall-Taylor, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Francis W. Frost, of this city, a brother of the groom, was best man. The scene of the wedding, a large parlor in the Lynas mansion, was elaborately adorned. Huge masses of cut flower, chiefly roses, were placed here and there with fetching effect, and the palms and potted plants were banked up against the walls, lending an attractive appearance to the room.

The bride was gowned in white chiffon cloth and Irish crochet lace, exceedingly becoming to her style of beauty. She wore a veil of tulle and at her throat was a large diamond brooch. A bit of color was given to the toilet by an old English necklace of amethysts. This exquisite necklace was the gift of the groom.

After the wedding ceremony a reception was held, there being fully 250 guests gathered in the home. During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Frost left for the East. After spending a few days in New York they will sail for Europe, where their honeymoon will be spent. Mr. and Mrs. Frost will reside in England.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Lynas and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Frost, of this city, who were present at the wedding ceremony.

YOUNG LADIES MET.

Missionary Society of First Baptist Church Had Good Time.

The Young Ladies' Missionary Society, of the First Baptist Church, held its first meeting of the season, yesterday at the home of Miss Ada Fountain, president of the society. On account of the disagreeable weather the attendance of members was small. After the transaction of routine business, games were played and refreshments served. Those in charge of the entertainment were Miss Elizabeth Wilson, chairman; Miss Edith Cairns and Miss Helen Robbins.

The society will hold its next meeting Friday afternoon, November 6, at the church, and a full attendance of members is desired.

Park Club's Events.

Now that the committees for the coming year have been appointed by the president of the Park Club, a season of unusual activity may be expected. Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Reed, who are at the head of the entertainment committee, will, with the other able assistants on that committee, attend to the various forms of amusement during the winter months and a number of novel events will be given for the entertainment of the members and friends.

Miss Robinson's Guests.

Miss Edith Robinson, of West Third street, gave a reception and entertainment Thursday night in honor of her guest, Miss Jessie Engell, of Elizabeth. About thirty people were present from Elizabeth and about twenty from Plainfield. Singing, dancing and playing games composed the evening's pleasures.

COLORED PEOPLE REJOICED GREATLY

The Mt. Olive Baptist Church Opened Its Doors After Undergoing Extensive Repairs.

MAYOR JENKINS SPOKE

MANY OTHERS MADE CONGRATULATORY REMARKS.

Special Music by Two Choirs—List of Contributors to the Church Fund—An Essay on the Race Problem—Other Details.

Resplendent in its fresh decorations the Mt. Olive Baptist Church was opened for services Thursday for the first time after having been closed for the past five months for alterations and repairs. The occasion was observed fittingly by a special service of song and by speeches by Mayor Jenkins and others influential in making possible the church improvements.

The church has been entirely renovated. The walls have been repapered, new cushions have been supplied, new carpets laid, new electric light fixtures hung and all other up-to-date equipments of a church edifice installed. With its improvements the church interior presents a most attractive appearance. The floral decorations of the pulpit and platform last night were especially beautiful.

Rev. J. W. Mitchell, a former pastor of the church, was master of ceremonies. After prayer had been offered by Rev. J. W. Anderson, of South America, Mayor O. L. Jenkins made brief remarks congratulating the pastor and congregation on their new home and wishing them success in their work. Congratulatory remarks were also made by H. T. Compton, of the First Baptist Church, Henry De Mott and W. M. Kirk, all of whom has contributed something to the fund for making the repairs. Joseph Mitchell read an essay on "The Race and its Problem," stating that the negro race does not seek social equality, but asks from white people recognition and help in its attempt to build upon what is the noblest in the characters of its members. Miss Ida Mitchell read a paper on "Beauty without Culture."

Special musical selections by the senior and junior choirs of the church interspersed the speeches. The senior choir was led by Richard E. Randolph. The organist was Horatio Randolph.

Rev. Scott Wallace, of the Calvary Baptist Church, A. G. Young, of New Brunswick, and Rev. R. E. Jackson, pastor of Mt. Olive Church, whose labors had made the repairs and improvements possible, were the other speakers. Each member of the senior choir presented Mr. Jackson with a bouquet of chrysanthemums at the conclusion of his address. The exercises were followed by an informal reception and entertainment over which Mrs. Leila Fields had charge. It was announced that a special sermon by Rev. A. J. Anderson, of South American, and social was scheduled for tonight in the church.

The list of contributors to the church fund for repairing the church was read by Rev. R. E. Jackson and included the following: Mrs. David J. Boice, Mrs. Sarah R. Runyon, Miss Dewey, and others who were present at the exercises; and R. A. Hegeman, Jr., E. Post, Miss Martin I. Cooley, George A. Chapman, C. W. McCutchen, Walter Scott, L. H. Bigelow, Andrew Wilson, Reed & Coddington, Frank Jones, M. C. Dubbins, Woodhull & Martin, J. D. Brown, Judge William N. Runyon, G. H. Bachelier, E. L. Bona, A. M. Runyon & Son, George Cole, Hill & Shupp, Isaac Lederer, H. C. Case, H. C. Compton, L. W. Randolph, L. L. Manning, Henry House, Mr. Holmes, L. W. Serrell, Henry McGee, Frank H. Smith, Fred Fiesbrook, Charles Arnold, A. Miller, Miss Holts, Henry DeMott, Bernard Clark, J. C. Clark, Mrs. Trenil, Mayor O. L. Jenkins, Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, and others.

Inherits $7,200.

Gustave Williamson, formerly of Fanwood township, has just benefitted to the extent of $7,200 by the will of his uncle, Charles Wiedemeyer, of Germany, who died a year and a half ago. Williamson was the only heir in this country. He was represented by Francis J. Blatz.

Now Acting Superintendent.

Stephen Stover, of Oak Tree, for several years assistant superintendent of Marconnier Chapel, at the urgent solicitation of the members, has agreed to act as superintendent during the present winter, and will enter upon his duties November 1.

The Aged Made Younger.

Female persons have found the use of Speer's Port Wine and Burgundy a superior medicine because it is the best restorative and blood making. Both are equals it for old people.

MISS EDITH CLAPP MARRIED AT HOME

Frank D. Bennett, of Gloucester, Mass., Takes Her as His Bride.

WEDDING A QUIET ONE

REVS. J. P. TAYLOR AND W. MONTGOMERY DOWNEY OFFICIATE.

Miss Meade, of New York, Maid-of-Honor — W. T. Gammage, of Gloucester, Mass., Best Man—Honeymoon in the Berkshires.

Miss Edith F. Clapp, daughter of Mrs. John Clapp, and Frank D. Bennett, of Gloucester, Mass., were quietly married last Thursday at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, 94 Mercer avenue. Rev. J. P. Taylor, retired, officiated, assisted by Rev. W. Montgomery Downey, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross. There were not one hundred people present at the wedding, it being a quiet home affair to which only the relatives of the bridal party and a few intimate friends were invited.

The house was made unusually attractive by a generous display of palms, ferns and chrysanthemums interspersed here and there with pretty autumn leaves. The contrast of color in the chrysanthemums and the autumn leaves made the wedding arch particularly handsome. The ceremony was performed beneath the canopy of flowers.

Miss Clapp was attended by a maid-of-honor, Miss Leontine Munoz Meade, of New York. The bridal party, on entering the parlors were preceded by two little flower girls, the Misses Margaret and Gertrude Hussey, of Princeton, both cousins of the bride. The best man was W. T. Gammage, of Gloucester, Mass. The ushers were A. Jerome Booth, of Hartford, Conn.; Arthur C. Trainer, of Boston, Mass.; Edward Swan, of Gloucester, Mass., and Howard Terrill, of this city. The bride being given away by her uncle, Samuel Lloyd, of Brooklyn.

Miss Clapp wore a gown of white crepe de chine trimmed with lace and carried a large bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid-of-honor wore white net trimmed with applique and carried roses. The flower girls were attired in white Swiss.

The gift of the groom to the bride was a handsome pearl and diamond sunburst and the bride's present to the groom was a gold watch and chain. The groom presented scarf pins to his ushers.

After the ceremony a short reception was held and later Mr. and Mrs. Bennett left for the Berkshires, where they will spend their honeymoon. They will reside in Gloucester, Mass.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 1—Consecrate by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic—Great men of the Bible. What David teaches us—1 Sam. xvi, 11-13; Psa. xix; John vii, 42.

David was the youngest of the eight sons of Jesse of the tribe of Judah. His name means beloved. He was born about 1085 B. C. in Bethlehem of Judea, which was also the birthplace of our Saviour, who was the "Son of David," according to the flesh, and through whom the kingdom of David has become an everlasting kingdom.

David in appearance was a prepossessing youth. "He was ruddy and withal of a beautiful countenance and goodly to look at." His early life was spent in loyal, loving service at home, where he faithfully tended his father's sheep. In this period of his life he teaches us an important lesson on youthful faith in God, for undoubtedly it was at this time that he composed the immortal poem called the Nineteenth Psalm, in which he sets forth the glory of God as testified by the heavens and expresses his need of God and his desire that his meditations and words might be acceptable unto God. In this period of his life God had anointed to become the future king of Israel, illustrating that God calls to higher positions in life those who faithfully serve him in the more humble ones.

In this period of his life between his anointment as king and his ascendency of the throne David had a most exciting and varied career. Saul called him to court that he might relieve his troubled mind with music. Released from time to time he returned to his father's flock and next appears in connection with the war with the Philistines, when God gave him the great victory over the great champion, Goliath. Crowned with honor, he returned to court, received a command and was successful and beloved. Then followed the vicissitudes which resulted from the jealousy of Saul, brightened only by the mutual love of David and Jonathan. His magnanimity toward Saul during this trying period should impress us. Though he often had the king in his power, he would not raise his hand against him, and at last God rewarded him by opening up the way to the throne through the deaths of both Saul and Jonathan.

David at once entered upon his kingly career. For seven years he reigned over Judah alone at Hebron, and then for thirty-three years over Judah and Israel united. During his reign forty years in all, David was a great and progressive king, loyal to God and to his kingdom. He conveyed the ark of God to the Holy City. The ordinances of worship were provided and fully observed. He extended the boundaries of the kingdom and provided abundant materials for the magnificent temple which Solomon afterward built. David, being human, did not live without his faults, his temptations have many and strong, but he stood out in marked contrast to his contemporaries and in sackcloth and ashes repented of his most grievous sin and received God's pardon for it. David's kingdom is spiritual, as mentioned in Christ, "King David's greater Son," and we should all become members of that spiritual kingdom by faith in Christ.

BIBLE READINGS.

I Sam. xvi, 14-23; xvii, 26-51; xviii, 1-4; xx, 11-23; xxi, 1-6; II Sam. i, 17-27; ii, 1-7, 12-15, Ps. xxiii; Psa. li; Psa. lxxii.

Flexibility and Adaptability.

The flexibility and adaptability of Christian Endeavor is not as generally appreciated as they should be. They work in country church or city, on the avenue or in the slums, in America or Africa. You can have three committees or thirty. You can take the model pledge, or make one of your own. You can call it a pledge, a covenant, a declaration or anything else that suits you. It is the idea, the ideal, not the mere words, that is of value. You can do anything with it that a reasonable Christian heart and will may desire.

It is not a perpetual motor. It will not run itself. It is a method, not a machine. The quality of its work depends upon the quality of its membership. Here its keynote: success is the leadership of its pastor, the sympathy of the church and the co-operation of the members.—William Shaw.

A Blow For the Pessimist.

If anybody has been pessimistically crying the decline of Christian Endeavor the unexpectedly large results from the "10 per cent increase campaign" should forever silence them. A look at New Mexico, with its 34 per cent gain, or Louisiana, with its 18 per cent gain, or Colorado, with its 15 per cent gain, or even New York, with its 5% per cent gain, is enough to bear out the statement that Christian Endeavor's *best day is still labeled "to-*morrow."—John R. Clements in "Empire State Notes."

Christian Endeavor's Growth.

From one society in 1881 to 64,020 in 1903, from one denomination to more than eight, from one city to every state and from 5fty members to 3,822,300 and 1,500,000 more in societies bearing strictly sectarian names, but patterned after Christian Endeavor and gaining their inspiration from it, is not gain in number of societies in one year of over 2,000.—William Shaw in General Secretary's Report at Denver Convention.

Needed.

The Christian world cannot do without Christian Endeavor. It is one of the forces that accomplish something for God and man.—Religious Telescope.

A Big Programme.

The Denver convention programme made definite provision for 186 different meetings.

WEALTH THROWN AWAY.

Much of Value Is Cast Into the Waste Baskets of a Large City Every Day.

"In the waste baskets in St. Louis," said a business man the other day, reports the Republic, "there is wealth enough to make any one man independently rich for life." "Come again," said the doubting friend, "Rich for life," went on the other. "You don't see how? Of course, you don't. I do.

"Did you ever consider the thousands and thousands of waste baskets that are emptied by the janitors in offices every night? Well, suppose you could get all that paper. Your income every day would be up in the hundreds of dollars. That is, if you simply sold the paper to pulp-mills.

"But suppose you could add to that tidy income by possessing yourself of the stamps that are dropped into the waste baskets by mistake. There would be another fine item in your income.

"Suppose, then, if your conventional mind will permit me to stray so far afield, that a man could buy all the business secrets that he could find lying in waste baskets. He would have, I assure you, such a lever that he could pry solid gold into his bank account.

"Why, man, there is more money going to waste in the waste baskets in this town every day than many men make in a long life of hard work. I wish I could buy the privilege of taking all the stuff. That's all."

PHILADELPHIA'S FLY-KILLER.

Gathers Thousands into a Room and Exterminates Them with Persian Powder.

Philadelphia has employed a man to kill flies. He is an expert in the slaughter of these pests and has no compunctions concerning their extermination. In common with the head of the Philadelphia health department, he believes that flies have no value as scavengers, but that, like rats and mosquitoes, they are active enemies of the human race, spreading a variety of diseases. He says that as generally possible, says the New York Evening World.

He regards the hole-in-a-piece-of-bread-over-a-goblet-of-molasses trap as a weak and ineffective device; fly papers are worse than useless and valueless, dishes of fly poison worse than useless, screens merely a defensive appliance. His method is to make a chamber attractive to flies, gather thousands there, burn a handful of Persian powder in the chamber and exterminate his guests.

The undertaking seems a task for Hercules, but its profit promises to be great.

GRAND MARSHAL DONE FOR.

"When power-driven vehicles shall have superseded horse-drawn vehicles entirely, as no doubt, in the not far distant future, they will have done," said Mr. Gotelon, according to the New York Sun, "what will become of the grand marshal? Will anything be devised that will enable him to shine with anything like his present glory?

"Now, with a broad, bright-colored sash worn diagonally across his manly bosom, and with a dahlia-like rosette pinned upon his breast, he rides grandly at the head of the procession mounted on a horse. What would a procession be without a grand marshal, and what would a marshal be without a horse? And what will he do when there are no horses?

"His prospect now is dim, indeed; but let us hope that, when the horseless age shall actually have come, some means will be found to preserve the glamour and the glory of the grand marshal."

NATURE SCULPTURE.

Rugged Outline of California Boulder Bears Striking Likeness to George Washington.

One of the most remarkable pieces of nature sculpture in California is the George Washington rock, about 35 miles northwest of Los Angeles, in the Santa Susana mountains, says the Sunset Magazine. Near this rock a two-mile tunnel is being bored through the Santa Susana mountains just outside Chatsworth Park. A chiseled monument could hardly bear truer likeness to George Washington than this chance picture in the rugged contour of a huge bowlder. Viewed from one direction and only one, it stands out sharp and distinct against the sky. From all other points the rock is a shapeless mass. The image measures full 25 feet from chin to brow and is close to the top of the hill. In the vicinity have been found Indian relics; ovens, stones containing Indian writings, arrow heads, mortars and many traces of a settlement of aborigines.

Are Cruel to Cats.

We could name certain seashore resorts along the Atlantic coast, the abode through the long summer days of healthful recreation, of care free housewives and the lighthearedness of paradise itself, which are the scenes of many a humble tragedy in the autumn, writes a contributor to Good Housekeeping. Here is the plain, unadorned fact: Many of the cottagers leave their pet cats to starve. Persons residing in the vicinity the year round are witnesses. Sometimes the poor animals are left locked within the cottages, when the doors are barred and windows boarded. More often they wander the beach, wan ghosts of their old selves, picking up a scant living from fish, until cold weather puts an end to their misery.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 1, "The Study of Missions."

And Sir Launfal said: "I behold in thee An image of Him who died on the tree. Behold, through Him I give to thee."

The history of the Christian church is the story of missions.

The result definitely aimed at from the very first has been the conquest of the whole world—not politically or commercially, not doctrinal uniformity or organic unity in government, but spiritual fellowship and universal brotherhood are aimed at.

No other religion the world has ever known has had such a purpose. The religion of Jesus Christ alone is adapted to meet the needs of man universally and is essential to his highest attainments. It alone furnishes motives sufficiently powerful for the accomplishment of the task. The hope of gain, the love of adventure and many other considerations will lead men to endure hardships and make strenuous exertions, but to evangelize the world needs a stronger impulse and higher motive than these.

"The love of Christ constraineth me." This is the force which moves the world. In the study of missions the consideration of this motive power should hold first place.

Increased attention is being given by the church at large to the duty of world evangelization. The subject is being considered from many points of view. Knowledge of conditions and needs of the un-Christianized peoples of the earth, the resources available and methods of work are all engaging attention and discussion as never before. Workers and funds are more abundant, and efforts are becoming more systematized and effective.

There remains true that the larger part of the membership of the Christian church has never realized anything of personal responsibility in this service or come to an intelligent conception of the work itself. Great as is the task and pressing is the duty of presenting the gospel commands and hope to all men, not less urgent is the necessity of arousing the rank and file of the church to its part in this evangelizing of the nations.

The League is taking its place in this forward movement. So far as possible every chapter should plan to present in a series of meetings the most important phases of missionary work. No society lacks interesting material. More is abundant. In every village of the land books can be found by a little search which will furnish material for papers and talks of deep interest. Consecrated determination is the prime need.

Where possible attention should be directed to (1) the motives for mis*sionary work; (2) the methods of mis*sionary work, such as preaching, the press, schools, hospitals, industrial work, etc.; (3) the fields, our own church, their extent, peculiarities, history, forces at work, present needs and prospects; (4) the work of other churches and review of various missions of the world; (5) the missions of the apostle and the conversion of the northern nations of Europe are of fas*cinating interest; (6) the Roman Cath*olic missions since the reformation should be studied carefully; (7) the Methodist convention, the Philadelphia convention and the annual meeting of the missionary committee of the Methodist Episcopal church should all be reviewed and their results summed up.

A request sent to the mission rooms, 150 Fifth avenue, New York, to Mr. S. Earl Taylor will bring lists of books and other literature available.

Homemade maps or the large missionary map from the mission rooms will be a great aid.

If possible an evening with views of the various lands by stereopticon should be arranged.

We need to be better informed that we may become more aroused and give more freely money, prayer and personal effort in the work of bringing the world to God through Jesus Christ.

The World of Sunshine.

The tiny ray of sunlight which stole in through the crack of the shutter yesterday wrote with its golden pen these words upon the darkness within: "There is a great big world of sunshine just like me outside." Don't keep sunshine barred out from your soul. Open the shutters. Do not interpret the meaning of life from the darkness, but from the sunshine which falls upon it. The joy of yesterday which crept into your crowded life points you to a world of sunshine and love. The satisfaction you felt today upon doing that good turn for another was as a drop to the ocean of satisfaction you will find if you make every other day just like this.—Ram's Horn.

Wants In Our Hearts.

You have stood by the seashore and have noticed in some parts the deep holes in the sand and rock. But when the tide has come up it has filled up all these crevices and holes. There are *wants in our hearts, unsatisfied long*ings. Look to Christ; in Him there is a tide of grace to fill up every hollow and crevice in our nature.—Good Words.

The Kingdom of God.

There is no unbelief;
Whoever plants a seed beneath the sod
And waits to see it push away the clod
He trusts in God.

Whoever says when clouds are in the sky,
"Be patient, heart; light breaketh by and by,"
Trusts the Most High.

Whoever sees 'neath winter's field of snow
The silent harvest of the future grow
God's power doth keep.

Whoever lies down on his couch to sleep,
Content to look each sense in slumber deep,
Knows God will keep.
—Edward Bulwer-Lytton.

MR. SANDFORD WEDS A WASHINGTON BELLE

Society Wedding at Englewood, in Which Percy Sandford is the Groom.

MANY WITNESS EVENT

MISS EMILY WHITE, OF WASHINGTON, D. C., THE BRIDE.

Nuptial Event at Home of Bride's Father—Was Attended by Many Society Folk—Groom a Son of Mrs. Amelia Sandford.

Miss Emily White, of Washington D. C., and Percy Sandford, of this city, were married at the country home of the bride's father in Englewood, N. J., Wednesday, Oct. 31, at 6 o'clock. Rev. Dr. John A. Aspinwall, formerly rector of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, Washington, D. C., officiated.

The house was filled with guests, at the reception alone there being several hundred society people present. Among those witnessing the ceremony were friends and relatives from Englewood, New York, Washington and this city. The interior of the home was gorgeously decorated, the drawing parlors in particular being lavishly adorned with potted plants and beautiful cut flowers.

The Misses Elizabeth and Marion White, sisters of the bride, were the bridesmaids, and Edward L. White, of Englewood, a brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were Eden Dodge Appleton and Lucius N. Gilbert, both of New York. After the simple ceremony of the Episcopal Church had been performed, a reception followed. Mr. and Mrs. Sandford left late in the evening for their honeymoon trip.

The bride is a daughter of J. Howard White, the official reporter for Congress and is well known in Washington and Englewood society. Mr. Sandford is a son of Mrs. Amelia Sandford, of East Front street, and a brother of Fred Sandford. He is a nephew of William M. Sandford.

LITERARY.

Those who have approached John Alexander Dowie in anything but a prejudiced and antipathetic spirit bear testimony to his remarkable personal magnetism—the extraordinary *gift he has of impressing his individ*uality on all who come in contact with it. His appearance, despite his shortness of frame, his tendency to fatness, his bow legs and his baldness, is rather attractive. He really wears the aspect of benevolence and looks the patriarch. Today he is fifty-six years old; his shoulders are straight and ample, his eyes are bright and piercing, his hair white and flowing. —L. K. Friedman pictures Dowie in the November Everybody's.

Hospitality still exists among both the rich and the poor. The carven portals of Fifth avenue slip open to those of purse or pedigree. The low doors of Cherry street tenements (one room, perhaps, already sheltering a family) swing open to welcome in a neighbor evicted or bereft. Surely, it is one of the most persistent and creditable traits of human nature, this instinct for dividing with our fellows. When unselfish, it is a godlike quality, this desire in man to share his heart and his goods with his comrades of the way.—Edwin Markham in Good Housekeeping.

The announcement in the November McClure's that Miss Tarbell will again take up her "History of the Standard Oil Company" in the December number will interest many who have followed the first series. These articles, each complete in itself and together forming a complete history, have been a tremendous hit. Another "History of Standard Oil" has appeared in book form lately, but after one has read this one, that of Miss Tarbell remains and burns. It is announced that Miss Tarbell will end her series with a character sketch of John D. Rockefeller—this will be a great document.

The narrowness of the island on which Little Old New York is built, and into which is packed during the working hours of each day a population drawn from a radius of fifty miles, makes its traffic problem the most difficult of any city of the world. Surface and elevated lines are destined to be thrown across the city like a net; its sub-cuticle to be honeycombed with tunnels. Two railway tunnels are already in process of construction under the North river from the New Jersey shore. Others are proposed. One of the tunnels will pass under the city and the East river, and thence to Long Island. The city is already building its own tunnel from the Battery to Brooklyn. A second subway is proposed from Forty-second Street south, on Broadway, and other streets, to the Battery, while a third will probably extend northward from Forty-second street under Lexington avenue to the Bronx.—Collier's Weekly.

MISS B. V. REVILLE, AN OCTOBER BRIDE

Clarence H. Walden, the Groom, at Wedding in St. Mary's R. C. Church.

C. A. SHANNON, BEST MAN

WEDDING MARCH PLAYED BY MRS. W. A. FREEMAN.

Reception at the Home of the Bride's Mother, Mrs. Mary Reville—Honeymoon in Boston—Groom a Member of T. A. B. Society.

Miss B. Veronica Reville, daughter of Mrs. Mary Reville and Clarence H. Walden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Walden, were married at St. Mary's church, Fourth street, at 9 o'clock last Thursday. Father Egan, pastor of the church, officiated.

The edifice was decorated in autumnal flowers and leaves and the attendance was large, guests being present from Mass., New York, Penn., and this city. Mrs. W. A. Freeman, organist of the Grace Episcopal Church, presided at the organ and played the wedding march from Mendelssohn as the bridal party entered the edifice.

The bride was given away by her brother, P. J. Reville. She wore a gown of white duchesse satin with appliqua trimmings. A veil fastened by a cluster of cranes blossoms fell from her shoulders and formed the train. The bridesmaid, Miss Anna R. Sears, of Chelsea, Mass., wore a gown of point de esprit and carried roses. The best man was Clinton A. Shannon.

After the ceremony at the church a reception was held at the home of the bride at 733 West Third street. Over two hundred people thronged the house which was decorated with chrysanthemums of red and white. The reception lasted until 10 o'clock when Mr. and Mrs. Walden left for Boston, where they will spend their honeymoon of three weeks. Upon their return they will reside in this city where the groom is employed.

The display of presents was very elaborate. The groom is a well known resident of the Fourth ward. He is a member of the T. A. B. Society, which he holds a position as secretary, and is a member of the Painters' Union.

PLAINFIELD'S TANGLE.

The Local Political Situation From a Newark Standpoint.

The city of Plainfield, in Union County, is in the tightest little political tangle to be found in New Jersey this year. In September last fifteen of the nineteen delegates bolted the Republican county convention because they were not permitted to nominate an anti-Kean candidate for Assembly. Since then the bolters have been endeavoring to strengthen themselves and to defeat the whole Republican ticket, in order to prove that they could not be opposed with impunity, but their success is not yet certain. On Thursday last the Democratic county convention was held, and Charles L. Moffett, of Plainfield, was nominated for Assembly. He had, prior to the convention, positively refused to allow his name to be used in this connection, and it was then reported, with the assistance of the Republican bolters, that Moffett had been induced to decline through Kean influences. In the convention he was not named by the Plainfield delegates, but was forced on the ticket by Elizabeth votes, in opposition to the united protests of the Plainfield men. He was finally nominated, however, and accepted the honor, but hardly had the convention adjourned when the disquieting rumor was heard that Senator Kean desired his nomination all the time. Between the bolting Republicans, the antagonistic Democrats and the double game that the Kean influences are credited with playing, the political situation in Plainfield is most delightfully complicated. The probabilities are that on election day each party will poll the normal, off-year vote.—Newark Evening News.

TRANSIENT DEALER PAYS.

Settles for Taxes With Collector Frank Smith.

Freeborn G. Smith, proprietor of he Bradbury Piano Company, *yester*day settled with the City of Plainfield for taxes assessed on his company for doing business in this city, and the attachment on a piano which had been retained as security by the city, was released. The action taken by the city in taxing transient dealers for a full year, intended for the protection of permanently established merchants, is in accordance with a State law. Plainfield is the first municipality to make use of it, and according to Tax Collector Frank Smith, the city will continue to make use of it whenever necessary.

ANOTHER REVIVAL IN CHRISTENDOM

Reawakening in Religious World, Subject of Sermon by Rev. Mr. McMurray.

WHAT EFFECT WILL BE

"REPENT YE FOR THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN IS AT HAND."

The Failure of Secular Organization to Adjust the Social Relations of the People and Other Problems Cause for Revival.

At the Monroe Avenue M. E. Church Sunday morning, Rev. John McMurray preached a forcible sermon, the subject being "The Coming Revival" and the text being chosen from Isaiah 59:1.

Mr. McMurray believes that the signs of the times indicate most clearly a great awakening in all departments of religious life and Christian activity. After describing the chief characteristics of the reformation under Luther and Zwingle and the revival under Wesley and his coadjutors, Mr. McMurray proceeded to set forth his ideas as to the leading features of the coming revival and the signs of its coming.

"It will," he said, "be a revival of the Christianity of Christ; a revival of individual righteousness; a revival of corporate righteousness; of civic righteousness; of social righteousness.

"It will be a revival that shall emphasize child tyranny for the Kingdom of Heaven.

"It will be a revival of missionary zeal and activity such as the world has not seen since apostolic days."

Commenting on the signs of the great universal revival the preacher instanced the swing of the pendulum from skepticism to faith; the restlessness and dissatisfied condition of the great body of the people; the failure of secular organization to adjust the social relations of the people and to solve grave social problems; the deep attention being given to the ethical basis underlying the great sociological and political questions; the practical unity of the church and its awakening to the realization that its mission is to save society and the spirit of expectancy that is beginning to pervade the world.

"The coming revival must come through Christian people clearly perceiving the great need of an awakening, and their obligation to accept Christian standards.

"The life and work of the church must be transformed and lifted up through these agencies to the New Testament plane of discipleship.

"The Christian minister must clearly perceive his part in bringing about this great awakening. He must be possessed by the truth, inspired by an all conquering faith; unswervingly loyal to Scriptural standards. His preaching must not be a simple perfunctory action but must be the talking of brother to brother about matters of paramount importance. No barriers must exist between pulpit and pew. The minister must go as the messenger of God, preaching a John the Baptist message: 'Repent ye, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand.'

"His message must come direct from Christ and he must bring the people from worldly to Christian standards. His mission will only be complete when he has brought them into a living sympathy with a living Christ."

CHAMBERLAIN'S IDEA

Former Colonial Secretary Addresses Workingmen.

ENGLAND NOT TO BE A DUMP GROUND

Says His Fiscal Policy Would Not Add to the Price of Food and That Its Adoption Would Stimulate Colonial Trade.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 28.—Joseph Chamberlain addressed another monster meeting in the Hippodrome here under the auspices of the Workingmen's Conservative association, and the 5,000 persons present gave the former colonial secretary a tremendous reception.

It was organized as an offset to the recent action of representatives of labor unions in various places in denouncing Mr. Chamberlain's tariff and preferential proposals.

Mr. Chamberlain devoted the first portion of his speech to the "dumping" of the manufactures of the United States and Germany in this country, which he said must result in depression after the present prosperity. With regard to the cry of "dearer food" he pledged himself that his proposals would not add anything to the cost of living. On the contrary, they would decrease the cost of living to the poorest families in the country.

The speaker devoted the greater part of his speech, which lasted for an hour and a half, to a powerful argument addressed to the working classes of the United Kingdom, to whom he appealed against their leaders. He pointed out the fact hitherto overlooked by his opponents that when the movement for free trade was carried the working classes were neither represented nor consulted, but it was a movement of the manufacturers and the middle class people. Now that the working classes were represented in parliament their support was absolutely essential to the carrying out of his proposals, which, he said, meant more employment.

Emphasizing the statement that it was impossible to reconcile free trade with trades unionism, Mr. Chamberlain pointed out the inconsistency of supporting a policy which admitted the product of the cheapest kind of labor without taxation. He said he believed the working classes of the United Kingdom were more advanced than many of their leaders and said if this were true he was confident his proposals would win.

Mr. Chamberlain dwelt especially upon shipbuilding industry. He pointed out the greater growth of foreign shipbuilding as compared to that of Great Britain and referred to the disabilities the latter suffered because of foreign bounties and because the regulations imposed by British shipping legislation were not enforced upon foreign shipping in British waters. He referred pointedly to Great Britain's loss of trade with Cuba, where, he said, British conditions of trade had not been respected. "Perhaps the Americans did not understand them in the same sense as we did," he continued. "In any event all our representations have been fruitless, and America proposes preferential arrangements, treating Cuba exactly as I want you to treat Canada. This will result in no more British goods going to Cuba, and all the traffic between the United States and Cuba will be done in American bottoms. Not only that, but the large rice trade between Rangoon and Cuba, now being carried by British ships, will henceforth go to New York and thence to Cuba in American vessels."

Mr. Chamberlain contended that all this emphasized the necessity to Great Britain of some means of bargaining with the foreigner. He said the adoption of his policy would encourage and stimulate the colonial shipping trade and enable shipowners to get return freights to such ports as Canada and Australia, and at the same time it would not prevent the development of foreign trade. He said he wanted to see less foreign manufactured articles imported, but more raw materials, in return for British finished goods.

In conclusion Mr. Chamberlain declared that Holland had tried and failed to keep command of the sea and her position as carrier and merchant of the world without protective capacity and that Great Britain would be no more successful than Holland if she neglected to bind her colonies to her.

The meeting adopted a resolution eulogizing Mr. Chamberlain's services, indorsing the government's fiscal policy and declaring the advisability of binding the empire more closely together.

KILLING OF SAGOUNI

President of Armenian Revolutionary Society Shot Dead.

CAUSED A STIR IN BRITISH CAPITAL

Assassin Supposed to Be a Fellow Armenian From the United States. His Felt Hat and Automatic Pistol of American Make.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Sagatel Sagouni, president of the Armenian Revolutionary society, was murdered at the doorstep of his lodgings in Nunhead, an unpretentious little suburb of London, yesterday evening. The murder presumably was committed by a fellow Armenian recently from the United States.

The assassination had a political motive and was characterized by a boldness to which London has seldom been treated. It created an unusual sensation in this law abiding British capital since it appears to have been only an incident in a long and bitter vendetta between factions of Armenian revolutionists.

The attempted murder in Boston, the recent killing in Switzerland and the assassination of the most prominent Armenian in London are so far achievements credited to the Armenian radicals here. It is said that two members of the Opposition party have already been killed in Russia, though the London Armenian revolutionary committee denies both knowledge of and responsibility for the crimes.

It is generally expected that Sagouni's death is only the prelude to other chapters in the story of a bitter blood feud. The murderer, who has not yet been apprehended, left in the hands of the police two clews—a soft felt hat bearing the name of an American clothing firm (the Bell Clothing company of Lowell, Mass.) and an automatic pistol of a recent American make.

Members of the Armenian committee here express themselves as certain that the murder is the work of an Alfarist member of the radical minority. The police are following up all clews suggested by Sagouni's associates. What may be a possible coincidence is suggested by the fact that the Alfarist headquarters in London were recently closed, the members scattering to Egypt, Smyrna and the United States. The Macedonian committee attempted to co-operate with the Armenian committee in an anti-Turkish revolution in 1895, but subsequently withdrew because of the internecine strife of the Armenians.

Tracing the Assassin's Hat.

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 28.—On the meager clew furnished by the impression on the inside of the hat dropped by the assassin of Sagatel Sagouni the proprietors of the Bell Clothing company, who have a large number of Armenian customers, could say nothing more positive than that the hat might have been sold by them. They say that it must have been purchased some time ago if the inscription is partly defaced, as it would take at least two years' wear to destroy the impression. The Bell company has been in business here for about four years.

PLAINFIELD REPUBLICANS REBUKE KEAN DOMINATION

After Its Delegates Bolted Party Convention, Stronghold is Turned Over to the County Democratic Candidates.

THE CITY REPUBLICANS VICTORIOUS

WM. T. KIRK, WHOM LOCAL REPUBLICANS REPUDIATED AT CONVENTION, FAILED TO CARRY A SINGLE WARD—ONLY CARRYING HIS OWN DISTRICT BY SIX MAJORITY—GREAT REJOICING OVER THE VICTORY.

Never in the history of Union County politics has such punishment been inflicted on one faction by another as that perpetrated by Plainfield's independent Republicans on Elizabeth, annihilating as it did in this city the entire county ticket. The impulsed threat when Plainfield left the convention floor on October 10 was carried out at the polls Tuesday, the local members of the party taking this method of rebuking an arragant convention, which it is claimed was dominated by and subservient to the will of County Chairman Hamilton F. Kean Notwithstanding that the normal majority of this, Union County's Republican stronghold, is approximately 1,000, Plainfield was swung into the Democratic column for the first time in its history. The result of the election was far beyond the sanguine expectations of the most optimistic bolters and was a great tribute to the leadership of James T. MacMurray, chairman of Plainfield's bolting delegation, who marshalled the forces of the rebellious faction during a particularly heated campaign.

Charles L. Moffett.

Joseph Hague.

The Republican bolters succeeded in giving the Democratic County ticket a majority of 929 in this city and also defeated their party's nominee for coroner, the Democratic nominee receiving a majority of 351 votes. It was no secret that the MacMurray forces were gunning for William T. Kirk, of this city, who successfully procured a nomination for the Assembly from the convention, which turned down James F. Buckle, the choice of the local Republicans as expressed emphatically at the primaries here. In the entire city, Mr. Kirk carried a single district, that particular one being his place of residence, which he won by a meagre majority of six. His own ward, the Third, he lost, it going Democratic by forty-seven majority. Mr. Kirk suffered a stinging defeat, but nevertheless he was high man among his colleagues on the Republican Assembly ticket. Dr. Jefferson C. Anderson, the Republican candidate for coroner, received the highest number of votes among the defeated candidates, he having obtained 1,202 votes, or in other words 133 more than Mr. Kirk.

In the First ward, where Mr. MacMurray resides; in the Second, where Judge Runyon lives, and in the Fourth, which is under the leadership of Andrew McCardell, the revolt was complete. The best showing made by the Republicans was in the Third naturally, for it is there that the majority of Senator Kean's friends live.

From the hour that fifteen out of nineteen of Plainfield's delegates left the convention hall, no effort was left unspent to bring about the defeat of the candidates named by reason of Elizabeth's strength. While Republican organs were making light of the matter, Plainfield's indignant party workers were engaged night and day to accomplish their purpose. The active men in the party took care to discuss the situation with every one entitled to a vote and distributed campaign literature broadcast. Men of unswerving allegience to Republican party's principles denounced the convention's action, and ever Former Mayor Charles J. Fish, who advised his friends to vote straight, did not neglect the opportunity to condemn the act perpetrated by Elizabeth. In outward semblance the scenes about the polls yesterday were much like those when the Presidency of the Nation is at stake. Republicans were hustling about to aid the Democratic County candidates, who had never before figured prominently as workers. There were no signs of disorder and should it be said that the action of regular Republicans in stationing detectives at the polls was ill advised. These detectives were imported, although there was no reason to suspect that their presence would be at all necessary.

When the result of the vote was known Tuesday there was a wild scene about the Smalley building, in North avenue, where MacMurray, Runyon, McCardell, Charles W. Runyon, Buckle, and other leaders of the revolt were gathered. At midnight, Charles L. Moffett, the local candidate of the Democrats for the Assembly, made his appearance and was given a great ovation. A few minutes later the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, heading 200 rejoicing Republicans and Democrats, passed by the building and this occasioned another demonstration. MacMurray was inside the building spending his time congratulating the visitors on the great victory.

James F. Buckle, Plainfield's choice for Assembly, was not nominated by the Republican convention, but October 10, 1903, was a sorry day for the majority party in Union County. Charles L. Moffett, a Democrat, will be the next assemblyman hailing from this city, a Republican stronghold.

BENJAMIN A. HEGEMAN HAS PASSED AWAY

For Twenty-nine Years General Freight Agent of Lackawanna R. R.

HE WAS 83 YEARS OLD

BELOVED FOR HIS GOOD WORK FOR CHARITY AND RELIGION.

Successful in Business—A Member of Trinity Reformed Church—Lived in Plainfield for Twenty-four years—Two Sons Survive.

In the death of Benjamin Arrowsmith Hegeman, which occurred at his home, 27 Sycamore avenue, North Plainfield, Monday night at 9:35, from chronic nephritis, a life of great activity and usefulness was brought to a close and Plainfield lost a valued and influential citizen. For some time past Mr. Hegeman had been in failing health. Death came peacefully.

Mr. Hegeman was born in New York City June 26, 1820, and spent his boyhood days there, receiving his education in the public schools of the city. Soon after leaving school he began his business career which was invariably successful. For twenty-nine years he was the general freight agent and traffic manager of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, and represented that road on the Board of Managers of the Joint Traffic Association. He was shrewd in business and always careful. Through his unceasing effort the freight and traffic departents of the road were built up to enormous proportiops.

Mr. Hegeman brought into his conduct of his department the same true principles and wisdom that characterized his life, and when he retired about five years ago his absence was a source of deep regret to his associates. The company refused to accept his resignation.

Aside from business interests, Mr. Hegeman was a man of genial disposition, always very charitable, especially in the cause of religion. His benefactions were not always known, as he preferred to give in a quiet and unostentatious manner. Mr. Hegeman was a member of Trinity Reformed Church, where his wise counsel, benevolences and untiring interest as an elder for many years, were ever looked upon in a true spirit of appreciation.

Although Mr. Hegeman always manifested much interest in public affairs when he gave up active duties with the Lackawanna Railroad, he lived in retirement. He never held public office, prefering that such honors should go to others. He moved to Plainfield from New York on April 9, 1879, and lived here up to the time of his death.

Mr. Hegeman was married twice, his second wife dying October 29, 1899. Two sons, Benjamin Arrowsmith Hegeman, Jr., and William J. R. Hegeman, both residents of the borough, survive him.

The funeral services will be held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from Trinity Reformed Church. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, the pastor, assisted by Rev. Dr. Kelly, formerly of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church, but now of New York.

Col. Belknap Defeated.

Col. M. K. Belknap, Republican nominee for Governor of Kentucky, was defeated Tuesday by Governor Beckham by 30,000 to 40,000 majority. The Republican place little confidence in these figures, and are not willing to concede the election of Beckham. The above figures are based on Democratic claims. Col. Belknap is the son-in-law of J. B. Dumont, of this city.

Casino Minstrels.

A very satisfactory dress rehearsal was given yesterday for both "Shades of Night" and minstrel. The entertainments promises to be a very interesting one, and while most of the tickets are sold for Thursday evening performances, there are a number of good seats still to be obtained for Friday evening at Randolph's and Armstrong pharmacies.

BOROUGH FOR SWACKHAMER

Democratic Assemblyman Again Carries North Plainfield.

HE POLLS A BIG VOTE.

A. S. Anderson, Republican, Wins Easily for County Clerk and W. Howard Toms, Republican, for Coroner.

Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer again carried North Plainfield borough Tuesday, receiving a majority of 146, defeating Charles M. Dolliver, the Republican nominee. The Republicans, however, elected the rest of their ticket, Alexander G. Anderson, for county clerk, receiving a majority of 101 and W. Howard Toms, as coroner, obtaining a majority of 118.

The fight in North Plainfield was one sided. The Democrats worked hard at the polls while the Republicans seemed content to let matters shape themselves. The impression which has received general credence all during the campaign that the nomination of Dolliver to the Assembly was a test of the borough Republicans to ascertain whether or not Somerville would stand with them seemed well founded.

This is North Plainfield's vote: Republican—First district: Charles M. Dolliver, 193; Alexander G. Anderson, 349; W. Howard Toms, 353; Second district: Charles M. Dolliver, 176; Alexander G. Anderson, 238; W. Howard Toms, 242.

Democratic—First district: Samuel S. Swackhamer, 223; John L. Anderson, 165; John C. Somers, 161; Second district: Samuel S. Swackhamer, 293; John L. Anderson, 221, and John C. Somers, 218.

Excitement ran high when the result in the borough became known. In the First district, where the voting machine was in use, the result was known within four minutes after the polls closed. After the machine was uplocked and the election board was prepared to take down the figures, it only required one minute and a fraction to know who was elected and the exact number of votes each received. In the Second district it was two hours and fifteen minutes before the few hundred votes were counted, but in the meantime there was much going on in the streets to keep the anxious voters busy and their attention occupied. Warm discussions between parties of voters were numerous and in one or two instances blows were struck. A parade of small boys beating tin pans and yelling "Swackhamer" was the only demonstrations. A huge bon fire was started in Somerset street. The small boys, encouraged by their elders, began to tear down fences to pile on the blazing mass, but were stopped by Chief Campbell.

The result of the election was not unexpected by Mayor Smalley and other Republican leaders. Swackhamer had the best of the fight throughout.

MEYERS ELECTED.

New Brunswick, Nov. 4—William S. Meyers, Republican, was elected Mayor of this city by a majority of 28 and William H. C. Jackson, Republican, has been elected State Senator by a majority of 350. Three wards went Democratic and three Republican. The City Council will remain Democratic.

Borough Health Board.

A meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Health was held Monday evening at the home of W. E. Honeyman, Lincoln place. Matters pertaining to condemned wells were brought up for discussion. It was reported that there are at present no cases of contagious diseases in North Plainfield.

C. A. LEE ASSAULTS HARRY H. WEBB

Councilman Strikes an Editor After the Latter Passes the Lie.

A ROW IN THE BOROUGH

CROWD VAINLY DEMANDED THAT THE CHIEF MARSHAL ARREST AGGRESSOR.

Lee Accused Webb of Having Received Money for His Support of Democratic Candidate for Assembly—Webb's Face Bruised.

Councilman Charles A. Lee, of North Plainfield, chairman of the police committee, and Harry H. Webb, editor of a borough weekly newspaper, figured in a free fight in a pool room in the borough at 7 Tuesday evening when it was learned that Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer had been returned to the Legislature by a snug majority. The disturbance began to assume serious proportions when some level headed citizens tore the combatants apart and took Mr. Lee to his home.

The trouble followed an argument over the cause of the remarkable run of the Democratic candidats. Mr. Lee said to Webb, that the reason, he, Webb, was so elated over the success of Swackhamer, was because he had been paid by the Democrats to boom their candidates. This Webb denied.

Lee declared that he was positive of the truth of his assertion whereupon Webb passed the lie. In an instant Lee struck at the editor. The attack was made in the entrance of a pool room and the combatants were rushed into the street by friends. Lee struck again at Webb and hit him a severe blow in the face. Blood appeared on the editor's face but he did not make any attempt to strike back. Chief of Police William Campbell then took hold of Lee's arm and led him away, but not before several in the crowd had taken sides and made vicious lunges at the councilman.

Webb's left eye was blackened and his face was badly bruised. A demand was made by the crowd for Chief Campbell to arrest Councilman Lee, which was not done. Lee was taken home. Webb threatens to have the councilman arrested.

The vote in North Plainfield, according to districts, was: First district—Swackhamer, 222; J. L. Anderson, 165; John C. Somers, 161; Charles M. Dolliver, 193; A. G. Anderson, 349; W. Howard Toms, 355.

Second district—Swackhamer, 293; A. G. Anderson, 221; W. Howard Toms, 218; Dolliver, 176; A. G. Anderson, 238; Toms, 243.

Assemblyman Swackhamer is therefore re-elected to the Assembly by a majority in the entire county of 674 and Alexander G. Anderson's majority is 107 for the entire county. W. Howard Toms, Republican, is elected coroner by a majority over his Democratic opponent, John C. Somers.

Dunellen Republican.

A light vote was cast in the borough of Dunellen Tuesday. The usual small Republican majority was polled. Jackson carried the borough for Senator by 45 votes. A total of 260 votes was cast. Piscataway township went Republican yesterday by 60 votes. Jackson ran ahead of his ticket in the race for State Senator, leading his opponents by 79. The other candidates on the Republican ticket received majorities ranging from 40 to 60. Two hundred and thirty-five votes were cast.

UNION COUNTY SWEPT INTO THE DEMOCRATIC COLUMN

Entire County Democratic Ticket Elected, Elizabeth, Plainfield and Rahway Piling Up the Majority.

ANOTHER LANDSLIDE IN SOMERSET

SWACKHAMER, DEMOCRAT, RETURNED TO THE LEGISLATURE BY HIS CONSTITUENTS, WHO GIVE HIM A HANDSOME MAJORITY OVER HIS OPPONENT, CHARLES M. DOLLIVER.

Union County went overwhelmingly Democratic Tuesday, Elizabeth, Plainfield and Rahway piling up the majority against the Republican county ticket. The complete returns have not been filed as yet and consequently the exact vote is not known. It is estimated, however, that the Democratic candidates for Assembly won out by at least 1,100 majority and the same party's candidate for coroner received a much greater majority All the candidates ran ahead of their ticket in their home towns with the exception of W. T. Kirk, Republican candidate for Assembly, of this city who ran behind Dr. Jefferson C. Anderson, Republican candidate for coroner.

In Elizabeth the Democratic majority was 587, while in this city it was 929. In almost all the other districts there were Democratic gains. Dr. Anderson was slashed badly throughout the county, Rahway and Elizabeth contributing to the success of the Democratic nominee, Dr. Alvin R. Eaton. In many districts where the Republican Assembly candidates received majorities, Dr. Anderson was defeated. The Democrats have not been so well organized for years and they made a strong fight for their ticket, being encouraged by the factional fight in this city.

Charles L. Moffett, of this city; Joseph Gunn, of Springfield, and Joseph Hague, of Elizabeth, are the successful candidates for the Legislature, while Dr. Eaton, of Elizabeth, who defeats Dr. Anderson, by about 3,500 majority, will be a coroner.

S. S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield, carried Somerset County again as a candidate for the Legislature. His majority in the entire county is 674, of this total North Plainfield gave 146, he having carried both districts. Bridgewater township went in his favor by five majority. Swackhamer carried Bound Brook by thirty two. His majority this year is larger than last. Alex. G. Anderson, Republican candidate for County Clerk, won out handily, receiving a majority of 107, carrying North Plainfield by 101. W. Howard Toms, Republican candidate for coroner, defeating John C. Somers, the Democratic choice.

The election of Mr. Swackhamer is due principally to the record he made during the last session of the Legislature and in some degree particularly to the fact that he opposes the annexation scheme. This brought to him many Republican votes. Mayor Newton R. Smalley did not seem the least disturbed over Swackhamer's victory.

While the Republicans were straining every point to accomplish the defeat of the county ticket, they worked industriously for the election of the city nominees, success crowning their efforts. There was perfect harmony, apparently, for those selected as candidates for local offices and the ticket went through with about the usual majorities. Some slight gains and losses are recorded for the majority party's ticket, with the exception of the candidate for tax collector. Frank H. Smith, who had been renominated by the Republicans for that office, received a great majority. He received 1,196 more votes than his opponent, J. V. F. Ditts; a flattering tribute from the public.

E. M. Cave, Republican candidate for school trustee, was re-elected, although his Democratic opponent, Rev. E. M. Rodman, made a good run. Bullock, Higham and Murphy were successful, on the Republican ticket, for Councilmen at large as were also Glosk, Wilson, Daniel and Lee for ward Councilmen. McKay, Nash, Neagle and Krinzy will be justices of the peace for a term, and Dunham, Meisner, Moffett and Walters will be constables. Among the candidates for ward Councilman, Francis Montgomery, of the Second ward, made a fine run. The detailed vote will be found in another column.

This Was a Grateful Snake

Big Blacksnake Helped Farmer Howell Out of a Scrape in Return for Not Running Over Him—Killed Fifty Rattlers and Then Went Along to Protect Him from More—An Affectionate Farewell.

"BUT THAT ain't nothin'," said Manasy Howell, of Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, to the Chicago Inter-Ocean man, who had been telling snake stories, "to a black snake I met onct. I was drivin' down the mountainside, with a load of tanbark, when all at once dead ahead I saw a good-sized log laying across the road. These here mountain roads, as you fellers know, ain't much for drivin' and I didn't want to give my gineard any extra shaking up by running over a saw log, so I pulled up the team and got out to lift the log away.

"Well, sir, I swang, when I got up to that log and bent down to lift it, I nearly fell dead from wonder to find it wasn't a log at all, but a whoppin' blacksnake stretched straight and still across the road from one side to the other. And that there reptile, when he saw my wonder, just looked over his shoulder and winked his near eye at me.

"He didn't make a move to get out of the way—not a bit—and after that wink he just left himself stretched as cool as you please across the road. I hate like thunation to kill a blacksnake, knowing how they kill rattlers and coppers, so when I saw he wasn't goin' to get out of the way and let me pass, I took him by the tail and carried him to one side and got on the wagon and drove on.

"About a week later I was up on the same road again. This time I was lookin' around tryin' to locate huckleberry patches so as to be in the first picker when they got ripe, when fust think I knowed I landed in the center of the biggest den of rattlers I ever see. Yes, sir, there might a been a hundred or more of them snakes, and certainly not less than 75. Anyway, they was thick, and I knowed I was up against it when they all began hummin' and collin' at once.

"Well, about this time the snakes, bein' a sagacious lot, say to themselves, 'We'll surround him, so as he can't run, and then we'll have him.' Rattlers be among the smartest snakes alive. I heerd of one onct that was a pet of a telegrapher and who could take his master's place at the key when he wanted to take a nap. All he'd do was to curl the tip tail on the key and the electricity did the rest.

"Well, as I was sayin', I was soon the center spot of a circle of coilin', rattlin' reptiles, and I was just startin' to give up the ghost when a big black-snake came boundin' up to my side. There he stood on his tail, and when his face came to mine—I'm over six feet in my socks—he give me a broad wink.

"'By gum,' I says, 'you're the sure feller I picked up by the tail the other day and lifted out o' the road.'

"The snake nodded.

"'By gum,' I says, 'I believe you've come to help me out o' this scrape in return for not runnin' over you,' I says.

"The snake nodded.

"'Then,' says I, 'you can't begin none too soon.'

"With that the reptile got off his tail quicker'n lighting and was at about a dozen rattlers at once. I don't know exactly how it happened, but sure as I am alive and settin' here this minute, before I had been able to lay about and kill more'n half a dosen rattlers, that blacksnake was at my side and standing on his tail and looking into my face and winkin' ag'in.

"At that I looked around and counted 50 or more dead reptiles and nary a live rattler.

"'By gum,' I says, 'I do believe you've killed 'em all.'

"The snake nodded.

"'You've saved my life,' I says, 'and I'm grateful.'

"The snake winked and nodded.

"'Now,' I says, 'I'm goin' home an' when I get there I'm goin' to tell the people what I know about you, and tell 'em if either run across you not to harm you, because you're a friend of mine.'

"At that the snake flopped off his tail, stood on his head, held his tail in the air, and shook hands with me.

"'Well, so long, old friend. Hope I'll see you soon again,' I says, and starts off.

"But bless my suspender buttons if that snake don't crawl straight of me. All the time he keeps lookin' from right to me and finally I got to think in' and at last says:

"'By gum, I believe you're goin' along to protect me from any rattlers that might happen along.'

"The snake nods and winks.

"Well, sir, that snake wiggled along side of me for ten miles, until I struck the edge of the town. Then he stops puts his tail in my hand and winks.

"'Well,' I says, shakin' it, 'you're a brick, you are, and I hate to part with you. Just good-bye, and I'll remember you when we meet ag'in.'

"His wink's solemn like and crawls off the way we come."

GIRL DIRECTS SURGEON.

"Don't Take Off My Foot, Only Fix It," She Said, and Thus Bore Pain Stoically.

Marion Tweedale, of New York, six years old, proved herself a heroine when an ice wagon ran over her right foot and crushed it. She was seated in a toy chair outside the curb opposite her home, at No. 154 West Eighteenth street, when this happened. She refused to let Ambulance Surgeon Thorne take her to the New York hospital, fearing, she said, that the doctors would cut off the foot.

When the shoe was cut off the surgeon tried to conceal the injury from the child while he bandaged it.

"Now you let me see my foot and I won't cry any more," she pleaded. "You must not cut it off," she continued earnestly.

The doctor complied, and the child leaned back after an inspection. "Now go ahead, doctor," she remarked, "but don't cut it off. Just fix it."

The child bore the pain of ten stitches without a murmur. When she was carried into the house after the foot had been bandaged, she said:

"Thank you, doctor; you have been very good to me."

"JUST FIX IT."

New York Clergyman Leaves Toilet Unfinished to Join Eloping Couple in Matrimony.

The details of the wedding on a train of W. Dell Balch, treasurer of a leading printing firm of Utica, N. Y., and Miss Lynch, whose home is in that city, have just become known. Mr. Balch and Miss Lynch recently decided to get married, but the parents of the young woman objected.

Miss Lynch left Utica on the Adirondack express train at 20 minutes of two o'clock Thursday afternoon, and Mr. Balch took another train half an hour earlier. At Remsen he got off and looked for a minister. A young man told Mr. Balch where a preacher could be found. The fiance hurried to a house two blocks from the railroad station, where a Baptist minister was found. The person was shaving himself. Mr. Bach's entreaties induced the minister to stop the operation.

Typical Fossils.

In accordance with a resolution passed at the international geological congress at Paris in 1900 to establish a paleontological publication to bring together illustrations and descriptions of type fossils, an international committee was appointed to prepare a programme of the publication which is to be known as Palaeontological Universalis. The commission will publish each type fossil on a separate plate. It has been arranged to reproduce the original figure of the type fossil, to give a phototypographic figure of the type itself, the original descriptions without alterations or abbreviations and additional observations by the authors. The two specimen plates which have reached us are excellent, and the series, when complete, should be of great service in making known rare and frequently unknown descriptions and figures of type fossils. The assistance of numerous palaeontologists has been secured, and they will prepare the plates of the type fossils of the greatest interest in their collections or care. Dr. von Zittel is president of the committee and M. D. P. Ehlert is the secretary.—Nature.

The Realistic School.

The classic tradition of Zeuxis, who painted grapes so naturally that the very birds came and pecked at them, inspired a French animal painter of mediocre talent and pressing need with a scheme for deluding gullible tourists. Our painter completed a picture, "The Death of the Poodle." Each morning he took his dog into his studio and, placing it before the picture, gave the poor beast a good thrashing. Naturally enough, the dog dreaded even a glimpse of the painting. When his master considered the lesson sufficiently taught he invited a rich tourist to his studio. The visitor, however, took but little interest in his host's works, and suddenly the dog came in and, at the sight of "The Death of the Poodle," uttered the most lamentable howls from fear of his accustomed punishment. "Oh," cried the stranger, in delight, "how true to nature! The painting deceives even the dog!" And he bought the picture at an exorbitant price.—Golden Penny.

The Only Way.

A kind-hearted woman, who was walking the other day through one of the streets in the vicinity of Fairmount park saw a little boy sitting on the curbstone, crying bitterly.

Her heart was at once touched and, going up to the little fellow, she asked him the cause of his grief. Looking up through his tears, he explained that his mother had sent him with some pennies to a near-by grocery store and told him to count the money.

"Well," said the woman, as she put her hand on the boy's head, "shedding tears will not bring back your money. What makes you cry that way?"

"'Cause," answered the boy, as he looked at the woman, perplexedly, "I didn't know how to cry any other way."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Will Go It Eventually.

In Greece the death penalty is said to be often pronounced, but the difficulty of obtaining executions was for a long time almost insuperable. It was at last surmounted by giving a murderer the choice between his own death or acceptance of the office of permanent executioner. The man lives alone in an old tower built by Venetians on an islet outside the port of Nauplia, where necessaries are taken to him every morning by the boatman who is careful to exchange no word with him. Twice a year a steamer calls for him and his instruments of death, and he leaves upon a tour of executions.

Carriage Driven by Wind.

With the new horseless carriage of George Winter, an English experimenter, it is claimed that 30 miles an hour can be maintained by wind power in large open spaces, like deserts. The wagon has four-foot wheels with seven-inch flat steel tires, the front wheels being 12 feet apart and the rear ones eight feet, and the silk sail of 324 square feet is carried on a 30-foot bamboo mast. The wagon runs in a light breeze, and steers in any direction.

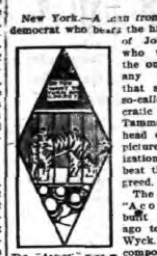
POLITICS IN GOTHAM

Oddities That Are Characteristic of an Odd Campaign.

BUCKING THE TAMMANY TIGER

The Press Is for the Fusion Ticket as a Rule—Peculiar Organization of Newspaper Men—Other Gossip.

New York.—A man from Georgia, a democrat who bears the historic name of Johnston and who works upon the only paper of any consequence that supports the so-called democratic ticket of Tammany, is the head of the most picturesque organization formed to beat that guild of greed.



The "Acorns" Wilted.

The order of the "Acorns" was built two years ago to beat Van Wyck. It was composed at first and is still actively run by reporters. Three-fourths of them are democrats; all of them felt it an outrage that the good name of democracy was made to stand for red lights, "graft" and corruption.

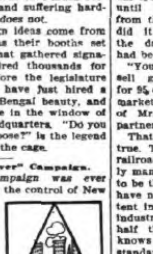
Everyone supposed that the society would fall to pieces as soon as the campaign was over. Its founders looked ahead. They foresaw the greater struggle this year, and kept the skeleton of an organization alive. This year they have added 90,000 names to their list. They have no creed, no politics, no purpose in life except this one, to beat the Tiger. No men better know what four years of Van Wyckism meant than do the newspaper reporters. And it is not true that much seeing of wickedness and suffering hardens their hearts; it does not.

The best campaign ideas come from the Acorns. It was their bonfire set out in the street that gathered signatures by the hundred thousands for anti-graft bills before the legislature last winter. They have just hired a tiger, a 500-pound Bengal beauty, and exposed it in a cage in the window of their Broadway headquarters. "Do you want to turn him loose?" is the legend they have put over the cage.

The "Oddest Ever" Campaign.

No stranger campaign was ever waged than this for the control of New York city.

Party lines are forgotten. If Hugh McLaughlin, the veteran Brooklyn boss, is shrinking his party ticket for the first time in 40 years, McLaughlin has always been close to David B. Hill, to Judge Parker and other leaders of the state democracy. Nominally, Senator Hill supports Tammany in its fight. At heart it is not supposed he would greatly mourn if his old friend McLaughlin should disrupt Tammany this year. After a long schism the Cleveland democrats and the Hill democrats are now in union and harmony. They resent the control of the party machinery in New York city by men like Croker and Tim Sullivan. Croker named McClellan for mayor; Sullivan named the candidate for borough president in Manhattan, where vast and costly public works would put immense patronage into Tim's hands if his man wins. I think Sullivan got the best of it. Manhattan is the tiger's lair. He may elect his man.



"A Tiger as a Kid-Poodle."

It begins to be apparent that Subs Boss Murphy made a mistake when he played "smart politics" by kidnaping Candidates Grout and Fornes from the fusion ticket. They have been repudiated by the fusionists, have come out squarely as Tammany candidates and are bitterly denounced by many Tammany adherents, who will with reluctance vote for them or not vote for them at all.

And their nomination gave McLaughlin his excuse for bolting, though he once ran Mr. Grout as a candidate for mayor of Brooklyn.

Not often do hard political knocks harm personal friendships in this town. To-day Mr. Grout is in such dis-esteem that old acquaintances are "cutting him dead" upon the street and in his clubs.

The Sad Fate of Nixon.

There was talk at one time of running Lewis Nixon as a third party candidate, to pull the real democrats into line for next year. "What's the use of a third ticket?" asked Hugh McLaughlin. The attempt was given up. McLaughlin ought to know.

McLaughlin Is Calm

Then came the shipyards trust exposures and Nixon was impossible. It is a pity.

Being the founder of the [illegible] bee buzzed in his ear Nixon was the man to lead democracy out of the Tammany mud, and rally the better element to a movement like the county democracy of Tilden, Cleveland and others years ago. He is a Virginian, born to his political faith. He was a navy designer and drew plans for the Oregon. He went into business for himself, bought an interest in a sleepy little shipyard in New Jersey, transformed it by his energy into an important bidder for torpedo boat work. He is a hustler.

In politics Nixon was the one man who ever persuaded Croker to give decency a show. Under Nixon's influence Croker appointed a committee of five to investigate vice conditions under Van Wyck and suggest remedies. Every man of the five is now out of favor in Tammany. They took their work seriously and found vice when the braves held they should have used the whitewash brush. For a time Nixon was nominally "boss" of Tammany. He resigned as soon as he knew that he was only nominally the boss and that he would have no chance to clean the Augean stable.

Then Nixon, who is a great administrator and builder, not a financier, was roped into the shipyards trust. I repeat: It was a pity. He is too valuable a man to be ruined in the public esteem because for a little while he yielded to the dream that men could lift themselves by their bootstraps and turn waste paper into valuable securities by capitalizing competition and organizing monopoly.

It was a bad dream. The trust was going badly at the best when "Charley" Schwab met Nixon and Dresser, his assistant in the trust making, one day and suggested that they buy the Bethlehem steel works. It's a long story how he and J. P. Morgan & Co. unloaded the works on the trust, taking in pay their cash value and in addition $20,000,000 worth of stock which was to be unloaded on the public in turn before the other stock of the concern was marketed.

"HAVE YOU SEEN HER?"

"Confidence" and the Market.

The transaction did more than ruin Nixon politically. It killed for the time the public confidence in the stock market. The street took the disclosures with its usual cynicism. Not until it "heard from the country" did it appreciate the damage that had been done.

"You couldn't sell gold dollars for 95 cents in this market," said one of Mr. Morgan's lieutenants recently.

That is not quite true. The standard [illegible] was a bad dream railroad stocks of the old, conservatively managed lines, which may be taken to be the "gold dollars" in the parable, have not declined to any alarming extent in three months. Meanwhile the industrials have in some instances lost half their price. And no one who knows the market now denies that the standard railroads having suffered will recover long before industrials, and will go further and faster on the upward course than industrials and the great new mergers can hope to do until they are equally time-tested.

One of the queerest stories of the street I have heard is this: A man sold Brooklyn Rapid Transit short at 30, when it was first organized. It began going up in the fever of the boom. His broker advised him to cover. "No, I guess I'll margin instead." he said. He did margin, and he kept on margining until the stock had reached 130 and he was tremendously "in the hole." Then came the reaction; B. R. T. began going down, and at each successive "low" the man's broker advised him to close while he could, but the speculator held on.

The other day the stock dropped to 26. "Now I'll cover," the cool hand said. And cover he did at his original price, though of course the item of interest and stock borrowing had in the meantime more than eaten up the profit.

A Social Explorer.

One of the most singular exploring parties ever sent out of New York has just returned bearing rich spoils. It consists of a man his wife, their son and a photographer. Their mission was to photograph and observe in every country things of interest to the Institute of Social Service. Miss Helen Gould paid the bills, and the chief explorer was Dr. W. H. Tolman, the head of the institute.

Helen Gould

Consider this list of what Dr. Tolman saw and compare it with the average traveler's studies abroad:

Security designs for the prevention of machinery accidents, in Amsterdam and Paris.

The proposed model city, near London; the British Institute of Social Service.

Cooperation in Italy; technical educations and cooperation in Ireland.

Home life of the poor in all of the big cities.

The result of the trip will be a Social Service Institute in New York, founded chiefly by Miss Gould. It will have permanent quarters in the building and will be, with its models, photographs, plans, notes and samples of safety machinery and home improvements, one of the most interesting places in the city; useful, too.

Dr. Tolman has learned how how to spend money—a much more difficult art than making it.

Bride Naps on Fire Escape

Young Boston Woman Disappears from Nuptial Chamber and Is Found the Next Morning, Sound Asleep, on Dizzy Iron Ladder—Somnambulism Explains This Novel Honeymoon Experience.

MRS. MONTGOMERY SEARS BUTLER, a Boston bride, spent the first night of her honeymoon on a fire escape at the Victoria hotel, in Chicago.

Montgomery Sears Butler, the husband of the Boston bride, spent the night roaming the streets, striding up and down the hotel corridor, wandering through the hotel halls—in fact, everywhere save in the bridal chamber.

Incidentally, when the bride was found perched on the lowest round of the fire escape, men were ungallant enough to make remarks about a woman who chose to spend the night clinging to the side of a building.

Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery Sears Butler are prominent in Boston. At least that is what their friends say. The bridegroom showed that he was willing to give his wife the best when they arrived at the Victoria hotel.

"The finest suite in the house," he said to Clerk McHenry.

"Sure," said the clerk, and gave them the keys to room 313.

According to the Chicago Chronicle, it was about 11 o'clock when the bridegroom and bride left the lobby. An hour later the bridegroom returned to the clerk.

"Have you seen her?" he queried, and he was excited, too.

"Who?" naturally asked the clerk.

"Why, my wife."

Then the clerk looked at the bridegroom. He wore a bathrobe. What else the clerk could not tell.

"No," he answered, finally.

"Well, she has deserted me."

"So soon?" from the clerk.

"Well, she's gone."

The clerk didn't know just what to do.

"Well, do you want to find her?" he asked at last.

"Do I want to find her? Why, man, she must be found. Maybe she's been kidnaped."

All the bell boys were called. Instructions were issued, and they were about to begin the hunt when the bridegroom shouted:

"And there's ten dollars to the boy that brings a trace of her, and $20 to the man that finds her."

The boys needed no other incentive. They went along the halls shouting her name. Guests were awakened and asked if they had seen her. Sympathizing women joined in the hunt. For an hour the hotel was crowded by amateur detectives. But no trace of the bride was found.

"The lake," finally shouted the husband.

"Have to wait until morning," said Clerk McHenry. And he spent the remainder of the night trying to calm the bridegroom. Day was breaking when a brewery wagon stopped at the hotel.

"Well, what do you think of that?" and the driver pointed to the fire escape.

"Say, they must be doing an awful business," came from a pedestrian.

"Well, it's a wonder that she'll escape if there's a fire," from another. Clerk McHenry began another investigation, this time to see what the second trouble was. He saw a woman asleep on the last round of the fire escape.

"Say, how was your wife dressed?" he demanded of the bridegroom.

"In her nightgown," answered the husband. "Have you any tidings of her?"

The clerk led him to Van Buren street.

"That's she," shouted the man from Boston, and he would have shouted at the woman, had not the clerk restrained him.

"Don't. The shock might awaken her and then she would fall. We must be mighty careful. She's found, but not yet saved."

Then he ran for a blanket. Four men caught the four corners and the blanket was held beneath the sleeping figure.

"Now call her softly," advised the clerk.

"Oh, Harriet," called the man from Boston. The woman yawned.

"Oh, I am so hungry," she said. Then she became fully awake. Her husband shouted instructions to her. But they were unnecessary. When she saw the crowd below and then saw her nightgown, she got away quickly enough.

She explained to her husband afterward that she walked in her sleep, and that she probably left their room and stepped down on the fire escape, and when she came to the last round and could go no farther, sat down and continued her nap.

SAWED WITH HIS MOUTH.

How a Tramp Got a Good Meal Without Doing a Lick of Work for It.

Harry Sanderson, manager for Tony Pastor, who lives at Cranford, N. J., not feeling particularly well, took a day off recently and remained at home. From the window of his library he observed a tramp entering his gate and he walked down to the rear door to meet him. It was the old story—a request for a meal. Having a load of unsawed wood in the shed, he told the fellow that if he got to work and performed on the sawbuck for a brief period he would have something prepared for him.

The tramp went to the shed and immediately the sound of vigorous sawing was heard, stick after stick parting under his energetic efforts. Calling the tramp into the kitchen Sanderson complimented him upon his energy, and the tramp replied with a modest air that whenever he had anything to do he generally paid attention to it. The meal was eaten and the tramp expressed his thanks and departed.

Shortly after Sanderson went out to the shed and was surprised to find every stick of wood intact. Upon inquiry in the village he ascertained that he had been entertaining a stranded ventriloquist, who was working his way back to New York from Easton, Pa. The mean chap had simply gone into the shed and given his imitation of sawing wood

ATE TOBACCOED SOUP.

Had Flavored It for Hated Rival, But It Was Forced Down His Unwilling Throat.

Prompted by jealousy because the girl he most admired was going to supper with his rival, a young man emptied the contents of his tobacco pouch in the oyster stew which was being made at a social held in the Bellinger schoolhouse, near Emericksville, Pa.

One of the young women tasted the stew and nearly falsted. She thought she had been poisoned. A young man tasted the soup, and announced that it was flavored with nothing more dangerous than tobacco. An investigation followed. The jealous young man was accused, and finally confessed. Some of the young men proposed holding him under the schoolhouse pump, but one of the girls suggested that he be compelled to eat the soup and to pay for it at the rate of 25 cents a plate. Rather than stand under the pump, he consented to eat all he could, and to pay for the rest.

The girl he most admired leaned on his rival's arm and applauded as plate after plate was set before the victim.

Of Interest to Dentists.

Sparrow Thrives in America.

In the United States the sparrow has six broods a year; in England only two or three.

THE NEW WOMAN

What She Thinks and Does

IT is now just about certain that except in the country and on farms the food of the average American family will ere long be prepared outside of the home. The housekeeping of the future will be nothing like so vexatious as that of the present is. A number of people in Brooklyn are solving the kitchen girl problem by the establishment of an eating club. A building has been rented as a clubhouse. A competent chef and manager takes charge of it at a good salary. He employs waiters and assistant cooks and kitchen help. He also prepares the daily menu, sends it to each household represented in the club and gets that family's order for the day. When the family come to dinner or luncheon or whatever the meal may be it is ready for them. Each family get the best the market affords without the slightest worry, and all cooking is removed out of the home. The waiters are paid better than ordinary ones are, and tipping is absolutely forbidden, as it should be everywhere. Thus each household is able to dispense with at least one servant and get satisfactory meals at reduced cost. There is every reason why the same system should be adopted even in villages. The individual family kitchen and cook are doomed. If housekeeping had kept up with other things in the march of improvements we should long since have had the eating clubhouse, maintained by the cooperation of individual housekeepers. Intelligent women determined to keep good tempered can manage it successfully in the smallest hamlet in this land. The enterprise has been tried sufficiently to insure its success. The only trouble has been that the old woman, undisciplined to steady action, has grown weary of clockwork regularity and has wanted to go somewhere else when her turn to manage came. The new woman is drilled to sustained effort and to know nothing can be achieved without it.

* *

Have you among your acquaintances any of those estimable ladies who make up their minds finally what they are going to do in a given matter, then go all around among friends asking their advice about it? Do you ever do this yourself?

There is no reason why women who enter domestic service should lodge in the homes of their employers. They can and no doubt in time will have their own homes and rooms where they can go in the evening when their work is done, returning next morning for their regular task. This arrangement will give the hired girl that liberty as a human being which is now denied her and will enable the housekeeper to dispense with one sleeping room. Civilization is certainly coming to this—that all domestic help will be housed in quarters of their own outside their employers' homes.

* *

I am not absolutely certain in my own mind that the female who is nothing but a bundle of irrational emotions, which she allows to govern her, has any immortal soul. One school of philosophers declares that man has no immortality till he grows and nurtures it from the seed.

* *

The object that makes me more weary than almost anything else is the woman who is an emotional fool. Here side by side in a newspaper today I read two items. In one the emotional fool testified in court that the "mystic hypnotic influence" of a man thief had led her to steal and commit various disreputable follies. But she boohooed and blubbered in the court and said, "I can't help loving him, though he has led me into sorrow and disgrace." Hypnotic bosh! No human being can hypnotize a woman unless she lets down the bars of her will. In the second case the girl, the daughter of a sheriff, fell in "love" with a jailbird, let him out of prison and ran away with him, although he would have preferred to go alone. Girls like that ought to be put at hard, regular labor on a diet of bread, beef and beans, allowed to read no novels and made to study mathematics in their spare hours.

It is not necessary for a woman to be fat.

In Kansas the school authorities promulgated the decree that no woman teacher should have a "steady" during school term and that any lady teacher who married during the school year thereby forfeited a part of her salary. This made the schoolmistresses indignant and enlisted with them the sympathies of the women citizens of Kansas. These took vigorous action. They instituted a still hunt political canvass. They quietly canvassed against those in office in reelection in the field for school officers. For these candidates the ladies, keeping their mouths shut as to their plans, worked enthusiastically. There was no great opposition, for the school office incumbents did not know what the women were at. The ladies elected their candidates generally, in some cases turning out of office their own husbands, and the obnoxious regulations against women teachers will be abrogated. Women vote in Kansas.

A lady who belongs to the butterfly stratum of society remarked lately that the feared coeducation would quite annihilate fashionable progress. Let us hope so.

Dainty Buttons — Shaded Feathers and Fur Coats.

A new button is made of two colored polished wood, those of dark wood being inlaid with satinwood. These are especially smart for tailor mades.

The three-quarter coat, tight fitting in the back, is especially smart when trimmed with strappings.

Three-quarter length coats of fur are made with loose hanging bell sleeves and a wide collar. These are useful for driving, walking or motoring.

Delicate gray feathers, shading from iron shot to the faintest pearl, are very smart on hats of gray shirred crepe velvet.

A black silk or moire evening coat is always useful and is really pretty when trimmed with white lace and black and white chiffon frillings.

Many skirts are trimmed with ruches and some with pipings of a different color. A very smart white serge skirt seen recently had every seam outlined with a piping of black panne. The blouse bodice was drawn down into a waistband of black panne, fastened at the back with fancy buttons and worn with a beautiful collar of white embroidery edged with black and a dainty little cravat of white cambric finished with a black velvet bow. This was accompanied by a white felt hat trimmed up with black velvet and a big white ostrich plume drooping right on to the shoulder. A wrap also made to be worn with this costume was composed of white cloth with a huge double cape collar and stoles of black and white embroidery outlined with gold thread.

The illustration shows a tea coat with a novel handkerchief arrangement of crepe de chine. The underblouse is of lace.

COLD WEATHER STYLES.

Useful and Inexpensive Long Coats. Feather Hats.

A long cloth coat faced with fur is a very useful and smart garment for cold weather. Made in deep red cloth and trimmed with skunk or marten, this need not be expensive to be pretty. The collar should be of the storm shape, with the lapels wide and gracefully rounded. A French sailor of red felt trimmed with an edging of the fur and a bunch of shaded roses would be smart worn with such a coat.

Feather hats are among the novelties of the winter. They are prettiest in green, gray or shaded red, and there are even stoles and muffs made to match them. The hats are untrimmed save for a rich buckle, and the majority are of the exaggerated turban shape raised at one side.

Shirred waists of white china silk are particularly desirable for young girls or however a dressy garment is required. They are made collarless, with shirred neck pieces and sleeve tops.

A beautiful wine colored chiffon velours model was made after the style of an old picture frock, being cut away to show an underdress of accordion plaited chiffon with a deep bertha and long stoles of point de venise. The sleeves, reaching to the elbow, were turned back with a full cuff of this wonderful old lace. To a woman with fair hair wine color is peculiarly becoming, particularly at night and in velvet or some such sumptuous fibbric.

The cut shows a walking costume of stitched blue cloth.

THE BEDSIDE.

A Few Things It Is Well to Have Conveniently at Hand.

In this age of comfort it is strange to find the bedroom, and particularly the guest bedroom, often so inconvenient. For instance, to take the first thing into consideration, why is the bell never placed near the bed, but always on the other side of the room? And why omit the bell in so many cases? It may be a portable bell if a stationary one is out of the question, and surely nothing is more inconvenient than to be forced to stick one's head out of the door and wait for a chance passerby.

Then the night table. Don't forget the candle and the matches; also it is a good idea to have a box of crackers and an interesting book or two in case your visitor suffers from insomnia. It is certainly not amusing to lie staring awake in the dark.

Any number of people have an electric drop light over the bed, but, why not fix it so that it does not ruin the eyesight? A movable bracket can easily be contrived, and the light should be hung as low as possible and, of course, should be carefully shaded.

For breakfast in bed a long, narrow tray is what is needed, so that it will hold everything necessary within reach and may be easily held across the knees.

R. DE LA BAUME.

FAMILY DISCIPLINE.

How It Is Weakened by Well Meaning Relatives.

I am sorry for the unfortunate child who has too many masters or mistresses, which is even worse. One is bad enough, but it is sufficient to drive even a grownup insane when two or more people give directions at the same time.

Yet that is what happens in many households, and I suppose the older folks wonder why the children are peevish and irritable and don't obey any one person in particular.

Grandmothers are the chief offenders, and they sin out of love for the children. They interfere with what they term the severity of the parents. They question the wisdom of the mother before the child, which is a very bad policy indeed, and you hear conversations like the following:

"But, mother, the coat is very heavy, and the doctor said it was weakening to dress the child so warmly."

"Don't tell me! When you were little I wouldn't have dreamed of such a thing! Now you just see if he doesn't catch cold!"

And if the child is drowsy or imagines he has a little pain in his throat even a week after that, what "I told you so's!" What lengthy arguments!

Maiden aunts are pretty bad, too, in this respect. They have theories which are sometimes worse than actual experience. Anyway, they want to put them into practice, and the poor child is between two fires—mother and auntie.

BETWEEN TWO FIRES.

What is to be done about it? Why, the mother has the supreme right, of course, and if family discipline is to be preserved there must be only one head. If grandmother wishes to give advice, let her do so in private, but never, never before the child, for these wranglings and arguments only breed disorder and perhaps contempt in the youthful mind.

And as for the maiden aunts, let them marry and practice their best fallacies on their own families.

Serge Shirt Waist Dresses — Double and Triple Skirts.

side into a point at the fullness of the waist line. Sometimes pipings of plaid are introduced to give a touch of color.

The double and triple tier skirts, while very smart, are somewhat trying to the ordinary wearer.

The faultless taste of the great Parisian dressmakers only adopts that mode of skirt most becoming to the wearer. To revert to a past epoch is evidently the pronounced idea shown in the principal and best known temples of sartorial art. There are many old world gowns likely to be repeated combined with modern and practical notions.

Some well known tailors are using many small taffeta buttons and small frills of silk. These adorn impartially heavy and light weight tailor mades.

The cut shows a costume of checked wool goods, having a double skirt.

SMART EFFECTS.

All White Relieved With Black—The Victorian Capes.

Some very pretty French hats are made of chenille combined with colored feathers. For instance, those of white chenille will be almost covered with black feathers. These are most chic worn with ermine or black and white frocks.

White cloth gowns are nearly always trimmed with the dead white Irish lace, and when anything is used to relieve this it takes the form of black panne appliqued in odd figures.

*Fine plaited costumes are very fash*ionable for young girls, especially for evening wear. They are finished with a bertha of lace and a figured ribbon sash.

Victorian capes of chiffon, velvet and furs to harmonize are very smart with cloth street dresses.

Handsome buckles, buttons and embroideries are now used more than ever.

Some early autumn manties are in black velvet trimmed with medallions of black appliqued and frills and ruches of black taffeta. The majority of these are cut after the shawl pattern and very low on the shoulder. Then there are some smart little cloth capes reaching to the waist, finished with collars of oriental embroidery.

We are wearing a good deal of black, while some are wearing white trimmed with black. White cloth, stitched with black and trimmed with white embroidery, is extremely smart, and so are white flannel trimmed with black plumes or birds.

All the short skirts seem plaited or kilted and all the "tailor made" millinery is trimmed with birds or wings. It is a curious thing that despite so much strong feeling against the wearing of birds this fashion should have taken such a persistent hold.

The cut shows a stole of sable and one of the latest muffs. The hat is of brown felt with a shaded brown feather.

FENCING FOR WOMEN.

Noble Physical Exercise Which Produces Also Grace of Body.

THE "sport of kings" is what enthusiasts in the art of fencing call it, and they are quite justified. In the days when fencing meant something far more serious and deadly than mere diversion and exercise gentlemen of high degree made use of it in the then universal dueling encounters. Now it is taught to ladies as the most grace producing and healthful physical exercise they can acquire.

The time is coming, though it is not yet, when fencing will be a part of every well educated girl's physical training. It ought to be so now. Is a girl stiff, oxlike and awkward, hollow chested, pigeoned, incurving at the knees or afflicted with other distressing physical defects? Fencing is the royal exercise that will correct every one of them.

Better still, fencing is quite as good for grown women as for girls. Women who have mentally "settled down"—pity that expression ever crept into the language!—become heavy and unwieldy in their bodies to correspond. Dumpy fat clogs their muscles and crowds the lungs and heart till the ladies become bulgy and short of breath. They try often to conceal the soggy bulk by tight lacing and other uncomfortable devices which do not at all produce the illusion of sylphlike proportions desired. If these dames would throw off their *stays and put themselves under the in*struction of an expert fencing master who would keep them up to their work they would become again nimble as any girl.

New York is the principal city for women fencers. Several fencing schools there have departments for ladies, while the women's gymnasiums have masters of the full practice too. Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco are some of the cities where fencing is popular as the training par excellence for grace, suppleness and strength. It is no longer the fashion for women to be rough and ready.

The best fencers among women are usually actresses and quite naturally, for an unwieldy, awkward actress would make a poor show on the stage. Mrs. Langtry is an expert fencer, while Sarah Bernhardt in this as in all else is superb. Marie Tempest is noted among famous theatrical ladies for her strength and skill in fencing.

The surest way to attain a graceful bearing is to learn this art. The muscles of women's lower limbs, especially about the hips and knees, are usually no more than half developed, which gives the jiggling, mincing, short stepped gait whose defects are manifest when the ordinary woman tries to keep pace with a man in walking. Fencing is what is wanted to limber and strengthen the noble, beautiful locomotor muscles. The leg movement in this exercise is the best devised to fill out the calves as well as to reduce above the knees a body which is too often smothered in fat.

The champion fencer of England is Miss Lowther; the champion of France is a married woman, Mme. Gabriel, renowned for her skill with the foils. These two had a contest not long ago. It was France against England, but the English girl was the victor. The bout between the two champions was a splendid exhibition of power, grace and skill, and the audience hail rang again and again with shouts of applause.

The exquisite and perfect wrist and hand motion of Bernhardt in her stage genius has many a time been commented on. It is a lesson in grace to see it, and it was acquired by practice with the fencing foils. The mental training also is quite equal to the physical. Fencing wakes up through and through the most stupid, sluggish temperament and makes the eye bright.

The main positions in this exercise are not difficult to learn. The dexterity and strength come by long and faithful practice. A pretty, picturesque fencing costume has been devised. Rubber soled shoes are worn to prevent slipping. The foil, which the fencer learns to flash in fine, lightning-like play, is made of flexible steel, with a leather or rubber button at the point. A leather breastplate and collar are worn and, to protect the face, a wire mask.

WHAT IS WORN.

The Loose Hanging Bell Sleeve. Smart Turbans.

The loose hanging bell sleeve is a feature of many coats. Frequently it is so cut as to give a double or triple effect, and this same double or triple effect is to be seen in the skirt and in the short bolero.

Turbans are very fashionable head gear, and they are made narrower than formerly. The smartest are shaded with different tones of velvet. Feather hats are novelties, as also are hats trimmed with a single bird with outstretched wings.

Mink is much used on deep green panne. A dress made of such a combination is prettier tempered by embroidery touches of black and white.

Both suede leather and panne velvet are used to relieve mink, moleskin and caracul coats.

Veils of chiffon with heavy hems will still be seen on winter tailor made hats.

A skirt made entirely of superposed folds almost imperceptibly graduated from seven inches at the hem to four at the waist is among the immediate novelties. A slight upward slant at the back gives an additional air of chic.

The illustration shows a hat of sable trimmed with a white feather pompon.

EVENING AND DAY DRESSES.

Odd Half Sleeves on Evening Gowns. Spotted Panne Vests.

The sleeve of an evening gown frequently begins halfway down the arm, the upper part being composed of a latticework of ribbon or chiffon cords, or indeed in many cases of the bare arm.

Three-quarter coats of white cloth are excessively smart, especially when trimmed with dainty touches of black or of Persian trimming.

Bias folds to simulate ruffles sloping upward in the back are used in cloth skirts at equal distances.

Spotted panne vests are pretty on cloth tailor mades.

Some new tailor made suits show plaited flounces on the skirts and plaited fullnesses on the lower halves of the sleeves.

The new petticoat is habit backed and gored very tightly around the hips. The ruffles are laid on a gored flounce which starts at the knees.

A new feature in wide belts worn with full gathered skirts is seen in the very pretty Swiss shaped satin belts narrowing at the side and forming a deep point in front and at the back, from beneath which the fullness appears to spring forth. The dwarf cash is dainty and manipulated in knotted ends or fringe is again introduced on many of the soft velvet gowns. The high draped directoire ceinture, having short flat hip pockets and rounded at the back of the waist, promises to be a style essentially useful for the long plaited basque Louis XVI. coats. Such a detail as a ceinture is more important than may generally be supposed, for the waist line must always be well and neatly defined. It is not at all necessary to have a small waist to be smart. Becomingness to the wearer is the essential question.

The cut shows a gown of black dotted net trimmed with black renaissance lace over white chiffon.

DISAGREEABLE GIRLS

Several Kinds of Them

"WELL, there are enough disagreeable girls," grunted the old bachelor.

"Oh, I don't know. In any case, they may be matched by the number of disagreeable men," retorted the wise woman.

"Yes, but we're talking about the women," he interposed.

"Not so much women as girls," she answered. "You must remember that as women get older they sometimes improve with adversity and marriage and such happenings, while, as for men, the older the crankier."

"Oh, well, now, that's not fair. Back to the question. Tell us of the different varieties of disagreeable girls you have met in your wide experience."

"Well, first and foremost I must place the girl who carries tales. There ought to be a reformatory for her, for she causes nearly all the trouble in this world. Her conversation is one tissue of 'he says' and 'she says,' and, my goodness, if she only repeated things as they were originally said! But she doesn't! If Mary Brown says of Mary Smith that she doesn't always buy a becoming hat, it becomes in her mouth, 'Mary Brown says that Mary Smith looks like a perfect fright in her hats!' Result: Mary Smith, with rage in her eye, goes to Mary Brown and says, 'What did you say about me?' with the accent on the 'what.' And, of course, Mary Smith denies, and some one is thought a story teller, with a nice, lovely Christian feeling all around.

"Next in order comes the girl who borrows things, and that habit sticks to her through life. She goes about it gracefully. She glides in with a sweet smile. She talks about the weather—anything. But you know it is coming. Sure enough, with a 'By the way, I just thought I'd ask you if you didn't mind,' and the evil deed is done. The worst type of this kind of girl never makes a visit without some ulterior object in mind, and people get so they dread her coming.

"Then there is the peevish, discontented girl. You see her always dissatisfied, with a perpetual sour, disgruntled look on her face that deepens into typical lines. Hateful girl!

"A PERPETUAL SOUR LOOK."

"And not far from her is the girl who sulks when things don't go her way until people put themselves out to make things go her way in sheer dread of her sulking.

"And don't forget the jealous girl, who, when you remark that another girl is looking well, immediately chirps in with, 'How do I look?' And the deceitful girl who loves you to your face and behind your back sees to it that you don't get too popular. Then, too, the other variety—of the jackal tribe, she who doesn't dare to fight you openly, "but is in at the death—the nice, 'catty' little thing, who deals out insinuations like pills in sugar coatings.

"A shade less annoying is the girl who is all the time bored and makes a specialty of never being able to sit through anything, and she who has a bad temper and says: 'But I never bear malice. I have it right out in one big explosion, and I get right over it!' But the trouble is that other people don't.

"Let me also put in a word about the selfish girl. 'Me and myself first, and what is left let it be divided up among the rest of the people.' A minor offender of this tribe is the girl who throws her things around for other people to pick up and as a result never can find anything until she has secured the services of every one she can lay hands on to help her.

"And while we are about it let us remember the sweet little thing, be she young or old, who always does things just right and tells us so with conscious pride. A great tribute to the restraining powers of civilization that this species is not wiped off the earth. And the girl who always brags"—

"Oh," groaned the bachelor, stopping up his ears. "That will do! Even if I did not dream there were so many kinds of disagreeable girls."

"Out of consideration for you I shall stop," retorted the wise woman. "Though I do not wish you to imagine that the list is by any means exhausted. It is a long one, and I could go on almost indefinitely."

"I've heard enough. Mercy," plead the bachelor.

The street sprinkling contract ended on Saturday, but the dust did not stop blowing. To some extent the arrangement for municipal street sprinkling was an experiment and as much is proved successful. It has been clearly shown that the city can do the work much more thoroughly and considerably cheaper than can a private individual. We have two suggestions, however, to make. One is that more carts be placed in the business portion of the city. The other is that the work go on uninterruptedly until winter comes. There appears to be no sound reason why the sprinkling should stop on November 1. Let the good work be continued.

MEETING OF ORGANIZATION CONTESTING FOR THE DAILY PRESS CUP.

Changes Made in Arrangement of Schedule—Old Rules to Govern.

An enthusiastic meeting of The Daily Press Bowling League was held in this office Friday, when plans for the coming tournament were discussed and other business transacted. D. M. Mulford, C. H. Westerberg, W. P. Howe and S. C. Greves represented Roselle Casino; H. R. Forster and A. B. Smith, Westfield Club; F. O. Ball and Charles B. Morse, Park Club. The Cranford Casino was represented by H. R. Forster.

The first business was the election of officers for the coming year: S. C. Greves was chosen president, and Walter C. Dobbins, of The Daily Press, secretary.

There was an informal discussion as to making a two-round schedule, instead of one as heretofore, and it was decided to make the change. This will allow for more games, and as the tournament will not be started before December 1, the extra games will bring the contest well into spring, and not conclude it as early as in previous years. A committee consisting of H. R. Forster, of Westfield, and D. W. Mulford, of Roselle, was appointed to arrange the new schedule. It was decided that the same rules and regulations governing former tournaments should prevail, and as to postponed games, no doubt arrangements will be made to play them off within a certain time.

The Daily Press was thanked for its kindness and interest in the past, and a vote of thanks was given to Charles B. Morse, the retiring secretary, for his work.

For the first time All Soul's services were held in a cemetery here, Sunday. The parishioners of St. Mary's and St. Joseph's Churches attended the services. About seven hundred people were present at the burying ground at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time special prayers were offered for the souls of the departed interred there. The services were conducted by Fathers Egan, Delahanty and Miller.

Miss Isabelle MacMurray, sister of City Clerk James T. MacMurray, and Dr. David Jeffray Dixon, were quietly married Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride, Glen Farm, near Mountainside. Rev. Dr. Danforth, pastor of the Westfield Congregational Church, was the officiating clergyman. The couple was unattended. A reception was held after the ceremony had been performed and at a late hour they left for a honeymoon trip to Baltimore. Upon their return they will reside in Hoboken.

Charles Tyler Overbaugh, of West Front street, and Miss Lillie Agnes Waglow, of New Market, were married Saturday by Rev. Abram H. Lewis, at his home on West Seventh street.

AMUSEMENTS.

One of the surest drawing cards in vaudeville for several seasons past has been the very prominent headline team, the Elinore Sisters, an extremely artistic pair of character comediennes. It will be a genuine pleasure to all who have enjoyed their performances in vaudeville to know that Miss Jessie Elinore is presenting them as stars this season at the head of a big company of fun makers to be seen in a three act musical farcical comedy, entitled "Mrs. Delaney of Newport." Considering the well known popularity of the Elinore Sisters, the elaborate manner in which the piece has been equipped with scenery and costumes, and the great opportunity for creating mirth, this attraction should prove one of the strongest of the season. It will be seen at the Grand Opera House week of Nov. 9.

Klaw & Erlanger opened their New Amsterdam Theatre, situated on 42d street, just west of Broadway, New York City, last Monday night, presenting N. C. Goodwin in their superb spectacular production of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream." This theatre has been in process of construction for two years and when its doors were thrown open last Monday night, notwithstanding all that had been said of its magnificence, it proved a complete surprise to everyone. It represents the most complete and advanced theatrical architecture in the world and a distinct departure in the novelty of its decorations, which are founded on the Art Nouveau idea, which was given its first expression at the Paris Exposition of 1900. The decorations of the New Amsterdam Theatre represent the most extensive interpretation of this style of decorative art, either in this country or Europe. Those familiar with the court theatres of Europe say that there is no amusement edifice abroad that can be compared with the New Amsterdam Theatre in point of comforts, safety or elegance of appointments. It will seat 1800 people.

"Babes in Toyland," in which William Norris and his company appear at the Broadway, is in popular favor and is a fitting successor to the "Wizard of Oz." As a musical extravaganza it surpasses anything that has been on the Metropolitan boards lately. An extra matinee is scheduled for election day.

At the Madison Square, "just around the corner" from Broadway on 24th street, Jessie Millward will appear in "A Clean State" on election day and for some days thereafter the sale of seats is now in progress and all you have to do is to call up the box office from your home 'phone here. Matinees Thursdays and Saturdays.

The biggest musical comedy success of the year, "Peggy from Paris," is achieving a remarkable record at Wallack's Theatre, New York. It has already outlived several of the musical plays that began the season at other theatres and the end of its run is not in sight. This would seem to prove that the theatre-going public are quick to appreciate a clean, wholesome, American play with tuneful, catchy music and liberally encourage it with their patronage.

"Erminie" has only three more weeks to remain at the Casino. Originally intended for a stay of four weeks in its pretty thespian birthplace, Managers Nixon & Zimmerman have prevailed on the Messrs. Shubert to give it an additional week, so the famous comic opera classic will not close in its present New York engagement until Saturday evening, November 21st. There has never been a comic opera revival in this country which has found so much favor with all classes of theatre goers.

Over in Newark at Proctor's Theatre in Military Park, a bill of feature acts will be the offering next week. The programme will have as its main headliner, Charles R. Sweet, the "musical burglar," in a piano and musical monologue. Others contributing to the fun will be Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, in their international success, entitled "When Two Hearts Are Won." Sheehan and Warren, in a German comedy sketch, "Que Vat Im" Brenn and Russell, singers and dancers, executing "tricks of the trade;" Roberts, Hayes and Roberts, in a juvenille comedy sketch; Loney Haskell, monologue comedian; Jules Keller, hand balancer, and several other up-to-date novelties.

Eighteenth Birthday.

A surprise party was tendered to Miss Mary Boal, of Myrtle avenue, Saturday night, in honor of her eighteenth birthday. Music for dancing was furnished by Sam Frazee.

Miss Violet Gray, of Somerset street, entertained John Molvy, of Newark, over Sunday.

Mrs. A. J. Woods, of Brooklyn, grandmother of Mrs. William W. Warnock and great grandmother to Mrs. Warnock's children, is visiting at the home of Mrs. Warnock, on Craig place.
